The county schools were opened yesterday after a holiday of six weeks. The more pampered city children do not resume their duties for two more weeks. It is, however, a reminder that their holidays are on the wane and that only a few days remain until they are back to their work, beginning another year that carries them away from their youth and constitutes another step towards their age of responsibility that will dawn upon them only when they have left their "good old golden rule" days behind.

HAS GIVEN FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy Makes Generous Donation to Masonic Home.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science Church, has made a generous contribution of five hundred dollars to the Massachusetts Masonic Home. We have before found pleasure in noting Mrs. Eddy's favourable opinion of freemasonry, and her generous action speaks louder than words in testimony of the sincerity of her belief in its value. We hope her example may stimulate others of the opposite sex who have the means to do likewise.—Christian Science Sentinel.

NO TRUTH IN THE REPORT

The Examiner, in its personal column, yesterday published an item regarding Mr. James Jackson, of the H. P. Kennedy store, in which it was stated that he was about to sever his connection with that firm and leave for the West to establish a junk business. The paragraph has been discovered to have been false and was sent in by some one who evidently thought he was doing something very amusing. There is no truth in the statement and the Examiner is glad to be able to inform the public so, while regretting the publishing of the item.

The London Times' criticisms the Canada-West Indies Commission on the ground that Lord Balfour of Burleigh and Sir J. Dickson Poynder are free traders.

Harriman's Latest Coup.

New York, Aug. 17.—A report that E. H. Harriman has obtained an option on a controlling interest in the New York Central lines which, if exercised, will give him control of a through route from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, was circulated on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Such a route has been the dream of railroad men for years.

The option taken by Mr. Harriman is said to cover about $50,000,000 worth of New York Central stock, a large part of which formerly was controlled by the Vanderbilt interests. The price at which the stock may be taken over is said to be $150 a share.

It was pointed out that the acquisition of the New York Central would give Mr. Harriman an ocean route by way of the New York Central, Chicago & Northwestern, Illinois Central, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Steel Will Pay Dividend.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—The Herald prints the following on its financial pages:

"The Herald has it on the best authority that the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. is earning sufficient to warrant a dividend on the common stock next year and leave a substantial surplus to be carried forward.

"The company, if the present rate of production continues, will show earnings at the rate of well over 8 per cent. per annum on the common stock, and there is now little doubt that holders of the stock will receive at least a 4 per cent. dividend during the next fiscal year.

"There is reason to believe that the company's business will continue at the present profitable rate for at least the remainder of the current year."

Big Trestle Collapses.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 17.—A Fredericton special says that six spans of one of the largest trestles on the New Brunswick section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway collapsed, with the result that one workman was killed and several others had miraculous escapes.

The trestle spanning Mullin's Brook, near McGinvey's Siding, was 1,400 feet long and fifty feet high. Cars were dumping rock into the valley, and went down with the trestle, carrying six with them.

An inquest was held, and the Toronto Construction Co., who were in charge of the work, are not exonerated from blame.

BRONCHITIS, Huskiness, Throat Catarrh

Delightful Cure Discovered That Cures Quickly.

Old-fashioned remedies were administered through the stomach only, but as it is impossible to swallow anything into the lungs, little benefit ever resulted.

Strong drugs, such as opium, chlorodyne and cocaine, were resorted to, but did more harm than good.

Nowadays, when a doctor meets a case of catarrh — finds the throat filled with mucous—sore all the way down, he prescribes Catarrhozone because he knows it goes direct to the disease.

Catarrhozone cures by antiseptic balsams that are carried by the air you breathe direct to the source of the trouble.

In one minute you experience decided relief with Catarrhozone and invariably it does cure every type of Catarrh, Bronchitis, irritable throat and hoarseness.

Just think of it—a sure cure without noxious drugs—one that is guaranteed and delightfully pleasant as well. Catarrhozone only, complete for two months' use, $1.00; small (trial) size 50c. at all dealers.

CATARRHOZONE A SURE CURE.

Aviator Curtiss Hurt.

The accident was due to a large gust of wind catching the aeroplane crosswise and causing it to strike the ground hard on its side. It is stated that the aeroplane was damaged greater than at first appeared and it is feared that repairing it possibly will be a long operation and even may preclude Mr. Curtiss' participation in the first days of the meeting.

Mr. Curtiss is suffering from shock and bruises, though his condition is not serious.

A hurricane, accompanied by hail and torrents of rain, swept over the aeroplane last night, unroofing a number of sheds.

$1 a Cake Could Buy No Better Soap

If you were to offer us $1 for a single cake of soap, we could make no better than our Infants' Delight.

For we have put our very best into this cake. We go to the gardens of France for pure vegetable oil. There we pay often double what we might pay. We bring cocoanut oil more than 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. Then we mix these oils and boil them doubly long.

After this we send them through our own special milling process—one that we have perfected only in our 43 years of experience.

From here they fall like flakes of snow into huge bins and are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons, after which they are dried eight times. The result is the most perfect and delightful soap.

It is so pure and clean that it leaves the skin fair as an infant's. So we call this soap Infants' Delight.

Order one cake today and see for yourself how different it is. Note the rich, creamy lather and see how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Note the dainty perfume—it comes from Bulgaria and costs us $100 a pound. But it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce of this Otto of Roses. The fragrance is simply exquisite. Please try it and see.

HOW ALFIE SHRUBB HAD HIS START IN RUNNING GAME

Many are the stories which have been written of how famous runners have from practical poverty been suddenly plunged into the depths of wealth. Of Dorando Pietri it has been told how the pastry cook ran for miles to neighbouring villages in his native Italy to deliver an order, and only then conceived the idea that he could travel at a rapid pace. Of St. Yves that he was once earning tips in a London cafe and later as a chauffeur in Paris, when he put on the spiked shoes to beat them at the Marathon distance; and of the others similar tales could be told.

The runners who have been before the public the present year have for the most part put on the shoes at some spasmodic time only to find that there was a livelihood in the game—and a big one at that.

Of them all, however, the story of Alfred Shrubb's sudden rise to fame is the most remarkable and has the others faded in a thousand ways. Here it is:

When Alfred Shrubb was "discovered," he was a bricklayer's labourer, employed to carry bricks for the building of Christ's Hospital, near Horsham, Sussex, Eng.

A fire occurred a few miles out in the country one night, and a number of young men of the Horsham Harriers, ran to the scene of the conflagration. The field gradually spread out, and one of the Harriers found a stranger keeping him company. "I must shake this chap off," the Harrier said to himself, and quickened his pace. The stranger kept jogging along beside him, however, and some distance before the scene of the fire was reached the Harrier pulled up. The stranger coolly asked him what was the matter, but the Harrier was breathless and speechless. When he was sufficiently recovered to speak, the runner gasped, "Who are you? I am supposed to be the best runner in this district, but you can lick me."

"Oh, I can't run," was the reply; "my name's Alf. Shrubb."

Beat His Field.

Shrubb then ttrotted on to the fire, which he reached several minutes ahead of the other runners. Shrubb did not think much about the incident, and went on carrying the bricklayer's hod and mortar.

But the Harrier soon looked him up and induced him to take up running. He immediately took a foremost place in the ranks of English amateur runners, and within a year was amateur champion at four miles. In the next three or four seasons he made a clean sweep of the British championships and records from two to fifteen miles. On one occasion he won the amateur championship at one mile, but his best time for that distance was 4.19, compared with the professional record of 4.12 3-4, and the amateur record of 4.15 3-4. A mile, however, was always below his best distance, just as the Marathon course is above it.

Shrubb's peculiar methods in middle distance races were always disturbing and provoking to his opponents. He would start a four-mile race at the speed of a quarter-miler, and when he had established a lead of 30 to 40 yards would slow down and then sprint again. This process he used to repeat all through the race, and finish up with another quarter-mile sprint in the last lap.

After he took up running, Shrubb's admirers set him up in a cigar store at Horsham, which was supposed to supply him with the funds for his training and travelling expenses.

The rules of the English A. A. A. do not allow sports promoters to pay travelling expenses or appearance money, and every now and again a number of amateur cracks get suspended and professionalized for receiving expense money. Shrubb, after making a trip to Australia and New Zealand, with the consent of the A. A. A., was found to be getting financial assistance of which the association could not approve, and was forced into the professional ranks.

MORE ABOUT THE BASEBALL MUDDLE

Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Allow me a word or two on the much mooted question of baseball, and the relationship of the City League thereto. Noting in your issue of the 13th inst., that there would be a double-header played on the Riverside Park grounds, on Saturday afternoon, and assuming that the respective teams had patched up their differences, and that we might see a resumption of clean manly play, I hied myself to Riverside, at the appointed hour, to find the gate closed. Retracing my steps, at the entrance from Hunter street, I met players in T. A. S. uniforms, who, to my inquiry, "Is there going to be a game?" answered in the negative; but volunteered the information, that they were just going for a "work out." Later I learned that the Oval was to be the scene of action, and I hastened thither to find a game in progress between the West Ends and the P.C.A.'s, which proved rather disappointing, and would indicate the early demise of baseball, so far as Peterborough is concerned. If it is dead, let it be decently interred. Abraham Lincoln once said: "You can fool all the people, part of the time; and you can fool part of the people all the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time."

Sports For Eastwood And Howden Trophies September 17th

September 17th is the date of the sports at the Nicholls Oval for the Howden and Eastwood trophies. This is an annual event in athletic circles that ranks among the most important. The events for the former trophy are as follows: 100 yards, 220 yards, one mile, broad jump, high jump, and putting 12 pound shot; for the other trophy the events are 100 yards, 220 yards, one-quarter mile, broad and high jumps, and putting the eight pound shot. There will also be two sprints, which will not count for the trophies, but will be given.

The Howden trophy is for seniors and the Eastwood for boys under 17 years.

The Executive Will Try To Straighten Out The Tangle

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Senior City Baseball League to-morrow night in the Examiner office for the purpose of endeavouring to make arrangements to wind up the season. A full representation of the teams of the League is requested. The T. A. S. have notified the League that they do not wish to withdraw and will finish out the schedule. They have three games to play, one with the Straths, one with Park Street and the third with the West Ends. Arrangements will have to be made for playing off these games, so that it is important that all four teams should be represented.

SOME EARLY SEASON RUGBY PROSPECTS AND GOSSIP

As the season draws near, Rugby talk is heard on all sides. It is a little early yet to even figure out what teams will be playing or in which leagues.

Argos and T. A. C. are not likely to meet except in a city championship game, as the Torontos are pretty well wrapped up in the O. R. F. U. the president and secretary of the league being T. A. A. C. men. Then the Brittannias of Montreal, have the intention of going in with the T. A. A. C. to form the nucleus of a senior series. There is also some talk of the P. C. C. having a senior club in either one or the other.

Rumour has it that the canoe clubs will form a section in one of the unions. Lindsay, after their first successful season, will be back without a doubt, and the Caps are on deck already. Nothing has been said of the Burekas, as Pete Sanagan is not interested, and it may take some time before someone else takes hold of that club.

There is also talk of a new city league, but Rugby is not strong enough in Toronto for two local leagues. The old league is still flourishing, and with a couple of new teams that are talking of coming in, will be stronger than ever.

In an endeavour to foster the game locally the City League will likely form a juvenile section, for which a cup has already been offered. Any teams desirous of entering this latter series may communicate with this office.

It is said that Warren Coryell, of Varsity, will hold down the quarter back position with the Argos this coming season, although Parkdale would like to see him turn out with them.—Toronto News.

THE RUGBY EXECUTIVE WILL MEET IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Rugby enthusiasts in Peterborough are already discussing the prospects foro the season and it is altogether likely that a meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Rugby Club, the officers of which were elected last season and which will have control of the City League as well, will be called in the near future. One thing is certain and that is that Peterborough will be in line with a team this season, although the outlook is too hazy just now to hazard a guess at the series. Nearly all of last year's team are here and with the benefit of Dr. MacPherson's coaching from the start and systematic practice they will be right in line for whatever turns up. Practice will commence early in September so that the team will be in shape when the season opens.

LOCAL CRICKET CLUB IS ARRANGING SOME GAMES

There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club this evening at 8 o'clock when a full attendance is expected as business of importance is to be discussed. The locals have received an invitation to play in Campbellford and will go there on Friday with the strongest team available. On Thursday of next week the Warkworth Club will visit here and will play an all-day game with the locals at Nicholls Oval. Luncheon will be served by the Peterborough Club to the visitors and an interesting game may be expected. On Labour Day it is likely that the Campbellford Club will play a return game here.

SAYS THEY WERE TOLD TO PLAY ON THE OVAL

Petreborough, Aug. 17th, '09.

Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In the sporting column of the Peterborough Examiner I noticed a statement last night to the effect that Managers Davidson and Pilling ignored the ruling of President McWilliams by playing their scheduled game on the Oval. I beg to contradict that statement and say that we personally saw Mr. McWilliams and were told to play on the Oval as there was no umpire appointed for the game to be played on Riverside Park.

Yours truly,

J. PILLING,
Manager P. A. C.

The Duties Of Collector For The Merchants Of The City

Will Collect Bad Debts and Prepare List of "Dead Beats" for Merchants—Effort to Put a Stop to One of the Main Stones of Business.

HAS PROVED SUCCESSFUL

As announced a few weeks ago the Retail Merchants' Association has decided to engage a collector to endeavour by this means to have outstanding accounts paid and to protect themselves from those persons who have been systematically "bleeding" one merchant after another. This system has been put into practice in many towns and cities throughout the country and has proved, according to report, to be of great assistance to business as a whole and to the individual merchant. It is learned that only those whoo have incurred debts and refuse to pay them, or are altogether too negligent and slow will be placed on the list to receive the attention of the collector. Extreme measures will be taken if the merchant desires and those who have given trouble to one store will be entered in a list of names and every member of the Association will have a list of the "bad pays."

A grocer stated to an Examiner reporter that there is a class of citizen who make a practice of getting as much as possible without paying for it. Having taken out a long list of groceries at one store the grocer takes a final stand that Mr. So-and-So gets nothing more until he has liquidated at least to the extent of a dollar a week. The grocer begins to feel that he is being played for a "sucker" and in the words of the street he "gets sore." His original intention was not to conduct a charitable institution, but to try to make his investment pay at least five or ten per cent. The customer confronted with an irate dealer assumes a hurt bearing and threatens to get his groceries elsewhere, although he does not mention that his bill is up in the three figures. He actually commences to buy from another grocer, pays for a while in order to present the appearance of being a promising customer and then begins to let little debts accumulate, pays them and finally starts in on a Marathon stretch which results in another big debt and a checker play to another grocer. This is not a mid-day dream, but an actual fact, and a lamentable one with those grocers who have met these kind of people and none of the tradesmen escape. In fact it is considered a part of the necessary experience of a merchant and having been "hooked" by those hard luck stories he begins to study human nature more closely until he is able to pick out the good from the bad customer.

The members of the Association seem to consider the new system a good one and it will no doubt protect them from the inveterate sharpers, one of whose earthly ambitions is to get through life without paying any more than they are compelled to, not what in duty bound they are obliged to. The collector if requested will endeavour to encourage punctuality in paying bills and to generally assist the merchants in getting what they call a "square deal" from delinquent customers.

PETERBOROUGH CANDIDATES WHO HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL

The statements of marks of all candidates will be mailed to the principals or inspectors in the course of a few days. In the case of those writing at the University of Toronto, these statements will be sent to the registrar of that institution. Candidates should apply to these parties and not to the department of education for further information. The marks obtained by scholarship candidates will be reported direct to the universities concerned in the course of a few days. Scholarship candidates will be informed of their standing by the registrars of these universities.

The Peterborough results are as follows: A. S. Anderson, mathematics 3, physics 2, chemistry 3; M. J. Dobbin, English 3, Mathematics 3; A. Hunter, French 3; H. E. McGill, English 2, mathematics 3, chemistry 3; A. E. Rosborough, English 1, history 2, mathematics 1, physics 2, chemistry 2, Latin 3.

THE GAY MUSICIAN AT OTTAWA FAIR

After considerable negotiation Mr. A. J. Small has secured for the Russell Theatre, for Fair Week, commencing Monday, Sept. 13th, the famous comic opera "The Gay Musician," by the noted composer Julian Edwards.

The fame of "The Gay Musician" is too well known in Canada to need any particular exploitation at this time, for it has been seen twice during the past season and was declared by all who saw the production of Manager John P. Slocum, to be the best musical attraction that has been seen in Ottawa for many years.

Those who will visit Ottawa during Fair Week should not fail to see "The Gay Musician" at the Russell, for if they do they will miss one of the big features of the week's celebration and a treat of a lifetime. The company of eighty people comprises some of the best known singers on the stage today, and Manager Slocum has made a careful selection of his singers, comedians, chorus and dancers.

In "The Gay Musician" there will be entertainment for all tastes and desires, for it comprises all that should be in high-class comic opera. There is the delightful music of the renowned English composer, Julian Edwards, to please lovers of good music.

Those who appreciate dancing will have all they desire in this comic opera, for its "pony ballet" has been recruited from the best dancers on the stage. The beautiful scenery and the glitter of gorgeous costumes and effects all combine to make "The Gay Musician" one of the most notable theatrical attractions that has ever visited Ottawa and Manager Gorman is now busy preparing for the Fair Week engagement which promises to be the biggest and most successful in the history of the Russell Theatre.

A PESTIFEROUS GERM.

Burrows Up the Scalp Into Dandruff and Saps the Hair's Vitality.

People who complain of falling hair as a rule do not know that it is the result of dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite burrowing up the scalp as it digs down to the sheath in which the hair is fed in the scalp. Before long the hair root is shriveled up and the hair drops out. If the work of the germ is not destroyed hair keeps thinning till baldness comes. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ and until now there has been no hair preparation that would do it; but to-day dandruff is easily eradicated by Newbro's Herpicide, which makes hair glossy and soft as silk. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Awful Double Fatality In Farm House Near Norwood---Is Believed To Have Resulted From Accident

Thos. G. Willoughby Found Dead in His Home Without Any Marks of Violence on His Body, Beside His Little Daughter, Who Had Been Shot Through the Heart---Gun Believed to Have Been Accidentally Discharged While Parent Was Cleaning It.

THE FATHER MAY HAVE DIED FROM SHOCK

DEAD—
Thomas G. Willoughby, 37 years of age.
Stella May Willoughby, 8 years of age.
PLACE—
On Peterborough Road, one and one-half miles north west of Norwood.
TIME—
Wednesday afternoon, August 18.
CAUSE OF DEATH—
In the case of the girl, gun shot wound through breast.
In Willoughby's case, cause not definitely known; thought to be heart disease, caused by shock.

Norwood, Aug. 17.—Her little daughter lying dead on a sofa with a gaping gun shot wound in her breast and close beside on the floor the lifeless form of the father, was the terrible spectacle which greeted Mrs. Willoughby, wife of Thomas George Willoughby, a well-known farmer residing a mile and one-half from here on the boundary between the townships of Dummer and Asphodel, on her return from Norwood yesterday afternoon. Two short hours before she had left them alone and in good health and spirits, and the awful suddeness of the double fatality was crushing in its effect upon the poor woman. The news of the tragedy travelled quickly and caused the wildest excitement in the community, where Willoughby and his family were widely known and highly respected. As far as could be learned by careful investigation on the part of an Examiner reporter to-night, the dreadful event seems to have been the result of an accident. That is the theory that is being generally accepted, and seems to be borne out by facts, although, of course, as usual in cases of a similar nature, conjectures are being made that may or may not be true.

The Willoughby family consisted of father and mother, and three children; Stella, one of the victims, aged eight years; Harry Garfield, aged six, and Alma Grace, an infant of some nine months of age.

Mother Was Away.

Early this afternoon Mrs. Willoughby left the house, accompanied by her nephew, Clarence Samson, who lives nearby, to transact some business in Norwood, where it was the intention of the family to reside in future. She left her husband in charge of the children. During her absence the dreadful affair occurred. Just how, is a matter of conjecture. From little Harry, who is too young to realise just what happened, it would appear that he was looking after his baby sister, who was in a carriage, while Willoughby sat down on a platform in the woodshed to clean his shot gun, a double-barrelled firearm of the ordinary pattern. Poor little Stella was standing in the shed close to him and it is supposed that during the operation of cleaning the rifle it was accidentally discharged.

Tore Big Hole in Breast.

At any event the gun went off, and the lead of duck shot struck the girl in the left part of the breast, tearing open a big hole and passing through her body, scattering into the wood piled at the rear of the shed. Pellets of shot are to be seen in the wood there and their position would indicate that the shot spread in passing through the girl.

What happened next was pathetic in the extreme. The father must have rushed to his slain daughter, picked up, and carried her to a rug on the floor in the other part of the shed, which is used as a summer kitchen. Here he tore the bloody clothing from her body and with water tried to staunch the flow of life blood. The mat was dyed a deep crimson by the fluid, the blood having flown very freely from the wound. From the signs in evidence Willoughby must have worked some time over the little one, and then, realising at last that the last spark of life had gone, he carefully wrapped the little form in a towel, carried it into the sitting room of the house and placed her on a sofa. From the nature of the wound the poor little girl must have died almost instantly, but the father evidently did not realise that fact.

Neighbour Arrives on Scene.

It was at this time, about three o'clock or shortly afterwards, that Mrs. Isaac Ruttan, a widow neighbour of the Willoughbys, who lives a short distance from their home, came upon the scene. She had called for the purpose of asking Willoughby to help her with some farm work, which she had planned for to-morrow. As she reached the front door of the house she met Willoughby, who was gasping for breath, and who had a cup, which she supposed was full of water in his hand. He motioned for her to enter and she did so, while Willoughby went outside. On entering the sitting room she was horrified to see the body of the little girl with the deep wound in the breast. Little Harry was there and she excitedly asked what had happened.

Too Big a Charge.

"Father got too big a charge in the gun and has killed Stella," the little fellow is said to have replied, as he weeped bitterly beside the dead body of his sister.

Mrs. Ruttan took a dipper of water and bathed the girl's face, but she quickly saw that her efforts were useless and she ran out to find Willoughby. Seeing the father in the yard she exclaimed, "What shall we do? What shall we do?" and Willoughby merely said, "Run and get a doctor as quickly as you can.

Mrs. Ruttan at once hurried to give the alarm. She called at Mr. Graham's residence nearby and at the other places, and told the terrible news. Word was at once sent to Doctors Pettigrew and Sutton, of Norwood, and to Mrs. Willoughby, who was still in the village. To the mother the mother the word came in the form of a message that Stella had been badly hurt, and that she was wanted at home at once. She lost no time in driving home, terrified at the news, but with no premonition of the terrible spectacle that was awaiting her arrival in the pleasant sitting room of her home.

Her Husband Dead, Too.

In the meantime, some of the neighbours living near by, who had been informed that Stella had been shot, had gathered at the house, but remained outside, and were there when Mrs. Willoughby arrived. One of them, Mr. H. G. Rose, cheese maker at the Killarney cheese factory, tried to prevent her entering. She broke away from him, however, and ran into the parlour to find herself face to face with the dead bodies of her husband and eldest child. Stella was still on the sofa, as Mrs. Ruttan had seen her, and on the floor, face upwards, with his arms folded across his breast, was her husband. A glance was sufficient to show that both were dead, and the blow struck the unhappy woman with crushing force. Her cries brought the neighbours into the room, but it was not possible for them to do anything to help. When the doctor arrived from Norwood, they, of course, saw at once that there was nothing that they could do.

No Marks of Violence.

There were no marks of violence on Willoughby's body, nor were there as far as could be learned, any indications of poisoning. He lay there, just as if asleep, with his arm folded near his daughter's body, while the other two children wept.

Coroner Dr. Gray, of Peterborough, was notified by telephone of the tragic affair, and came down to Norwood on the 5.19 train. Accompanied by Drs. Pettigrew and Sutton and by a constable, he immediately drove out to the scene, and viewed the bodies and the surroundings. The bodies had been left as they had been found and the Coroner ordered the room to be locked. After hearing the circumstances Dr. Gray decided to hold an inquest, which will be opened to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the Willoughby home.

Reporter Viewed Surroundings.

An Examiner reporter drove out to the house to-night, and found many evidences of the tragedy. A number of the neighbours were present, among them ex-County Councillor J. Andrews and onth e arrival of the reporter, were partaking silently of a late supper in the kitchen. Everything was left as it was found, except that the bloody clothes had been concealed in order not to cause the mother any more grief. The rug on which the father had laid the little one was still deeply stained with blood, and near it the basin of water and the rug that he had used in washing the wound. The chips in the shed were stained and there were spots of blood as well as shot marks in the wood pile. A vast amount of blood had come from the wound, as the little clothes, produced for the benefit of the reporter, were saturated. On the breast of the waist of the dress a hole had been burned, indicating that the girl must have been close to the nozzle of the gun when it was discharged. Other facts—the location of the blood on the floor and the spot in the wood, also support that contention.

Bodies Not Moved.

The bodies were exactly as found, the door of the sitting room having been locked. In the dining-room of the house was the bereaved widow and mother, with a number of faithful friends, who were endeavouring to lighten as much as possible the force of the blow. The long sobbing cries which came at intervals from the room were strong proof of the mental anguish she was suffering. In the other roms small groups discussed the tragedy in whispers.

The generally accepted theory of those seen by the Examiner is that the loss of the two lives must be credited to the accidental discharge of Willoughby's shot gun. It is thought that while cleaning his gun he accidentally shot and killed his daughter, and that the shock of finding her dead had proved too much for him. Willoughby had not been in the best of health recently, his relatives say, suffering from a complication of diseases, and his friends argue that the tragedy might have proved fatal in its demand upon his exhausted condition.

Well Known in Dummer.

The late Thomas G. Willoughby was thirty-seven years of age and had lived nearly all his life in Dummer Township. He was born in the adjoining township of Asphodel, but at an early age moved into Dummer, where he owned a farm on the 7th concession. Some time ago he sold his farm to John Jenkins, and purchased a park lot of five acres, with house and outbuildings, from George Gardiner. It was here that the tragedy took place. It is said that Willoughby had brooded considerably over leaving his farm, which he prized very highly, and he did not like the change. In fact it is stated that he had or was prepared to sell his park lot to the original owner, and to take up residence in Norwood, and that it was for the purpose of looking for a suitable house that Mrs. Willoughby came to Norwood to-day.

Willoughby was a Baptist in religion and a Conservative in politics. He was a prominent member of the Orange Order and also of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and was very well known in Dummer and Asphodel. The news of his death and that of his daughter was received with profound regret everywhere. Every one had a kind word to say for the unfortunate man, and he seems to have been very popular with those who knew him. Stella, the dead girl, is spoken of as a bright little child.

A Sister in Peterborough.

He is survived by his wife, two children, Harry and Alma Grace, and by his mother, one brother and four sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Robertson, of Peterborough. The others are Mrs. Forward and Mrs. John Falconer, of Toronto, Mrs. Patterson, of Winnipeg. The brother is Charles Willoughby, of Toronto. His life was insured in the Equity Company for $1,000, and for a similar amount in the Canadian Order of Foresters.

The scene of the double tragedy is about a mile and one-half from Norwood. The house, which is a comfortable clap-board structure, well furnished and neatly kept, is built on a hill on the Peterborough road and only a short distance from the Killarney cheese factory.

Naturally, the tragedy is the sole topic of conversation in the district, and the inquest proceedings to-morrow will be largely attended. "Poor Tom," "It must have been an accident, it couldn't have been anything else." Statements like these were heard everywhere, and the greatest sympathy is being expressed for Mrs. Willoughby and the fatherless little ones, who were so suddenly bereaved.

One fact about the case that is causing some speculation is in regard to the cup which Willoughby had in his hand when Mrs. Ruttan saw him. It is pointed out that the cup may have contained water or that the contents might have been poison. The theory is advanced by some that the unfortunate man, grief stricken at having accidentally slain his daughter, took poison. This, of course, is pure supposition. Whether the contents of the cup have been investigated or not does not seem to be known here, nor does any particular attention appear to have been paid to it. It will, no doubt, be investigated, and the examination will show just how much truth there is in the suicide theory. There is no suspicion whatever of foul play as far as could be ascertained. There could be no possible motive for murder, and there is no reason to suppose that Willoughby was suddenly stricken by insanity. Nearly every one believes that the girl's death was accidental, and the demise of her father due to the effects of the shock. The inquest may throw some further light upon the subject.

Decides That Young Lieutenant Fired the Shot Himself—Exonerates Companions.

NAVAL BOARD'S STATEMENT

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Washington, Aug. 18.—The naval board of enquiry in the case of the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton has found that Lieut. Sutton was killed by a revolver shot from a service revolver, held in his own right hand and fired by himself, without the intervention of any other hand. The court adds as its opinion that no possible charge of criminality lies against any of the participants in the fray except Lieut. Sutton himself, and that Lieut. Sutton is directly and solely responsible for his own death.

WHAT LIBERALISM IMPLIES

Speaking lately before the Eighty Club, this is what Premier Asquith declared Liberalism to be: "As regards the Empire, to secure real unity by allowing the freest diversity and the fullest liberty of self-development in all its members; as regards property, to make it secure by divesting it of injustice; as regards political authority, to make it stable by resting it upon the broadest possible basis of popular responsibility; as regards religion, to remove from it the odium of an alliance with political disabilities; as regards trade, to make it world-wide by opening our own markets here at home to everybody; and, finally, as regards the liberty of the individual citizen, to make it a reality instead of a sham by universal education and by an ever-rising standard of humane conditions both in the factory and in the home."

As the Vancouver World aptly remarks: "In the light of this declaration the Lloyd-George budget is not hard to understand."

WE CAN STAND IT

The United States Tariff bill seems to be a complicated production and to take as much study as a logarithmic table to discover whether the "revision" has been "down" as the Republicans promised or "up" as the Democrats prophesied would be the case when they were combatting the sincerity of the Taft party's promises of tariff reform. Some journalists have given themselves the headache in analysing the new tariff schedules, and their findings seem to agree that the new tariff is, on the whole, higher than the old. Extracts from several journals show that the tariff is up:

New York Sun:—"The maximum rate is 25 per cent. ad valorem in addition to the general tariff rates, the increase going into effect automatically on March 31st, 1910; but the President may apply the minimum rates, that is those provided in the general tariff, to imports from all countries which extend to the United States the best trade facilities. This provision will give the United States a means of retaliation against countries that may discriminate against our exports."

Toronto News:—The situation in regard to the Payne Tariff Bill, which President Taft has just signed seems to be this: The revised schedules, with some exceptions, come into force this morning. After March 31st next a scale of duties 25 per cent. in advance of the Payne schedules goes into effect. By proclamation the President may except from this maximum tariff the products of any nation that in no way discriminates against American exports or restricts its own exports to the United States. The British preference, the French treaty and the export embargo upon Ontario pine logs and pulp wood probably preclude Canada from any hope of having the minimum schedules applied to its products. From April 1st, 1910, the United States tariff against our exports automatically advances 25 per cent. This statement is subject to modification because of the specific reduction of the regular imports on coal, iron ore, hides, leather, and one or two other commodities.

The Democratic leader in the House of Representatives at Washington has given out this statement: "Many newspapers are trying to make it appear that the Payne-Aldrich-Smoot bill is a revision downward. That is absolutely untrue. The average of rates of the Payne-Aldrich-Smoot bill is about two per cent. higher than the average rate of the Dingley. When the maximum and minimum section goes into effect on March 31st, 1910, the average will be about 27 per cent. higher than the average of the Dingley bill." This exactly coincides with the interpretation which the News has placed upon the measure.

Evidently the new tariff is, in effect, if not intentionally, hostile to Canada an equivalent to serving a notice that, in some respects, our neighbours do not want to do business with us. But we have got beyond the stage when such an attitude can hurt either our feelings or our interests. United States' unneighbourliness in trade matters, has been a blessing in disguise; it has led us to seek new markets—in the Mother Country where market relations have more than a mere trade value. In some ways the new United States tariff, while discouraging trade with this country, actually handicaps our neighbours themselves. But we can stand it if they can; for on the whole the new tariff which will serve United States interests now, has little more than a stimulating effect in this country. On the whole, Canada can afford to regard the situation arising out of what may be called the punitive features of the United States tariff in the philosophic way of the big Cornish miner, who being remonstrated with for allowing his little wife to thrash him, said: "It pleases she and don't hurt OI."

AN EXPERT'S APPROVAL.

Mr. H. A. Parker, former vice-president of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, who has recently travelled on horseback from Edmonton to Prince Rupert, in speaking of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, says:

"I have no hesitation in declaring that the Grand Trunk Pacific has secured a first-class route. The location survey, with possibly a few changes of a few feet here and there will be adopted. I have no hesitation in affirming that in the matter of grades the projected line will surpass all records in transcontinental railway building. It will be practically as easy for the new railway to haul heavy trains over the mountain section as over the prairie division. The grades are virtually the same. The company has secured a maximum gradient of four-tenths of one per cent. per mile, or a rise of twenty-one feet a mile on east-bound traffic via the Yellowhead pass for the entire distance between Edmonton and the Pacific coast; and but five-tenths of one per cent., or a rise of twenty-six feet to the mile, on west-bound traffic. This will enable the company to handle traffic cheaper than any of its rivals. The country all along the line looks like one with a future."

Can any good thing come out of Nazareth? Apparently it can. The financial editor of the New York American has just travelled through the Canadian West, and he assures the world that the great expansion of the next few years would be in Canada's western areas. "I have never seen such wheat," said he. "For days we travelled through magnificent agricultural country, where money was growing so fast that the general prosperity to ensue is almost incalculable. Alberta is a vast coal field and granary. The Canadian Pacific traverses a territory of boundless possibilities; the Canadian Northern is reaching out to the north and west, and every foot of the 'Soo' country is productive. I must say that the millions of unoccupied Canadian lands offer the strongest and safest attractions; that the railroads and business interests generally have all certainties contained in the rapid development, and more to follow." And so say all of us.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Borden will not be forgiven by some people for acknowledging the superiority of the Ross rifle and declaring that so far as he is concerned the issue is out of politics. Col. Sam Hughes will smile when he reads this.—Kingston Whig.

Nova Scotia leads the Dominion in the utilisation of water power. That province has utilized 13,300 out of the 54,300 available, or one quarter. Ontario has only utilized one-tenth of its available water power, or 331,157 horse power, out of an available horse power of 3,129,168.

In Montreal no fewer than 148 children, under five years of age, died last week, and of these 83 were under six months of age, from bad water and bad milk. Pure water and pure milk may involve more cost and less profit, but human life is more precious than profit.

In Saskatchewan farmers are paying harvesters three dollars per day. And yet there are idle men in this and every other city, who do not earn three dollars a month. Club law some times has justification, and some tyrant with power to impose the toll of the tread mill would in some cases be a public benefactor.

The Liberal Government in England has been skating over some rather thin ice, but when the people come to understand their policy and aims, their cause will increase in popularity. The hostility to the Lloyd-George budget will decrease when it is learned that the hitherto privileged classes will have to pay tribute to the tax collector. The protective policy involved in Chamberlainism, meaning a tax on bread, will strike the poor man in the solar plexus literally and he will have none of it.

WHY PEOPLE DIE

London, Eng.—Doctors have discovered that the "blues" or "mental depression and irritability" is really a disease caused by defective circulation in the cells of the brain.

The "British Health Review" says "by improving the circulation, there is an immediate improvement in the mental outlook".

If this is the case, we Canadians do not have to wait for the foreign scientists to pursue their investigations any farther. We have the cure for the "blues" in those wonderful fruit liver tablets called "Fruit-a-tives".

It is doubtful if the greatest physicians abroad will ever discover anything to equal "Fruit-a-tives" to purify and enrich the blood and improve the circulation.

They go straight to the root of the trouble, stimulating the torpid liver and kidneys and regulating the bowels. Thus they cleanse the whole system and renew vitality, mental as well as physical.

THE LAND OF HOPE

The World (London, England.)

Our portfolio this week is concerned with Canada. The camera sets forth something of the manifold beauties, the pen sometimes of the equally manifold possibilities of the great Dominion; but neither the most successful photograph nor the most graphic description can do full justice to her glories. Asf a people we British are somewhat unimaginative, and there are only too many doubting Thomases among us who are incredulous of anything they have not seen with their own eyes. Yet though it will be long before our pessimists allow us to become a truly Imperial people confident in our Imperial strength, we have even now at least begun to look upon the British democracies overseas as reserves of power. It is a great change from the opinion that the Colonies were burdens, so generally held only a generation ago, and it has been brought about by the combined action of many factors, chief among which must be placed the amazing record of Canadian development. It is nit yet half a century ago Since Canada attained to political unity. As a single State she is a year or so older than Germany, and, like Germany, has progressed both solidly and swiftly. Most Englishmen would admit the justice of this comparison, but comparatively few discern its real import. Germany is so near at hand that her growth is manifest to all, but Canada is separated from us by the whole breadth of the Atlantic. Geography is the great foe to true Imperialism. Only by personal intercourse can any real Imperial unity be brought about, and that is why so much political importance has been attached to the numerous Imperial Conferences and Royal journeys of recent years.

We live in times in which it is becoming increasingly recognised that the citizen owes a duty to his State, and it is no longer fitting that the formation of those personal ties on which the Empire depends should be left to journalists, Ministers, and members of the Royal House. That is a work in which all of us can cooperate, and the three main avenues of action has perhaps not yet realised sufficient recognition. We go abroad in search of health and pleasure without any political purpose, and yet the political effects of travel may be enormous. Take the typical case—for all principles are made clear by a concrete illustration—of some well-to-do young Englishman contemplating a holiday. What is British Columbia to him or he to British Columbia? He has been hesitating, we may suppose, between fishing in Norway and mountaineering in Switzerland, hoping to get a little shooting in either country. Hearing that British Columbia offers a choice of all these sports, he decides to go there, and on the journey he learns much. First re realises that the Canadian nation has been built up in defiance of geography every whit as much as the British Empire itself. He travels, in all probability, on a transcontinental line, the eastern end of which does not run through British territory at all. He marvels at the patient energy which has carried the rail through some seven hundred miles of almost hopeless country, thus linking up the industrial East with the agricultural West. He notes the flourishing modern towns on the shores of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence, and he looks upon what is perhaps the most wonderful sight in all the world, the endless stretch of the level prairie, only the merest fringe of which has yet been touched by the plough. And at the end he finds himself in a playground, the beauties of which surpass Norway and Switzerland together. Such a man must find the whole course of his thought influenced by such a trip. It is true that when he returns he is but one in forty millions, but the main current of thought in England is still very largely guided by quite a small group of people in London.

It is from travellers of this sort that the real stimulus to emigration will come. And here we light upon something of vast moment. Western Canada is clamoring for men to populate her empty territories, and her need is being steadily supplied. The character of this future population is a matter of grave concern to the Empire. These new provinces now being tapped by the new railway lines should be inhabited by men of British blood, who speak the English tongue, but not the most glowing advertisements will succeed in attracting them. The Englishman is somewhat sceptical by nature, and is not unwisely suspicious of eulogistic pamphlets. It is a great thing that he is being asked to do—to leave his country and make a new home in a distant land. Can he be blamed if he waits for some personal recommendation from a returned traveller who knows hi mand knows Canada. A word from the right man is all that is required, but it is a word which should be spoken without delay. The Canadian West is already being invaded by farmers from the other side of the International boundary line. They are good immigrants. They will succeed and will become good citizens of the country in which they prosper. But there will be nothing in their traditions to make them good Imperialists. If the men who are one day to inhabit the prairie provinces are to be loyal to the Imperial idea, theer must be at work now the sentiment of attachment to the British way of life, and it is only from Britain herself that this sentiment can come.

Sentiment is the strongest of all foundations for political union, but next to sentiment must be placed community of interest. Nothing could be more absurd than the notion that there is something sordid in commercial connections. Common interests may not suffice to create a union, but they are the strongest guarantee of its permanence. It is all to the good that Canada has now displaced the Argentine as the premier American market of the future, but the commercial tie is as yet insufficiently secure. The Dominion is still in her infancy and requires capital to accomplish the developments on which her people have set their hearts. We are so confirmed in the belief that London is the financial centre of the world, that we hardly credit the notion that the necessary capital may be raised elsewhere. We must, however, bear in mind the rising financial importance of New York. That city has a geographical advantage over London in regard to all American enterprises, and her business men have not failed to make use of their opportunities. Real service to the Empire has been rendered by English capitalists, Lord Northcliffe among the foremost, who have boldly embarked in Canadian enterprises offering little prospect of immediate return, in order that the stream of Canadian wealth may spring from a British and not from a Yankee source.

To strengthen Canada is, indeed, to strengthen the Empire; for the Imperial idea owes much to the strong and triumphant national life of the Dominion. It is no light thing that two races of alien habits of thought should have combined to establish a Canadian nation in the face of enormous natural obstacles. The work begun by Carlton and carried on by Durham has been consummated by a line of able Governors General, and its completion was marked by the presence of the heir to the British Crown. No man has a stronger belief in the future of the Empire than the Prince of aWles, and no man has had wider experience on which to base his judgment. But if his Royal Highness were asked to point to some one event which justified his views, his choice might well fall on the festivities that he witnessed at Quebec; and Canada, which has triumphed over the past, realises herself in the present, and confronts the future with almost infinite resources, may indeed boast herself the land of glory and of hope.

They Help Your Stomach Out

And Save You a World of Wretchedness

A stomach that cannot digest a good meal is certainly a sore trial. It has been responsible for almost everything in the way of human misery, up to suicide.

The trouble in most cases is that the stomach and other digestive organs lack vigor. Not enough of the juices necessary to digestion are secreted, nor does the stomach work up the food properly.

The worst of it is that there is not sufficient nourishment taken out of the food to restore the system's vigor, and the trouble goes from bad to worse. The stomach needs help.

"Little Digesters" must the need exactly. One "Little Digester" after each meal will ensure perfect digestion, provided, of course, that the food is good and wholesome.

"Little Digesters" are guaranteed to cure Indigestion, and Dyspepsia, or your money will be refunded.

"Bravo!" cried Von Greiterhagen, with keen delight, while Hawcastle turned with an angry gesture to Horace.

"Your countryman does seem to be rather down on us!"

Horace flushed with mortification and returned:

"This fellow is distinctly of the lower orders. We should cut him as completely in the States as here."

CHAPTER IX.

RECOGNIZED.

THE German was frankly enjoying his guest's conversation and quaint mannerisms and went on:

"I wonder you make this long journey, my friend, instead of spending your holiday at home."

Pike looked up in astonishment.

"Holiday! Why, I never even had time to go to Niagara falls. I'm here on business."

Ethel, who was still standing by the countess, looked at her friend with pained entreaty, and Horace, catching Lady Creech's basilisk eye fixed on him, reddened with mortification.

Daniel carefully folded his napkin and sat back.

"I expect it's about time for me to go and find the two young folks I've come to look after," he said.

"You are here for a duty, then?" asked the German quietly.

"I shouldn't be surprised if that was the name for it," answered Pike, rising. "Yes, sir; all the way from Indiana!"

Both Ethel and Horace started in horrified amazement and looked at each other with stricken terror on their faces. If this should—

"I—I can't stand this. I shall go for a stroll," said Horace hysterically and rose from the table, while Hawcastle looked at Pike fixedly.

"By Jove!" he said slowly.

"I expect, doc," went on Pike calmly, "that I won't be able to eat with you this evening. You see—you see I've come a mighty long way to look after her, and she—that is, they—will probably want me to have supper with them."

"Reason! Why, yes. I'm her guardian!"

The horror was closing fast around the other party, and they simply stared.

"Do not trouble for me," observed the German. "Your young people—they have a villa?"

Horace, with fear lending wings to his scattered senses, sprang to his feet and began to walk toward the grove. Pike looked up.

"I'd better ask," he said, and then, observing Horace, went on addressing him: "Hey, there! Can you"— He stared as the young man, paying no attention, proceeded on his way. Pike raised his voice.

"Excuse me, son, ain't you an American?" As Horace paid no more attention he turned to Mariano. "Here, waiter! Tell that gentleman I want to speak to him!"

Mariano sprang after the retreating Horace.

"Pardon, m'sieu, the gas-man, he wish to speak to you."

Horace whirled in an angry flash.

"What gentleman?" he demanded, and Pike regarded him calmly.

"I thought from your looks," he proceeded quietly, "you might be an American."

Horace planted himself squarely before his interrogator.

"Are you speaking to me?" he demanded haughtily.

"I shouldn't be surprised," said Pike gallantly. "Ain't you an American?"

"I happen to have been born in the States," replied Horace aggressively, and Pike smiled quizzically.

"Well, that was luck," he commented, and as Horace turned again to go he said: "Hold on a minute! I'm looking for some Americans here, and I expect you know 'em—boy and girl named Simpson!"

"Is there any possibility you mean Granger-Simpson?" he asked, with elaborate sarcasm, but this was lost on Daniel.

"No, sir; just plain Simpson. Granger's their middle name. That's for old Jed Granger, grandfather on their mother's side. I want to see 'em both, but it's the girl I'm really looking for."

"Will you be good enough to state any possible reason why Miss Granger-Simpson should see you?" and Pike started in genuine astonishment.

"Reason!" he reiterated. "Why, yes. I'm her guardian!"

The effect of this simple statement was terrifying. Ethel reeled dizzily and was supported by Mme. de Champigny. The earl rose to his feet, and Horace staggered back.

"What!" he cried.

"Yes, sir," went on Pike—"Daniel Voorhees Pike, attorney at law, Kokomo, Ind."

Horace fell back from him in horrified amazement.

"I shall ask her," he began weakly and shamefacedly, "if she will consent to an interview."

Pike looked at him in amazement in his turn.

"Interview!" he said. "Why, I want to talk to her!"

Hawcastle, with some of his finer feelings aroused, picked up his sister-in-law with his eyes, much as a clever hostess picks up her feminine guests at dinner, and arose, turning to Ethel.

"This shall make no difference to us, my child," he said, turning sharply, took Lady Creech by the arm and left the terrace. Pike looked at Horace pityingly.

"Don't you understand?" he said. "I'm her guardian!"

For a fleeting instant Horace stared at him and then dropped his chin and walked away.

"I shall never hold up my head again," he said.

The sudden horror of the revelation that Horace had drawn forth bore down upon Ethel's mind with a crushing weight.

To her artificial understanding the disgrace was more than she could ever hope to bear, and Horace's expressed thought that he should never be able to hold up his head again was but a vivification of her own.

Surely it would have been bad enough, she told herself, if this fearful thing had come upon them privately, but to have it appear in the full light of day and in the very hearing of the family of the man she was about to marry was too much.

And with an inward groan she leaned for a moment against the terrace wall where the countess had left her. When the first astonishment had passed and she had time to realize what had occurred, events that had seemed but fleeting impressions flew up before her in all their vivid nakedness. Mme. de Champigny had looked at her with astute contempt, she was sure, and she dimly remembered seeing the look of horrified amusement upon the patrician features of the earl of Hawcastle.

Then, with an awakened resentment, the fighting blood of the sturdy plebeian Simpson stock, the stock that had upheld its end in the battle against oppression in several wars, came back to her with a rush, and she decided to see this awful man and give him to understand that he must go away at once and never insult her again by his uncouth and vulgar presence. Such business as had to be transacted could be done through an interpediary.

With a bracing of her spirit she stepped forward resolutely and came up close behind Pike as he stood with drooping jaw gazing in perplexity after the retreating Horace. Ethel cast a look of loathing upon the straight back of the guardian of her peace and ground her little boot heel into the stone flagging. She glanced up and saw that the common German was looking at Pike with grave sympathy and even understanding, and instantly she hated him for it. Then she saw him take his cap from the obsequious Mariano and turn away. When he had gone she said in a low voice:

"I am Miss Granger-Simpson."

"I AM MISS GRANGER-SIMPSON."

CHAPTER X.

THE HUMILIATION.

INSTANTLY Pike turned with a lithe twist of his lank body and half lifted his hand as if he expected a blow. Then his arm dropped again, and he stood looking at her in calm and interested fashion. As he stared his expression changed to one of mingled tenderness and pride, and when he spoke there was a world of pathos in his voice.

"Why," he said in a low, astonished tone—"why, I knew your pa from the time I was a little boy till he died, and I looked up to him more'n I ever looked up to anybody in my life, but I never thought he'd have a girl like you. He'd be mighty proud if he could see you now."

Cure Neuralgic Agony

No affliction is so painful, so hard to bear as Neuralgia. It may strike any organ—one nerve, or, perhaps, a whole set of nerves may be affected. Physicians who have had large experience with this malady say local applications are best.

Protection against relapse is best secured by wearing a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the weak spot. No greater healer than a Nerviline Plaster is known. —It draws out congestion, absorbs deleterious secretions through relaxed pores, acts as a sure preventive against muscular aches, rheumatism, sciatica, stiffness, lumbago, and neuralgia.

Remember this: Nerviline treatment has for nearly fifty years been curing chronic cases—it will cure you, too—give it the chance. 25c bottles of Nerviline and Nerviline Porous Plaster: 25c each. Sold all dealers.

Horse Runs Away With Three Children And Buggy Smashed

Fortunate Escape From Serious Injury on North Smith Farm—Vehicle Broken Into Pieces But Youngsters Were Only Slightly Injured.

ACCIDENT AT MILL

North Smith, Aug. 17.—What might have terminated in a very serious runaway took place on the farm of Mr. Robert Craft on Tuesday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Craft had gone to do some work at the School House, and in the afternoon their oldest boy, Chester, aged about 12 years, was to take the horse and buggy out to bring his parents home, and was accompanied by his oldest sister and little brother, aged 1 year. The sister and baby had got into the rig, when something frightened the horse and away he went, taking a circle around the garden, and striking a gate post, breaking the two hind wheels all to pieces, and throwing the occupants out, and trailing the baby until the horse jumped the wire fence, when the front wheel caught behind a post. The horse then broke loose from the rig leaving harness and all in a heap. Fortunately the children escaped with slight injuries. The baby had its clothes nearly all torn off, and his arm and face blackened and bruised.

Heavy thunder storms have passed over this section of the country, accompanied by high winds, which have done some damge to the standing grain.

Mrs. Jos McIlmoyle, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. A. Montgomery, went to Bobcaygeon on Saturday on a short visit to her aunt, Mrs. Wright.

Miss Howson, our school teacher, has resumed her duties again. Her many friends will be pleased to see her in our midst again.

Mr. George Allen, who owns and runs a saw-mill on the shore of Mud Lake, at the west end of the 17th line, was engaged in cutting shingles on Saturday last, when he met with a very severe and painful accident, by having his thumb and middle finger of the left hand cut off. Mr. Allen is doing as well as can be expected but will be laid up for some time.

Peterborough Horses Win First Honours At Cobourg Show

Hon. J. R. Stratton's Entries First in Open Events Against Keenest Competition — Some of Best Horses In The Country Seen Yesterday.

ATTENDANCE IS A RECORD

Cobourg, Aug. 18.—The annual summer Horse Show, which opened here on Tuesday afternoon gives promise of being the most successful in the history of Cobourg. The entry list is a record and some of the finest horse flesh in America was seen in some of the classes. There are many new entries this year and as may be expected the competition is of the keenest. The smiling skies and fair weather were a grateful asset to the success of the first day and the attendance was swollen beyond any former figures.

Among new exhibitors are Hon. Clifford Sifton, Ottawa, who was present; Mr. Cromarty, Galt; Mrs. Shoenberger, Toronto; Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough; Sir Henry Pellatt, Aemilius Jarvis, Toronto, and many others.

Miss Wilks, Galt; Crow & Murray, Toronto; Hon. Senator Beith, Bowmanville, and Chas. Wilmot, Belleville, again made large exhibits, besides Cobourg's and the counties' fine showing of horses. Agricultural and draught classes were excellent. The hackney class brought together as good an exhibition as was ever seen in America. Entries in hunters and jumpers far exceed last year, and the total entries are half as large again. Ottawa and Toronto Hunt Club are represented. Special features are the presence of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the 48th Highlanders' band, which to-day led the procession to the park. The Dragoons gave their celebrated musical ride, winning a great demonstration of applause, and the Highlanders' band gave a fine programme of music.

Open harness class, single—1 and 2, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough; 3, Crow & Murray, Toronto.

J. B. McColl's special for best foal of 1909, sired by registered Clydesdale, Shire or Percheron stallion, open to West Northumberland—1 and 4, Henry MacLaren; 2, John Brenton; 3, W. R. Morton, Port Hope.

Sam Clark's special for best mare for breeding purposes, sired by Clydesdale, Shire or Percheron stallion, open to West Northumberland and South Monaghan—1 and 2, D. H. Taylor, Centreton; 3, John Brenton; 4, Jas. Foster.

Pony in harness over 13 hands—1, Charles Wilmot, Belleville; 2, T. P. Hassard, Markham; 3, Mrs. L. A. Livingstone, Cobourg.

Pony on rein—1, T. H. Hassard.

Hunters and jumpers, regulation jump 150 pounds—1, Crow & Murray; 2, James Milne, Toronto; 3, Hon. Clifford Sifton.

Open combination class for best saddle and harness horse—1, Hon. J. R. Stratton; 2, Mrs. W. H. Shoenberger; 3, Miss K. L. Wilks.

Single mare or gelding 15.2 or under—1, Hon. Robert Beith; 2, Miss K. L. Wilks.

In the Open Harness, single, 15-2 and under, there were twelve (12) entries. The competition in this was very keen and it took the judges over a nhour to make the decision. First and second in this class went to Hon. J .R. Stratton, Peterborough.

In the Open Combination Class, there were seven entries, Hon. J. R. Stratton again taking first.

It was admitted that the Peterborough horses did exceptionally well to carry off the honours in these open events.

COULD NOT KEEP THIS SECRET

"Six months ago I was cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment," writes Mrs. G. A. Swayze, Copenhagen, Elgin Co., Ont. "I had been afflicted for over thirty years and tried all sorts of treatments in vain, so I was surprised and delighted to be cured. I don't care for publicity but would like to tell every one suffering from piles about Dr. Chase's Ointment."

SHIPMAN IN NEW ROLE

Inspector Hughes has received a letter from a former Toronto boy, Mr. Ernest Shipman, the theatrical manager, and husband of Roselle Knott, the Hamilton actress.

Mr. Shipman has abandoned the theatrical business and is now in Central America, being in the employ of the Republic of Panama. He is to be the representative of that Government at the World's Fair of 1915, which is planned to celebrate the opening of the canal connecting two oceans.

Mr. Shipman states that there is a wonderful chance for trade development between Canada and Panama, the people of the isthmus being ready to take wheat, rye, fruit, and manufactured goods from us, and in return to send north all kinds of tropical products.—Toronto Star.

CANADIAN BUTTER AND CHEESE BETTER

British Dairy Journal Admits Improvement in Quality This Year.

London, Aug. 17.—Waddell & Company in the Colonial Dairy Produce Review of the year ending June 30, say that Canadian butter on the whole is slowly improving in quality. The proportion of butter spotted with mould was very considerably reduced owing to lower temperatures being maintained before it was shipped, and also during the voyage to our markets.

Fishiness is a very rare fault with Canadian butter, the main defect being an acidity and taint due to the cream not being delivered daily to the factories.

Regarding the cheese cool-curing method adopted by Canada, undoubtedly it has done much to improve its keeping quality as well as benefit its flavour, which tends more and more to make mildness, but unless very great care is exercised the cheese will by-and-by be apt to become quite insipid.

It is pleasant to be able to report that the Canadian cheese which has arrived this season since 1st May shows the greatest improvement in richness, flavour, texture and appearance of any year on record.

Takes Over West End Greenhouses

Arthur Blake & Son Dispose of Business to Mr. C. Walter Green, Who Will Conduct It in Future.

A COMPETENT MANAGER

Within this last few days, Mr. G. W. Gren has made an important purchase in the matter of the taking over of the West End Green Houses from Arthur Blade & Sons, having bought the equipment, entire stock of flowers, plants, etc., and will hereafter conduct the business under the name of The West End Green Houses, with Mr. W. C. Mead, of Toronto, as manager. Mr. Mead has had practical experience in the largest green houses in Toronto, and, on coming to Peterborough, brings with him a knowledge of this class of work, and, with new ideas that will give the public of Peterborough the best values, choicest designs, and better stock than possibly they have been able to procure in nthe city before. The Hest End Green Houses have been long established and there is no reason why they should not enjoy a very large share of the patronage of lovers of cut flowers, plants, etc.

Passed Away At Noon To-day While Being Taken To The Hospital

While being removed to Nicholls Hospital to-day at noon in the Dan Spence Ambulance, Elton Yorke passed away. The young man has been ill for over a week, his condition, however, became alarming during the past few days and it was deemed advisable to remove him to the hospital. Dr. Marshall was with him when he died and all efforts to save his life were of no avail.

The late Mr. Yorke was a young man of about thirty years of age. He had been a resident of Peterborough for three years, having come here from Moscow, where his parents reside. He was until taken ill employed as bartender in the New Oxford Hotel.

No arrangements for the funeral have yet been made, awaiting the arrival of the deceased's father.

Fell From High Building And Had His Right Leg Broken

Mr. H. H. Hillier, of this city, who has been working with H. N. Dancy & Son, bricklayers, of Toronto, met with a painful accident on Monday evening. He was just about to stop work for the day and was coming down when he missed his footing and fell to the ground—a considerable distance.

He was picked up unconscious and removed in an ambulance to the Western Hospital, where it was found his right leg was broken. His many friends here will be grieved to hear of his misfortune.

Medical Association Approve Of Plans For Isolation Hospital

The city Medical Association have tect for the isolation hospital, and approved of the plans of the archi- have instructed their secretary, Dr. Amys, to write the Council to that effect. A largely attended meeting of the Association was held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Monday night when the plans were examined at the request of the Property Committee of the Council. The committee made this request of the medical men so that the new hospital will be made as complete and modern as possible, and also to get the personal views of all the doctors.

Needless to say every doctor present was in favour of an isolation hospital and was glad that the Council had advanced the business this far as the lack of such an hospital has been greatly felt this summer.

Architect Blackwell was present at the meeting, and he went over the plans with the physicians. A few slight changes the physicians recommended, and these the architect took note of and will make in the plans. On the whole, however, the plans were approved.

It was moved that the general plans for the isolation hospital as submitted by the architect to the City Medical Association be approved. Carried.

The following committee was then appointed to confer with the Council in the carrying out of the plans: Dr. A. W. McPherson, medical health officer; Dr. J. Malcolm McCullough and Dr. McNulty.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

Ald. Gillespie Bought Nearly Entire Offering Of Cheese

Regular Meeting of Local Board This Morning---W. S. Cook Sprang Surprise by Increasing Mr. Gillespie's Price for Selections He Made.

MR. SWITZER PRESIDED

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held this morning with a good price from the buyers and a large boarding by the factories. Alderman Gillespie led off with an offer of 11¾ cents, and having been quiet at the last meeting he took revenge by buying 2,025 of the 3,716 boxes. W. S. Cook secured next choice by bidding the price up a notch to 11 12-16 cents, calling a number of factories and the rest of the board went to Mr. Kerr at 11¾ cents.

The factories were boarded as follows:

The Bidding

Mr. Wm. Switzer, vice-president, was appointed chairman in the absence of the Board President, Mr. J. Coughlin, of Hastings. The morning's business was conducted in the usual business-like manner.

Mr. Watkins opened the bidding at 11½ cents. Mr. Fitzgerald raised it to ¾ and Mr. Gillespie made it 11¾. No one offered to raise it and he made the following selections: Keene, Shearer, Central Smith, Selwyn, Villiers, Westwood, Bensfort, Warminster, Warsaw, Trewern, East Emily, Myrtle, King Edward, Maple Leaf, Cedardale.

Mr. Gillespie offered ¾ for further selections but Mr. Cook raised the price to 11 13-16 cents and called Indian River, Norwood, Killarney, Oakdale, Daisy D.

Mr. Kerr offered 11¾ cents for the balance of the board and took Cavanville, Fraserville, Fleetwood, Ormonde, Shamrock, Lang, Pine Grove, Lakefield, Young's Point, North Dummer, Stony Lake.

The Board adjourned for two weeks.

Two Milk Vendors In Court For Selling Deteriorated Milk

Two milk vendors appeared before Magistrate Dumble, at the police court this morning, charged with selling deteriorated milk. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for one while Mr. R. F. McWilliams defended the other. They pleaded not guilty.

Chief Roszel before any evidence was taken, stated that if the counsel for the defence was not prepared to accept Dr. Amyot's report as evidence, an adjournment would have to be made until such time as Dr. Amyot could get here.

Neither Mr. McWilliams nor Mr. Gordon would consent to Dr. Amyot's report being put in as evidence, but the cases were proceeded with, other evidence being taken and an adjournment was made until next Wednesday at two 'clock when Dr. Amyot will be present.

Mr. George Ball, milk inspector for the city, said that on Tuesday, the 10th of August, he received a sample of milk from the defendant who is a licensed milk vendor. The sample of milk was taken from a can on his waggon. He put it in a bottle and numbered the bottle twenty, making an entry in his book at the same time. The accused was on his route at the time. Witness supposed that it was milk for the accused's customers. It, with a number of other samples was sent to Dr. Amyot, at Toronto. Mr. Ball put in the report returned by Dr. Amyot. The milk was taken from a can from which he was supplying his customers.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Health Officer, stated that he received the report produced in court from Dr. Amyot, of the Provincial Board of Health. It showed that borates was present in the milk. Borates was a preparation of boracic acid. It was used as a milk antiseptic or as a preservative. It was put in milk, not to increase the quantity but to preserve it. In large amounts it was deleterious. Its use was not approved. A very small amount of boracic acid in milk would not have any direct effect on children but the danger lay in milkmen by the use of boracic acid attempting to dispose of old milk.

P. C. Newhall, who was in the police station when the defendant called yesterday morning, heard him say that he didn't see why he wanted to adulterate milk as sometimes he had forty quarts left at home and on some occasions he said that he had to buy a little. He didn't know how borates got in the milk. He washed his cans with ammonia and borax and some might have been left in a can. He said that he would like to settle it. He didn't want to come to court.

Similar evidence in the second case was taken.

Scarcity Of Help In The West Boosts Labourers' Wages To $3

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 18.—The West is seriously worried over the labour situation, as there is a general impression that the harvest hands this year will not be nearly up to the demand. The first excursion load has been eagerly snatched up and there is a cry from all parts of the West for more help. The harvest has come on with a rush and is about ten days earlier than was expected. Saskatchewan is particularly crying for men. At points on the Arcola line farmers are offering as much as $3 a day and board without obtaining their required help. The great heat of the last ten days has brought harvesting on with a rush with the result that cutting has started at scores of places in Southern Saskatchewan at least a week earlier than was anticipated, so that no labour is available.

MAINTAINS INNOCENCE

Lad's Version of Shooting Agrees With Mrs. Hall's Story—His Rifle Will Be Tested to See If It Will Carry That Far—Stories Told of Shelley Family's Escapade—Inquest to Be Held Friday.

Simcoe, Aug. 18.—Coincidence seems to connect Emery Shelley, the 15-year-old boy, who is in jail here, pretty closely with the death of old Michael Hall, who was felled by a bullet in the back of the head on the threshold of his cabin, two miles north of Walsh, Sunday afternoon.

The boy has admitted that he was shooting in the bush across the road from the Hall house at about the time—3.30 p.m.—that the tragedy occurred. To County Constable Abel of Port Rowan, he said he fired three or four shots at a thrush from his bush. The last shot killed the bird, he said, and he carried the songster home and fed it to the cat.

Thomas Overholt, whose farm is on the same side of the road as the bush from which the lad says he fired, reported to Provincial Detective Greer yesterday that shortly after 3.30 he had ordered young Shelley to stop shooting on his place. Overholt says a bullet struck his barn and he was afraid one of his children had got hurt.

These bits of evidence fit pretty well with old Mrs. Hall's story. She says she heard a shot and immediately her husband fell forward through the door. As she rushed to raise his head, thinking he had fallen in a fit, a second shot struck the house over her head, a third hit the house high and to one side, and a fourth shattered the window at the side.

On Tuesday last a 32-calibre Stevens single-loading rifle was stolen from the blacksmith shop in Walsh Village. A. B. Neeilson had brought it in to be repaired.

On Saturday night Emery Shelley walked to the village of Walsh and bought a box containing fifty 22 short rim fire, black powder cartridges, and the balance of the box are in Constable Abel's possession, as is the rifle. Saul has not seen it, but says he would be able to identify it if he once did.

Young Shelley, who was at Saul's on the Tuesday before the shooting, claims to have got the rifle from an Englishman at Avon, about 30 miles away, in exchange for a suit of clothes and some money.

A 22-calibre rifle was taken with the boy when he was arrested, and this Detective Greer will take out to the place to-day, to test the carrying powers by shooting from the edge of the bush at the dilapidated old house. A shed from which the shots were at first supposed to have been fired is only about 25 yards from the front of the house and to one side. The bush is about 250 yards in front of the house. Mr. Greer wants to be sure whether or not the bullets could not have reached the spots where they lodged from the bush.

His mother says Emery said: "If I shot that old man I did not know it."

The mother, who was married a second time, was on trial once for shooting her second husband in the leg. The first husband, it is related, before he died, confessed to having burnt down a church, so that he could add the property to his land.

The Shelley family is a large one. Mrs. Shelley married again, after her first husband's death, and the family had a hard struggle to keep the wolf from the door. They live some little distance from the Hall home, but young Shelley and Hall know each other well, and it is said that the old man had warned several boys in the neighborhood not to trespass on his small farm.

Inquest will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Walsh, with the preliminary police court hearing at Simcoe on Friday.

Michael Hall's funeral yesterday was largely attended.

Train-Racing Auto Wrecked.

Kaiserslautern, Germany, Aug. 18.—A French automobile was wrecked near here yesterday, and all the occupants, three women and two men, were badly injured.

The owner of the car, Mme. Gailja, and her daughter, Claire, were so gravely injured that there is practically no hope of their recovery. The third woman occupant and the two men, while dangerously injured, yet are expected to recover.

The car was racing with an express train when it collided with a tree and exploded.

Conference Going Well.

London, Aug. 18.—Sir Frederick Borden, interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press, described the American despatch announcing that Australia and Canada are combining to "Meet the Japanese Peril," as sheer nonsense.

Respecting The Times" correspondent's idea that some one in an authoritative position should cable the progress of the defence conference negotiations to Canada, Sir Frederick remarked negotiations were confidential.

They were proceeding satisfactorily, and any reports published must necessarily be mere guesswork.

Demand Use of Ross Rifle.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—The Ross rifle is again to the fore in a dispute. The Fifth Royal Highlanders decided that they would not go to the D.R.A. matches if they were not issued Ross rifles Mark 11-Star by the Government. At the P.Q.R.A. matches last week the Eighth Royal Rifles and the Victorias carried off everything with the Ross rifle. The Eighth of Quebec had them issued by the Government. The Victorias of Montreal bought theirs. The Highlanders decided that they will get them also, or they will not take part in the shooting. The Vics are sending 32 men with Ross rifles.

U.S. Will Buy Canadian Soft Coal.

New York, Aug. 18.—The first effect of the reduction of 22 cents a ton in the tariff on bituminous coal will be to increase shipments from the mines in Nova Scotia. In discussing this phase of the situation, Black Diamond, the official organ of the trade, says:

"If ultimately there is any displacement of Pennsylvania and West Virginia coals in New England markets that buy coal from Nova Scotia, it may be expected that producing companies in the former fields will have to market their additional surplus in the rail market of the west."

Suicide Ends Family Troubles.

North Bay, Aug. 18.—Zoel Dutrizac of Sturgeon Falls, aged 40, committed suicide on the lake shore at North Bay yesterday morning by taking paris green.

Dutrizac was separated from his wife, who works in a local hotel, and Monday evening sent for her to attempt a reconciliation. She refused to live with him, and he stated that he was not long for this world, which held nothing attractive for him away from his wife and two children.

The body lay unidentified at the morgue until the afternoon, when Mrs. Dutrizac was called.

Boys Saved From Lake Erie.

St. Thomas, Aug. 18.—Two lads, aged 12 and 5 years respectively, were carried out on Lake Erie at Port Stanley on Monday in a leaky old punt, having only a broken home-made paddle. A heavy rain and electric storm came up and the boat was half-filled with water. Their plight was observed from the shore by a telescope in the hands of Chester Smith of St. Thomas and Russel Croden of London, both just lads in their teens. They are once got out a rowboat and bravely put out into the lake to the rescue.

TO START AT ONCE

Sir John Fisher's Suggestions Made in 1907 Will Be Followed, According to Statement Published in London—Will Commence Work on Both Coasts Simultaneously—Montreal and Quebec?

London, Aug. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A lengthy statement is published, giving the "general lines" of the scheme of Canadian naval defence.

According to this, the formation of a nucleus of a Canadian navy will be begun immediately on lines suggested by Sir John Fisher in 1907.

Canadian ambition would not be satisfied by a mere contribution of money. Canada wants her own navy. On this point the supreme consideration is the constitutional freedom of state, and to this, questions of strategy, no matter how important, must be subordinated, says the statesman.

Respecting details, disposition of ships, etc., these are not yet concluded, but it is obvious that Canada would not be fulfilling her own undertaking if she placed all her eggs in one basket. She has two oceans to consider and work will begin practically simultaneously on both coasts.

The scheme also includes an increase of dock facilities. It is unlikely that the naval forces will be limited to Halifax, Esquimalt and Prince Rupert; possibly Quebec and Montreal will also have to be considered.

The very best feeling has been displayed on both sides at the conference, a perfect understanding existing between the Imperial and Dominion authorities."

Track Foreman Killed.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 18.—John McVicar, a track foreman of the Galt, Preston and Hespeler street railway, was accidently killed yesterday afternoon by being struck by a car near the golf links station. He was 60 years of age, and leaves a widow and four children.

He was carrying a sledge on his shoulder and it came into contact with the moving car, producing a large gash on the back of his head, and pitching deceased partly under the car, where his left leg was crushed.

These shocks are believed to be the same as those recently registered at the Washington Observatory.

OTTAWA LOOKING FOR FOOTBALL PLAYERS TO FILL VACANCIES

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Coach Tom Clancy, of the Ottawa football team is on the war path in search of new players. The great fourteen of last year, which made the Hamilton Tigers go the limit for the interprovincial championship, has been sadly depleted through retirements, injuries, and removals. Jack Ryan, the fastest outside wing in Canada, is not eligible to play owing to having competed with and against professionals, while Bert Stronach,, the other outside wing, has been forced to give up the game owing to injured knees.

"Doc" Sherriff has joined the ranks of the benedicts and does not intend to play again, Eddie Phillips, also announces that he has chased the pigskin for the last time.

There is plenty of new material in the capital, however, and Clancy hopes to have one of the best teams ever.

"Reg" Gaisford will hold down Jack Ryan's position, but the other vacancies have yet to be filled.

The Ottawas will turn out for practice in about three weeks' time, President Nagle arranging for an early start.

No efforts are being made as yet to get Ryan re-instated, the Ottawa officers apparently realising the hopelessness of such a move.

LAJOIE RESIGNS POSITION AND GOES BACK TO BENCH WITH PLAYERS

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 18.—Napoleon Lajoie voluntarily tendered his resignation as manager of the Cleveland American Leaguebaseball team last night, to take effect as soon as a successor can be appointed by the directors of the team. Lajoie will continue to play with the team.

Lajoies resignation is due to the large amount of criticism he has been subjected to on account of his failure to make a better showing with the team this year. Rumours of dissension among the players on account of Lajoie's alleged personal unpopularity have been rife. This, coupled with the teams losing streak on the last eastern invasion, caused many patrons of the game to demand his resignation. The club owners defended Lajoie.

No successor for Lajoie has been appointed, and the club owners say they are undecided as to whom they will appoint.

In his letter of resignation Lajoie said: "I feel that any criticism directed toward me in the past or at present is not due to any personal feeling toward me, but is solely because of a conscientious desire to see Cleveland have a winner, and it is but natural for them to put the blame on the manager who does not give them one.

"Just at present the boys are being subjected to a lot of abue because of our failure to win, and they are being unjustly accused of being unwilling to play for me. In my heart I feel that the players are being wronged."

OFFICERS OF RUGBY CLUB WERE ELECTED EARLY IN THE YEAR

Rugby fans may have forgotten the fact that the Peterborough Rugby Club was organized for the season of 1909 at the end of last season when officers were elected and arrangements made for the running of the City League and the handling of the Peterborough team this autumn. At that meeting it was decided to take over the City League and look after that body, as it was felt that a flourishing City League was in the best interests of the game, both for increasing the interest in the game, and as a feeding ground for senior players.

Therefore, this season the Peterborough Rugby Club and the City League will have the one set of officers who were elected last season, as follows:

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, and Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and Mrs. Stratton.

Hon. President—Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

President—D. Walker, B.A.

1st Vice President—R. F. McWilliams.

2nd Vice President—C. E. Sisson.

Secretary-Treasurer—F. D. Craig.

Coach—Dr. A. W. MacPherson.

Executive—Claude Rogers, George Lundy and Geo. Armstrong.

Each City League will have a representative on the executive to be appointed by the teams.

A meeting will be held shortly to draw up the constitution and make plans for the season.

HARRY BURRIDGE ON THE HOSPITAL LIST

Examiner Special.

Edmonton, Aug. 17.—The Edmonton ball team returned this morning over the C.N.R. accompanied by the Moose Jaw players. They will appear to-night at Diamond Park. The games for the remainder of the season will start at 6.15. It is likely Sterling will pitch to-night for Edmonton.

Burridge has only been in two games since he left here. In each game he made a home run, one at Lethbridge and one at Winnipeg. In the first, however, he hurt his knee and in the second he dislocated his shoulder while sliding home and this put him entirely out of the game.

WHITTY WANTED FOR OTTAWAHOCKEY TEAM

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Bruce Stuart, who has been away since April, returned to Ottawa to-day, and will again play with the Ottawa hockey team in defence of the Eastern Canada hockey championship and the Stanley Cup. The Ottawas are trying to land a couple of good forwards realising that they cannot expect seven men to go through all the Stanley cup games as well as the league fixtures. They are after Fred Whitcroft and Hay Miller of Edmonton, and will likely send Fred Lake west on a scouting trip before the season opens.

The regular shoot of the Peterborough Gun Club will be held in the Driving Park to-morrow evening at 6.30 o'clock sharp.

ANOTHER FAN ON THE BALL MUDDLE

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Kindly allow me a few lines in your paper in regard to the City League baseball situation. Goodness knows enough has been said on the subject, but a great deal of what has appeared in the way of correspondence has been ridiculous.

In regard to the ball question, I notice that Manager Metheral of the Strathconas, states that Manager Quinlan is as much responsible for the providing of balls for the games as any other team. That may be so, and yet those who were at the organisation meeting of the League will remember that Mr. Quinlan held out as long as possible to have the home club be responsible for the balls. The standard baseball rules would have applied in that case and therefore each team would have been compelled to have a sufficient number of new balls on hand or else forfeit the game. There could have been no confusion in this respect had the League acted upon the suggestion. This explanation is given in justice to Mr. Quinlan.

However, seeing that the League did not fall in with that system and another was adopted the T. A. S. have really no cause for complaint in regard to that Park Street game. They were beaten on their merits.

Yours,
A DISGUSTED FAN.

POST CARD COLUMN.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see in Tuesday's issue of the Examiner that a young prisoner at the police station tried to make his escape by making an attempt to pick his cell lock with a piece of a razor. How is it that a prisoner was allowed to be in possession of such an implement? Surely there is slackness somewhere in regard to searching delinquents at headquarters.

Yours, etc.,
CIVIS.

Editor of Post Card Column—

New York, Aug. 16.—A report from the Commissioners of Lunacy of Great Britain contains alarming figures, showing that there are now 128,787 of the certified insane, an increase of 2,763 over last year, women exceeding men by 10,000. The highest ratio is among persons of the learned professions, civil and mining engineers in particular. The criminal lunatics have increased 8.5 per cent. in the year.

Sir,—The above from last night's "News" reads like a bank report or a discussion on bi-metallism, via "New York!" Perhaps Mr. Gompers has been a gathering the statistics. It ought to say the proportion due to Cobalt and Gowganda respectively. As a matter of fact there being no such body as "the commissioners of Lunacy of Great Britain "your contemporary must have been hocus-pocused.—Yours,

W. A. BAILEY.

BURNED OUT FOR THE THIRD TIME

Mr. Rollie Wood Sustains Loss of $50,000 in Fire at Coal Creek.

Word has been received from Mr. Rollie Wood, of Trites, Wood Co. proprietors of five large General Merchandise stores in Pacific Coast towns, that their Coal Creek branch was burned on Monday and a loss of $50,000 sustained. Coal Creek is about 10 miles' distant from Fernie, B. C., and the business has enjoyed an extensive patronage. This is the third fire in recent years suffered by the company and in each case they have been disastrous. Some five years ago the store in Fernie was destroyed and during the fire last year in the same town their store went down in the big conflagration.

All old people suffer from attacks of sudden exhaustion, weak heart action and prostration. The best aid in such cases is Ferrovim, the invigorating tonic which is prepared from fresh lean beef, Citrate of Iron and pure old Spanish Sherry Wine. It stimulates the digestion and strengthens the whole body. $1.00 a bottle.

CANADA'S TRADE IS BOOMING AGAIN

Both Imports and Exports Show a Large Increase Over Last Year.

Canada's trade is booming again, and at the present rate of growth will soon reach the high-water mark of a couple of years ago. The total trade of the Dominion during the first four months of the present fiscal year, which is to the end of July, approached the two hundred million mark, totalling $191,919,304. Of this $111,791,842 was merchandise entered for consumption, again of $28,377,301. Dutiable goods were entered to the amount of $66,028,887, a gain of $18,810,834, and free goods entered were valued at $45,762,945, a gain of $8,566,467. Duty was collected to the amount of $17,855,948, an increase of $3,633,440. Exports of domestic produce totalled $73,396,595, a gain of $6,193,585. There was a falling off in the four months of mineral exports of two hundred thousand dollars worth. Before July there had been a gain in this item but owing probably to the Sydney strike, the month of July witnessed a falling off in mineral exports of a million and a quarter dollars. During the four months there was a decrease in fishery exports of almost three quarters of a million, a gain of a million and a half in lumber, an increase of a million and a half in animals and their produce, a gain of over three millions in agricultural exports, and a gain of a million in exports of products of Canadian factories.

For the month of July alone the trade of Canada totalled fifty-six and a quarter millions, a betterment of seven and a half millions. In this month there was a gain of nine and a half millions in Canadian exports and an increase of seven and a half millions in articles entered for domestic consumption.—Ottawa Free Press.

ARRESTED IN CENTRAL PARK

A young man was arrested at Central Park yesterday afternoon by P. C. Newhall for carrying a revolver. He appeared in police court this morning. He is a young Scotchman, and apparently was not aware it was against the law to carry concealed weapons. He was allowed to go and the revolver was confiscated.

Lakefield Writer Describes Bull Fight In Mexico City

A Peterborough friend of Mr. C. E. Pratt, formerly of Lakefield, has received the following interesting letter from him describing a trip to Mexico:

Well, I landed at Vera Cruz on Thursday week, travelling up here during the night, starting from V. C. 7.15 p.m., and arriving here at 8 a.m.

We had a good look at Havana, Cuba, on the way, being on shore from 8 a.m. till 4 p.m.; a fine city, with a large harbour, in the middle of which still lies the submerged (more or less) wreck of the U. S. warship 'Maine,' there being what looks like a heap of scrap iron and a mast with upper turret showing above water. We also stopped off at Progress, Yucatan, about three miles out, where we were at anchor all the morning, lighters and a tender coming out to take off the cargo and passengers. The sea there swarms with sharks, a dozen at a time scrambling for food thrown overboard. Though two special hooks, well baited were used to try to catch one they were too cute. The barber on board caught some smaller fish, rather pretty looking and curious. I took a snapshot of him with his catch, as well as of the sharks. I haven't had them developed yet, but I hope I may have been successful in the shark pictures.

We had a fine sea trip altogether, though the day after leaving New York proved too much for a good many.

The night journey up here from the port was a fearfully cold one after reaching a fair altitude, and I was freezing and shivering, wishing I had had a fur coat with me. I was thankful, about 8 a.m., to get a little hot coffee, and very good, too, I egged through the window in a little Mexican earthenware jug.

The city lies at an altitude of 7,434 feet, so that, having forgotten that fact, I had merely clad myself for the heat of Vera Cruz.

On arriving in the city we found there had been great excitement at 4 and 5 a.m., owing to two pretty severe earthquake shocks, which had done a little damage here and there in the city, but had been most severe on the Pacific side, destroying completely Acapulco.

I was not to be disappointed over not feeling a shock, though, having felt several before in Costa Rica, I cannot say that I appreciate them much, especially in the middle of a city, where there is a chance of buildings falling on one.

On Saturday morning, a week today, at 12.45, there was a long and pretty alarming shake. I was walking along the street when suddenly I seemed to become quite dizzy, and I thought I was going to faint, as I felt myself staggering from side to side. When I saw everyone excitedly turning out of the buildings into the street I soon realised that it was an earthquake shock. It certainly was a most curious and alarming feeling. I honestly say I don't care about any repetition!

It is said that this city would have been in ruins long ago if it was not for the fact that it is built on an old lake of mud and water, which makes its foundations more resilient than if it had been on the solid rock. At the present time the water is being gradually drained from underneath. There are various evidences about the city of earthquakes at different times.

I have felt amused, since I arrived when I think of friends having said to me before I left that I should find it very hot here. I cannot say that I have felt any more heat here than I left in Canada, the mornings being sunny and warm, though there is generally a cool breeze in the shade, and in the afternoons, about three or four down comes the rain, which makes the temperature take a decidedly cold turn.

To-day is the first day these rains have not come down. They certainly are rather depressing. So far, I don't consider this kind of summer can compare with a Canadian one. The rains continue till October.

(Note—Monday, 9th; Saturday, Sunday and Monday have been fine, without any rain).

This is certainly a wonderful city, with its, fine wide streets, splendid stores, beautiful buildings, especially the fine cathedral, and its general neatness and cleanliness. There is a splendid service of street cars, far out in all directions. The carriages are after the English style, more than any other, and one sees as fine carriage horses as one could see in London, or anywhere, imported from England, of course.

San Francisco street is the great street of the city,—the Yonge street—though there are other streets to almost equal it.

On the first Sunday afternoon I went to the bull fight, there being one each week at that time, as Sunday is like any other day in this country, which I do not care about myself. However, as I had heard so much about its (not by any means that I like cruelty, quite the contrary, but in order that I imght be able to judge it for myself) cruelty, and the attempt to suppress it in Spain, I thought I would brace myself to the occasion and go and see one.

The spectators are an interesting sight, the various costumes and colours of the peons; but I must say, with regard to the bull fight, I have seen my first and last, that kind of sport hardly suiting my taste. Of course there is wonderful skill displayed by the "Picadores" and "Matadores" and by the "Banderilleros," who, holding in each hand a small piece of wood, the size of a broom stick, but less than a yard long, each with steel barb less than 2 in., plunge these sticks or "Banderillas," which are covered with bright coloured tissue paper, into the bull at the top of the shoulder blades, when the animal charges. The great thing is to stick them in close together.

It is wonderful how they can jump aside quickly enough. The worst part of the whole thing is to see the horses of the "Picadores" sometimes disembowelled completely, as happened that day. Of course, only the poorest and most good-for-nothing horses are used for the purpose.

SADDEST AFFAIR EXPERIENCED

Coroner Gray referring to the Willoughby affair at Norwood remarked that in all his experience he never met with as pathetic and as mysterious a situation as that which confronted him last night when he arrived at the homested where the tragedy had been enacted during the afternoon.

"That lovely little girl lying there with a gaping wound in her side through which you could pass a walking stick, the bullet having ploughed its way clean through her body; the father cold and lifeless and the poor mother crazed and frantic by the awfulness of the form in which the Hond of Death had disrupted the household, this alone gives the case a sadder setting than any I have ever had to deal with. Then the strange uncertaintyfi the absence of an apparent motive, everything in fact, as I say, combined a case the most mysterious and pathetic in my experience, and that is no small number."

The Coroner said that he had some difficulty in controlling his feelings and it required an effort to try to pacify the grief stricken mother.

Why Not Fill Your Body WITH NEW ENERGY

And avoid the weariness and tired feelings of spring—You can do this by using DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

You need not be a victim of circumstances and suffer all the weakening and depressing effects of spring.

Tired feelings, headaches, indigestion and nervous troubles all fly when the system is flooded with rich, red blood.

Energy and vigour only come after all the ordinary waste of the system are supplied. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so wonderfully successful as a blood builder that you soon begin to feel strong and healthy by its use.

By means of its great restorative treatment you can rebuild the body when it has been wasted by worry, overwork, lingering colds or the depressing and debilitating effects of spring.

There is no reaction after the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, because it is not a stimulant. On the contrary it is a blood forming, system building medicine which by working hand in hand with Nature proves of lasting benefit to the system and thoroughly drives out weakness and disease by filling the system with new energy and vigour.

Mrs. H. A. Loynes, nurse, Phillipsburg, Que., writes: "I was all run down and could not do my work. Everything I ate made me sick. In nursing others I had seen the good results of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and resolved to try it. As a result of this treatment I have gained ten lbs., do my own work alone and feel like an entirely different person."

SALVATION ARMY PICNIC ENJOYED

Annual Outing to South Beach Was Largely Attended.

The Salavtion Army held its annual picnic on Monday to South Beach. Clear Lake. The crowd boarded the steamer Otonabee at the Wolfe St. wharf in the morning and were taken up the Canal to South Beach, which they reached at about 12.15. About three hundred took in the excursion and the Otonabee was pretty well loaded. A section of the Army band was on board and provided music throughout the trip.

At the Beach a programme of sports was run off, of which the following were the results.

BOYS' RACE—UNDER FIVE.

STRATHCONA MAN GETS A BIG BASS

Clarence Wilson, backstop of the Strathcona ball team, has returned from two weeks pleasantly spent at Bobcaygeon. The party was composed of Peterborough boys and needless to say they enjoyed themselves immensely. The fishing, boating, swimming, etcetera, was of the best and some of the catches that were made were stupendous. Clarence got up early this morning and hooked a 6-pound bass. Whether he was sleep walking and dreamt it, or that the fish brought home was actually caught by himself, is not known for a certainty.

NELSON MAN WINS PRIZE

Four From Ontario and One From Saskatchewan Make Possibles in Mackenzie Match—Dundas Lads Again Carry Off Pellatt Trophy For High School Cadets—Are Now the Permanent Owners.

Long Branch, Aug. 19.—In the second day's matches at the Ontario Rifle Association meet, Pte. F. E. Weir of Nelson, B.C., won the honors and high money in the Bankers' match, four Ontario men and a Saskatchewan man divided the prize in the Mackenzie match, all making possibles, and Pte. Bibby of the 71st Regiment, Fredericton, N.B., and Pte. Patterson of the Oxford Rifles, made possibles in the Macdonald match and bunched the prize money.

Weather conditions yesterday were as good as could be hoped for, and some excellent scores were chalked up. Several times during the day, however, what is known as a fish tail wind sprang up and threw some ordinarily good shots off their bearing. During the shooting of the Mackenzie match some marksmen started off with the wind gauge three degrees to the left and before they had finished the wind was five degrees to the right.

The shooting all through was not so good as last year. Sixty-one points or better was required last year to get in the money list of the Bankers' match, while this year, with 23 more competitors, 59 scores got money. Also in the Mackenzie match a number of thirties got prizes, while last year 33 was required to get a money prize.

During the early afternoon the light was very bright and threw a glitter on the targets, which was not the best for good marksmanship. The Dundas cadets are now the permanent owners of the Pellatt challenge trophy, valued at $120, having won it on two previous occasions. The Harbord cadets won it the first year and the Guelph cadets won it one year.

John Coulter, one of the black list fraternity of Peterborough, secured a drink in one of the hotels to-day, but soon afterwards the bar tender learned that he was listed, and informed the police. Coulter was lodged in the police station and will likely find himself in trouble. The bartender, as soon as he made the discovery that Coulter was under the ban, notified the police, and apparently tried to keep within the law.

CAN'T USE THE OLD BRIDGE

Structure at Lindsay is Unfit for Use Just Now—Interferes With Traffic.

The superstructure of the Wellington Street bridge, Lindsay, has reached a point at which it is beyond repair, and it is absolutely unsafe to swing. An examination of the bridge has disclosed the fact that the lower cords of the short arm of the bridge are rotten through and through. The bridge, therefore, has been closed for steamboat traffic, but the contractors are supporting it by means of bents, for the time being, in order to allow it to be used for light traffic. Passenger and other steamboats, however, will have to use the lower wharf until the new bridge is built.

His Sister Thinks He May Have Been Insane

Mrs. Hallett, of Toronto, Says Willoughby's Actions Had Seemed to Show His Mind Was Affected—News of the Tragedy is Being Carefully Kept From His Aged Mother, Who, So Far, Knows Nothing of the Affair—She is in Very Poor Health.

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—News of the terrible tragedy at Norwood in which Thomas Willoughby shot his little daughter Stella and later was found dead himself, is being kept from Willoughby's aged mother, who resides at 342 Lippincott street, this city, with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Hallett. The old lady is in exceedingly poor health, and it is feared learning of her son's death would have serious effect on her. A son, Charles Willoughby, and another daughter, Mrs. Forward, also live in Toronto. Mr. Willoughby and his brother-in-law, Mr. Hallett are in Norwood attending to the affairs of the unfortunate man. Mrs. Hallett expresses herself as almost inclined to believe her brother was insane, rather than accept the theory of accidental shooting. Her brother, she says, had been very ill for some months past, and his actions had seemed to show his mind was affected.

DETECTIVE'S EXPERIMENTS SUSTAIN LAD'S STATEMENTS

Simcoe, Oct. Aug. 19.—That Emery Shelley, the boy charged with the murder of old Michael Hall on Sunday last, was most probable innocent of any intention to do harm, seems quite likely after Detective Greer's experiments yesterday.

A careful survey of the bush opposite and 250 yards from the Hall stable strengthened the theory that the bullets might easily have done their work from this thicket, and that shots from in the woods at a bird in the border would be within range of the marks they made.

A test was made with a 22-calibre Stephens rifle with 22 short ammunition, which showed that death could result at 300 yards. It was also seen that the bullets penetrated medium hard wood when fired from over 100 yards, as far as they did when at a distance of only five yards.

One thing that strongly upholds the "accidental" theory is that the old man was killed by the first shot, yet others continued to rattle on the building, also mast shows were scattered wide apart, as though fired at random.

Another thing, if the accused really did the shooting, it doesn't look like a wilful act, also he wouldn't likely have continued shooting on his way home.

The neighbor, Thos. Overholt, told the detective that when he stopped the boy shooting on his farm on Sunday last some of his children be injured, it was after Hall had been killed. The boy was then coming from the direction of the Hall house and was on his way home, but so far as Overholt could see had not been through with him.

In the event of lack of evidence or proof sufficient to connect young Shelley with the firing of the fatal shot, the crown may still prosecute on a charge of criminal negligence, on the ground that the had had no right to roam about a populated country, Sundays or week days, discharging a firearm at will.

DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO DESTROY WAR VESSELS

Special to The Examiner.

London, Aug. 19.—Proof of a deliberate attempt to destroy at least three English warships has been found. It leaked out to-day by the men investigating the discovery of dynamite in the coal taken aboard the battleships Lord Nelson and Victorious, and Cruiser Duke of Edinburgh. No verdict has yet been announced, but it is known that investigators found the dynamite to be different from that used in blasting coal. It was found, too, that the coal came from different mines, thus disposing of the accident theory.

SQUADS OF MEN SEARCHING FOR BOY LOST ON TUESDAY IN WOODS

Halifax, Aug. 19.—Great excitement prevails in Stellarton over the fate of a two-year-old child of Rudolph Mueller, who was lost on Tuesday afternoon at Mount William, about two miles from Stellarton. Mayor Campbell of Stellarton had a large force of men on the search within one hour after he was notified of the case. This force was increased in the evening by the fire department, who continued the search all night, and yesterday the coal miners, assisted by a large number of I.C.R. employes, are diligently searching the woods which surround the house where the child was last seen. Mr. Mueller's mother left the child sleeping in the house while she and another woman went picking blueberries. When she returned she found the door open and the child gone. A child's chair was pulled up to the door, as if he had it there to open the latch.

Mrs. Mueller says she was only 400 yards from the house and could see the house door. She was on the alert to hear the child cry if he woke up. His right heel was sore and he was barefooted. His parents are Bulgarians, and the child cannot speak English. In spite of the heavy rain yesterday large crowds searched the woods, but as yet have found no trace of the lost boy. Heavy brushwood extends in nearly all directions from the house where the child was last seen.

PETERBOROUGH HORSES WIN MORE PRIZES AT COBOURG

Special to The Examiner.

Cobourg, Aug. 18.—Peterborough horses continue to carry off prizes at the Cobourg Horse Show, the result of to-day's judging showing more prizes for the Electric City owners. To-day in the free-for-all carriage pair class, with an entry list of six, Hon. J. R. Stratton took first prize with Crowe and Murray, of Toronto, second.

In the amateur tandem Miss K. L. Wilks, of Galt, took first prize, with Hon. J. R. Stratton second.

Machine Telephone Office In Brantford Opened To Public

Between eight and nine hundred people visited the Canadian Automatic Machine Telephone Company plant, on Queen street last evening, to witness a practical demonstration of the new system of telephone which is being introduced into this city. To say that the visitors were surprised at the extensiveness of the plant, its capacity and the wonderful intricacy of the machinery installed would be putting it mildly. The building itself is generally known to be one of the most modernly constructed in Brantford. The expensive machinery goes much farther, as an invention of wonderful scope. Provision is made for almost any emergency, the elements being at times the worst enemies of the telephone, but in this, the Lorimer invention has almost absolute protection against being knocked out by lightning. The practical demonstration was made last evening by Mr. B. A. Lillie and Mr. Rock, and it is the intention of the officials to open the doors again in the near future to the public.

The amount of labour is comparatively small. Manager Rose stated to The Expositor to-day that there were 80 new telephones now installed in the city.—Brantford Expositor.

The past year has been a most successful one and the future prospects are very bright. The exhibition of fire fighting apparatus is wonderful.

THE WHEAT OUTLOOK.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin dealing with the conditions of the foreign wheat crops. In Central Europe they are less promising than a month ago. In Germany and Austria-Hungary a considerable decline in this year's wheat crop is expected. The Central European yield this year is expected to be 50,000,000 bushels less than last year's, when the crop was an average one.

The report proceeds to say that western and southwestern Europe are reaping crops much more satisfactory In Great Britain, on an increased acreage, the condition of wheat is placed at four per cent. above average. In Spain a yield is expected sufficient to supply the domestic demands. In Italy the crop yield generally seems satisfactory, but the quality is poor. An official estimate places the probable harvest ten per cent. or about fifteen million bushels, above last year. The latest official crop report of France is unfavourable as regards condition, but an average wheat harvest is still possible, owing to the increased area.

In eastern and southeastern Europe crop conditions are excellent. In Bulgaria and Servia an abundant harvest is promised. Roumania has a smaller area of wheat, but a larger yield is looked for. The Russian acreage of winter wheat is less than last year, but this is more than compensated for by the increased acreage in spring wheat, the yield of which will be large. The European crop on the whole will be the largest since 1906. A favourable monsoon in India gives promise of a good season there. Seeding in Australia was done under good conditions, rain having been plentiful. In Argentina there has been much drouth but a good harvest is still looked for. Last year Argentina had an exportable surplus of only 80,000,000 bushels, 60,000,000 bushels less than the year before. This was largely due to frost damage and it is confidently expected that this year's crop will be better.

The United States winter wheat crop is now placed by the Government estimate at 432,920,000 bushels. There is a large increase in the acreage of spring wheat, which looks excellent, and it is now believed that the United States total crop will be the third largest in the history of that country.

The Canadian wheat crop, by the United States estimates is expected to give us an exportable surplus of from 100,000,000 to 130,000,000 bush. At present everything points to a world's crop of wheat considerably larger than that of last year. The reduced amount of wheat remaining in the farmers' hands, and in storage from last year would, however, incline to the opinion that prices will remain tolerably firm.

LEVER BROS.' NEW SCHEME

Lever Bros., Limited, the world-known soap manufacturers have earned a title to popular approval quite apart from the excellence of the article they manufacture. Recently they set aside $2,500,000 worth of stock to be given to the various employees of their firm. The first distribution of this stock took place on July 23rd, and the newspaper accounts of the proceedings in connection therewith prove interesting and instructive reading.

One thousand and forty-one employees, including directors, managers, salesmen, travellers, advertising managers, clerks, workmen, labourers, (male and female alike), who had qualified under the terms of the co-partnership scheme became stockholders in the business.

Briefly, the scheme contemplates the annual distribution of partnership certificates to all employees of the company who have reached the age of 25 years and can show a clear record of at least five years' faithful and loyal service. No cash is paid, nor financial liability incurred by the employees, and the only obligation devolving on the holders of these partnership certificates embodies an undertaking on their part not to waste time, labour, materials or money in the discharge of their duties but loyally and faithfully to further the interests of Lever Bros., Limited, its associated companies, and their co-partners.

In each future succeeding year a distribution of partnership certificates is intended to be made for amounts equal in par value to approximately 10 per cent. of the annual salary or wages of the employees, to whom they may be continued until the holder has accumulated the maximum amount obtainable in each class according to a scale set out in the trust deed. This maximum may equal a nominal amount of from 3 to 4 years' total salary or wages of the employee. But the trustees have the discretion to vary the allotments according to the merits of the applicants, the decision of the trustees being subject to an appeal in the first place to a representative committee, and, ultimately, to the holder of the ordinary shares, or in future the majority holders.

As the scheme, however, has been made retrospective by the founder, a goodly number of certificates in the first distribution were for amounts based on the previous one, two, three four, five, six, seven, or eight years' salary or wages of the employee. It had been decided by Mr. Lever to date the scheme back to the beginning of this present century, so that any present employee who was 25 years of age in 1901 and had been 8 years or over in service at that date was eligible to receive certificates for 8 years.

Of the total number of certificates issued, 303 were retrospective in respect of 8 years or over, 42 for 7 years, 81 for 6, 123 for 5, 159 for 4, 131 for 3, 99 for 2, and 103 for 1 year. In subsequent distributions the partnership certificates will, as stated above, be for amounts representing approximately 10 per cent. of the employee's salary or wages for the previous year: and the trust deed provides that in no case shall partnership certificates for a nominal amount exceeding the total of £500,000 be at any one time issued and outstanding except with the consent in writing of the holder of the ordinary shares, or of the majority of the ordinary shares, in the Company.

The phrase "issued and outstanding" is explained by a provision of the trust deed securing that the partnership certificates shall be cancelled whenever the holder ceases to be an employee of the Company. If he leaves the service of the firm voluntarily from any other cause than age or permanent incapacity caused by ill-health, his partnership certificate will be surrendered. It is also to be cancelled absolutely in case of misconduct, flagrant inefficiency, disloyalty, or breach of the partnership undertaking. On retirement through age or ill-health on superannuation the partnership certificates are to be exchangeable, on the terms provided under the trust, for 5 per cent. preferential certificates. The widows of registered holders whose partnership certificates are cancelled by death will also receive preferential certificates on the same basis.

There will be no reduction of any kind from either wages or existing privileges of the workpeople. "The advantage of persons in the employ of the Company" is the object of the new scheme as declared in the trust deed, but with the intention, always insisted upon by the founder, of increasing the success of the business of creating the further prosperity in which the workers are to share, above all of increasing the happiness in business of all the workers and promoting industrial welfare and efficiency by the closer relationship of capital, management and labour.

Lever Bros. have struck upon a scheme which, if successful, is bound to have far-reaching results. Its progress will be watcher by the business men of two continents with interest It has evidently been most carefully considered in all its aspects and deserves to succeed, not only from an economic standpoint but from the whole-hearted desire evinced by Messrs. Lever Bros. to bring Capital and Labour more closely together.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. William Henry, the Chief Secretary of the Royal Life Saving Society, left London two or three weeks ago for this country, where he has had an extended tour mapped out for him on behalf of the Society, for which he has worked zealously since 1891. Mr. Henry's itinerary includes visits to Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Cobourg, Toronto, and Hamilton. It is a pleasure to learn that our energetic chairman of the Reception Committee, Ald. J. J. Turner, Jr., is endeavouring to obtain Mr. Henry's consent to give a public address in Peterborough.

A BENEFICENT BUDGET

(From the Stratford Beacon)

A "beneficent budget" is the description given by the Montreal Witness of Mr. Lloyd George's measure which is now being fought with unexampled bitterness in the British House of Commons by the privileged classes. It is a war budget in more senses than one—it is aimed to provide means for the protection of the shores of the motherland from invasion, and, in the language of Mr. Lloyd George, for waging an implacable warfare against poverty within its borders.

Its leading features may be briefly summarized as follows: First of all its provisions for social reform are intended for "immediate consumption," and are not to be laid over until the nations have agreed on limitation of armaments. It embodies the principle of "no taxation of the necessaries of life," and so the poor man's bread, tea and sugar are exempt. It proposes to convert many thousands of aged paupers into pensioners by removing the veto on the grant of pensions to those who have accepted parochial relief. It offers a system of national insurance against sickness, widowhood and other misfortunes, similar to that of Germany, and includes in this a national system of labour exchanges. It promises substantial improvements in the poor law administration. It embodies schemes for the extension and improvement of agriculture, the resettlement of land and the development of afforestation. It levies a tax of twenty per cent. on the future unearned increment of land, and also of a halfpenny in the pound on vacant building sites over a certain value. This carries with it an exemption of parks and playgrounds to which the public are admitted. It also taxes mining royalties and the determination of leases; increases the duties on spirits and tobacco; raises the liquor license fees; taxes motors for the road improvement rendered necessary by them, and increases the income tax and succession duties, especially on large fortunes.

As to the purposes of all this Mr. Lloyd-George has said, "the money thus raised is to be expended first of all in ensuring the inviolability of our shores." It is raised also in order not merely to relieve, but to prevent, unmerited distress within these shores. It is essential that we should make every necessary provision for the defence of the country. It is equally imperative that we should make our country even better, worth defending by all and for all. In short, the Budget Bill is not merely a measure of ways and means to provide for the financial needs of the country, but there are wrapped up in it a number of economic reforms for the reduction of privilege and for the betterment of the common people. It has privilege arrayed against it, but appearances seem to be that it has the nation in its favour. This is the measure which has been described by Lord Rosebery as "not a budget but a revolution." If it is so it is because it aims to carry out many of the principles of reform of which the same Lord Rosebery is an able exponent, and to effect deliverance from national evil, against which he has often eloquently protested.

ST. JOSEPH ST. AS IT SHOULD NOT BE

Citizen in Letter Suggests An Improvement That Might Be Made

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Permit me to pose as an altruist for a moment. I desire to save some citizen from a broken leg, twisted ankle, or some other painful physical injury, and at the same time save the city authorities from paying damages and incidentally save their credit. I speak of the walk on that busy by-way, Babbs' Lane whose narrow three-foot walk perhaps receives the pressure of more human feet to the square foot than any other walk outside the business district. This wooden walk is sadly out of repair. At several points the planks are loose and broken and there being some distance to the ground beneath, there is a splendid opportunity for broken limbs. I call attention of the authorities to this matter so that the public will know that they are notified. If I made complaint privately the matter might be overlooked and nobody be the wiser. Now we know the authorities know of the dangerous state of this walk and the responsibility is on them. There is danger of serious action every hour this walk is allowed to remain in its present dangerous condition.

Yours truly,
FUNAMBULIST.

VASELINE NO GOOD FOR HAIR.

Dandruff Germ Thrives In It, as Well As In All Grease.

A well-known Chicago hair specialist invited the Inter-Ocean reporter to come to his office and see, under a microscope, how the germ that causes dandruff thrives in vaseline. The specialist said that all hair preparations containing grease, simply furnish food for the germs and help to propogate them. The only way to cure dandruff is to destroy the germs, and the only hair preparation that will do that is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Without dandruff no falling hair, no baldness. Ask for Herpicide. It is the only destroyer of the dandruff germ. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

"THE MAN FROM HOME" MARRIED RECENTLY

William Hodge, the comedian, and his bride, who was Miss Helen Hale, having completed a sentimental journey of nearly 2,000 miles in a motor car, rolled back last night to New York, where they will set up housekeeping. Mr. Hodge will return to the leading part in "The Man From Home," in which he was appearing at the time of his wedding.

New York didn't suspect that Mr. Hodge and Miss Hale had intended to get married, until when she returned from Europe last spring, he met her at the pier and gave her more than a brotherly hug and kiss. Even then both denied matrimonial intentions, but one Sunday morning they stole away to a minister's house and were united, setting out in their automobile bridal tour from the preacher's door.

True love didn't run quite smoothly, for the couple experienced the woes of punctured tires and other breakdowns all the way to Lenox, Conn., where they first went, and then through New England, the Berkshires and the Catskills. Among other experiences they were the guests of Elbert Hubbard, of whom Mr. Hodge is a great admirer.

MAKE THE BLOOD RICH AND RED

Miss Cynthia Hutchinson, Hanesville, B. O., writes: "My system was so completely run down that my friends as well as myself thought I could never get better. All medicines failed to help me. A trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food benefitted me and at the end of a month people scarcely knew me I had improved so much. The blood was enriched, colour improved, new flesh was added, and I got strong and well."

EVANGELISTS AT THE GEORGE STREET CHURCH

On Monday evening in George St. Methodist Church, an Evangelistic rally was conducted by Rev. Mr. Soper and Messrs. Whelan and Young, of Victoria College. The chair was occupied by Mr. F. C. Moore, who after the address had been given, spoke of the campaign which was being closed that night. He thanked all those who had in any way helped with the services and especially Miss Lizzie Smith, who had played for every service in the tent. Rev. Mr. Soper then spoke a few words and presented Miss Smith with a handsome music case in appreciation of her services. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

STILL IN BUSINESS

Messrs. Arthur Blade & Son desire to anncunce that they have not retired from the Floral Business in Peterborough.

Messrs. Blade & Son's lease on the West End Green Houses expired on the 15th of August, and as they are now building new and extensive green houses, which will be completed in about a month, they did not wish to renew the lease, so sold the owner the stock on hand.

The reliable firm of Blade & Son are prepared at the present time to take orders for cut flowers and all kinds of floral work, and will guarantee to give perfect satisfaction as of yore. 2d-t-s

PRESENTATION MADE TO REV. AND MRS. BEDFORD

Examiner Special.

Lakefield, Aug. 17.—On Tuesday evening a party of friends met at the parsonage, Regent street, Lakefield, to congratulate and offer best wishes to Rev. and Mrs. Bedford on the occasion of their silver wedding. Sweet harmony prevailed and light refreshments were served by Mrs. and Miss Bedford. Mr. Wesley Sherin, Mrs. Spence and Mr. Arthur Hill, from England, uncle of Mrs. Bedford, voiced the congratulations of the company present, and Rev. Mr. Bedford suitably replied and thanked all for the same. At the same time, Mr. Hill, who is superannuated Deputy Chief Constable of Staffordshire, England, was presented by friends with one of "Simpson's" best, full-sized leather travelling dress suit cases, a stick, etc., as souvenirs of his trip to Canada, including Toronto, Ontario Lake, Niagara Falls, Barrie and Allandale, where he also has friends. Mr. Hill also received best expressed wishes for his safe voyage from Montreal on 20th inst., to England, on the "Victorian," and a speedy return to his friends in Canada.

THE BEST HERITAGE

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Pure fresh air, exercise, and eating the simplest foods will produce this desired result.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportions than any other cereal.

They all took the summer complaint and were very sick with it. The baby would take fits, and after trying many remedies, which were of no use, I suggested we should try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. 72 Days of Dish Washing

You spend two hours every day washing dishes. That's 720 hours a year or 72 days of ten working hours each. This means that half the time is wasted. For with Taylor's Borax Soap you finish your work in one hour instead of two.

Isn't it worth five cents to have 36 days a year to yourself—to have cleaner and sweeter dishes than ever before with less than half the work?

Taylor's Soap

This wonderful soap is unlike any other you have ever known. It digs into the corners of dishes and loosens the dirt almost like magic. It cuts away grease and leaves the surface clean and polished.

Hard water makes hard dish washing, but Taylor's Borax Soap softens the hardest water and so makes the work easy. But it does more than soften the water—it softens the hands and leaves them even whiter than before.

With this soap you save all the bother of rubbing and most of the scouring. You simply have no idea of the work this soap can save—it is the greatest surprise you have ever known.

The glassware has a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. The china ware looks as fresh and inviting as new. Yet you work only half as hard with this astonishing soap.

No soap could be purer than this, for during the boiling process we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap. Thus every impurity is carried away and the soap is absolutely clean.

Borax also sterilizes and sweetens. It kills every germ and leaves no possibility of contagion. It destroys all odors and leaves a clean scent that is simply delightful.

This wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. We spend twenty-one days to make a single cake. We use the labor of more than 200 persons. Yet we make such enormous quantities—millions of cakes every year—that we buy at the lowest prices and give you the very best of quality. Try one bar and judge for yourself.

"MY HUSBAND NEVER KEPT THE GUN LOADED," SAYS SOBBING WIDOW TO CORONER'S JURY

Evidence Heard in the Inquest on the Norwood Double Fatality---Six Year Old Son of Dead Man Who Proved a Capital Witness--Says There Were Drops of Stuff Like Medicine in the Cup He Saw in His Father's Hand---Found the Vessel Later in the Barn and Gave it to the Doctors---Physicians Say There Was No Indication of the Cause of Willoughby's Death.

"I TRIED TO WAKEN PAPA; I THOUGHT HE WAS ASLEEP," SAYS SON

Special Staff Correspondence.

FEATURES OF THE EVIDENCE

"There were drops of stuff like medicine in the cup."
"I don't think my husband ever kept the gun loaded on account of the children."
"As far as I know there was no poison in the house."
"At times my husband was not in good spirits."

Norwood, Aug. 18.—About the only conclusion that could be drawn from the inquest into the deaths of Thomas G. Willoughby and Stella May, his eight-year-old daughter, which was commenced this afternoon before Coroner Dr. Gray, of Peterborough, is that a great deal depends upon the result of the post mortem examination, which is being performed on Willoughby's body, by Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew, of Norwood. If any traces of poison are found in the system of the deceased, the theory which has been widely accepted that his death was due to heart disease, caused by shock from the tragic fate of his daughter, will have to be dropped. On the other hand, of course, there may not be any evidences of poison, which will bear out the contention of Willoughby's many friends, who have stoutly maintained that both deaths were accidental. At the opening session of the Coroner's inquest evidence was taken from Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew, who were called in after the discovery of the bodies by Harry Garfield, Willoughby's six-year-old son, and by Mrs. Willoughby, who, although almost prostrated by grief, managed to sob out her knowledge of the facts.

Remarkable Boy Witness.

The most important witness was the boy who bore himself with remarkable calmness. Standing erectly at the table which was doing duty for a desk, the youngster fixed his eyes on Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, and coolly and intelligently answered the questions that were put to him. The poor little fellow did not appear sensible of the losses he had sustained and was quite calm and self-contained as he told of seeing Stella's mangled body bathed by the father and then placed on the sofa in the sitting room. He evidently did not realize just what had happened, and there was no trace of grief in his clear young voice as he told of the death of his sister and of his father lying down beside her body in the parlour: "I tried to waken papa, he remarked confidingly to the Crown Attorney. "I thought he was sleeping, but he wouldn't wake up." He did not grow confused when cross-questioned, and supplied some information that was new and important.

The most weighty part of his testimony was in regard to the movements of his father after the death of little Stella. He explained to the jury that his father had gone from the house to the barn with a cup in his hand and had left the cup there. The little felllow further stated that there were "drops of stuff like medicine" in the vessel, and that on returning from the barn his father had lain down in the parlour, beside the dead body of the little girl, and had told him to go and mind the baby. The witness went out to the barn and secured the cup which he had given to the doctors. Dr. Pettigrew stated that when he received the cup, however, it was empty, there being no traces of the contents.

The Widow's Evidence.

Mrs. Willoughby's evidence was marked by the statement that her husband had never kept the shot gun loaded around the premises on account of the children. Her story was a pathetic one and tears were dashed from many a masculine eye as she related of her home coming yesterday. The blow has had a most marked effect on Mrs. Willoughby. She is almost overcome by grief, and was so weak that she had to be assisted down from the house. Coroner Gray had a chair placed for her near the desk, and seated in that she gave her evidence. A pitiable moaning cry escaping from her once in a while showed the intensity of her sorrow, and there were moments in which it looked as if she might break down entirely.

The inquest was held in the yard of the Willoughby farm, it being considered preferable to the house. The jurors were seated on the green sward around the table placed for the authorities. Contrary to what had been expected there was not a large crowd present, although a number of neighbours had gathered to show their sympathy for the bereaved ones, and some who were probably drawn to the spot out of morbid curiosity.

The business of empanelling a jury had been entrusted to Special Constable Johnston, and all fourteen of the jurymen were present, as follows, when their names were called: Robert Gallagher, Wm. Andrews, Jos. Metcalfe, Wm. R. Parker, Wilbert H. Bell, Jas. Gallagher, Hugh McDonald, Andrew McMillan, William D. Robson, Gordon Bass, James Long, Edward Hubbell, Geo. F. Ross, Wm. A. McQuillan.

Wm. D. Robson was elected chairman, and after the jury had been sworn in, they were taken to view the body, accompanied by Doctors Pettigrew and Sutton, who pointed out the important features. This necessary function over, the taking of evidence was commenced, Dr. Nelson Sutton being the first witness called.

Dr. Sutton Testifies.

Dr. Suttton sworn, said that he was a physician practising in Norwood. He had been called to visit the Willoughby home at 3.45 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, and had gone out accompanied by Dr. Pettigrew. He had found the girl lying on a sofa wrapped in a flannelette sheet, and the man stretched out on the floor beside her, both dead. Witness had examined the girl first. He had found that it was the body of a well-nourished child of about ten years, he would judge. He had found a wound in the left breast two inches in length, by one in breadth. It had evidently been accomplished by shot, which had passed through the body and out the left shoulder, touching the heart on its passage. There were no other injuries or bruises. Witness had made an examination of the premises, especially of the wood shed, where the affair had occurred. There was blood on the floor, and shot in the wood piled at the rear, scattering over an area of two feet in diameter. He had found a double-barrelled breech-loading shot gun on the floor of the wood shed, one barrel of which had been discharged. He had come to no positive conclusion as to the girl's death. The child's body was cold when he arrived, but rigor mortis had not yet set in.

Witness had also examined the body of Willoughby, and found no trace of injury. The tongue was bleeding, as if it had been bitten and there was blood in the mouth. Witness had attended deceased, who was not a healthy man. He had found nothing to indicate the cause of his death. A post mortem would help in clearing up the mystery.

Dr. Pettigrew's Evidence

Dr. Pettigrew, of Norwood, was the next witness examined. He stated that he had accompanied Dr. Sutton to the house and corroborated fully his statements as to what had been seen there. Willoughby had not been in good health for some time. He had given him medicine for stomach trouble three or four weeks ago. He had been suffering for some time from that complaint and had complained of heart trouble. The witness had not examined his heart. Stomach trouble might affect his heart. There was nothing to indicate the cause of death. A post mortem examination might reveal that.

Six-year-old Harry Garfield Willoughby, only son of the dead man was the next witness. Led down to where the inquest was being held, by his uncle, the little fellow advanced unhesitatingly to the spot indicated by Crown Attorney Wood and faced that gentleman bravely when he was told to tell what he knew about the case. The youngster was not sworn. His story told in a clear voice that was easily audible for some distance away was as follows:

Heard the Gun Fired

"I was out here (i.e. the bottom of the yard where the jury was sitting) when I heard a gun go off. I was out here looking for my whip, Stella said she saw it here and I was out. Papa and Stella were in the house and the baby was asleep. When I heard the gun I went into the house. I saw papa first and then Stella. She was lying in the shed. Papa said "I shot Stella." She was on the floor about three or four feet from where he was sitting when I went out. When I went out into the yard he was sitting there rubbing his gun with his thumb and sitting on the edge of the floor. After Stella was shat I saw papa go out of the kitchen door with a cup in his hand and go into the barn. This was when Mrs. Ruttan came. He was just going out when Mrs. Ruttan rubbed water over Stella's face.

Witness told of his father undressing Stella and washing the blood off her with the clothes he had taken from her and then carrying her into the sitting room, where he placed her on the sofa. "Papa laid down beside her on the floor and told me to go and mind the baby. I was trying to wake him up. I thought he was asleep," said the witness.

Dropped Stuff in Cup

Questioned by Crown Attorney Wood in regard to the cup, Harry said: "There were drops of stuff like medicine in it. I went to the barn and got the cup and showed it to the doctors. I don't know who I showed it to first. Papa never got up after he laid down."

Mrs. Willoughby, the bereaved wife and mother was the last witness heard at this afternoon's session. The officials hesitated to call her, respecting her grief and it was decided to ask whether she would prefer to testify to-day or come to Norwood for the next session. Constable Johnston was sent to the house to find out and appeared a minute or so. later with Mrs. Willoughby. Supported on one side by the constable and on the other by a woman friend, the poor woman made her way down the hill to the jury. Not a sound was heard as she approached save the long sobs that came from the bereaved woman. Strong men looked away or kept their eyes on the ground as she was given a chair and sworn. Her testimony was interrupted by sobbing cries at frequent intervals, as the grief-stricken woman found the recital of her story too much for her to stand.

Mrs. Willoughby's Evidence

"I was in Norwood yesterday afternoon looking for a house. When I was coming back Mrs. Bass came out of her house and waved to me. I stopped and she said: 'There's company at your house.' I said, 'Is there anything the matter?' She said 'never mind,' and I implored her to tell me. She said something about the little girl. I thought that she had fallen and broken her arm or her leg. Mrs. Bass said, 'What doctor will I send?' and I said 'Send them all if they are needed.' I begged her to tell me what was the matter, but she wouldn't and so I came on. There were lots of people here when I got home. I can't tell who they all were, but Mr. Bass was here and looked after the horse for me."

"I left home after dinner and went right to the post office. I looked at the clock there and it was just ten minutes to two. My husband hitched up the horse for me and gave me the lines when I left. He seemed to be the same as usual. He had been in poor health and complained of stomach trouble and of his heart. You could scarcely feel it beat sometimes.

Wasn't Kept Loaded

"Mr. Willoughby kept a gun but hasn't used it lately."

"Did he keep it loaded?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"I don't think he ever kept it loaded on account of the children," was the reply. "About a week ago he told me that there was a cat came here which got up at everything and said some day I'll shoot that cat. That was all he had ever mentioned of the gun to me."

"Has your husband been melancholy? "was a question asked.

"At times he seemed down-hearted," was the reply. "He had been taking medicine brown in colour. He also got a bottle from Dr. Ford which I think he had used all up."

"Was there any poison in the house?" asked a juror.

"None, that I know of," replied Mrs. Willoughby. She was then dismissed.

The Post Mortem

The jury appointed Dr. Sutton to perform the post mortem examination and passed a resolution giving him authority to choose an assistant. They were then dismissed, having decided to resume the inquest at one o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, August 26, in the Council Chambers at Norwood.

After being dismissed the jury made a careful examination of the premises. Little Harry Willoughby accompanied them and showed the exact position of his sister as he had seen her lying on the floor.

The clothes taken from the little girl were also examined and the burned clothing of the waist was the cause of much discussion, seeming to argue that the girl was close to the muzzle of the gun when it was discharged.

Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew set about the autopsy as soon as the jury was dismissed, and the funeral will likely take place to-day. The result of the post mortem will not be revealed until the next session of the inquest and will be awaited feverishly by the community.

PASSENGERS HAD TO GET OUT AND WALK

Slight Mishap on Lakefield Line Held Train at Antrim Street.

The spreading of a rail in the Antrim street curve on the G.T.R. line to Lakefield at six o'clock last night is the alleged cause of a slight mishap which blocked traffic for three hours. The mud train that travels between Drummond's and Lakefield was coming south and it is supposed that one of the rails at Antrim street spread causing one of the cars to run along the ties, over the street crossing until the train was stopped. The Lakefield passenger train following later was held and its passengers had of necessity to walk from Smith street.

Gypsies Had To Return $1300 They Had Found In Valise

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Detectives Samson and Brousseau, of the Provincial Police, returned yesterday from an exciting trip to Repentigny, where they were successful in recovering a valise, containing $1,300, which was lost from an automobile on Saturday. The owner of the valise is Mr. J. C. Wilson, senior member of the firm of J. C. Wilson, paper makers, 240 Craig Street West.

Mr. Wilson left Montreal on Saturday morning for an automobile trip to New York, and the valise, containing the money, was strapped firmly to the back of the auto. A stop was made at L'Assomption, when the chauffeur discovered that the precious piece of baggage was missing. The fastenings were broken, and Mr. Wilson was at a loss to know whether it had been stolen by some clever sneak thief, or had fallen off by accident. A speedy retreat along the road, failed to discover the missing grip, and the people questioned along the route, failed to throw any light on its whereabouts. After more than half the return journey had been covered, Mr. Wilson considered further search useless and telephoned to the Provincial Police, who sent Detectives Samson and Brosseau out on the trail of the elusive and valuable piece of baggage. Every inch of the route was carefully covered by the patient sleuths, and nothing escaped their eagle eyes. They reached Repentigny late at night and had just decided on where they were going to sleep, when a rumble of wheels reached the sensitive ear of Detective Samson. No time was lost in making towards the sound and in a few moments, they were in the midst of a tribe of gypsies, who were just about to camp for the night. After many questions had been put to the leader of the band, and just as the detectives were about to leave the camp, a suspicious bulkiness in one of the covered vans attracted their attention. In a second the cover was removed, and there lay the precious valise. Their movements had been followed by one of the band, and as soon as he saw the detectives approach the van where the valise reposed, he whistled a peculiar note, and in half a minute the detectives were surrounded by a swarthy mob of howling men and women. Knives and revolvers were shown freely, and it looked as if a pitched battle would have to be fought to keep possession of the valise. The detectives drew their revolvers and started to push their way through the crowd. The calm and confident air of the sleuths and the shining barrels of the revolvers completely overawed the gang, and although the shouting and jostling continued, no further attempt was made to molest them.

GREEN CORN AND THE METHOD OF EATING IT

Plentiful in Grocery Shops at Present—A New Idea.

Green corn is now displayed for sale in abundance by Peterborough merchants, and the supply is said to be a good one.

The taste for green corn, like that for the symphonies of Ludwig von Beethoven, is not universally diffused among the races of men. The Scotchman, though he eats oats with gusto, regards corn as a feed rather than a food, and the German, busy with his rye bread, and sauerkraten, has no time to master the difficult art of eating it.

Certain misguided persons, in an effort to spread the cult of corn-on-the-cob, have recently devised ingenious hooks and prongs for holding it to the face. The idea of these inventors seems to be that the prejudice against corn among many races is due entirely to the risks attending the orthodox method of eating it. The new-fangled corn-hooks make the operation so simple that a novice can master it in one season. When they are employed the fingers do not touch the ear at all. Instead, it is safely impaled like a beetle on a pin, and so all danger to the clothing, eye and surrounding public is removed.

Despite the apparent refinement of this device it may not meet with universal approval. To get the true flavour of green corn one must eat it in the manner followed for centuries by those epicurean Eastern Shoremen who are the acknowledged Raphaels of the art. If the fingers do not touch it how can one get the full measure of its electric warmth? With all danger of its sudden flight removed, where is the old romance? Away with all such mechanical impediments to poetic eating! As well kiss a pretty girl through a sieve!

COMPANIONSHIP OF MARRIAGE.

By Beatrice Fairfax

How few married people are companions as well as man and wife.

The average wife has not one conscious disloyal thought in her head and the average man is good to his wife, but how much real congeniality is there in the union?

If they have children, that one great bond and common interest holds them together, but that is their sole mutual interest.

They are loyal in thought, not because they love each other so much, but because they love no one else better.

His business and her household span the narrow confines of their universe.

Since the glamour of the honeymoon waned they have with calm philosophy accepted the commonplace. Life stretches before them with smug prosperity as its goal, and outside of that they have no interest.

Love Can Be Nourished.

If this were the inevitable result of marriage I would say nothing about it, but it is not. It is merely the inevitable result for those who tumble into marriage without a thought of the future. The first infatuation is bound to wear off, and in its place comes either a deep abiding love and companionship, or a mere commonplace existence together.

There is no necessity that love, should ever grow commonplace; it is too vital and living a flame to die if nourished in proper surroundings.

Where many women make a great mistake is in making their husbands secondary to their children, and some times even to their households.

Have Love—Not Infatuation.

It is disastrous that a woman should love a man well enough to be his wife and then contentedly depose him from his place. It is to that man, your mate, that you owe your life's love and devotion.

That being the case, don't you see how important it is that you should marry a man whom you will grow to love more and not less.

Any really happy wife will tell you that she loves her husband infinitely more at the end of ten years than she did at first. It is a deeper, fuller love that sympathises and understands and forgives.

I always feel sorry when I see a girl marry a young man whom the world looks upon as a finished product. If he is finished at twenty-five there is no room left for development. It is far better that he should be crude with promise of improvement.

Don't be foolish and marry a man just because your little heart beats a mad tattoo every time he enters the room and your hands grow cold as ice at his touch. That isn't love, you know, it's simply infatuation for the time being though those symptoms will probably occur when you really do love.

But there must be other symptoms as well. There must be the conviction that this man holds you with a stronger tie than that of temporary fascination.

You must have tastes in common, and you must have the power to enter each other's aims and interests.

If your love is based on a passing infatuation you will never have that power.

You may be true to each other to life's end, but your love will be a poor, colourless thing compared to the glorious vital force it might be were you properly mated.

Time's Up To-Day.

Lapas, Bolivia, Aug. 19.—Senor Polo, the Peruvian Minister to Bolivia, it is stated, has given the Bolivian Congress until to-day to decide whether it will accept or reject Argentina's award in the boundary dispute between Peru and Bolivia, which was favorable to Peru.

Revolver Missed Fire.

Glace Bay, N.S., Aug. 19.—The first tragedy of the strike was nearly enacted at the Reserve Colliery early yesterday morning. Special Constable John McDonald, while making his rounds at Norway Crossing, was accosted by three strikers and asked what he was doing. The officer made a reply, and as he started to leave one of the men struck him with his fist. The officer grabbed his man and knocked him down. The other two assailants then started kicking the officer, and landed some nasty blows on his head, chest and stomach. The man whom the officer knocked down then made his escape. McDonald grappled with one of the assailants, and pulling his gun, he pressed the cold steel against the other's throat and pulled the trigger. The gun missed fire, and once again the trigger was pulled, with the same result. One man was arrested.

Wants to Find Wife.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Anxious to capture his deserting young wife, who was Lillian S. Hayunga of Morrisburg, Ont., V. L. Spearrin of Lawrence, Mass., has sought the aid of the police.

Spearrin thinks his wife has gone to her girlhood home, and the police in that town have been notified to watch for her.

The young woman, in a letter to her husband, states she will never return to him.

Tunnel Under Jail Wall.

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—Discovery of a tunnel at the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary yesterday frustrated what would have been a wholsale escape of prisoners.

Two convicts suspected of digging the tunnel are now in solitary confinement and three life prisoners are under surveillance.

Information is refused, but it is said the tunnel was within a few feet of wall when discovered.

To Shoot by Sandglass.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—In connection with the shorteoming of the time limit for each shot to 45 seconds, a novel plan will be tried at the D.R.A. next week.

Each register-keeper will be equipped with a sandglass in which the sand runs through in exactly 45 seconds. When the target comes up the glass will be upended and the rifleman must get his shot off before the sand is in bottom.

$100,000 Gift to Princeton.

New York, Aug. 19.—Princeton University is given $100,000 by the will yesterday of Cornelius C. Schuyler, the banker who was killed recently in an auto accident in France.

Canadian Cities Excel.

New York, Aug. 19.—James Shaw Maxwell, senior magistrate of the city of Glasgow, who is making an extensive tour of the United States and Canada, has arrived in New York.

He is taking advantage of the opportunity to study American public institutions and declares he has been greatly impressed with those he has already visited, Chicago, Boston, Toronto, and Ottawa.

Coming, as he does, from the birthplace of municipal ownership, Mr. Maxwell professes surprise that the citizens of the large municipalities are not more interested in that problem.

"From what I have already observed," he said, "the Canadian cities are far ahead of those in the United States in many respects. They appear to be better regulated and are kept cleaner."

Little Girl Cast Adrift.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Sent to a false address in Montreal from Burlington, Vermont, Germaine Huet, 12 years old, walked the streets without money or home or friends until she fell exhausted. She was taken in by Councillor Martel, of Montreal West.

Her story is that her father died when she was young and left her mother well off. He was a doctor at St. Johns, P.Q. Her mother died three years ago, and her money was put in the Banque St. Johns, of which Hon. P. H. Roy was president. The bank failed and she lost all. When the woman with whom she lived in Burlington found that she could get no money out of her she sent her to Montreal without money and to a false address.

Will Force an Interview.

London, Aug. 19.—The militant suffragettes who have been picketing the House of Commons for the past six weeks with the object of securing an interview with Premier Asquith, have extended their operations to the Premier's residence on Downing street.

Mrs. Despard and Mrs. Saunderson yesterday afternoon took up their stand outside Mr. Asquith's house and declared that sentries would be maintained uninterruptedly until the Premier granted an audience.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Farmers up the Rideau, near Newboro', complain of the destruction of their grain by grasshoppers, of which there are clouds. The place has never before had such a visitation.

Arrested Close to Border.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 19.—Arrested yesterday morning just as he was beginning to cross the steel arch bridge to the United States, the capture of a man, said to be Samuel Gordon, wanted in Brantford, charged with uttering forged checks, is regarded as a smart piece of work by Detective Kelly of the Ontario frontier police.

The man gives his name as Samuel Ipzcovitz, a Jew, of Brantford, salesman of optical goods. He answers in every particular to the Samuel Gordon of the same town, wanted on a charge of uttering two forged checks and getting them cashed in a bank at Brantford.

Cruisers From England.

London, Aug. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It is understood that New Zealand will provide cruisers for New Zealand waters instead of a Dreadnought for the fleet.

At the final of the Imperial Defence Conference meeting to-day, a resolution will be brought forward to the effect that all the naval and military forces of the Empire shall so be organized that each shall be in a position to render efficient service in an emergency in any part of the Empire. Subsequently, the oversea delegates will meet the committee of Imperial defence.

Cheese Factory Burned.

Kingston, Aug. 19.—The Collins Bay cheese factory, five miles west of Kingston, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The neighbors awoke to find the building all ablaze, and could do nothing to save it. Machinery, utensils and much cheese were lost. There is some insurance on the building. A residence close by was in danger, but was saved.

Flag Shot Down.

Canea, Island of Crete, Aug. 19.—A well-directed shot fired by one of the parties of bluejackets landed early yesterday morning from the international squadron anchored in Canea harbor brought down the flag staff of the Canea fort and with it the Greek flag that has threatened to bring about war between Turkey and Greece.

A combined landing party composed of detachments from the ships of the four protecting powers was sent ashore before sunrise yesterday and the task of removing the Hellenic cross flag was carried out in a few minutes without any attempt at interference on the part of the islanders.

Most of the bluejackets then returned to their ships, but small detachments representing each of the four powers were left behind in occupation of the bastion of the fortress to prevent any attempt on the part of the Cretans to raise another flag. Cretan gendarmes have been posted throughout Canea to maintain order.

German Navy Manoeuvres.

Kiel, Aug. 19.—The entire German fleet comprising 40 battleships and armored cruisers and 50 torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers left here yesterday to take part in the extensive summer manoeuvres under the command of Prince Henry of Prussia, who is on board the flagship Deutschland.

In addition to the two active squadrons, one reserve squadron of eight defence battleships and another composed of cruisers, will take part in the manoeuvres which will commence in the Baltic and probably extend to the North Sea.

Emperor William will review the fleet on Aug. 30 off Swinemunde and later there will be an attack by the torpedo boats at Luebeck Harbor and an attempt to land a strong force on the coast. The shore line will be defended by an army corps.

Killed Under Wall.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Percy Jones, aged 16, died in the General Hospital at 8 o'clock last night from injuries sustained at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when a wall fell in on him.

Jones, who is a driver in the employ of William J. Street, plumber, 117 Pembroke street, was engaged in salvaging on the ground on University avenue which is being cleared of buildings for the new hospital. He asked if the wall was in a safe condition. The men were preparing to pull it down, but as their preparations had not been completed, they thought it was safe and told him so. He went under it and it collapsed.

Alfonso Wants to Fight.

Madrid, Aug. 19.—King Alfonso is taking the keenest interest in the war in Morocco and all of Premier Maure's influence is required to prevent him from going to the front.

His Majesty writes daily to officers at Melilla whom he knows personally.

Neither King Alfonso nor any member of the royal household has participated in any entertainments or rejoicings since the war has been in progress and the social life of Madrid is almost at a standstill.

Indian Killed by Baseball.

Brantford, Aug. 19.—Word reached the city yesterday of a peculiar fatality at Smoothtown, a village on the Indian Reserve, about three miles southeast of Oshweken.

Jessie Cayuga, a young Indian, 21 years of age, was killed in a practice game of baseball. In company with other Indians he was engaged in the play, when he was accidentally struck in the back of the head with the ball, dying from the effects shortly afterwards.

Mysterious Cattle Disease.

Port Hope, Ont., Aug. 19.—A mysterious cattle disease has broken out in the herd owned by James Dickson, near Campbell-Croft, and much alarm is felt in that neighborhood.

Inspector Stork of Toronto was up and investigated the herd, but he did not say what the trouble was. It resembles blackleg. Though the herd has been vaccinated three valuable animals have died.

For Conciliation Board.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—F. A. Acland, who is now in Fort William, in connection with the dispute between the Canadian Pacific and its freight handlers, has wired Hon. MacKenzie King, that the employes have nominated Frederick Urry, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, as one of the members of the board of conciliation. The C.P.R. has recommended W. J. Christie of Winnipeg.

Lightning Causes Runaways.

Russell, Man., Aug. 19.—Two Galician farmers living near here were killed Tuesday night as a result of their teams running away during a terrific storm which passed west and north of this place.

FREAK DOUBLE PLAY PULLED OFF BY A GENESEE BACKSTOP

Genesee, Aug. 19.—A unique play was made in a baseball game at Caledonia recently, the Genesee catcher, Claude Lahr, being responsible. It was such a play as probably was never made in another contest in the history of baseball and is worthy of record. In the fourth inning, after the Caledonia batter had been retired, Ball reached his base on an error and McGovern on fielder's choice. This left first and second bases occupied. McGovern took a large lead, either not realizing that second was occupied or hoping to accomplish a successful double steal Lahr, catching for Genesee, dashed across the diamond directly toward McGovern, who could not return to first base or reach second, and ran him down, tagging him out. Meanwhile Ball had reached third in safety. No Genesee player had been thoughtful enough to cover home and Ball had a clear field ahead of him. He started to score and Lahr, seeing that he had no fielder to throw the ball to ran across the diamond, actually running down the Caledonia man, and catching him about four feet from the plate.

If there is another instance in baseball, either professional or amateur, in which a catcher left his position, chased down two men and accomplished a double play unassisted, no one that saw the play had any recollection of it. The whole thing was accomplished in a few seconds, and before the puzzled spectators had time to realise fully what was going on. As the Genesee players came from the field after the play the generous crowd cheered loud and long for Lahr's cleverness, even though it had counted against the home team. This was the feature of the day.

Parker Of Hiawatha Won The Five Mile Race At Belleville

W. Parker of Hiawatha, won the five-mile race at Belleville picnic yesterday. He, with a number of others from the Indian reserve, went down to Belleville yesterday to compete in some of the events being run off at a mammoth picnic being given under the auspices of the Catholics of that city.

In the five-miles event there were fifteen starters. It was run on a track four laps to the mile. Parker finished two hundred and fifty yards ahead of the second man in 27.50. He won a thirty-five dollar gold watch. George Paudash won the mile race in five minutes and three seconds. In this event there were ten starters.

SATURDAY'S DECISIVE GAME BETWEEN T.A.S. AND PARK ST. WILL BE HARD BATTLE

A meeting of the Executive of the City Baseball League was held in the Examiner office last night with all the teams represented. The most important decision was that the remaining scheduled games will be played at the Riverside Park, the first one on Saturday afternoon, when Park Street Athletic Club meets the T. A. S. Athletic Club nine. The games played on the Oval were allowed to stand, and no question was passed upon the action of the managers in regard to the T. A. S. protest of one of the recent games. Saturday's contest is really the deciding game of the league and will determine whether or not T. A. S. has a chance for the pennant. Park St. has two wins to the good, and if they put away the Abstainers it will wind up the league. Both teams realize the crisis and may be depended upon to go the limit. If Park Street lose they still have another chance, but it is the be all and the end all for the T. A. S. The stride at which both teams have been going all summer is sufficient guarantee that the game will be a red-hot one, and it is fully expected that the followers of both aggregations will be present in large numbers. They have been showing themselves of late in writing to the papers about not seeing the games and so on, and now they will have the opportunity of witnessing their favourites in action. The brunt of the work for Park Street has fallen upon "Norm' Dusty, and he has been giving a good account of himself. He will likely be on the heap for Jack Pilling on Saturday. Nothing definite is known from either teams as to how they will line up, but it is a certainty that both teams will be the best that the two clubs boast of, and the struggle should be hard all the way.

T. A. S. DEFEATED CAMPBELLFORD AT RIVERSIDE PARK YESTERDAY

The ball game between the T. A. S. and Campbellford at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon resulted in a 9th innings victory for the Abstainers, and was an interesting, snappy exhibition. The locals won by 7 to 6. At the beginning of the ninth they led by 6 to 4, but Campbellford managed to squeeze two runs in, in their half of the ninth. The locals were equal to the task, however, and M. O'Brien scored on a single by Giroux, ending the struggle. Nothing was added to the game by the umpiring of Robinson of Campbellford, who lost his bearing about the fourth innings. Gorham, of the Straths, pitched for the winners and handed out a good article. West, the visiting pitcher, had a motion like a sewing machine, accompanied by a lazy drop, which had some of the local batters guessing.

M. O'Brien's batting was a feature. The first baseman had two triples, a double and a single, scoring the winning run in the ninth. The fielding feature was a double play following a pretty catch by Callaghan in the fifth innings:

The teams were as follows:

T. A. S.—Callaghan, s.s.; M. O'Brien, 1b.; Derocher, 2b.; Giroux, 3b.; Doherty, l.f.; W. O'Brien, c.f.; McFadden, c.; Malloy and Cahill, r.f.; Gorham, p.

HEADY BASE RUNNING WHICH WON A CLOSE BALL GAME

Followers of the Pacific Coast League are still talking about a play the like of which they never saw and never expect to see again unless the same player pulls it off.

Rollo Zeider, the San Francisco shortstop, whom Scout Jim McGuire, of the Naps, looked over while on the Coast, was the player who pulled off the play that has kept Frisco fans talking for the past week.

McGuire liked Zeider so well that he asked for a figure on him. "Eight thousand dollars," was the reply. That stumped Jim. Later he heard that Comiskey has a string on Zeider. If the kid makes very many plays that are in keeping with the following, described by the San Francisco Bulletin, he must be worth the money:

It was the play of the season. Doubful it is if any other player in the history of baseball ever performed a similar feat. The play simply demonstrated once more what a keen alert brain is stored up in Zeider's skull.

Zeider was on second and Griffin on third, and runs were needed to put the seals on easy street. The batter threw up the squeeze signal. Griffin caught it, and as soon as the ball left the hands of the pitcher he started for home. The batter missed the ball, and it was clear as day that Griffin was a dead one. Griffin saw he was in a trap. As soon as he was able he retreated to third, where Zeider was holding forth.

When within a few feet of the bag Griffin turned about and started for the plate again, all the time hoping that someone would execute a wild peg and that he would score. He hoped in vain, but low and behold, his antics scored Zeider, anyhow, but how?

When Griffin came back to third Hogan caught the ball and started after the runner. Griffin set out pell mell for the plate. It was a hot race between them. All this time Zeider was racing right behind Hogan, but Hogan didn't know this. Hogan overtook Griffin just before he reached the plate and tagged him. Hardly had the ball been put on Griffin when Zeider dashed by Hogan and scored. It was the greatest piece of base running ever seen on a San Francisco diamond. The fans went wild with glee over Zeider's brainy play.

CRICKET TEAM TO GO TO CAMPBELLFORD

The following members of the Peterborough Cricket Club are requested to be at the G. T. R. station to-morrow morning at 8.15, to go to Campbellford, where they play a team representing that town: Messrs. C. H. Hill, A. Campbell, G. Campbell, A. Elliott, H. Clarke, Green, Hughes, W. A. Bailey, Geo. Coleman and C. Poussette.

HOCKEY.

Bruce Ridpath, the welll-known hockey player and paddler of Toronto, formerly of Lakefield, has opened a sporting goods store at 385 Yonge street, Toronto. He has a complete stock of high-class goods and should establish a very satisfactory business.

BASEBALL

Fans will be pleased to learn that the difficulties in the City Baseball League have been smoothed away and that there will be a game in the series at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock. The opposing teams will be the two leaders, T. A. S. and Park Street, and the game should be brimful of excitement. A win for Park Street will give them the championship, while a defeat gives the Abstainers a chance to win out. Park Street has but the one game to play, while the T. A. S. have three, having a game with the Strathconas and West Ends, as well as with Park Street. Both teams will have their strongest lineups on Saturday, and it will be a battle royal. Both expect to win. The Southerners have been playing winning ball for weeks now and it will take a whole lot of beating. The Abstainers, realizing that it is their only chance to win out will go into the game determined to win and it should easily be the best game of the season. It is quite likely that Jack Rosevear, the well-known Port Hope umpire, will handle the game. "Jack" is the Silk O'Loughlin of the Midland District, and should give every satisfaction.

WITH THE BOWLERS AT TORONTO TOURNAMENT

Peterborough's bowlers in Toronto are giving a fair account of themselves. Skip R. Kerr's rink ran along merrily in the Ontario Cup, only to fall down in the 5th round, losing to the Granites by 17-6. In the Scotch doubles W. Talbot and B. Laster defeated Balmy Beach and Thistles by 25-15 and 18-16 respectively. In the singles B. Lastar defeated Dr. Maxwell of the Granites by 16-8.

Launch "Kicked" Twice On Rice Lake During Very Severe Storm

Rochester Party Twice Impeded on Trip to Jubilee Point—Fishing Is Good and Guests Are Enjoying It.

MANY AT THE HOTEL.

Examiner Special.

Jubilee Point, Aug. 19.—The closing two weeks of August finds Hotel Gillman with the merriest party of the summer and Jubilee Point is the same old home-like place to all the regular guests. The fishing has greatly improved during the past two weeks and the rivalry between the guests is interesting in the extreme. Every morning a small flotilla of Rye's skiffs leave the point and out on the lake the industrious fishermen ply their oars for a few hours, while their trawls merrily churn the water, yards behind attractive and aliuring, but also fatal to the fish.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Boniface, of Liverpool, England, are staying at Jubilee for a month.

Among the guests are Mr. and Mrs. D. Rummings and daughter, Marion, Miss May Copperwaite, Miss Louise Copperthwaite, Master Jack Copperthwaite, Miss Myrtle Smyth, Master Stanley Smyth.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Epping, of Rochester, N. Y., are delighted with the fishing. Mrs. Epping got three bass yesterday morning.

Messrs. K. Holts, A. Holts, of Rochester, Alderman Dan Egan, of Ward No. 2, accompanied by his wife and son, Chester, also of the Flower City, arrived on Tuesday for two weeks. Dan is the happiest man of the party and why shouldn't he be? He started out for the first time yesterday morning and within half an hour he hooked a ten-pound 'lunge and shortly afterwards got a twelve-pounder. He expected to get a fourteen-pounder next, but decided that twenty-two pounds of fish was sufficient for the first morning.

Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Armstrong, of Oshawa, arrived at the Point on Saturday evening and Mrs. Armstrong landed a 10½-pound 'lunge the first thing Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Long, Peterborough, arrived on Monday for a week. Bob celebrated his arrival by pulling out a four-pound bass on Monday.

Mr. Lou Dobbin and Cyril Haskell, of Peterborough, arrived yesterday for a week.

Caught in Storm

A Rochester party had an experience on the lake on Monday that they will not soon forget. Mr. A. E. Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hellems and sons, Oliver and Homer, and Mr. C. E. Merrill, left Charlotte on Sunday morning to cross Lake Ontario, but they had to put back until Monday. They crossed that day and motored to Gore's Landing, where they engaged a launch to carry them to Jubilee. It was an open gasoline affair and when out a few hundred yards one of the most severe electric storms that has been experienced in years broke over the lake tossing the light craft like a chip. In this critical situation "something went wrong" with the yacht and the party had to be towed back to the Landing. On Tuesday they reached Jubilee at last.

"Seemed as if we were never going to get here," Charlie Hellems remarked to Doc Armstrong, "but we're here at last b'g., and we'll show you people, Doc, how to hook a few fish."

Launch Struck Rock Coming Up The Otonabee River

Mr. R. Gordon and party were coming up the river last evening in his steam launch when it suddenly struck the rocks at Yankee Bonnet. The launch was travelling at a high rate of speed and the night being very dark it was not easy to see the rocks ahead and without the least warning the boat ran on a rock well out in the water.

Noticing their predicament some of the employees of the dredge Trent, which is stationed near the scene of the accident went out in punts and brought the ladies of the launch to shore. By means of a pike pole and the reversing of the engine wheel the boat was once more in deep water. However it was half an hour before it was on its way up the river again.

Human Life Increased BY FOURTEEN YEARS

Longer life is due to better understanding of Nature's Laws and use of such medicines as DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

During the last century the average life of man has increased by about four years. Insurance statistics prove this.

What is the reason?

People are learning to take better care of their health and to follow the laws of sanitation and hygiene.

The first law of health and the most important calls for "Daily movement of the bowels."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have helped to prolong the life of many because they have enabled them to follow this first law of health.

A torpid, sluggish condition of the liver and kidneys is certain to bring constipation of the bowels, clogging of the digestive and excretory systems, poisoning of the blood and give rise to the most dreadfully painful and fatal of diseases.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills purify the blood and cleanses the system as no other treatment can because of their unique and combined action on the filtering and excretory organs—the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mrs. E. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation of the bowels and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They not only relieved the trouble but have entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer, and have improved my health in a general way."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose: 25c a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Sheehy, of Chicago, a prominent member of the Hyland Publishing Company, a former Peterborough boy, and one yet in spirit, and also the pioneer paragrapher, and a good one too, on the Daily Examiner—in 1895—is in the city renewing old associations, and also the popularity which secures him a warm welcome at every turn. He is naturally pleased with Peterborough's progress. He thinks his native city is not to be "sneezed at"; it gives rest from the hay fever that every summer season convulses the Chicagoan with a perpetual a-choo! ! !

ENTERPRISE SHOWN ON PART OF THE C.P.R.

Considerable enterprise was shown by the C.P.R. Telegraph Company in connection with the fatality at Norwood on Tuesday. When it was learned that there would be considerable "copy" in the affair for the newspapers the chief in Toronto made his arrangements accordingly and three-quarters of the local staff, Messrs. Jamieson, McGregor and O'Shea, were sent down to Norwood on a freight train leaving here about 10:30. At Norwood both the station and town office wires were used and the "stuff" was gotten away in good shape. It was a night of hard work for both the newspapermen and the telegraph operators who got little or no sleep.

"DON'TS" ABOUT A FIRE IN THE WOODS

Don't, when in the woods, throw down a lighted match, cigar stub or other flaming object; make sure that the flame has been thoroughly extinguished before throwing it away.

Don't build your campfire larger than is necessary.

Don't under any circumstances, leave your fire unguarded, even for a comparatively short time; see that it is dead out before you go away.

Don't build your fire in leaves, rotten wood or other inflammable material.

Don't build your fire against a large or hollow log, where it is hard to be sure when it has been entirely put out.

To these "don'ts" it may be added that in windy weather or in a dangerous place, it is well to confine the fire in a hole dug clean down to the mineral soil. A fire may smoulder in the humus, or "duff" for days, only waiting for a strong breeze to fan it into a flame that may burn over miles of timber.

Summer tourists and campers unfortunately have a bad reputation among owners of timber as being often a cause of fires. Such fires could be prevented, almost without exception, by a little extra care on the part of the campers, who have been the unintentional cause of much forest destruction, and who have just as real an interest in the preservation of the forests as the owners of the timber themselves. The rules given above are the result of long experience and observation—on the part of many woodsmen and lumbermen as to the origin of fires from this cause, and are earnestly commended to the attention of campers, sportsmen and others.

SANK WITH ELEVEN MEN

Disaster to Oronoco Occurs in Fair Weather and Cannot Be Explained—Five Sailors and Dog Get Away; But Others Are Made Turned on Her Beam Ends and Sank in Few Minutes.

Halifax, Aug. 20.—Eleven men were carried down in the wreck of the three-master schooner Oronoco, which capsized twenty-five miles off Sambro, near Halifax, yesterday morning.

The names of the lost are: William Meuse, Tusket; William Vanenburg, Argyle; Stephen Delong, Tusket; Howard Whitehouse, Argyle; Willoughby Vanenburg, Argyle; William Hatfield, Argyle; Charles Shaw, Argyle; John Meuse, Eel Brook; Peter Walsh, and John Walsh, Placentia, Newfoundland.

The Oronoco was six years old, and was built at Essex, Mass. She was a fast sailer and a good sea-boat. She left Gloucester, Mass., on Aug. 3rd, and called at Argyle, N.S., where two men were shipped. On Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock the wind was southerly, blowing a fair breeze. When the 8 o'clock watch was called, and when Nathan Hubbard, James Shaw, James Vanenburg and Ernest Stanley went on deck, Captain Larkin was at the wheel. The first watch was still on deck, and had not gone below. The jibsheet was off too far, and the captain brought the vessel up into the wind, and she was hauled to windward and caught in the anchor stock. She paid off and commenced going down, turning on her beam ends. When half full of water the Oronoco went down very rapidly, and in three minutes no part of her was to be seen.

Five dories went down with her, and all the survivors, five in number, got into two dories. Both dories rowed to windward to try and pick up some of the other men who were below at the time of the disaster, but saw nobody. They picked up three pairs of oars for each dory, and seats and buckets, and everything was made ready to head for land, which they reached late last night.

They landed this morning, one at Chester Basin Bound, and the other at Little Tancook, reaching Lunenburg at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The captain is overwhelmed by the loss of the ship and so many of his crew, who went down without a chance for their lives. The accident is one of the most peculiar in the history of marine disasters.

SHELLEY FOND OF GUNS WAS GENERALLY A BAD BOY

His Innocence Seems Better Proven From Evidence Received at Inquest---Accident Theory is Now Strongly Supported---Portion of Skull Exhibited in Court Room

Simcoe, Aug. 20.—The rather unusual proceeding of exhibiting a piece of a dead man's body as evidence in an inquest was resorted to by Dr. Mask yesterday at Coroner W. A. McIntosh's enquiry into the death of Michael Hall, who was shot from behind as he was entering his home, in Charlottesville Township, Sunday afternoon.

Hall was buried last Tuesday, but Dr. Mask in his post-mortem cut out a triangular section of the skull containing the bullet hole, and produced it as exhibit "B" this afternoon. It lay on the table in front of the jury and Mrs. Hall during her one and a half hours' examination. The theory of some other party unknown was also displayed for the purpose of showing precisely the location of the fatal wound.

While conclusive evidence was adduced identifying the boy, Emery Shelley, and his 22-calibre rifle, with the Hall vicinity at the time of the fatality, and also showing the boy to be of rather wild habits, the theory that the shooting was accidental seemed to strengthen.

Crown Attorney Slaght asked for an adjournment at 6.30 p.m., because he believed that more evidence might be gathered that might put suspicion for the killing of Hall on some party other than the accused.

W. E. Kelly, K.C., was granted the privilege of cross-examining the witnesses in the interest of young Shelley and succeeded pretty well in making light of the allegations as to the desperado tendencies of the prisoner, until a letter from his mother to one of the lad's former employers was produced.

NEW PEEP-SIGHT EXPECTED TO BE PUT IN GENERAL USE

Ottawa Branch, Aug. 20.—It is only a matter of time till the B.S.A. peep sights, which experts agree is the best rifle sight ever invented, will be issued by the Government to the Canadian militia, in the opinion of Major Helmer, D.A.G.M.

Many prominent officers of the militia discussed the new sight at the semi-annual meeting of the members of the O.R.A. here yesterday on motion by W. H. Moore of the 77th Regiment, Dundas, that the association council be urged to adopt the sight, as has already been done by the Bisley committee.

Major A. [illegible] —he is a skilful optician—explained that not more than 10 per cent. of marksmen have good eyes, and that the new sight was such an aid to the eye that all competitors would be practically placed on the same footing. It had been shown at the Bisley matches.

Quartermaster Lieut. [illegible] stated that an ordinance [illegible] using the B.S.A. sight could shoot well round an expert using the sights now generally in use. Major Helmer explained that the new sights not having been [illegible] this year, that the lack of facilities for distributing them, and manufacturing. Only a few officers had the B.S.A. sight, but [illegible] something their men the great advantages would have been at Bisley.

The matter of adopting the new sight will be considered at the next meeting of the council.

The meeting was held at the mess [illegible] officers' quarters.

E. E. Osler, president, in the chair. Besides a hundred or more members the following prominent officers were present: Col. Macdonald, Lt.-Col. John Bruce, Major W. C. King, Major DeBury, Major Dillon, Major Mercer, Major Elliott, Major Helmer and Captain Miller, secretary.

The following were elected to represent the O. R. A. on the council of the D. R. A.: Major Mercer, Major King, Captain Pain, Captain A. A. Smith, Major Hutheson, Major McCrimmon and Captain A. T. Phillips. A committee consisting of Majors Helmer, Dillon and Mercer, Captains [illegible] and Pain, was appointed to choose a team to represent Ontario in the shoot at Ottawa for the London Standards' Cup in the D. R. A. meet. [illegible] among Canadian sharpshooters, Captain C. R. Crowe, of Ottawa, [illegible] ahead in the final [illegible] the City of Toronto match, [illegible] shot off yesterday afternoon, winning a gold medal and $25.

Pte. [illegible] Sylvan of the 43rd, D.O.C. R., Ottawa, made the high score in the [illegible] and Dunbass of Cornwall and Yarmouth [illegible], winning a silver medallion and $25. Sgt. Morris, of the 48th Highlanders, Orillia, a Bisley man, won second [illegible], consisting of a bronze medallion and $20, while P. M. S. Craig, of the 10th Grenadiers, Toronto, secured third prize, $15.

The wind was the [illegible] that the marksmen have had to deal with during the meet, and the scoring was low. Snap shooting as a [illegible] following a bullseye was very common, even among the crack shots.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

She turned from him in a smothered sigh and then faced him again with cold disapproval in her tone.

"Perhaps it will be as well if we avoid personal allusions," she said resentfully. This man should have no opportunity for bringing up those vulgar, half forgotten family reminiscences if she could help it. He smiled a trifle wanly.

"I don't just see how that's possible," he answered, and she waved her hand indignantly.

"Will you please sit down?" she said, and Pike made an awkward bow.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied meekly, with the faintest accent on the last word, and obediently took the chair that Horace had vacated so precipitously. She shuddered at the word he had used and glanced nervously at the hat he was holding in his hands.

"Are—are you really my guardian?" she asked at last, with a trace of heated unbelief in her tones. Pike smiled at her.

"We could have been spared this—this mortification."

"Well," he said, "I've got the papers in my grip. I expect that"—

"Oh, I know it!" she interrupted explosively. "It's only that we didn't fancy—we didn't expect"—

She paused, and he went on:

"I expect you thought I'd be considerably older."

"Not only that."

"And I guess you thought I'd neglected you a good deal." There was a touch of remorse in his tone, and he looked idly at the hat he held. "And it did look like it—never coming to see you—but I couldn't hardly manage the time to get away. You see, being trustee of your share of the estate I don't hardly have a fair show at my law practice. But when I got your letter eleven days ago I says to myself: Here, Daniel Voorhees Pike, you old shellback, you've just got to take time. John Simpson trusted you with his property, and he's done more—he's trusted you to look out for her, and now she's come to a kind of jumping off place in her life—she's thinking of getting married—so you just pack your gripsack and hike out over there and stand by her.'"

During the last half of his speech there was a tone of affectionate regard, at which she bridled resentfully.

"I quite fail to understand your point of view," she said frigidly. "Perhaps I had best make it clear to you that I am no longer thinking of getting married."

"Well, Lord 'a' mercy!" ejaculated Pike, leaning back in his chair and smiling at her, but she affected not to notice the lighter tone and went on.

"I mean I have decided upon it. The ceremony is to take place in a fortnight."

Pike brought the front feet of his chair down with a crash.

"Well, I declare!" he cried.

"We shall dispense with all delays," she went on, and Pike regarded her solemnly for a moment.

"Well, I don't know as I could say anything against that. He must be a mighty nice fellow, and you must think a heap of him." He sighed. "That's the way it should be." He looked at her. "And you're happy?"

"Distinctly!" said Ethel decisively.

Pike looked off over the blue bay, and then his gaze traveled to where Horace had been standing, and with a start he turned to her again, speaking eagerly:

"It ain't that fellow I was talking with, yonder?"

And she voiced an indignant protest.

"That was my brother!"

"Lord 'a' mercy!" ejaculated Daniel and then recovered himself. "But, then, I wouldn't remember him. He couldn't have been more than twelve when you was home last. Of course I'd 'a' known you"—

"How?" demanded Ethel. "You couldn't have seen me since I was a child."

"From your picture, though now I see it ain't so much like you," he answered, and she stepped forward, with astonishment.

"You have a photograph of me?"

"The last time I saw your father alive he gave it to me—to look at."

"And you remembered"—

"Yes, ma'am."

A look of incredulity passed over Ethel's face, and she replied:

"It does not strike me as possible. However, we will dismiss the subject."

"Well, if you'd like to introduce me to your—to your"—

"To my brother?"

"No, ma'am; to your—to the young man."

"To Mr. St. Aubyn?" cried Ethel, retreating a step. "I think it quite unnecessary."

"I'm afraid I can't see it that way. I'll have to have a couple of talks with him, sort of look him over, so to speak. I won't stay around here spoiling your fun any longer than I can help—only just for that and to get a letter I'm expecting from England."

Ethel bit her lip vexatiously.

"I do not see that you need have come at all. You could have been spared this—this mortification."

"You mean I mortify you? Why, I—I can't see how."

"In a hundred ways," she replied, "every way. That common person who is with you"—

"He isn't common. You only think so because he's with me," returned Daniel sadly, looking down.

"Who is he?" demanded Ethel sharply.

"He told me his name, but I can't remember it. I call him 'doc.'"

"It doesn't matter. What does matter is that you needn't have come. You could have written your consent."

"No, ma'am, not without seeing the young man," answered Pike resolutely.

"And you could have arranged the settlement in the same way," went on Ethel unheedingly.

"Settlement! You seem to have settled it pretty well without me," returned Pike, smiling.

"You don't understand," said Ethel impatiently. "An alliance of this sort always entails a certain settlement." She paused. "Please listen. If you were at all a man of the world I should not have to explain that in marrying into a noble house I bring my dot, my dowry"—

"Money, you mean?" asked Pike.

"Yes, if you choose to put it that way."

"You mean you want to put aside something of your own to buy a lot and start housekeeping"—

"No," she flared. "I mean a settlement upon Mr. St. Aubyn directly."

"You mean you want to give it to him?"

"If that's the only way to make you understand—yes!" she flashed.

"How much do you want to give him?" asked Pike thoughtfully.

"A hundred and fifty thousand pounds," said Ethel desperately.

Pike whistled.

"Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars!"

"Precisely that!" said Ethel.

"Well, he has made you care for him," said Daniel. "I guess he must be the prince of the world! He must be a great man. I expect you're right about me not meeting him. I probably wouldn't stack up very high alongside a man that's big enough for you to think so much of as you do him. Why, I'd have to squeeze every bit of property your pa left you."

"Is it your property?" she flared at him.

"I've worked pretty hard to take care of it for you," he answered gently, and instantly she regretted the sharp speech.

"Forgive me," she pleaded. "It was unworthy of me—unworthy of the higher and nobler things that life calls me to live up to—that I shall live up to. The money means nothing to me. I'm not thinking of that. It is a necessary formality."

Pike looked at her keenly.

"Have you talked with Mr. St. Aubyn about this settlement—this present you want to make to him?" he asked.

"Not with him."

"I thought not," he went on unmovedly. "You'll see. He wouldn't take it if I'd let you give it to him. A fine man like that wants to make his own way. Mighty few men like to have fun poked at them about living on their wives' money."

"Oh, I can't make you understand!" cried Ethel despairingly. "A settlement isn't a gift."

"Then how'd you happen to decide that just a hundred and fifty thousand pounds was what you wanted to give him?" he demanded.

"It was Mr. St. Aubyn's father who fixed the amount," replied Ethel desperately.

"His father! What's he got to do with it?"

"He is the Earl of Haweastle, the head of the ancient house."

"And he asks you for your property—asks you for it in so many words?"

"Yes, as a settlement."

"And your young man knows it?"

"I tell you, Mr. Pike, I have not discussed it with Mr. St. Aubyn."

Pike laughed.

"I reckon not," he said amusedly. "Well, sir, do you know what's the first thing Mr. St. Aubyn will do when he hears his father made such a proposition? He'll take the old man out in the back lot and give him a thrashing he won't forget to the day of his death!"

She was about to answer when from a distance came the roll of drums and then the sound of a bugle. The sounds came from afar off, as if below the cliff.

They both stopped to listen. Then the servants came running, with Mariano at their head. They rushed to the wall and leaned over, all excitement. Mariano turned to call to them over his shoulder:

"The bandit of Russia! The soldiers think he is hidden in a grotto under these cliffs!"

As he spoke Almeric ran down the steps with a shotgun in his hand and made for the steps leading down the face of the cliff. Pike turned to Ethel.

"I saw that fellow on the road here. What's he meant for?"

Ethel turned angrily from the lawyer and called sharply to her fiance:

"Almeric!"

St. Aubyn turned and stopped.

"Hello!" he said.

"I wish to present my guardian to you," and turned to Pike as Almeric approached. "This is Mr. St. Aubyn," she said steadily.

Almeric stared at Pike through his monocle and laughed.

"Why, it's the donkey man, isn't it? How very odd! You'll have to see the governor and our solicitor about that settlement, though. I've some important business here. The police are chasing a bally convict chap under the cliff yonder, so you'll have to excuse me. You know there's nothing like a little convict shooting to break the blooming monotony—what?"

He turned and rushed off down the stairway. Pike turned to look after him in mute astonishment and then turned to Ethel. She refused to meet his glance, and the hot blood rose to her face as she felt his scrutiny.

She tapped nervously with her foot, and the astonishment grew in Daniel's face. He looked from her to where Almeric had disappeared and back to her again. Then he took a step forward as if to speak and stopped. Finally the dawning horror in his face took concrete form, and he spoke.

"That!" he groaned. "Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars for that! Say, how much do they charge for a real man over here anyway?"

But she was unable to meet his eye. Turning quickly, with her cheeks flaming with shame and anger, she rushed into the hotel and left him standing speechless on the spot.

CHAPTER XI.

A CLASH OF WILLS.

It required some minutes for Daniel Voorhees Pike to get over the amazement that possessed him when Ethel fled from him in such evident confusion.

His usually alert mind seemed incapable of connected effort in the proper direction, and the dazed look on his face remained there until Mariano came to tell him that his rooms were ready and that Herr von Grollerhagen was awaiting him. Then for the first time he awoke, and, with a sigh of resignation as he realized the battle he had before him, he gave a curt order that the automobile, which had broken down on the road to the hotel, should be placed in the entrance garden, for he proposed to do some tinkering upon it.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name.

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

"If that don't beat"— he muttered to himself and then allowed the remark to remain unfinished, for he could not imagine one thing that the incident could be supposed to have beaten. It stood alone in a little hollow square by itself and positively refused to surrender to any comparison whatsoever.

"And that—that—nine cent imitation of a man," he growled at last—"that gillification upon the—the—genus homo!" he finished, with a lash of pride. Then he went off to his rooms and tried to adjust himself to the matter as he saw it and incidentally to bring some of that astute legal training gleaned from contact with farmers, promoters and other citizens to bear upon the case.

Horace in the meanwhile had walked along the cliff, wrestling with the situation as it appeared to him. There was not the faintest doubt in his mind that the noble earl would break off the match because of the humiliation his equally noble family had been subjected to by the incursion of this vulgar guardian.

Hot and tired, he returned to the hotel with some of his anguish worked off and sought his sister. She, however, was locked up in her own room and would only insist that he go away. So it was from Lady Creech at last that he gleaned some inkling of what had occurred.

It was nearly 6 o'clock when he made up his mind to search out Pike and "have it out with the beggar," as he put it, and he found the obstacle in the entrance garden. As Horace came upon the scene Pike was pounding cheerfully with a hammer upon a bolthead of the motor car.

He was in his shirt sleeves and wore a long workman's smock close buttoned at the neck. From between his teeth came the unfamiliar strains of "The Blue and the Gray." With a revulsion of feeling Horace approached him.

"Mr. Pike!" he said politely.

"One lies down at Appomattox," went on the song, and Horace stamped impatiently upon the turf.

"Mr. Pike! Mr. Pike! I wish a word with you!" Horace went on, quite angrily. Pike looked up mildly and regarded Horace with interest.

"Eh?" he said and moved to the other side of the machine, rubbing his lean chin with the handle of a monkey wrench.

"I wished to say that the surprise of this morning so upset me that I went for a long walk. I have just returned," said Horace.

He waited expectantly, but Mr. Pike went on abstractedly, "One wore clothes of gray," and seemed to be absorbed in his work, so that Horace was forced to go on.

"I have been even more upset by what I have just learned."

"Why, that's too bad," answered Pike, fishing for a nut in the bottom of the tonneau.

"It is too bad—absurdly—monstrously bad! Lady Creech tells me that my sister did you the honor to present you to the family with which we are forming an alliance—at least to a portion of it"—

"Yes, sir," answered Pike, "and promised to present me to the whole possetucky of 'em"—

"I'll not listen to you!" cried Horace in a rage. "And I warn you that we shall act without paying the slightest attention to you!"

Pike straightened up a trifle.

"Your sister kind of hinted in her letter that you think a good deal of this French lady—the widow. I suppose you have made up your mind to take her for richer or poorer, eh? Now, what's she going to give you?"

Horace stopped short in horrified amazement.

"Why, I thought you'd charge her something—just a little. Ain't that the way over here?"

"It seems impossible for you to understand our motives in trying to lift ourselves above the common herd. You are trying to interfere between us and the fine flower of Europe," went on Horace excitedly.

Pike straightened up and looked him in the eye quizzically.

"I never heard none of the folks around Kokomo speak of your pa as a 'fine flower,' but we thought a heap of him, and when he married your ma he was glad to get her. And I never 'us'd that he asked for any settlement. When she took him he was a poor man, but if he'd had $750,000 I'll bet he'd 'a' given it for her."

Horace turned short about and retired from the scene. It was evidently impossible to argue with this plebeian. As he went toward the gates he met Almeric and Lady Creech and informed them eloquently of the ill success of his attempt to reason with the lawyer. Then he went out again to the cliff.

Almeric accompanied him a few steps and then turned off to the village, for he said he simply must take another look at that pup. And Lady Creech announced that she intended to have "forty winks" in her own room. Five minutes later Daniel, looking up from a English rendition of "Dolly Gray," saw her gazing at him from her window.

Then came the three von Grollerhagen from the hotel. He was the same calm, imperturbable individual as ever, and he smoked with the languid abandon of a man born to calm. He approached Daniel with a smile.

"You make progress, my friend?" he asked, and Daniel smiled at him.

"Your machine's like a good many people, doc. It's got sand in its gear box."

At that moment Mariano hastened out and fumbled nervously with the lock on the big gates. Von Grollerhagen turned inquiringly.

"You are locking us in," he said.

"No, sheer," replied the servant; "I lock some one out—that bandit who have his base captured. The carabinieri were all to lock the gates for an hour. Soon they will capture this wicked one. M'sieu, this convict is a Russian."

With a keen glance, Von Grollerhageiff waved the man aside. Daniel smiled.

"They've got two companies of the tin soldiers. Out my way the town marshal would have had him yesterday."

"My friend, you are teaching me to respect your country, not by what you brag, but by what you do."

"How's that?" asked Pike.

"I see how a son of that great democracy can apply himself to a dirty machine while his eyes are full of visions of one of its beautiful daughters."

"Doc, there's sand in your gear box!" Then he looked up. "Now, you go down to the kitchen and make signs for some of the help to give you a bunch of nice clean rags."

For an instant the German drew himself up haughtily.

"What is it you ask me to do?"

"Get me some more rags," said Daniel quietly, and Von Grollerhagen bowed low.

"I'd go myself, but it wouldn't be safe to leave the machine."

"You fear this famous bandit would steal it?" laughed the German.

"No; there's parties around here might think it was a settlement."

"My friend," Von Grollerhagen said gravely, "I do not understand."

"That's where we are in the same fix, doc," said Pike, with a chuckle, and bent over the machine again, while Von Grollerhagen departed on his mission.

While Pike worked he thought, and the thoughts finally arrived at the point where he saw that all he had to do to save the girl he had come so far to see was to sit tight on his refusal. He had accurately gauged the noble earl and his interesting son and sister-in-law, and he knew that it was a thousand to one that they would not agree to a marriage if there was no money in sight.

"They'll make more'n one bid for old Simpson's money," he assured himself and then looked up quickly, for the leaves on the pergola were rustling in a way that no wind should have caused.

As he looked the figure of a man appeared over the top of the vines and a pale face looked into his with imploring eyes. Pike looked at him calmly and knew at once that this was the man the carabinieri were pursuing.

"Est ce que vous etes un homme de bon coeur? Je ne suis pas coupable!" ("Are you a kind hearted man? I am not guilty!") he began, when Pike cut him off with a shake of the head.

"There ain't any use in the world your talking to me like that," he said mournfully, and the refugee's eyes gleamed with hope.

"You are an American?" he said, making preparations to descend.

"They haven't made anything else out of me," answered Daniel, and the refugee climbed down and leaned weakly against the car.

"If you give me up I shall not be taken alive! I have no weapon, but I shall find a way to cut my throat!"

"Are you the bandit they're looking for?" asked Daniel, with interest.

"They call me that? How close are they?" asked the other, with sudden fright. Pike looked at the gates and heard a clank of sabers off on the road.

"There!" he said and stripped off his blouse. "Did they see you climb that wall?"

"I think not," murmured the man.

"Do you know anything about automobiles?" asked Daniel, holding out the coat.

"Not a thing in the world," replied the other despairingly.

"Then you're a chauffeur, all right," returned the lawyer, forcing the rough garment on the man. "Here; climb in under that machine, and don't you dare unscrew anything. Pretend you are fixing."

He pushed the refugee toward the machine and saw him wriggle beneath it, then heard Mariano's agitated voice calling in the hotel. An instant later the maitre d'hotel rushed out to the entrance gates and threw them wide open, revealing two carabinieri without, who immediately entered. Then ensued a conversation in Italian that was pure Sanskrit to Pike, who looked on with calm interest. The commander of the file addressed the lawyer in a long speech, to which Pike smiled and waved a cigar.

"Wishing you many happy returns, colonel," he said genially, and Mariano hastened forward.

"It is the robber of Russia. They think he climb the wall, the assassin. The others, they surround all yonder. Those two, they search here. They ask you please, signore, have you seen him climb the wall."

"No," replied Daniel shortly, turning away.

"They ask, then, has any one crossed the lawn?" went on the servant.

"No," replied Daniel, and as he spoke one of the men pointed his gun beneath the car at the figure in the long blouse.

"He ask who that is, signore," said Mariano excitedly, also pointing.

"The new chauffeur for the machine from Paris," answered Pike casually, and, with a bow, the two went off, one to the right and the other to the left. As they disappeared Von Grollerhagen came walking across the grass with some white rags in his hands and an amused smile upon his face.

"Is there a new eruption of Vesuvius?" he asked, waving the cloths.

Daniel met him and took the rags.

"No," he said dryly. "It's an eruption of colonels trying to arrest a high school professor. I've got him under your car there, yonder."

"You are an American?"

The start the German gave would have been ludicrous in any other situation.

"My friend," he said, "do you realize the penalty for protecting a criminal from arrest?"

"I told them he was your chauffeur. We'll be proud of the risk, doc." He turned to the refugee under the machine. "This man owns the car," he went on. "You can trust him the same as your own father." And the German shrugged his shoulders in protest. There was a clatter of arms, and Pike looked up.

"Look out!" he said. "The governor's staff is coming back." And as the carabinieri returned he said casually to Von Grollerhagen:

"You'll have to get a new front tire, doc. That one is pretty near gone. Better have Jim here put on the spare one when he gets through."

The German looked at him.

"Do you know what you are asking me to do?"

"To have a new front tire put on," answered the lawyer. The police were looking on with interest, and finally Mariano approached.

"The carabinieri, with all excuses, beg that you will order the chauffeur to step forth from the machine."

Pike made an exclamation.

"No, sir! I worked on that machine myself for three hours. He's got his hands full of nuts and bolts and screws half fastened. We want to get the job finished. Tell them to go on up Main street with their Knights of Pythias parade and come around some day when we're not busy."

Mariano held a hurried consultation with the carabinieri and turned back.

"Because the chauffeur have been engage today the carabinieri ask ten thousand pardons, but inquire how long he have been known to his employer."

"How long! Why, he was raised on doc's father's farm!"

"If that is so"— began Mariano.

"So? Of course it's so. Tell 'em, doc!"

The German looked at Mariano gravely.

"You have heard my friend say it."

"I have your permission, Herr von Grollerhagen, to reveal your incognito to the carabinieri?"

"Is it necessary?"

"Otherwise they will not depart."

"Very well; tell them. But I rely upon them to preserve my incognito from all others."

Mariano smiled.

"Monseigneur, they depart," and turned to the uniformed men. An instant later these swung through the gate and went their way. Pike looked after them in astonishment.

"He must have mesmerized the militia, eh, doc?" and signed to the refugee to come out from the car. He was a pathetic figure as he emerged and held out his hands.

"To you both I give thanks"— But Von Grollerhagen cut in:

"My American friend has placed himself—and myself—in danger of the penal code of Italy for protecting you. Explain now, with his usual candor, to let us know for what we have incriminated ourselves."

CHAPTER XII

THE NIHILIST.

With a hasty glance about the garden to make sure he was not observed, the refugee approached Von Grollerhagen and Daniel and spread out his hands. As he stepped forward there was a movement of the window curtains in the casement above the door way to the hotel, and he turned; but whatever had caused it, the movement had ceased and there was nothing apparent.

"The Italian journals call me a brigand," said the Russian, "and is this they are inspired by the Russian legation at Rome. I am known as Ivanoff Ivanovitch, and I have spent nine years in Siberia, nine years of hell. It is ten years ago since I was condemned in St. Petersburg, and you, who know nothing of the horrors of Russian prisons, cannot understand what I have suffered, my friends. I was a professor of languages, a translator in the bureau of the minister of finance, and I was trusted."

For a moment he paused and pressed his scarred hands to his lined forehead, then sighed and went on:

"I was also a member of the Blue Fifty, a Constitutionalist, and as such was able to do a little for the cause, the cause, the same, my friend"—he turned to Pike—"for which your forbears suffered and fought—the cause of liberty. I could do but little, though I tried. At last I transferred the funds of the government to the Society of the Blue Fifty. It was a small thing. It was for the cause—not one ruble for myself. I swear it!"

Von Grollerhagen started back, with a gesture of repulsion, and Ivanovitch held out his hands.

"Not one ruble for myself!" he repeated. "It was for Russia's sake, not mine!"

He paused and went on wearily:

"But I committed the great Russian crime. I was caught, and through treachery. There was an Englishman who lived in Petersburg. He had contracts with the government. I thought he was my friend—my best friend. I had married in my student days in Paris. Ah, it is the old story!" he cried bitterly. "I knew the Englishman admired my wife, but I trusted her, and I trusted him, and he made my house his home. So many have done that thing. I had 50,000 rubles in my desk—the funds I had transferred—to be delivered to my society. One day the police came to search, and they found only me—not my wife, not my English friend, not the 50,000 rubles. I went to Siberia. Now I search for those two."

He leaned against the automobile and pressed his hands over his face, while Pike and Von Grollerhagen glanced at each other sorrowfully. Finally the latter asked:

"It was they who sent the police?" And Ivanovitch replied vigorously:

"After they had taken the money and were beyond the frontier themselves. That is all I have against them."

For a moment the hunted look left his eyes, and into them came the ravenous gleam of the hunting, starving wolf. His fingers clasped and unclasped themselves spasmodically, and there was a set look about his jaws that spoke ill for the guilty pair should they ever meet this man with the manacles off his hands.

The lawyer shuddered slightly as he gazed at him, and he laughed a short, hard laugh.

"Looks to me as if that would be about enough to have against them," he said. Von Grollerhagen stood combing his wiry beard with strong fingers and evidently studying the case. At last he spoke.

"Then by your own confession you are an embezzler and a revolutionist," he said, and at Ivanovitch's start of abject misery and contrition Pike stepped forward and laid his hand on the German's arm.

"Not one ruble for myself. I swear it!"

"The man's down," he said gently. "You wouldn't go back on him now?" He waited an instant and then chuckled grimly in a thin, humorous way. "Besides, you've made yourself one of his confederates, doc," he finished.

SECRET OF THAT PRETTY NECKWEAR—By Ella Stan

All of these designs are for white morning dresses, trimmed with colored embroidery. They are all one-piece dresses, and cut Dutch neck, but can be worn with guimpes. The backs of the gowns are shown on the figures in the background.

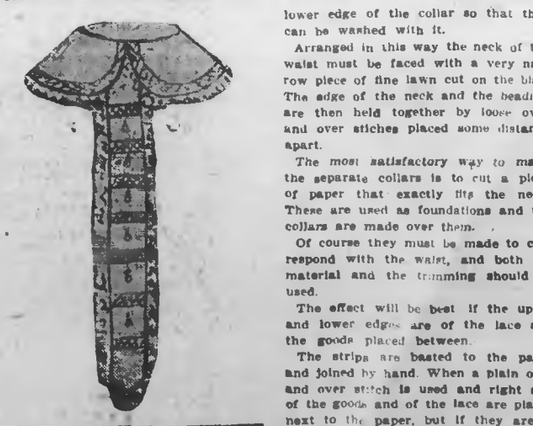
IT would be difficult at present to say just what is the most fashionable neckwear, because well dressed women are wearing literally anything so long as it is fresh and neat. However, that of the lingerie type is given preference as it is cool and comfortable and will stand frequent tubbings, each time coming from the laundry looking equal to new.

The idea of arranging several separate collars for the lingerie blouse, and the new fashionable guimpe is practical and most convenient, because the neck finish is bound to become soiled before the rest of the waist.

The collar and waist are made at the same time, and the neck of the waist bound with a narrow band of bias lawn.



Collar and front piece for gingham shirtwaist dress. It is trimmed with insertion and edging.

After the collar is completely finished, the lower edge is basted to the lawn binding so that it has the appearance of being in one with the waist.

The basting can easily be removed and a fresh collar adjusted.

The popular use of beadings, and strips of net and lace insertion, as a means of joining two parts of a garment, offers an opportunity for joining these separate collars.

These strips should be sewed to the lower edge of the collar so that they can be washed with it.

Pretty dutch collar, fitted bias fold around the neck and down the side of the waist.

Arranged in this way the neck of the waist must be faced with a very narrow piece of fine lawn cut on the bias. The edge of the neck and the beading are then held together by loose over and over stiches placed some distance apart.

The most satisfactory way to make the separate collars is to cut a piece of paper that exactly fits the neck. These are used as foundations and the collars are made over them.

Of course they must be made to correspond with the waist, and both the material and the trimming should be used.

The effect will be best if the upper and lower edges are of the lace and the goods placed between.

The strips are basted to the paper and joined by hand. When a plain over and over stitch is used and right side of the goods and of the lace are placed next to the paper, but if they are to be joined by a fancy fagotting stitch the wrong side is basted next to the paper.

The latter stitch is made with mercerized embroidery cotton, and the heavier the thread used the more effective will be the work.

A pretty morning dress fastens in back or on left side.

Adjustable cuffs are often made to match the collars, and when the fagotting stitch is used as a finish it gives one opportunity to introduce the fashionable touch of color, which should correspond with the frock or skirt with which the guimpe or waist is to be worn.

Entirely new and very pretty is the fad of wearing at the base of these high collars a narrow lingerie cravat, which is made by folding a piece of white lawn, the ends of which are pointed; scalloped, embroidered or lace trimmed, to correspond with the waist.

Dutch neck of thin linen embroidered with eyelets.

The idea of arranging these cravats and bows at the top of the collar, gives to the waist a piquant aid that is altogether charming.

The cravats meant for such an adjustment have a tiny plaited frill running around the upper edge and softening the line next to the throat.

This mode of wearing them is becoming only to women with long, slender necks.

To make these ties one should procure the finest lawn available and all the work on the ties should be done by hand.

Colored embroideries enter into much of the new lingerie neckwear, as do they in many of the waists, and while they complicate the laundering the effect is charming.

The broad laydown or Dutch collar has the edge scalloped with a color, and has inserts of handwork of a matching shade.

To make these dainty things take a piece of lawn or fine linen and mark on it the shape of the collar, which may be done by using as a guide a stiff linen collar.

The scallop at the edge can then be marked the size desired with a silver coin, first drawing the two corners and then the center back scallop.

By marking them in this manner the scallops between may be varied in size if it is found necessary to do so in order to arrange them satisfactorily.

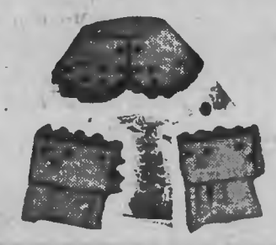
After they are worked, a circle of a suitable size can be placed in each scallop, or several large circles arranged over the collar and the material cut from within.

The edges are then buttonholed to match in color the scallops, and the opening is filled in with lace work made with the colored thread.

The simplest form of this work is done with a series of buttonhole stitches placed at equal distances apart, say one-eighth of an inch, and right over the first buttonholing, and the thread between the stitches left rather slack.

After a complete round has been made, an over and over stitch is taken to fasten the thread.

Without breaking it off, lift each thread between the stitches with the needle and draw the cotton through. Pull this thread sufficiently tight to cause the threads of the buttonhole stitches to extend and partly fill the opening.



Collar and cuffs for shirtwaist in eyelets or solid embroidery with real lace.

Fasten the thread so it will not slip and proceed to make another series of buttonhole stitches, catching the thread through the tiny triangular openings made by drawing up the first set of stitches.

Proceed in the same manner until the opening is entirely filled, then fasten off the thread.

Square openings can be effectively filled in by working a web. The edges are first buttonholed and then threads placed from the opposite corners and opposite sides so as to have eight in all crossing at the center.

To work the web commence at the center and run the needle alternately under and over each thread, and make row after row of the work until the opening is about two-thirds filled.

Dainty Dutch neck with bias fold and stitched with contrasting colors. Tie drawn through button holes.

Perfectly lovely collars of the Dutch style are made from lawn and Irish crochet, by joining alternate strips of the material and lace, and using an edging of the lace as a finish.

A fine linen collar had a strip of very narrow baby Irish inserted just inside the hem, which was finished with a narrow edging in a matching pattern, put on slightly full.

White linen flaps buttoned over black tie.

For the Unlined Collar.

The sewing of boning in lingerie waists that must be laundered is such a nuisance that most women will welcome a little devise that is now being widely used.

Cut strips of fine linen tape, or grosgrain ribbon, about a quarter of an inch wide. Turn down each end a quarter of an inch, and whip it closely on the edges, to form two pockets on each strip, one at the top and the other at the bottom.

Sew the strips into the collar at each side of front, at the sides and back, leaving the pocket away from the collar. Cut pieces of whalebone the proper length to spring into these pockets, and your collar is firmly supported.

Jabot of white linen and net embroidered in a delicate color.

A stiffened collar lining, which can be worn under a number of transparent frocks, is the boned foundation of chiffon, with a ruching attached to the top. The bottoms and top are bound with soft tape. To get the best results the bottom tape is lightly basted to the base of collar, with which it is to be worn.

WILL COUNTY FOOTBALL GAMES BE PLAYED AT PETERBOROUGH FAIR?

An opportunity is at hand for the exponents of association football or "soccer" to show their interest in the game and to have the pleasure of competing for a splendid trophy. At the Peterborough Industrial exhibition there is the prospect of a football tournament for the championship of the County of Peterborough with the R. R. Hall cup as the emblem of that honour. This competition is open to teams composed of players resident in this county and it matters not whether they are Midland Leaguers or not, they are all welcome.

The last competition for the R. R. Hall trophy was in 1907, when it was won by the Peterborough Quakers, who at that time annexed all the silverware that came into view. In 1908 there was no contest and as the present holders are not in the football business they will not be contenders this year. In order to lift this cup there must be two entries, and there must be a competition with a deciding score. It cannot be won by default, but the team which wins it by actual contest two years in succession gains permanent possession.

Here now is a good chance for some of the faithful ones to get up a team and make a bid for something really worth while. Of course this has nothing to do with the Midland League and hence signed players and residence rules are not under consideration, and the only requisite is that the players composing the teams are residents of this county.

Entries for this competition must be forwarded to Mr. F. J. Hall, Secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, on or before September 14, and those entering should state whether they wish to play on September 17th or 18th. It has been learned from the best of authority that twelve passes to the exhibition on the afternoon of the contest will be given to each team taking part. Thus it will be seen that the management is willing to do its share and the football artists should be there with the goods. There are at least a dozen good soccer teams in this county, and if they have any desire to get fame and silverware in the form of the County Championship and the R. R. Hall trophy, the opportunity is coming their way now.

The time is September 17th or 18th.

The place is the Peterborough Exhibition grounds.

The game is Football.

Every footballer is expected to do his duty.

Report Of Proceedings Of Warsaw Women's Institute

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Aug. 18.—The members of the Women's Institute had the pleasure and privilege of meeting at the home of Mrs. Nathan Payne on Aug. 12th, 1909. The president was in the chair. There were 18 ladies present. The meeting was opened by singing the Doxology and repeating the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and found correct, as were also the minutes of the annual meeting and treasurer's report. A paper from Mr. Putnam was read and discussed and some reading matter distributed. The moving of the library to a more convenient place was talked over until finally Mrs. David Taylor moved that the library be moved to Mr. Robt. Mathew's shop, if he were agreeable, that a reasonable sum be paid him for his trouble, and that Mrs. Mathews be appointed librarian for the time being. This motion was seconded by Mrs. Wm. Middleton, (carried) and the president suggested that we get some more books, the members having the privilege of choosing any they wished.

Miss Mae Davis, our delegate, gave her report of the Quinquennial Congress of Women, held in Toronto, which was splendid; also answered any questions that were asked in connection with the congress.

Our president then gave a short address on the industries of certain classes of people and how much Lady Aberdeen had done in making their profession conduce to the happiness and prosperity of some of them, especially the lace makers of Ireland, and the negroes and indians of America.

Mr. Thompson and his son, Elgin, were now introduced, the latter kindly contributing to the programme by reciting "The Cottar's Saturday night," Miss Dora Payne sang a lovely song, after which Mr. Thompson, sr., recited a poem composed on "The Seasons," which was very good. Mrs. Munroe sang a beautiful song, entitled 'Daisies Never Tell.' Mr. Elgin Thompson concluded the programme by giving us a short programme, by giving us a short sermon on "Make hay while the sun shines," which was very amusing.

After singing God save the King, a dainty luncheon was served, which showed the hospitality of our hostess and was apparently much enjoyed by the members. An executive meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, Aug. 17th at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Marvin, to decide about printing programmes. The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Hamblin, on Sept. 9th, 1909.

Municipalities Have Chance To Establish Forest Reserves

Municipal forests are becoming a live subject in Ontario, as it is hoped they will be before long in other parts of the Dominion. An evidence of the interest aroused in the subject was given lately at a meeting of representative men of Northumberland and Durham, held lately at Cobourg, at the call of the council of the united counties.

In these two counties there are about 15,000 acres of sandy land, this area extending from Burketon station on the C. P. R. to Rice Lake, and forming an area about thirty miles in length, and from half a mile to four miles in width. Originally a fine growth of pines covered this land. After this was cut off farming operations were carried on for some years with fair success, but of late the soil has steadily been growing poorer and very few farmers are now left. Buildings and fences have been left to go to ruin, areas of "blow sand have formed, and in some cases the good land is being covered up by the sand. Moreover, this land forms the watershed between the waters flowing into Lake Ontario and those feeding the Trent River. The clearing of this land has brought about the result usual in such cases, for the streams are torrents in spring-time, while in late summer and autumn their beds are almost dried up.

That this land can grow fine timber is proved by the great stumps and the young timber which can be seen everywhere on it.

These 15,000 acres can, it is thought, be bought at an average price of five dollars per acre. Ten dollars per acre is a liberal estimate of the cost of growing the young trees required, and planting them, and the total of all expenses at the end of sixty years, is estimated to be about a hundred and sixty-five dollars ($165.) This estimate includes the purchase of the land, cost of plants and planting, management and protection and taxation (at the rate of 17 mills on the dollar). Studies of the growth of pine in similar regions warrant the estimate that at the end of sixty years there will be growing on the average acre of forest two hundred trees of eighteen inches in diameter. At present prices the timber would be worth six hundred dollars ($600). In other words, after an allowance of three and a half per cent. per year has been made on the capital invested, a sum equivalent to a yearly revenue of about two and a quarter dollars, almost half the original cost of the land, is realized.

A plantation made in Durham county, about four years ago, on such land, as that just spoken of, is now making good growth.

Among the speakers at the meeting were Dr. B. E. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry of the University of Toronto, and Messrs. D. J. Zavitz, Forester to the Ontario Department of Agriculture; and Thos. S. Southworth, and Jas. Lawler, President and Secretary, respectively, of the Canadian Forestry Association. Dr. Fernow gave figures in regard to similar planting in Europe, which were listened to with great interest. The meeting passed resolutions advocating the reforestration of the lands in question, the co-operation of the provincial government to be secured, if possible. The question will be further discussed in a series of meetings during the coming autumn, and in December definite action is expected to be taken at a final meeting.

The province of Ontario has other similar areas which can be put to the same use. The city of Prince Albert, Sask., for instance, has a splendid opportunity for creating a municipal forest reserve out of some of the sandy jack pine lands just across the Saskatchewan, and opposite the city.

In the United States, too, action is being taken along this line, the State Legislature of Pennsylvania having at its last session passed an act authorizing municipalities to purchase land for the purpose of creating municipal forest reserves.

GREAT LOSS FROM SOW THISTLE

From Farm and Dairy.

Ed. Farm and Dairy,—It was with satisfaction that I noticed your strong editorial against perennial sow thistle in Farm and Dairy Aug. 5. If any action that you can take will stamp out this weed, the very worst of weed pests, you will accomplish more good than 90 per cent. of the gentlemen who occupy seats as our representatives in our Legislative Halls. If your agitation will succeed in making two blades of grass or grain grow where one sow thistle now occupies the soil, you will be a public benefactor of the highest order.

How is the good work to be accomplished? Men who grow the most sow thistle will never see your editorial. They don't as a rule attend Institute meetings or read agricultural papers. Some action should be taken to arrest their attention, to prevent them from conducting their farm operations at a loss to themselves and the community in which they reside. No man should be allowed to sow a field of any of the common grain crops that is badly infested with sow thistle. Such seeding will not only be detrimental to his best interests but a curse and a menace to many on land adjoining them. The law orders that all stock affected with certain diseases be destroyed. There is more loss every year from the sow thistle than from all the losses resulting from glanders, hog cholera and foot and mouth disease, and yet no Legislative action is taken to prevent the spread of the sow thistle.

Our Legislature should make it compulsory on all municipal councils to appoint an officer whose duty it should be wherever the sow thistle flourishes to take heroic measures to see that they are not allowed to go to seed to pollute the free air of heaven and to infest their neighbors' farms.

Sow thistle can be eradicated from our soil, but it will require eternal vigilance and thorough and systematic work. Drainage on all low, wet or springy land is one of the first essentials to the eradication of sow thistle. They flourish in low springy soil. Land infested with sow thistles should be sown to buckwheat, hoe crop or rape and thoroughly cultivated. Slip shod cultivation will only aggravate the evil. Land badly infested with sow thistles should be either pastured or mown, plowed about the middle of July, given thorough surface cultivation all season, or be summer fallowed or thoroughly hoed or worked once a week with twinplow or broadsheared cultivator until July 1st, then sowed to rape in drills, cultivated and gone over with the hoes once or twice until rape takes full possession. This practice will finish nearly all sow thistles. A very few may make their appearance the next year. These can be pulled. A field badly infested two years ago was sown to rape and cultivated as described. This year after a careful scrutiny only five plants could be found.

Tenant farmers are not the only sinners. Some of the worst infested farms are owned by men who were born where they reside and whose ancestors cleared the land. I hope that Farm and Dairy will keep up the good work that it has commenced, and that some action will be taken to suppress and stamp out the bold, brazen, usurpation of our soil by the perennial sow thistle.—T. ### An 8-Year-Old Traveler.

New York, Aug. 20.—Although he is only 8 years old, Master E. Maxim Joubert, grandson of Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the Maxim gun, left here Wednesday on the Lusitania of the Cunard Line, to visit his grandfather in Dulwich, England. His parents went to the boat with him, saw that his baggage was put in Cabin B 71, and asked the stewardess who had charge of that room to keep an eye on the lad. As the vessel backed out into the stream the boy stood at the rail waving adieu to his parents.

"He can take pretty good care of himself," said his father on the pier, "and we won't worry about him."

Foreign Coasters Not Barred.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—A paragraph is going the rounds of the Old Country papers to the effect that all foreign vessels have been prohibited from engaging in the Canadian coasting trade and that the effect had been to withdraw the Norwegian vessels from the coal trade of the St. Lawrence. While it is true that an order-in-council has been passed rescinding the privilege enjoyed by foreign vessels in the coasting trade of Canada, it does not apply to the St. Lawrence, there being a special exception for that trade.

Boys Headed For Canada.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 20.—With $6.90, two big revolvers, two boxes of cartridges, a good-sized knife, and with a $1.50 automobile, two boys are detained at Canandaigua. They say that their names are Harry Whitlock and Earl Lupton, 16 years old, of Dryden, N.Y., and that they ran away from Dryden Wednesday in the auto of their grandfather, Frank Bliss, to go on a Canadian hunting trip.

Ten Injured in Street.

New York, Aug. 20.—Ten persons were injured, one of them perhaps fatally, yesterday, when a wooden covering over the sidewalk of Sands street, Brooklyn, collapsed as they were passing under it. The structure was under the Brooklyn approach to the new Manhattan Bridge over the East River, and was erected to protect pedestrians from falling iron.

A Precious Relic.

New York, Aug. 20.—The lock that for six hundred years has guarded the sepulchre of Jesus Christ, has been brought here by James Creelman, the journalist.

250-Foot Tower Collapsed.

Berlin, Aug. 20.—A 250-foot tower on the building of the English Gas Co. located in the suburb of Schoneberg collapsed yesterday and fell across the tracks of the Circular Railway, crushing an unoccupied car of a passing train. Five passengers in other cars were injured.

Thrown From Buggy, May Die.

St. Catharines, Aug. 20.—Mrs. William Secord and child and Miss Ada Scanlan of Chicago were thrown out of a buggy while out driving, the horse becoming frightened by the passing of a G. T. R. train.

Miss Scanlon may die from concussion of the brain.

CANADIANS ELECTED.

Two Chosen as Officers in Convention of Prison Experts.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20.—The Congress of American Prisons elected officers, including:

President, Amos W. Butler, Indianapolis, and Vice-President Lieut.-Col. A. G. Irwin, Stony Mountain, Man.

The National Prison Physicians Association elected officers as follows: President, Theodore Cook, jr., Baltimore; Vice-Presidents, John Gerin, Auburn, N.Y.; Walter M. Thayer, Clinton, N.Y.; Secretary, Daniel Phelan, Kingston, Ont.

The Indiana plan of operating upon imbeciles and confirmed criminals was heartily indorsed by Dr. Daniel Phelan of Kingston, Ont., in his annual address as President of the Prison Physicians Association before the American Prison Association here today. Dr. Phelan said:

"Not only do I suggest the adoption of energetic means to lessen the number of the already existing criminals and degenerates, but also the removal as much as possible of the more remote sources of the evil. Immoral literature, places, exhibitions and pictures inevitably have an evil effect upon the young mind, and especially upon naturally weak ones."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Rev. John Cook died at Woodstock yesterday.

Henry C. Hoar, a leading farmer of West Durham, is dead.

Toronto Exhibition directors have arranged to have a "Montreal Day" during the Fair.

A resolution was passed by the Maritime Board of Trade in favor of a union of the three eastern Provinces.

Greece has sent a note to Turkey saying that she will abide by the decision of the protecting powers in the Cretan affair.

A accident occurred to a western harvester excursion train at the Horseshoe Curve, Caledon. One car left the rails, but no one was hurt.

Harry Shirley of London, G. T. R. brakeman, was run over while making an air coupling in the local yards last night and had both legs badly crushed.

A man giving the name of Robert M. Burke, but who is said to be the Earl of Armagh, traveling incog, was arrested yesterday at Galveston, Tex., as a suspicious person, and was fined for disorderly conduct.

No Whirlpool Cemetery.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 20.—There will be no lonely cemetery under the tall dark pines beside the Whirlpool. Coroner F. W. E. Wilson, whose jurisdiction extends over the territory round the Whirlpool does not approve of the proposition of the Queen Victoria Park Commissioners to inter all bodies recovered from the Whirlpool, which are not identified and claimed by relatives in a necropolis beside the pool.

The coroner thinks that a board which has so much money to expend on the up-keep of the park should be able to spare the forty dollars necessary to give Christian burial to each unfortunate victim of Niagara.

Grain Traffic Decreases.

Kingston, Aug. 20.—The grain elevators here this year experienced the smallest grain delivery since 1884, the smallest on record.

In 1908, there was the greatest amount of grain ever shipped to Kingston, about 15,000,000 bushels, being reported to the local Government Canal Agent. In 1907, over 13,000,000 bushels were received here.

This year only about one-quarter of last year's figures has so far been received. There will be cargoes throughout the fall, but it is doubtful if more than one-third of last year's elevator business will be done.

Militia in Ontario.

Port Arthur, Aug. 20.—A new company will be formed in connection with the 96th Regiment here, making a complete regiment in this city. The Fort William companies will withdraw and form a new regiment to be known as the 103rd Fusiliers.

This makes three regiments in place of one in the past four years, the other being Kenora and Rainy River.

The 96th Regiment received much praise in a letter from Col. Steele for action during the strike trouble at Fort William.

Two Auto Racers Killed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20.—William A. Bourque of Springfield, Mass., and Harry Holcomb, of Grandville, Mass., were killed yesterday when their Knox racing machine crashed into the fence on the homestretch of the Indianapolis motor speedway.

Bourque, the driver of the car, died as he was being lifted into the ambulance, while Holcombe, his mechanician, died a few minutes after he arrived at the emergency hospital.

Hog Cholera Near Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—An outbreak of a disease thought to be hog cholera has broken out among hogs in the vicinity of Ottawa, and as a result the Dominion Government has taken the case in hand and destroyed 44 of the animals. Disease is due to the fact that the hogs were fed on city garbage, and accordingly all premises which use this feed have been quarantined.

WRONG, SAYS THE POPE.

His Holiness Regrets Dr. Eliot's Pronouncement.

New York, Aug. 20.—A Rome despatch to The Times says that the address delivered by Charles W. Eliot, president Emeritus of Harvard, on July 2, at the Harvard summer school of theology, on "The Religion of the Future," has been translated by the Pope's order into Italian that he may more thoroughly comprehend it.

The translation was read with great care by his holiness, who expressed profound regret that a man of such authority and culture as Dr. Eliot should spread theories which, he said, were not, in fact, a basis for the new religion of the future, but a negation of faith and of the principles which were the foundation of Christianity and of modern civilization.

Dr. Eliot outlined his idea of the new religion in substance, in part as follows:

"The new religion will not be based upon authority, either spiritual or temporal; the present generation is ready to be led, but not driven. As a rule the older Christian churches have relied on authority. But there is now a tendency toward liberty and progress, and among educated men this feeling is irresistible. In the new religion there will be no personification of natural objects; there will be no defication of remarkable human beings, and the faith will not be racial or tribal."

Mob After Editor.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 19.—Bruce McDougall, publisher of a paper called "Free Speech," in Moncton, was arrested there yesterday on a charge of criminal libel, laid by Patrolman Lucas, of the St. John police force, and was brought to this city last night.

"Free Speech" has been publishing disgusting matter about young ladies of high repute, prominent citizens, aldermen and members of Government and Attorney-General's Department decided that something must be done. Action yesterday comes in consequence.

When Detective Killen arrived last night with McDougall, he was met by a large crowd of enraged citizens, and the police, fearing the man might come in for rough handling, sent a squad of extra men to help the regular force at the depot. McDougall was hurried into a cab and taken to a cell.

Lad Pulled Into River.

Windsor, Aug. 20.—Harold Gibbons, the eight-year-old son of John Gibbons, was pulled into the river by a carp, or some other powerful fish, while fishing from the dock at the foot of Feld avenue.

He went down in about 14 feet of water and being unable to swim, was drowned before his brother's eyes.

The body was recovered.

The brothers left home early in the morning, intending to spend the day fishing. They caught a number of small fish and were exulting in their luck, when Harold, in a spirit of childish glee, shouted, "Oh, Jack, I've got a big one." Harold tugged hard on the line, but there was more power at the other end, and he went headforemost into the water.

Not Murdered in Cemetery.

New York, Aug. 20.—With valuable information about the strength and operations of the Black Hand in Italy, Detectives Tony Vacheys and John R. Crowley, of the New York Police Department, who went abroad after the assassination of Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, in Palmero, in March, to continue an investigation the latter had begun, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Regina de Italia.

The detectives made a long report to Commissioner Baker, who said that it might lead to the detection of the assassins of Lieut. Petrosino, and that as a result of their visit may be working agreement with Italy which will be of great benefit in connection with Italian criminals who may in future sail for this country.

Dragged From Train Steps.

St. Thomas, Aug. 20.—Austin Taylor, aged 21, of Inwood, died in the hospital yesterday morning as a result of injuries received by being dragged from an excursion train near Courtwright last night. He was on his way home from Detroit and was seated on the steps of the rear coach swinging his legs. His foot caught in the cattle-guard fence and he was thrown violently to the ground. He was missed at Brigdon, and on backing up the train he was found unconscious beside the track. Taylor was a clerk in a store at Inwood.

Fraternal Congress Officers.

Boston, Aug. 20.—Detroit was selected yesterday as the next year's meeting place of the National Fraternal Congress.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Thomas H. Cannon of Chicago; vice-president, John J. Hynes, of Buffalo; secretary and treasurer, C. A. Gower, Lansing, Mich.

The medical section of the congress elected Dr. W. K. Harrison of Chicago, president; George G. O'Connell of Chicago, secretary, and Dr. Elizabeth M. Hooper, treasurer.

Bye-Election Long Delayed.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—There is no truth in the report that there will be a federal bye-election in Ottawa during the month of October. Sir Wilfrid Laurier sits for one of the Ottawa seats and Quebec East, but as he cannot elect to sit for Quebec East until after the House meets, there will be no election before December or January. A member of House sitting for two seats can resign for both at any time, but cannot elect to sit for one except when the House is in session.

Picketing Suffragettes Arrested.

London, Aug. 20.—Eight suffragettes, including Mrs. Despard and Mrs. Saunderson, were arrested on Downing-street yesterday afternoon in connection with the picketing of the Premier's residence inaugurated by the suffragettes yesterday.

TWO YEARS IN CENTRAL PRISON FOR OFFICE BREAKING AND THEFT

Eli Dion, a Youth of Sixteen, Sentenced This Morning—Pleaded Guilty—Robbed Office of Collier and Cunningham on Sunday Last

ALSO FORGED A CHEQUE

Two years less one day, in the Central Prison, was the sentence meted out to Eli Dion, who pleaded guilty at the police court this morning to unlawfully breaking into the office of Collier-Cunningham Co., on Sunday afternoon last and stealing four dollars, three gold watches, one silver watch, a number of stamps and lead pencils. Dion also entered the office of the Peterborough Canoe Co. and stole a number of blank cheques, forging one and attempting to pass it, but the prosecution did not lay a charge against him for this offence.

Dion appeared before the magistrate last Monday and was remanded until to-day. When asked how he elected to be tried, after some deliberation, he replied, by the magistrate" and pleaded guilty.

When asked if he had anything to say he answered in the negative. No one was present on behalf of the prisoner, who is only 16 years of age. His home is in Penetanguishene and his parents are both living. At the age of twelve he was sent to St. John's Industrial school where he remained until a little over a year ago. On his release he apparently did not strive to lead any better life. He came to Peterborough on Saturday last after having escaped from the Midland gaol, where he had been committed awaiting his trial on a charge of forgery.

His Worship said to the prisoner: "You have apparently decided to live the life of a criminal. You started young and after four years in an Industrial school, you continue in your evil ways. The sentence of the court is that you be sentenced to two years less one day in the Central Prison."

Dion took his sentence coolly and for a youth of his years showed remarkable fortitude.

IN ILL HEALTH SHOT HIMSELF

Special to The Examiner, 2.45 p.m.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 20.—Albert E. Brown, a lumberman, who has been recently engaged in prospecting in the Cobalt district, committed suicide in a lodging house at 52 Jarvis street this morning by shooting himself in the mouth. Although living at a cheap lodging house, Brown had $190 in his purse and $200 in the bank. Ill health is said to have been the cause.

NEW BATTLESHIP SOUTH CAROLINA, AS SHE LOOKS TO-DAY

Here is the United States' new Dreadnought, the battleship South Carolina, ready for her trial tests. Equipped with the new woven wire masts, eight great 12-inch guns bristling from her sides, the Carolina presents the newest and latest thing in American warship building.

With the official tests, set for Aug. 24, will come the revelation of whether the endless plans and specifications and calculations of engineers and draftsmen are correct—whether this immense mass of steel will be able to plow through the water at 18 knots an hour.

If there is anything wrong, Wm. Cramp & Sons, of Philadelphia, the builders, stand to lose a bunch of money.

The South Carolina has a normal displacement of 16,000 tons, is 450 feet long along the water line, and her crew will be 869 men. She draws normally 24 feet of water. The ship was authorized by act of congress in 1905, and laid down in the Cramp ship yards in July of the following year.

ESCAPED FROM MIDLAND JAIL—CAME TO THIS CITY

Eli Dion, Sentenced Here This Morning, Had Been Committed For Trial On Charge of Forgery In Midland, But He Got Away.

HAS A VERY BAD RECORD

Eli Dion, the young man arrested on Monday charged with forgery and theft is wanted in Midland for forgery. Magistrate Dumble received a telephone message from Midland stating that the prisoner was wanted there. It appears that the young man was incarcerated in the Midland gaol and while awaiting trial there, successfully made his escape. He evidently came to Peterborough and repeated what he is alleged to have done in Midland. He will not be taken to that town until the case against him here is disposed of.

MET WITH ACCIDENT WHILE ON A VISIT

Mrs. Menzies of Lindsay Fell Down Stairway, Sustaining Injuries.

Mrs. R. J. Menzies met with an unfortunate accident the other day while visiting with her niece, Mrs. Robt. Hicks, at Peterborough. Sunday evening while she was making her way to the bathroom light—which at the time was turned off—her shoulder came in contact with the casing of the back stairway. Mrs. Menzies lost her balance and fell headlong down the flight.

Mrs. Hicks ran to her assistance and immediately telephoned to Dr. Frederick, who on his arrival found Mrs. Menzies in an unconscious condition and suffering from a sprained neck, badly bruised body, a seriously dislocated right thumb and a few small bones broken. Dr. Frederick stated that it would be probably six months before the thumb will be perfectly well.

Mr. Menzies went down to the train last night to meet Mrs. Menzies, whom he expected home after her vacation, and it was then that he was first made aware of the accident. Mrs. Menzies' numerous Lindsay friends will regret to hear of the serious nature of the unfortunate accident, and hope that she may speedily recover.—Lindsay Warder.

24th BATTERY WILL BE A FEATURE OF FAIR

Crack Local Corps Will Put on a Series of Movements, Including Tug-of-War and Red Cross Ride—Acrobatic Arabs Are Coming.

MANY OTHER ATTRACTIONS

September 16, 17, and 18!

Those are the dates of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and should be marked as red-letter days in your calendar. The Peterborough Industrial promises to be the biggest thing of its kind ever held in this city.

Never before were the directors so enthusiastic or so eager to jump into the work of preparation. Their enthusiasm promises much and the last couple of years have shown that its promise has been carried out.

Nothing that will add to the attractiveness of the Exhibition is being neglected. Attractions on a scale never before attempted here are being arranged for, not the least enjoyable of which will be the act put on by the 24th Field Battery, Peterborough's crack artillery corps. This will be a revelation to local people. While the battery has its headquarters here their annual drill is taken at Cobourg, and so Peterborough citizens have had no opportunity to see them perform. On the evening of the second day of the fair they will be given a series of movements, including tug-of-war on horseback, red cross ride and midnight alarm. Major Young's men should prove a big drawing card. The grounds will be brilliantly lighted for the evening performance.

The full band of the 57th Regiment will be in attendance on Friday afternoon and evening, and on Saturday, and will render choice programmes on all three occasions.

Among the grandstand attractions secured will be the seven Arab Acrobats, one of the strongest platform features ever appearing in Canada. A trained animal act and other features equally as good have been booked and the performance in front of the grandstand will be the best ever offered.

A prize list of $3,500 is being offered. Single fare rates will prevail on all steamboat lines and railways during the days of the fair, and several excursions, while arrangements have been made for a special train leaving Peterborough for Campbellford and other points at 7.30 o'clock on Saturday evening.

SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

Ernest Lowes Pleaded Guilty in Court To-day to Charge of Vagrancy—Suspected of Having Robbed Refrigerators.

ONE OF A BAD GANG

Ernest Lowes was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison by Magistrate Dumble this morning. Lowes pleaded guilty to being a vagrant. The prisoner and his father, it appears, have resided alone but the father stated this morning that he could do nothing with his son. He hasn't been working lately. He has been in the habit of staying out at nights, returning home in the morning to ransack the place during his father's absence. Lowe is also suspected of having robbed several refrigerators of provisions.

"He is one of a bad gang," said the chief.

"Well I intend to break up that bunch," remarked His Worship, whereupon he passed the above sentence.

The prisoner took the judgment of the court good naturedly and as he went down to his cell he said to a friend: "Good-bye Jack."

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. G. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

PETERBOROUGH MAN TELLS OF GREAT OPPORTUNITIES IN WEST

Loyal Legion Co-operative Investment Company Offers Chances by Which Eastern People May Remain at Home and Yet Profit by the Opportunities Offered in Canada's Wheat Fields—Mr. David B. Mullen Explains the Way in Which This Is Brought About.

To the Public:

Western Canada is offering opportunities to the world to-day such as no other section of the North American Continent can afford. Thousands are flocking there from all parts of the world to take advantage of the Golden Opportunities offered. But how about the millions who are prevented from sharing in the opportunities everywhere abounding in that section on account of circumstances that keep them at home?

Millions of acres of the very best land on the Continent—land capable of earning through its yearly yield from $20 to $75 an acre—can be bought at prices ranging from $6 to $18 per acre. This land in the course of a few years will be selling from $30 to $100 an acre. Speculators are rapidly gathering it up and those who fail to get in while it is available will be compelled to pay speculators their own price for property which can be readily gotten now at first cost.

But Listen. A way has been provided through The Loyal Legion Co-operative Investment Company, Limited, by which thousands can stay right where they are and yet share in the remarkable opportunities of this last great fertile field. If an individual has but $10 to invest—that will buy an acre of excellent land—land that will be worth four times its present value within five years from now. With small amounts from thousands, thousands of acres can be secured through that Company that will be worth to its members many times their present cost. There is no speculation in this—it is a dead certainty, and if Labour is employed by the Company to develope this land, many thousands of dollars more can be made for rthe Company in which each one will share according to his investment.

Persons having money to advance cannot do better than put it in good value-increasing-land propositions in the Canadian West. Through The Loyal Legion Co-operative Investment Company, Limited, of Edmonton, Alberta, a person can put in their money to be loaned on First-Mortgage Security out there at from Six to Seven per cent., guaranteed by the Company for any number of years desired and at the expiration of that time withdraw their principal again. Or one can enjoy the advantage of Services of an expert land Specialist, together with the best of Legal services through this Company in making his investments at a guaranteed rate of interest with the privilege of sharing in profits earned by the Company in addition thereto. Again he can invest his money in the Common Stock of the Company to be invested in what is known as Sacrifice or Snap propositions from which hundreds are now amassing enormous fortunes in only a few years' time. The actual expenses of the Company are deducted from profits after which all earnings from this department go to the Shareholders. Through an excellent Voucher-System adopted by the Company padded expense lists and irregular manipulations of the Company's funds become an impossibility. The affairs of the Company are so arranged that not one dollar of your principal can be used to defray the expenses of the Company or pay salaries of officers.

The Principle.

The principle involved in this system is co-operation—the co-operation of small sums of money for a definite purpose; namely, the buying of real estate in Edmonton (the Capital of Alberta), Calgary, and the other cities of the province, in the towns springing up along the route of the railroads now under construction by the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern, and other railways, and in other towns and the farming districts of Western Canada and thereafter to develop, lease, or otherwise dispose of such land as may prove most profitable.

Mr. David B. Mullen, a rising young man, formerly of this city, enjoys the distinction of being the Second Vice-President of this Corporation. Mr. Mullen left Peterborough about three years ago to try his fortune in that field. Within the short time that he has been away he has been successful in clearing for himself more than six thousand dollars and has now returned to help his many friends here take advantage of some of the good things that he himself has profited by out there. Mr. Mullen will be in the city for some days and for the accommodation of the many who will doubtless want to see and talk with him over Western opportunities, states that he will open an office convenient to the public.

The Loyal Legion Co-Operative Investment Company, Limited, is an Incorporated Company, with a capital stock of two million dollars, and has associated with it some of the best men of the Province of Alberta. His Honour Lieut.-Governor G. H. V. Bulyea served as the first President of The Edmonton Realty Co-Operative Corporation. Limited, one of the companies to merge into The Loyal Legion Company.

HIS HEART JUMPED TO WRONG SIDE OF BODY

Peculiar Case Reported From St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto—Organ Was Affected by Indigestion.

MAN CURED, HOWEVER

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Toronto, Aug. 20—Two months ago Frank Thomas, of 25 Hillsboro Ave., aged 25 years, was taken to St. Michael's Hospital here, very sick. It was found that he had a case of acute indigestion, which led to swellings on the left side of the body, which, in turn, affected the heart in such a way that it leapt across to his right side. His heart is still on the wrong side but he was dismissed as cured this morning.

WAS PULLED IN BY A BIG FISH

Examiner Special.

Windsor, Aug. 20.—Pulled into the water by a big German carp, which he had hooked while fishing off a dock at the foot of Field avenue, Harold Gibbon, aged eight years, was drowned before his brother's eyes yesterday. The two boys had been fishing all morning, but met with indifferent success. Suddenly Harold felt a great tug on his line and shouted to his brother that he had caught a big one. Already the rod was bent to nearly double, and both boys were holding it. Suddenly the huge fish leaped spasmodically from the water, and in falling back drew Harold with it. The boy fell into fifty feet of water, and was dead when taken out half an hour later.

"INDIAN LIST" MAN FINED

Had to Pay $13.75 in the Police Court This Morning—Was Arrested Yesterday Afternoon.

PLEADED GUILTY TO CHARGE

John Coulter was fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $13.75, at the police court this morning for having obtained liquor after having been placed on the black list. He pleaded guilty. He was arrested by P. C. Newhall yesterday afternoon, on the complaint of the wine clerk at the Crown Hotel. It appears that Coulter went in there and obtained liquor, and, at the time, the wine clerk was not aware that he was on the "Indian list." On finding it out he telephoned for the police and had Coulter arrested.

The fine was paid.

WORK RECOGNIZED

One of Mr. Louis Mendel's Portraits Will Appear in "American Photography."

L. Mendel, Esq.,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I was very much interested in your portrait of a girl with big hat which was hung at the National Convention at Rochester.

You will probably recognize the print from this description and I should be very glad if you would let me have a print for reproduction in American Photography.

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy, I remain,

Yours very truly,

BAD WALK IN BABB'S LANE IS PROMPTLY REPAIRED

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I don't know whether it was my letter in yesterday's issue of The Examiner that did it, but it is done. On passing over the wooden walk on Babb's Lane I found it repaired, as well as could be done under the circumstances. The street department deserves credit for its promptitude in repairing a really dangerous piece of pavement. If they would show the same alacrity in dealing with other street property we would vote for them with pleasure.

Yours truly,

OUR NEIGHBOURS' TARIFF

The press of the United States is bearing testimony in increasing volume to the general realization by the people of the neighbouring country that the people of Canada are no longer concerned over the hostility of the tariff framed at Washington to the products of this country. The tim is past when the United States tariff matters to Canada. The fact that the country against whose raw products the tariff of the United States has for so long a time been hostile, has not only survived that commercial unfriendliness but risen superior to it, is impressing itself on the public mind in the United States. In the new tariff which has resulted from the labours of the legislators at Washington during the past five months there is provision for retaliation against a Canadian Province which imposes restrictions on the export to the United States of wood for paper-making, which, as the situation is at present understood, could apply only to Ontario. There is also the general provision for the imposition on merchandise entering the United States of a surtax of 25 per cent. ad valorem, if the President decides that other countries are accorded by this country better tariff treatment than the United States receives; but in this connection there is also a provision under which the preference accorded by our tariff to British goods is not to be construed as giving occasion for the imposition of that supertax. But the fact is that the new United States tariff, like the old one, is so high that it is doubtful if any great difference would result, so far as this country is concerned, from the imposition of the supertax. It is practically all one to the people of Canada whether that supertax is imposed or not; they are worrying no more about it than they worried over the question of what the new United States tariff was going to be.—Exchange.

GREAT BRITAIN'S GLORY.

Dr. Jameson and Gen. Botha, sitting side by side on the steps of the throne in the House of Lords, while the colonial secretary asked for the second reading of the bill to create a South African Commonwealth, in which Briton and Boer shall have equal rights—this is the astonishing and gratifying spectacle which England is able to offer to the world. Who could have believed it possible, when the desolating war in South Africa was raging, so short a time ago. It is a vivid proof that Great Britain has not lost her acquired skill in colonial administration. So healing and constructive a piece of legislation as this Act of Union for the four South African colonies has not been seen in many a year. It is an evidence of England's real greatness, more convincing than all her battleships. The consummation of this great act of statesmanship under a Liberal ministry will rank as perhaps the proudest achievement of the present government. The Conservatives were at first cold to the project, which they pronounced premature, but in view of its triumphant conclusion, they do not stint their applause. Both Lord Curzon and the Marquis of Lansdowne offered their hearty congratulations to the government, and even Lord Milner uttered no jarring note. All this is far more of a national glory than talking till doomsday about debellare superbos.—New York Post.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

(Montreal Herald.)

A friendly observer writes in the London Daily Mail that Mr. Lloyd George "has entered the small circle of foremost statesmen upon whom defend the fate of the parties" For a public man that, of course is the highest compliment. The distinction has been won in the last few weeks, and what clinched it was a fighting speech, cheered to the echo by a London audience, in which he gave his ducal opponents the soundest drubbing they have ever received at the hands of a public man in high office. He showed just what part the landowning peers play in the life of the country, and it took just about three days for the friends of the peers in the newspaper press to give up the argument and plead for something else to talk about.

NOT JEALOUS OF THE WEST.

(Toronto Star.)

In July and early August of each year, despatches appear in the Toronto, Montreal, and other Eastern papers as to the condition of the wheat crop in the great West, and, sometimes, messages come, telling of heavy frosts or of hailstorms that have done great damage.

We must confess, however, to reading with some surprise an editorial in the Edmonton Bulletin, explaining that editors in Ontario make a large display of a reported hail-storm in the West, in order to discourage people from moving to the prairie country. Editors in Ontario are represented as desiring to hold local population against the lure of the vast grain country beyond Winnipeg.

What warrant is there for such a statement? About one man in every three between Winnipeg and the Rockies is an Ontario man, and for that very reason people nowhere else in the world take so real an interest in the progress of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. There is scarcely a family in Ontario without its representative on the prairie, and down here there is a lively, a strangely acute interest in the Western crops. Aside from personal considerations, too, the interest is strong for business reasons, for it is recognized that a large crop in the West does much for general prosperity. News of the wheat crop, good or bad, is published in the East because the news is of prime importance to the reading public. If bad news comes it is safe to say that not a journal in Ontario publishes it without exactly the same kind of regret that any Western editor would feel in the matter.

When a despatch comes from Winnipeg to the Toronto newspapers, reporting a hailstorm that has ruined grain over a large area, or a heavy frost that has done serious mischief, a newspaper that aims to give the news, must publish it. The editor may regard the news as bad, but he will recognize it as important. There may be exaggeration in the story, but the editor in Toronto does not know it. The despatch comes through the ordinary news channels, and there is no reason to doubt its correctness.

To say that newspapers in Ontario exaggerate the damage done, in order to "deter people from going West" is a statement that should not have been made. The people and press of Ontario have always shown the West a warm cordiality, and make of that country a national boast. But it is well to bear in mind one point scored by the Bulletin when it explains, that, while there may be a hailstorm in one locality, serious to a few individuals, the effect on the total crop is infinitesimal. "The Western crop," it says, "is scattered over an Empire a thousand miles long and five hundred wide. It would be a phenomenon unknown in any other grain-growing country in the world if somewhere in this area hail conditions did not form at some period during the summer." But the effect is local, not general.

BETHUNE STREET RESIDENT COMPLAINS OF TRAINS

A Nightly Nuisance, Disturbing Households Nearby.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Can you tell me if there is any redress from the nuisance a G.T.R. train creates nightly near my residence on Bethune street. The train is made up about ten or eleven o'clock and after a great deal of noise from the engine, cars and crew it pulls out for Port Hope, returning again about three o'clock in the morning. The engine takes water near the station and the exhaust is let off with deafening loudness. I'll wager there is not a single person can stay in slumberland while that steam is escaping. This is practically a nightly occurrence and it seems that the crew takes special pains to shout and holler from one to another while around the yard. I should think that this could be prevented and if not altogether it should be toned down considerably. Persons living in the neighbouring blocks are up in arms and they are unanimous in a decision to take some steps to alleviate the nuisance.

Yours truly,
BETHUNE ST.

MR. KENNEDY'S SALES ON TORONTO MARKET

Collecting Contributions Without Proper Authority

A lady called at the Examiner office this morning to enquire about the collection in aid of the family of the late Mr. J. Lemon. A man had called at her residence, she stated, and produced a letter soliciting aid for the family. There were a large number of names signed to it, and the lady wondered if the man was collecting in good faith. She called his attention to the fact that a warning had appeared in the press lately in regard to a collector for this fund, but he explained that he was taking it up for the family.

An Examiner reporter called on Mr. Finch Miller, who kindly offered to receive the donations, and asked him if he had instructed anyone to collect. He replied that donations were received by him, but there was no collecting of any kind. "I hardly think any one would try to get money after the warning that appeared in the paper," he said, "but if there is they certainly have no authority from me, and as far as I know, no one else instructed them to solicit. The people have been very generous, and besides, I never think of soliciting, knowing by experience that the people will extend their charity towards a deserving case."

The lady who called at the office, stated that there were a large number of names on the two sheets of paper and it seemed as if the man had obtained a large amount of money.

Surgeon's Opinion OF KNIFE FOR PILES

Operating often a fad—The modern way of curing piles is with DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Sir Henry C. Burdett, K.C.B., of London, England, in a recent address, said, "What we want are surgeons, who with wisdom to be conservative have courage to protest against the growing tendency to put a knife into everybody on the smallest possible pretext."

Too many doctors have a desire to use the knife at every opportunity. The rewards to them are rich, but think of the suffering of body and mind, the enormous expense and the risk of life itself. An operation should be the last resort, for in spite of glowing promises the results are often very disappointing.

Many a sufferer from piles has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, after operations have failed. Hundreds of thousands have escaped operations by using this treatment first and thereby obtaining cure.

Mr. Arthur Lepine, school teacher, Granite Hill, Muskoka, Ont., writes:

"For two years I suffered from bleeding piles and lost each day about half a cup of blood. I went to the Ottawa General Hospital to be operated on and was under the influence of chloroform for one hour. For about two months I was better but my old trouble returned and again I lost much blood. One of my doctors told me I would have to undergo another operation, but I would not consent.

"My father, proprietor of the Richelieu Hotel, Ottawa, advised me to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and two boxes cured me. I did not lose any blood after beginning this treatment, and believe the cure is a permanent one. I gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as the best treatment in the world for bleeding piles." 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

BOTH TEAMS WILL HAVE STRONG LINE-UPS TO-MORROW SEASON'S BASEBALL FEATURE

To-morrow's important City League fixture between the T.A.S. and Park St. teams will start at 3 o'clock at Riverside Park and not at 2:15 as announced yesterday. From the way the fans are talking of the game the attendance should be by far, the largest of the season. Both of the contending teams have a large following and their rooters will be out in force to swell the crowd. So much depends upon the struggle that the players will be keyed up to the keenest pitch and should play the ball of their lives on Saturday.

Among the fans the feeling seems to be that it is an even money proposition. If Park St. wins, the race is over, while on the other hand if the Abstainers bring home the bacon it means that wins over the Strathconas and West Ends will give them the championship. Knowing just what depends on the struggle there is no doubt of the keenness with which it will be fought and the fans cannot miss this opportunity to see what should be by long odds, the best exhibition of baseball given this year. Dusty will pitch for the Park St. team, while the T.A.S. will have Quinlan doing the firing. In the two games played between them this year the clubs have broken even, each winning one so that to-morrow's battle is the rubber one.

Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, will handle the game and with a capable outside official on the job there should be no fault found with the umpire.

The managers have announced the following lineups:

T.A.S.—Callaghan 3b, Cahill ss, Flaherty 2b, O'Brien 1b, Quinlan p, Doherty lf, McFadden c, W. O'Brien rf, Derocher cf, Milloy, H. Quinlan. Corkery, Giroux.

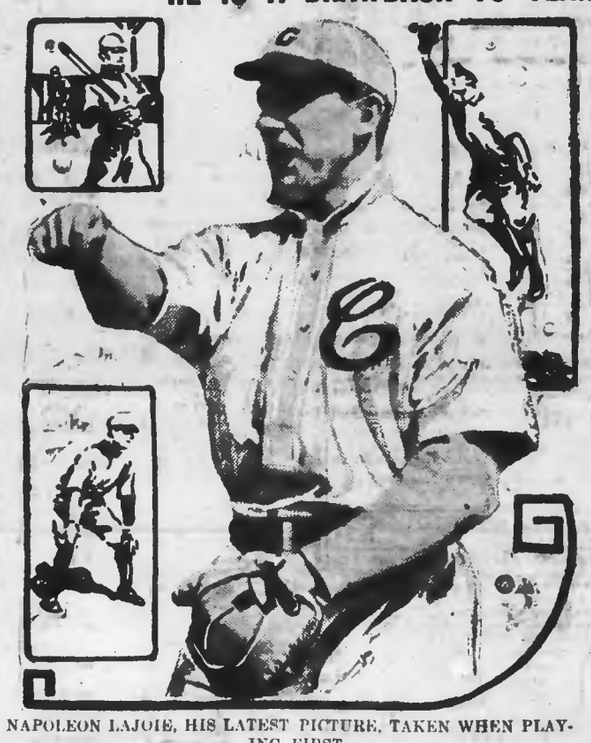
DON'T BE SURPRISED IF CLEVELAND TRADES LAJOIE HE IS A DRAWBACK TO TEAM



NAPOLEON LAJOIE, HIS LATEST PICTURE, TAKEN WHEN PLAYING FIRST.

There is more dissension in the Cleveland club to-day than there is suds on Monday. The players have about as much ambition as you will find in the annual meeting of the ancient order of the sons of rest. The reason is, they don't like Lajoie. They dont like this constant reference to "King Larry" in the sport pages. They realize Lajoie is not a great leader. They know they ought to win the pennant, but they cannot while Larry is manager. Consequently they have lost heart. Quit cold, and if they are not lying down, then a lot of men who think they know a heap about base ball are off their bang.

No one, not even the men who like Lajoie the least, will deny he is one of the grandest players that ever wore spiked shoes. As a second baseman he is in a class by himself. As a batter he is a wonder. He plays with mechanical perfection. I never saw him make a mechanical mistake. But that lets him out.

Lajoie's great fault, if fault it can be called, is a peculiar degree of bashfulness. This makes him hesitate at critical times. When a real leader would jump in and grasp the situation, Larry lets the situation get by before he sees it.

And because he is not a Comiskey, a Clarke, a McGraw or a Murray, the players have no respect for his ability to manage them, and refuse to give him the respect he should command.

Place any other major league manager in charge of the Naps and the team would go through the league like an electric drill through a bag of beans. The players are there, and the spirit is there, but it is dormant, and it will remain dormant while Lajoie is manager.

If the Cleveland owners expect to ever win a pennant, they must get rid of Lajoie or the rest of the team. They are in a peculiar position. No matter which way they jump they will be criticized. But they must do something, and do it soon. And I expect to see Lajoie get it where Gretchen wears the beads. And I don't believe Lajoie is a big enough man to step down as a private and let some other man manage the team, as did Fred Ahlott, the Toledo catcher who retired in favour of Sox Seybold.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON IS TO TRY HIS FEAT AGAIN

New York, Aug. 17.—Edward Payson Weston, the veteran walker, returned to New York last night from San Francisco, after walking from New York to San Francisco, a distance of 3,395 miles, in 105 days, looking none the worse for his long grind. The performance will go on record as one of the most remarkable in the history of pedestrianism, especially in view of the fact that Weston was 70 years old when he accomplished the difficult task.

Weston, in spite of the hardships he encountered in the far west, will make another attempt to make a transcontinental trip within the allotted time, 100 days. He expects to begin the walk early next year, and benefitting by his past experiences, expects to cover 4,000 miles in 100 days, thereby reducing his time by over five days.

During the journey Weston met with all sorts of weather and was compelled to endure all kinds of hardships during the route. He is disappointed over his failure in not making the trip in 100 days, as he started out to do, but attributes his failure to turns and twists he was compelled to make.

It is the first time that a bona fide walk has been made across the American continent. Weston laid much stress on the fact that he walked over railroad bridges and tracks in the west instead of resorting to ferries and roads. It had always been Weston's ambition to walk across the continent, and the fact that he succeeded in his 71st year is a fitting culmination to the long career of pedestrian triumphs with which he has been associated.

Weston was frequently discouraged during his long trip by the bad roads and severe weather conditions. As the walk progressed he was deprived of his clothing and several times was unable to procure food or water.

In Wyoming his troubles multiplied to such an extent that had it not been for the timely aid rendered by the officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad in sending along from Ogden an official on a railroad track velocipede, carrying milk, eggs and other nourishing food, it is doubtful whether Weston would have survived the heat and storms encountered day after day.

YESTERDAY'S SCORES AT TOURNAMENT

Peterborough Bowlers in Toronto in Preliminary Rounds.

Woodbine Bowling Green, Aug. 20.—The fourth day of the tournament was another ideal one. The two chief competitions—Walker trophy and Goldwin Smith cup—were completed. Toronto won both. J. S. Willison of the Canadas gave the crack rink of the Granites, the Rennies, a bad beating. Large crowds surrounded the green three and four deep. Both rinks put up a game that kept the large gallery cheering continuously. Both had their supporters, though the Rennies were strong favourites. The Rennies scored the first two ends, only to have Willison take the next seven. On the 10th end Willison led 10 to 2. The Granites played well, but the Canadas were at all times just sufficiently better to get the count. It was not a Rennie but a Willison day.

Peterborough's bowlers are still in part of the running. In the Toronto Cup contests, R. Kerr's rink defeated G. H. Orr, of the Granites 15-10, in the fifth round, but in the 7th went down before R. R. Farrow of Ottawa by 19-9. In the preliminary of the singles continued yesterday, B. Lastar defeated G. Boulter, of R. C. Y. C., by 14-9, and A. Mc Sinclair, of Balmy Beach, by 12-8. In the end round of the doubles Lastar and Talbot of Peterborough, defeated Murray and Raney, of Parkdale, by 20-8.

HAMBURG BELLE VERSUS UHLAN

The Two Sensational Trotters of the Year are to Meet in a Matched Race Next Week.

Cleveland, Aug. 17—Hamburg Belle, 2.02¾, and Uhlan, 2.03¾, the two sensational trotters of the year, may meet in a match race at North Randall track on August 25th. John E. Madden, owner of Hamburg Belle, wired officials of the Racing Association here yesterday his acceptance to race his mare against her own mark on the track on that day and included in his message a challenge to Chas. Sanders, owner of Uhlan, for a match race. Madden says he is willing to post $2,500 as a side bet that his mare will beat Uhlan. An effort is being made to get in communication with Sanders, who is in Buffalo, and close the arrangements for the race.

Hamburg Belle is still here and will race against her mark on Aug. 25th, when a one-day meeting is to be held at North Randall. The proceeds will go to charity.

PRICES FOR TOMORROWS' GAMES AT RIVERSIDE

The sporting element of the city are on their tip-toes over to-morrow's game at Riverside Park, and as the championship of the city hinges on it the players themselves are preparing for the keenest kind of a struggle. The management has decided not to change the prices and the admission will be 15 cents for adults, ladies free, and boys five cents. The article of ball is well worth more, but the management feel that those who have patronized the first games might be displeased if a bigger price were put on. The grounds are in good shape, and if the weather is favourable the fans will see the hottest game of the year. Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, will handle the indicator, and there is nothing to it but satisfactory decisions and strict impartiality.

Managers Quinlan and Pilling are equally decided that they have to land the game, and while both are confident, their friends admit that there is a great deal of doubt about the outcome.

BOWLERS HAD FINE TRIP TO COBOURG

About 400 Went to Lakeside Town Over G. T. R.

THE TRIGGER

Regular shoot of Peterborough Gun Club was held at the Driving Park last night. Shooting at 25 birds each, the scores were made as follows:

|---|---|
| C. Wood | 17 |
| C. Lech | 13 |
| H. Routley | 11 |
| M. Lillie | 7 |

Rugby

The sporting editor of the Examiner has received a letter from Jack Crough, the well-known ex-Peterborough athlete, who is now in North Battleford, in which he talks of the Rugby situation and says that he may come back here for the fall. Crough has been one of the mainstays of the team for some years and has always been a most useful man.

Roller Hockey

The Auditorium Roller Hockey team challenge any team in town, under nineteen years of age, to a game of roller hockey any night at all. The line up is as follows:

Goal B. Clute, point F. Tougas, centre point W. Heaslip, centre K. Halpanny, rover N. Thompson, right wing E. Edgar, left wing M. Kinéally.

OVERHEARD BY A REPORTER TO-DAY

Two Girls Discussed a Question of Real Live Interest.

A reporter chanced to overhear a conservation two girls were holding in the dry goods department of a down town store this morning and it may be worth relating.

"Irene," the one in the close fitting pink queried: "Are you going to the park to-night? Charlie and I are going if mother has that white lawn of mine washed."

"No park for mine to-night, kid. I've another date on this Friday," Daisy, the dainty little cream gowned affair replied.

The reporter scarcely noticed their first remarks, but he looked wise shortly afterwards when the girls were telling each other their engagements for to-morrow afternoon.

"I've an off day," Daisy wearily remarked, "and I guess I'll stay at home."

"Why not come over to Riverside Park and see the ball game," Irene gushed. "It's great and Jack told me to-day he wouldn't miss it for any money, so it's the grand stand for ours."

"Say Irene, is Bill Cahill playing to-morrow?"

"Well I guess he is. Doc McFadden, Harry O'Brien, Bruce Bell and a few of the best of them will be there and we'll have a chance to root as Jack says. He means to yell till you can't hear yourself."

The reporter thought he had heard enough and passed on as Irene was explaining to her friend that the ball teams invited the ladies to be present, no admission being charged them.

STILL IN BUSINESS

Messrs. Arthur Blade & Son desire to announce that they have not retired from the Floral Business in Peterborough.

Messrs. Blade & Son's lease on the West End Green Houses expired on the 15th of August, and as they are now building new and extensive green houses, which will be completed in about a month, they did not wish to renew the lease, so sold the owner the stock on hand.

The reliable firm of Blade & Son are prepared at the present time to take orders for cut flowers and all kinds of floral work, and will guarantee to give perfect satisfaction as of yore. 2d-t-s

Ald. Buller Pleased With Experience Trip Afforded

Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, returned home yesterday after attending the International Fire Chiefs' Association in Grand Rapids, Michigan, for the past week. He went down the river last evening, and joined Mrs. Buller and his family, who are camping at Poplar Point. The alderman says he knows more about fire fighting and fire fighting apparatus than he would have learned otherwise. The convention was a great education to him, and he will thus be better able to conduct his committee in future. He is glad he attended the convention, and is also very glad that Chief Howard was there.

In speaking of the new Canadian Fire Chiefs' Association, which was organized in Grand Rapids, the alderman referred to it in the most optimistic terms, and can see no reason why it should not be of the greatest benefit to the chiefs of the Dominion. It is the intention to hold a meeting during the Toronto Exhibition, when all the Chiefs in the Province will be notified and invited to attend. It is the intention to get the organization in good running order immediately. They have selected excellent officers, and Chief Howard will play a very important part in the association.

Orillia Excursionists Had Pleasant Time In Peterborough

The Band and Firemen took over five hundred people with them to Peterborough on their annual excursion on civic holiday. The excursion train reached the Electric City about 11 o'clock, and the visitors had nearly eight hours for seeing the sights. One of the most sought out was the famous lift-lock, which differs considerably from the lock at Kirkfield. The armouries, the various manufacturing establishments, and the parks were also centres of attraction. Thursday happened to be a half-holiday in Peterborough and there were sports at Chemong Park, which drew a number of Orillians as spectators.

The return train did not reach Orillia till after 11 o'clock, but the excursionists were fortunate not to be later, as there was a big wreck just below Beaverton. The accident occurred early in the afternoon, and by the time the excursion train came along, a temporary track had been placed around the wreck, which enabled the train to get by. Fourteen cars had been smashed into kindling wood, and when the Orillia train passed the crew of the auxiliary were busy gathering up and burning the wreckage. The train was a double-header, and consisted of twenty-six empty and loaded cars. It was running at a fair rate of speed when the occident occurred. The cause of the accident is unknown, but it is thought that it was due to a defective wheel or coupling. The line was in good condition, as the engines and several cars passed over the spot before the cars jumped the track. The track was badly torn up for some distance. Nine of the wrecked cars were loaded, and the others were empty. The damage will amount to thousands of dollars.—Orillia Packet.

Canadian Fire Chiefs From The Association Meeting In Grand Rapids

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 19.—An important Canadian Section Meeting was held at the Morton Hotel Tuesday night when the Canadian delegates met and organibed a Fire Chiefs' Canadian Association. The association will be only for Ontario to start with.

Among those present were:
Chief John Thompson and Ald. T. L. Church, chairman Toronto Fire and Light Committee.
Chief Tremblay, Montreal.
Chief Aitken, London.
Chief Henderson, St. Thomas.
Chief Meyers, Stratford.
Chief Cooke, Berlin.
Chief Howard and Ald. W. Buller, Peterborough.
Chief Ten Eyck, Hamilton.
Chief Bain, Owen Sound.
Chief Pritchard, Chatham.
Chief Murray, Windsor.
Chief Armstrong, Kingston.

Alderman Church acted as chairman pro tem. and explained the object of the meeting.

Officers elected were:
President—Chief Ten Eyck, Hamilton.
Secretary-Treasurer—Chief Howard, Peterborough.
Hon. Solicitor—Ald .T. L. Church, Toronto.

The association will consist of chiefs and fire committee chairmen of Ontario's municipalities.

A provisional committee of the aforesaid gentlemen will meet at the Canadian National Exhibition and notices will be sent to all the other Ontario municipalities. It was felt that if a united effort were made much mutual benefit in the cause of fire fighting would result. Alderman Church suggested the formation of such an association. Chief Thompson, of Toronto, will likely be the first vice-president of the International Association.

Secretary-treasurer Chief Howard, of Peterborough, with the president, Ten Eyck, will convene a general meeting of the new association likely during the Toronto Fair.

WHAT THE BURLEIGH FALLS POWER MEANS TO THE CITY

R. J. McLaughlin, in a Letter to City Aldermen, Points Out the Advantages of Municipal Ownership of the Power.

THE OPTION ALMOST OUT

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin has written the following letter to each of the aldermen in connection with the Burleigh Falls Power question:

Toronto, Aug. 19, 1909.

Dear Sir,—The option given at the request of the Council of the City of Peterborough is about expired, and I presume that you have obtained the Engineer's report which you assured me that you would obtain, and if so I have no doubt that it verifies and more than verifies any statements that I have made, and your Council are now in a position to say once for all whether you want a Municipally owned and developed power for the City of Peterborough, and the cheapest power, and consequently greatest inducements of any city in this province for manufacturing industries, or whether, on the other hand, you have made up your mind to leave the power and the future of the city in the hands of private companies, with the naturally resulting monopoly.

The opportunity of acquiring Burleigh is the last opportunity your city will have of acquiring a power worth having and developing by a Municipal plant, and it is also the logical and only power for the City of Peterborough to develop. It is situated in the right direction. By building a power line from Burleigh you can have a main trunk line on to which you can hitch Buckhorn, Lakefield, and any and all the River powers that you may at any time hereafter acquire.

Also by acquiring Burleigh you will shut the door to any further development by private companies of any of the powers north of you, as none of the others are big enough to enter into competition with you and when for sale you can consequently get them at reasonable prices.

If, on the other hand, you inform me next week that you turn the option down we will proceed at once to make arrangements for the development of this and other powers by a private company. A private company which will market the power at competitive rates and where the best market can be obtained and a considerable portion of it will be marketed elsewhere than in Peterborough. So far as your city is concerned this will of course be an advantage, but you can never be in the same position to compete for incoming industries as you would be did you own the power yourselves and were enabled to offer power to industries at the exceedingly low rate that you can offer it with all the advantages of cheap, capital, cheap development and operation which, as a municipality, you would have.

Is it too big for you to undertake, when Guelph, a smaller City, is undertaking an annual expenditure of $60,000 and for only 2,500 horse power. The price you are being asked is a mere bagatelle considering (1st) that you get the power without rental; (2nd) That you get a dam built and maintained forever without cost to you, which is alone worth more than the whole price asked; (3rd) your development is easy and transmission short; (4th) it is the natural nucleus for the addition of smaller powers, which cannot be profitably handled alone.

The total annual charge on the power users for original cost of this power will only be about $1.12 per horse power per annum, while the leases granted by the Dominion Government for other powers on the River is $2.00 per horse power.

It is, however, for your Council to say, and to say definitely and finally, whether you will turn down the option on your own responsibility or whether you will leave it for the people to say.

Yours truly,

EXCURSION TO COBOURG YESTERDAY WELL ATTENDED

Impressions of Horse Show as Viewed by Peterborough Eyes—Fine Horses and Well Dressed Women.

ATTENDANCE WAS 6000

There were about 400 excursionists aboard of the special train for the Cobourg summer horse show yesterday, which was run under the auspices of the Peterborough Lawn Bowlers' Club. Unfortunately the train was about half an hour late in starting, and the excursionists were one hour late for the show. In future the train ought to leave at 12.30 sharp in order to reach the grounds in time. On the return trip a similar delay was made, and home was not reached until 10.30 p.m. The up-grade from Port Hope necessitated a double-header on the return trip. The fame of the show has become so great that spectators and exhibitors were drawn from all points of the Province. A fair estimate would place the attendance at about six thousand. The grand stands were crowded beyond their capacity, many not being able to gain admission. The congestion was ameliorated by the good nature of the spectators, only one "gentleman" being rude enough to puff his five-cent cigar in the presence of ladies.

It was noticed that the ladies in the boxes were gowned in more tasteful and less conspicuous style than is oftentimes seen, interspersed, however, with plenty of colour, ranging from the tints of old rose to the sombre hue of grey. Nowhere could be found a more beautiful spot for such an exhibition, bounded as it is by the cool, blue waters of Lake Ontario on the south; while, as far as eyesight can reach towards the north, are rolling hills, crowned with woods, softened by the purple haze of late summer. Under magnificent, wide-spreading beech trees the grandstands are built. The music was furnished by the 48th Highlanders Band of Toronto, in their [illegible] and the local band, interspersed with the drone of the bagpipes.

In the driving of single horses Miss Wilmot, of Belleville, won much applause by the graceful and masterful way in which she handled her spirited animal. In ladies' riding, Mrs. Oliver of Cobourg, took first prize. The most entertaining number of the daily programme was the musical ride of the Dragoons from Toronto. The 24 horses, all matched bays, danced the Lancers, keeping perfect time throughout the four figures. Most exciting was the high jumping, Crowe and Murray's hunters, of Toronto, taking all the hurdles in magnificent style. Hon. J. R. Stratton kept up Peterborough's end of the show by taking 1st and 2nd prizes in single drivers; first in the combination class, and second in carriage team.

Ald. Buller Pleased With Experience Trip Afforded

Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, returned home yesterday after attending the International Fire Chiefs' Association in Grand Rapids, Michigan, for the past week. He went down the river last evening, and joined Mrs. Buller and his family, who are camping at Poplar Point. The alderman says he knows more about fire fighting and fire fighting apparatus than he would have learned otherwise. The convention was a great education to him, and he will thus be better able to conduct his committee in future. He is glad he attended the convention, and is also very glad that Chief Howard was there.

In speaking of the new Canadian Fire Chiefs' Association, which was organized in Grand Rapids, the alderman referred to it in the most optimistic terms, and can see no reason why it should not be of the greatest benefit to the chiefs of the Dominion. It is the intention to hold a meeting during the Toronto Exhibition, when all the Chiefs in the Province will be notified and invited to attend. It is the intention to get the organization in good running order immediately. They have selected excellent officers, and Chief Howard will play a very important part in the association.

Orillia Excursionists Had Pleasant Time In Peterborough

The Band and Firemen took over five hundred people with them to Peterborough on their annual excursion on civic holiday. The excursion train reached the Electric City about 11 o'clock, and the visitors had nearly eight hours for seeing the sights. One of the most sought out was the famous lift-lock, which differs considerably from the lock at Kirkfield. The armouries, the various manufacturing establishments, and the parks were also centres of attraction. Thursday happened to be a half-holiday in Peterborough and there were sports at Chemong Park, which drew a number of Orillians as spectators.

The return train did not reach Orillia till after 11 o'clock, but the excursionists were fortunate not to be later, as there was a big wreck just below Beaverton. The accident occurred early in the afternoon, and by the time the excursion train came along, a temporary track had been placed around the wreck, which enabled the train to get by. Fourteen cars had been smashed into kindling wood, and when the Orillia train passed the crew of the auxiliary were busy gathering up and burning the wreckage. The train was a double-header, and consisted of twenty-six empty and loaded cars. It was running at a fair rate of speed when the occident occurred. The cause of the accident is unknown, but it is thought that it was due to a defective wheel or coupling. The line was in good condition, as the engines and several cars passed over the spot before the cars jumped the track. The track was badly torn up for some distance. Nine of the wrecked cars were loaded, and the others were empty. The damage will amount to thousands of dollars.—Orillia Packet.

Canadian Fire Chiefs From The Association Meeting In Grand Rapids

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 19.—An important Canadian Section Meeting was held at the Morton Hotel Tuesday night when the Canadian delegates met and organibed a Fire Chiefs' Canadian Association. The association will be only for Ontario to start with.

Among those present were:
Chief John Thompson and Ald. T. L. Church, chairman Toronto Fire and Light Committee.
Chief Tremblay, Montreal.
Chief Aitken, London.
Chief Henderson, St. Thomas.
Chief Meyers, Stratford.
Chief Cooke, Berlin.
Chief Howard and Ald. W. Buller, Peterborough.
Chief Ten Eyck, Hamilton.
Chief Bain, Owen Sound.
Chief Pritchard, Chatham.
Chief Murray, Windsor.
Chief Armstrong, Kingston.
Alderman Church acted as chairman pro tem, and explained the object of the meeting.

Officers elected were:
President—Chief Ten Eyck, Hamilton.
Secretary-Treasurer—Chief Howard, Peterborough.
Hon. Solicitor—Ald .T. L. Church, Toronto.

The association will consist of chiefs and fire committee chairmen of Ontario's municipalities.

A provisional committee of the aforesaid gentlemen will meet at the Canadian National Exhibition and notices will be sent to all the other Ontario municipalities. It was felt that if a united effort were made much mutual benefit in the cause of fire fighting would result. Alderman Church suggested the formation of such an association. Chief Thompson, of Toronto, will likely be the first vice-president of the International Association.

Secretary-treasurer Chief Howard, of Peterborough, with the president, Ten Eyck, will convene a general meeting of the new association likely during the Toronto Fair.

WHAT THE BURLEIGH FALLS POWER MEANS TO THE CITY

R. J. McLaughlin, in a Letter to City Aldermen, Points Out the Advantages of Municipal Ownership of the Power.

THE OPTION ALMOST OUT

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin has written the following letter to each of the aldermen in connection with the Burleigh Falls Power question:

Toronto, Aug. 19, 1909.

Dear Sir,—The option given at the request of the Council of the City of Peterborough is about expired, and I presume that you have obtained the Engineer's report which you assured me that you would obtain, and if so I have no doubt that it verifies and more than verifies any statements that I have made, and your Council are now in a position to say once for all whether you want a Municipally owned and developed power for the City of Peterborough, and the cheapest power, and consequently greatest inducements of any city in this province for manufacturing industries, or whether, on the other hand, you have made up your mind to leave the power and the future of the city in the hands of private companies, with the naturally resulting monopoly.

The opportunity of acquiring Burleigh is the last opportunity your city will have of acquiring a power worth having and developing by a Municipal plant, and it is also the logical and only power for the City of Peterborough to develop. It is situated in the right direction. By building a power line from Burleigh you can have a main trunk line on to which you can hitch Buckhorn, Lakefield, and any and all the River powers that you may at any time hereafter acquire.

Also by acquiring Burleigh you will shut the door to any further development by private companies of any of the powers north of you, as none of the others are big enough to enter into competition with you and when for sale you can consequently get them at reasonable prices.

If, on the other hand, you inform me next week that you turn the option down we will proceed at once to make arrangements for the development of this and other powers by a private company. A private company which will market the power at competitive rates and where the best market can be obtained and a considerable portion of it will be marketed elsewhere than in Peterborough. So far as your city is concerned this will of course be an advantage, but you can never be in the same position to compete for incoming industries as you would be did you own the power yourselves and were enabled to offer power to industries at the exceedingly low rate that you can offer it with all the advantages of cheap capital, cheap development and operation which, as a municipality, you would have.

Is it too big for you to undertake, when Guelph, a smaller City, is undertaking an annual expenditure of $60,000 and for only 2,500 horse power. The price you are being asked is a mere bagatelle considering (1st) that you get the power without rental; (2nd) That you get a dam built and maintained forever without cost to you, which is alone worth more than the whole price asked; (3rd) your development is easy and transmission short; (4th) it is the natural nucleus for the addition of smaller powers, which cannot be profitably handled alone.

The total annual charge on the power users for original cost of this power will only be about $1.12 per horse power per annum, while the leases granted by the Dominion Government for other powers on the River is $2.00 per horse power.

It is, however, for your Council to say, and to say definitely and finally, whether you will turn down the option on your own responsibility or whether you will leave it for the people to say.

Yours truly,
R. J. McLAUGHLIN,

EXCURSION TO COBOURG YESTERDAY WELL ATTENDED

Impressions of Horse Show as Viewed by Peterborough Eyes —Fine Horses and Well Dressed Women.

ATTENDANCE WAS 6000

There were about 400 excursionists aboard of the special train for the Cobourg summer horse show yesterday, which was run under the auspices of the Peterborough Lawn Bowlers' Club. Unfortunately the train was about half an hour late in starting, and the excursionists were one hour late for the show. In future the train ought to leave at 12.30 sharp in order to reach the grounds in time. On the return trip a similar delay was made, and home was not reached until 10.30 p.m. The up-grade from Port Hope necessitated a double-header on the return trip. The fame of the show has become so great that spectators and exhibitors were drawn from all points of the Province. A fair estimate would place the attendance at about six thousand. The grand stands were crowded beyond their capacity, many not being able to gain admission. The congestion was ameliorated by the good nature of the spectators, only one "gentleman" being rude enough to puff his five-cent cigar in the presence of ladies.

It was noticed that the ladies in the boxes were gowned in more tasteful and less conspicuous style than is oftentimes seen, interapersed, however, with plenty of colour, ranging from the tints of old rose to the sombre hue of grey. Nowhere could be found a more beautiful spot for such an exhibition, bounded as it is by the cool, blue waters of Lake Ontario on the south; while, as far as eyesight can reach towards the north, are rolling hills, crowned with woods, softened by the purple haze of late summer. Under magnificent, wide-spreading beech treas the grandstands are built. The music was furnished by the 48th Highlanders Band of Toronto, in their [illegible] and the local band, interspersed with the drone of the bagpipes.

In the driving of single horses Miss Wilmot, of Belleville, won much applause by the graceful and masterful way in which she handled her spirited animal. In ladies' riding, Mrs. Oliver of Cobourg, took first prise. The most entertaining number of the daily programme was the musical ride of the Dragoons from Toronto. The 24 horses, all matched bays, danced the Lancers, keeping perfect time throughout the four figures. Most exciting was the high jumping, Crowe and Murray's hunters, of Toronto, taking all the hurdles in magnificent style. Hon. J. R. Stratton kept up Peterborough's end of the show by taking 1st and 2nd prizes in single drivers; first in the combination class, and second in carriage team.

Peterborough People Take Part In Young's Point Concert

Annual Garden Party Under the Auspices of St. Aidan's Church Was a Great Success—Proceeds Amounted to $150.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE

Special to The Examiner.

Young's Point, Aug. 20.—On Tuesday, Aug. 17, the annual garden party under the auspices of St. Aidan's Church, took place on the lawn of Mr. Reid. In point of attendance as well as in sociability the event could not have been surpassed, and a handsome sum was realized to devote towards paying off the debt on the church. Several booths were on the grounds, where refreshments, fancy goods and candies were sold. A sumptuous tea was served, which was partaken of by a large number of people, among whom were many summer visitors from Stony Lake and other places. In the evening a programme of songs and addresses was given. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, the Rural Dean of Peterborough, was the chairman, and with him on the platform was Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, who as Diocesan Evangelist is about to begin a ten days' mission at Young's Point.

After introductory remarks by the chairman, the following programme was given:

Vocal Solo—Mrs. Arthur Amys.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Kenneth Shook.
Address—Rev. J. Bennett Anderson
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Arthur Amys.
Address—Mr. J. Harris McClelland.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Kenneth Shook.
Address—Mr. R. J. Devey.
Vocal Solo—"My Ain Country" (upon request)—Rev. J. Bennett Anderson.
"God Save the King."

Mr. R. J. Devey acted as accompanist. The presence of Mrs. Amys added much to the pleasure of the evening, and her ready assistance was greatly appreciated. Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, who is a host in himself, made everyone feel at home and enjoy himself. Rev. C. R. Spencer is in charge of the mission and has done excellent work, as well as endeared himself to his parishioners. A few fancy articles which had not been sold were auctioneered by Mr. Anderson and quickly disposed of. Total receipts were about $150. A very pleasant feature of the garden party was the presence of all classes and creeds of people.

NORWOOD HOUSE WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Other Items of Interest From East Peterborough—Mr. J. Finlay in the West.

Norwood, Aug. 19.—Mr. John Finlay left this week on a business trip to Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

During the storm Sunday afternoon lightning struck the residence of Mr. W. C. Doughty, passing down the chimney and out of the stove, scattering ashes in all directions. Mr. and Mrs. Doughty were in the house at the time, but neither of them were injured. Some of the current ran around the room, damaging the moulding and some of the pictures hanging on the wall, but did not ignite.

Mr. Fred McIntyre's barns, in Otonabee township, with 25 loads of grain, 10 loads of hay, 45 bushels Alsike clover seed, a bull, half a dozen calves and harness, and most of his implements were destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon of last week, between 3 and 4 o'clock. Nothing whatever was saved. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. McIntyre's loss would total between two and three thousand dollars, with fifteen hundred dollars insurance.

The Rev. G. A. MacLennan, B. A., pastor of the Presbyterian church, has received a hearty and unanimous call from Cateauguay, a suburban point of Montreal. The call has been forwarded by the Presbytery of Montreal to the Presbytery of Peterborough, who will deal with it in the interests of the congregation and pastor at a meeting to be arranged for in the near future.

PADDLING HER OWN CANOE

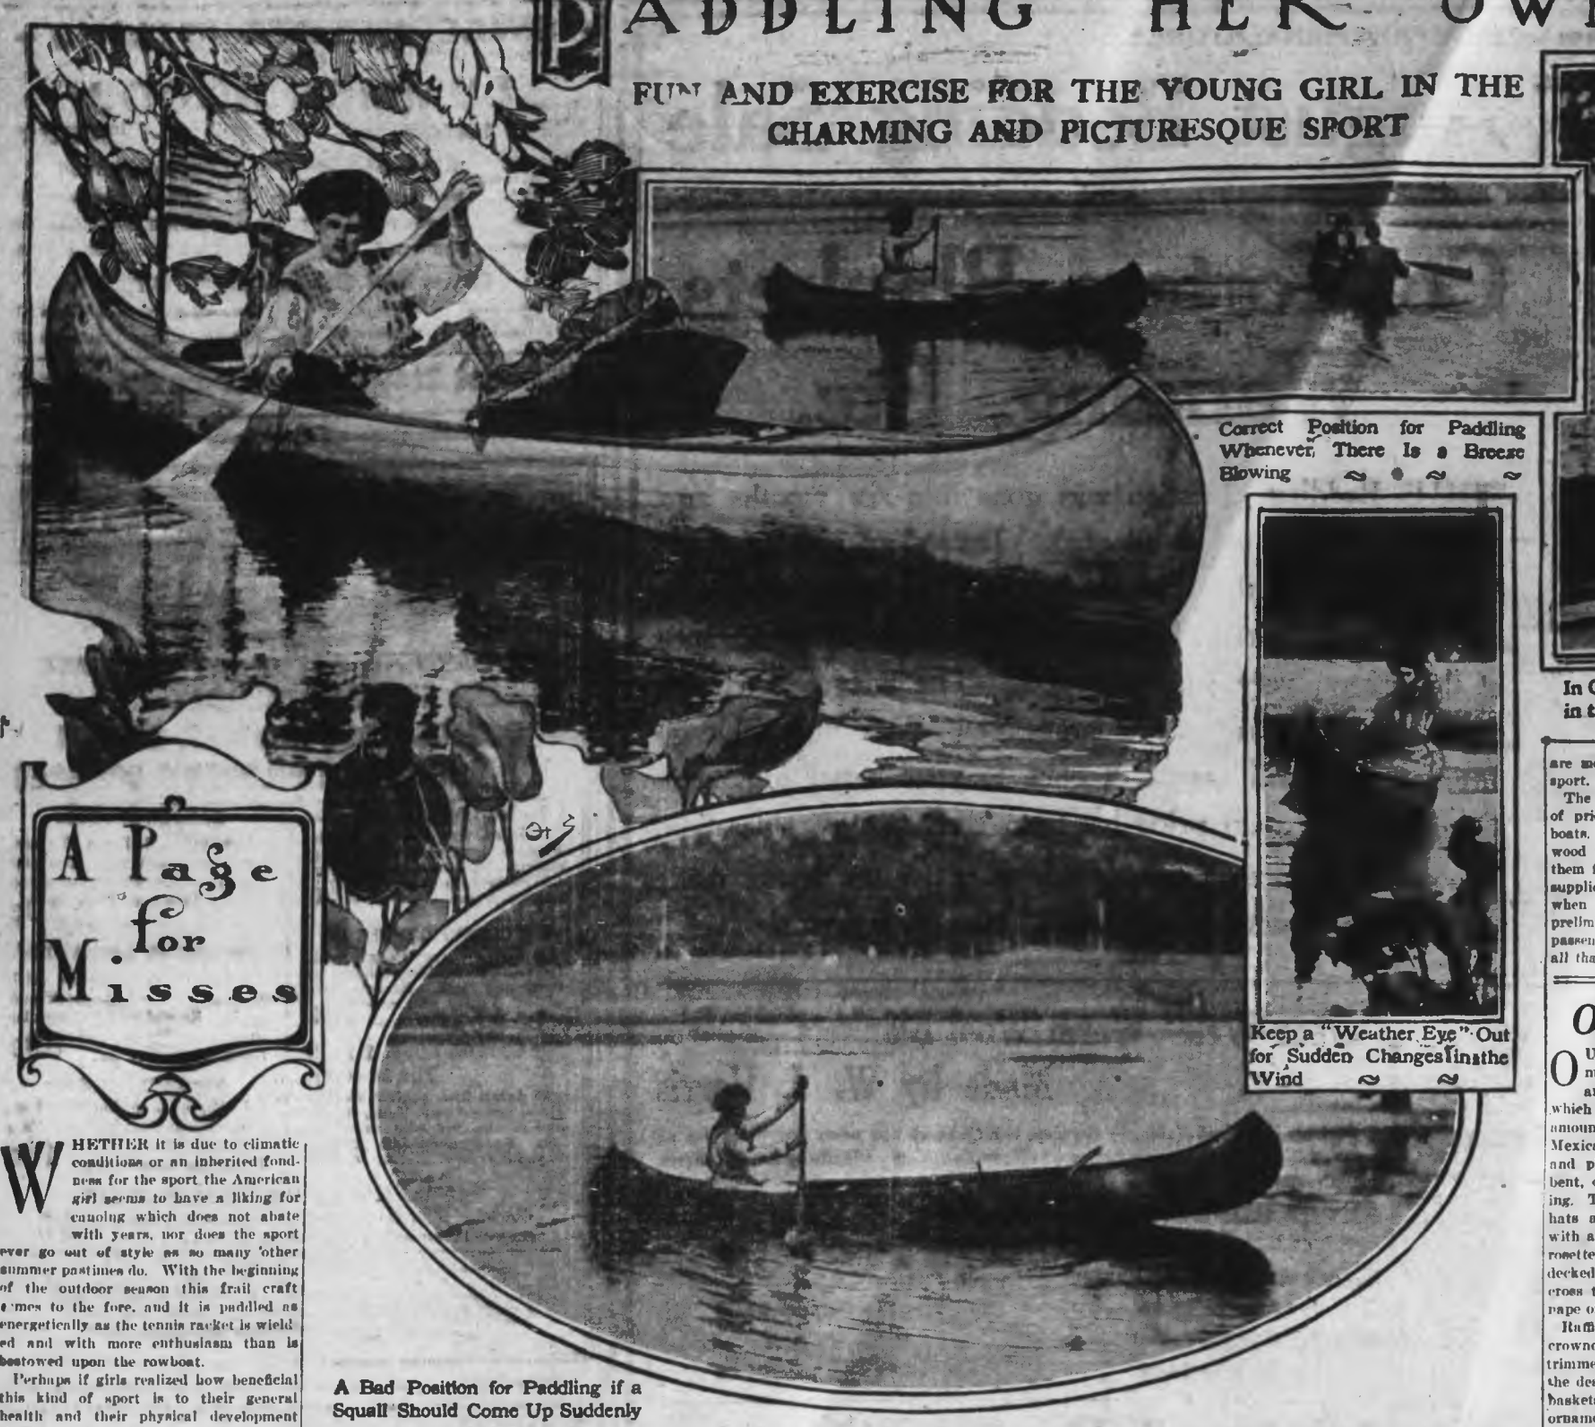
FUN AND EXERCISE FOR THE YOUNG GIRL IN THE CHARMING AND PICTURESQUE SPORT



A Bad Position for Paddling if a Squall Should Come Up Suddenly

Correct Position for Paddling Whenever There Is a Breeze Blowing

Keep a "Weather Eye" Out for Sudden Changes in the Wind

In Getting Out of a Canoe One Foot Should Be Planted Firmly in the Centre of the Boat

A Page for Misses

WHETHER it is due to climatic conditions or an inherited fondness for the sport the American girl seems to have a liking for canoing which does not abate with years, nor does the sport ever go out of style as so many other summer pastimes do. With the beginning of the outdoor season this frail craft comes to the fore, and it is paddled as energetically as the tennis racket is wielded and with more enthusiasm than is bestowed upon the rowboat.

Perhaps if girls realized how beneficial this kind of sport is to their general health and their physical development the knowledge might put a damper on their pleasure, for girls are not given to doing the things that are good for them merely because they are good. But they like the lazy drifting over smooth waters and exhibiting their skill in the handling of this very unsteady type of boat. Canoeing is, however, highly recommended by physical culture instructors. It does not occupy a higher position in their regard than rowing, but it is more fashionable to canoe than to row just now. The physical director of Barnard College, Dr. Wood, strongly advises it to his girls and he urges all those who can to do as much boating as possible during their summer holidays. The exercise is a decided change from anything they get in the city, and even if they do not actually row and paddle a great deal the fact of their being on the water where the air is fresh and pure is worth more than hours of some other forms of exercise.

MR. WOOD says that rowing is an ideal sport for girls. "It is one of the best exercises for the back and chest that I know of," he asserted, "and will counteract any tendencies to stooping the shoulders and sinking in the chest, both of which are not uncommon among girl students. It is better to row in a boat which has a sliding seat than in a stationary one because this gives every part of the body some exercise. The sliding seat cannot be operated without using the lower part of the body in making the stroke. As the arms are drawn toward the body the limbs are straightened out and as the reverse movement is made with the arms the knees bend. This constant changing of position and the force required to make the stroke perfectly bring noticeable stiffness in muscles the existence of which she was previously unaware.

"If there is any doubt about the truth of this statement let a novice try one of the sliding seat boats and she will rise from her cushioned seat with a very noticeable stiffness in muscles which she did not know she possessed.

"English school girls go in for rowing contests and they learn to handle four and eight oared shells with as much skill if less strength than their brothers. They have coaches and regular practice times and are really quite proficient in this varsity sport. Of course, they have to give a good deal of time to it, but they are interested in rowing and enjoy being on the water in these swift crafts. They wear a rowing costume made with loose blouses, bloomers and skirts, if they like, but for real work full gymnasium bloomers and blouse are all that a girl needs. Skirts do not improve her appearance and they do hinder her movements.

IN this country girls have paid very little attention to rowing races. They do have them in some of the colleges and schools, but here the time is given to other kinds of outdoor sports than rowing. It is a sport that should be encouraged, so nearly all physical culturists say, and whether a girl learns to handle an oar with a crew or not she should know how to manage any ordinary boat, for there is never any telling when the knowledge will be of value.

Paddling a canoe is lighter work and therefore distinctly appropriate for young girls. In the first place, a canoe weighs many pounds less than even a light rowboat, but this very fact makes the handling more difficult. In fair weather it is plain paddling, but the least sign of a breeze is a signal for great care and attention on the part of the maiden with the paddle. Squalls come up with such suddenness that before the canoist is aware of danger she may be unable to guide her craft and is at the mercy of wind and waves. It is wise for this reason to always keep a "weather eye" out for changes in the wind and to be perfectly sure of one's own skill before venturing beyond easy reach of the shore.

FASHION or fancy decides in favor of the single paddle, and the double one is seldom seen where the sport of canoing reigns, yet those who have the physical developing of the youthful canoist at heart feel that she ought to choose the double paddle. There are so many of our sports and pleasures that have a tendency to make us one-sided that where the overdevelopment of one side can be avoided physical culture instructors recommend our choosing the sport that equalizes things. It is so easy to sit in the stern of a canoe and do all the paddling on one side that to shift the paddle first to port and then to starboard seems enough of a trouble to lessen the pleasure of the pastime. The double paddle obviates this changing, but the double paddle is not popular. It is heavy and more unwieldy than the other type of paddle.

The canoe is probably the easiest craft afloat to upset. It rests so lightly on the water and is so narrow that the least unexpected motion capsizes it. Before learning how to handle one canoists should know how to swim and thus insure themselves as far as possible against accidents. A bathing suit makes an excellent canoing costume, and the girl who dons this style of dress before starting on a little lake or sound excursion in a canoe will not mind a wetting if she is suddenly capsized. At the seashore, where canoing is almost as popular during the bathing hour as it is on the quieter lakes, girls usually dress in bathing costume for this sport.

THE only way to learn to paddle a canoe is to try it under the guidance of some one who understands the idiosyncrasies of the craft. The beginner sits low in the canoe in the stern and uses the paddle as much as possible in one hand. She grips the paddle firmly in her right, placing the hand near the part where it begins to broaden. With the other hand she grips the smaller end of the paddle, keeping all four fingers over the top. This position should be maintained carefully to avoid blistering the hands. The stroke should be made gently, and as the blade is brought back in the water it can be turned slightly to act as a rudder, and thus the canoe can be kept in a straight course while still paddling on one side.

CANOES upset so easily that the greatest care should be taken in entering and leaving them. One foot should be planted firmly in the centre of the boat and then when it has regained its balance or is fairly steady the other foot follows. The paddle may be used to steady one's self if desired. This is the method to pursue in leaving the canoe. It seems useless to say anything about standing up in a canoe when out on the water, yet wherever there are canoists you will see some ignorant or foolhardy persons standing up, either to change places or to get a little rest from the cramped position rowing demands. It is never safe to make any changes in the paddling arrangement after leaving the mooring or shore. When the paddlers wish to change places they should send the canoe to some resting place where it can be steadied while the crew is shifted.

Girls who do not wear regulation rowing costume and have a fancy for something besides a shirt waist will find sailor blouses comfortable and picturesque. They turn away at the throat and fasten with a soft silk scarf. The sleeves are ample and button at the wrists, so that they may be rolled up when the roughness of the water means a drenching to cuffs. These look well with white linen or duck skirts and are most appropriate for the fashionable sport.

The fittings of the canoe are a matter of pride with girls who own their own boats. They prefer canoes of dark stained wood to the canvas style and they like them filled with comfortable cushions and supplied with sunshades and hampers when the canoe trip promises to be the preliminary to a picnic luncheon. Two passengers and a small hamper are about all that the average sized canoe will hold, for it is not safe to load these light craft heavily nor is it wise to have many cushions and extra fittings in the canoe to hamper the pilot in the event of danger. Each girl chooses her own style of fittings—that is, the color—and she usually has the plain cushions worked or ornamented in some fashion with her initials. Plain colors are more durable than the fancy figured cretonnes, yet the latter look most attractive if they do not suggest too strongly indoor upholstery.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

NOTHING gives a young girl more charm than a frank, outspoken manner, such being indications of sincerity and big heartedness—qualities which win friends on every side. But while highly commending frankness Mme. Grundy requires that it should be somewhat tempered by tact, else one may painfully offend where no offence was intended.

If a friend is not looking particularly well never comment on the fact. It is exceedingly bad form to make personal remarks of any sort, and particularly those pertaining to appearances. There are outspoken persons who make us most uncomfortable by saying, if encountering us a day when we do not feel quite up to the mark, "Why, you do not look at all well to-day," or "You are dreadfully pale to-day, aren't you?" Even when true we do not like to hear such remarks, for every person of spirit wishes to look her best and does not like to be made aware of the deficiencies of the moment.

On the same principle, when you go to see an ill person never tell her she looks bad, for that is a most depressing speech and often seriously affects the spirits of an invalid. Part of the object of your call is to cheer and so either say bright, enlivening things or nothing at all. Ill persons do not see visitors while their condition is critical, and when you are permitted to enter the sick room the patient, as a rule, is quite eager to have you bring her a whiff of the bright outside world.

Do not feel you must talk about her disease or present condition, but make a point of telling her entertaining things about your doings and encourage her to feel she will soon be doing active, agreeable things, too. This will brighten her wonderfully and make her think she is gaining faster, perhaps, than she thought. Never make a long call on an invalid. Half an hour is usually about as much as is good for them, for even though they enjoy your call, the excitement of a visitor is fatiguing.

It is quite proper for you to call on your young men friends when they are ill if you are accompanied by an older member of your family or if a member of his family chaperons you. Sometimes a trained nurse is a sufficient chaperon, but usually etiquette requires the presence of an older member of one of the families.

It is permissible to send flowers to ill young men if you wish, but it is much more fashionable now to send hothouse fruit, accompanied by a card on which you express your good wishes for their speedy recovery.

English Embroidery and Italian Cut Work Popular

SEPARATE waists of batiste and embroidered batiste and sheer handkerchief linen are not yet out of vogue, but unquestionably the smartest embroidered waists are those of a medium weight linen profusely embroidered in the eyelet hole work, or else Italian cut work. In fact, the open English embroidery is fashionable wherever the filled in work was formerly to be found, and as this work cannot be successfully done on the sheerer fabric its vogue has brought about a return to fashion of the heavier linen in place of the exquisitely sheer batiste that has been in favor for so many summers.

Once learned the eyelet work is easier and goes with considerably greater rapidity than the filled in embroidery. At first it takes time and practice to get each hole perfect and of correct shape for leaf or flower, but skill is soon acquired, and the embroidery becomes a pleasant task. There is infinitely greater satisfaction, too, in embroidering for one's self a skirt, for example, on a fairly heavy quality of linen than on a material so fine that after a few washings it has become threadbare. Eyelet hole work should always be done on an embroidery frame or ring if the holes are to be even and good in shape.

For table decoration, centrepiece, doylies, &c., eyelet work is far more effective than the filled in embroidery, although for this use both seem about equally popular.

The Italian cut work is also a fascinating employment if a girl is fond of such embroidery, and perhaps of all sewing the average girl would rather embroider than do plain needlework. It is strange, too, but a fact that there are any number of girls who can make really beautiful things in different kinds of embroidery who are helpless when it comes to a matter of simple mending. Certainly, though it is infinitely pleasanter to spend one's time on a piece of work that when finished will elicit the admiration of all than on the simple sewing and making of garments, which if useful never show the amount of time and labor expended upon them.

White Linen Parasols.

ONE of this year's most dainty fashions is the embroidered white linen parasol, and there are probably few girls who do not long to possess one. And the fact is that any girl who can embroider can have one, for it is not difficult to make.

If a girl is clever about putting things together accurately she can use the frame of any worn out parasol she may have. The silk can be ripped off and one piece used as a pattern to cut the linen pieces. These must be stitched together on the machine and then have the pattern stamped for the embroidery, which may be either quite simple or most elaborate, with lace medallions and insertions. They may also be made of either thin sheer linen, with a colored silk lining, or heavy linen, unlined.

After the embroidery is done the cover must be sewed on the frame, and that is the most difficult part of the work. However, any girl who thinks it will be too hard to make the whole parasol can buy a plain white linen one and do the embroidery herself. In doing the work on the finished parasol it is best to do it with the parasol open, as that holds the linen tight, like an embroidery frame. After it is finished it must be pressed on the wrong side, but with a little care an open parasol can be held on an ironing board while a moderately hot iron is used to press the embroidered linen.

Metal Work for Amateurs.

AMATEUR metal workers will be interested in two new methods of decorating brass desk pieces, jardinières, photograph frames, blotter corners, book ends, telephone registers, match safes, lanterns and pipe racks with classic designs or with bold patterns showing vines, grape leaves, laburnum, convolvulus, poinsettias and wild lilies or landscape and domestic scenes.

By one method a stamped sheet of brass, so thin that a sharp awl will readily penetrate it, is laid on blotting paper, and with the point of the awl the artist indents or punctures the outline of the stamped pattern.

In using the other method the design must first be outlined on the brass sheet and then chased with specially designed tools. After the chasing is accomplished the brass sheet is placed face downward on a planed block and the pattern hammered into high or low relief or developed after the repoussé manner. Because mistakes can be readily hammered out there is small danger that a novice will spoil a pattern, and as any articles which must be squared or bent have clearly indented lines they can readily be shaped by an amateur worker.

Outing Hats for Early Autumn

OUTING hats for early autumn are more than ever attractive looking and of varied design. The type which will best withstand the greatest amount of hard usage is composed of Mexican woven straw, which is so soft and pliable of texture that it may be bent, crushed or pinched without breaking. These broad brimmed, cone crowned hats are trimmed at the side or front with a single big silk cabochon or ribbon rosette, draped with chiffon veils or decked with wide ribbon streamers which cross the crown and are knotted at the nape of the neck.

Raffia braid hats of coolie or steeple crowned, wide brimmed shape are self trimmed, as they are woven in imitation of the designs and colorings used for Yukon baskets. The one-toned braid hats are ornamented with a single dark blue or green quill held in position by a raffia cabochon of matching hue, while the outing shapes in coarse straw are garnished with loosely braided straw bands of black or natural tone mixed with one bright color. Although the raffia and coarse straw braidings will stand considerable hard wear they are not nearly so light of weight or so convenient for travelling as are the unblocked Panama and Manila hats, which may be rolled into exceedingly small compass. They are trimmed with satin sashes or with scarfs of cream linen centred with moire ribbon, of chiffon, auto veiling or soft silk patterned in novel designs. Stitched white linen hats, which are brought forward each autumn as regularly as is the sailor hat each spring, have slightly depressed, moderately broad brims. Their steeple crowns are wound with a black, white or colored netted silk scarf.

Soft, wide brimmed crush hats of black, brown, white, pearl and champagne French felt are trimmed solely with wide bands of plain taffeta ribbon or with huge bows of moire and grosgrain.

Novel Fur Cushion.

WHEN travelling it is always a comfort to have a pin cushion, and yet the ordinary tightly stuffed bran cushion is a great bother to pack. It never seems to fit in any corner of the trunk. A much nicer one to take, and one that any girl can easily make for herself, is a flat cushion in the shape of a miniature mattress. This cushion can be packed most comfortably and can be hung upon any convenient hook wherever one may be staying for a day or two.

To make the cushion cut two pieces of white muslin seven and three-quarter inches wide. Stitch these together in a kind of bag, rounding the corners a good deal and leaving most of one end open in which to put the stuffing. Then turn the bag inside out and stuff it very tight with wool wadding; then sew up the open end.

Cover each side with some pretty silk and all around the edge put a ribbon three-quarters of an inch wide, giving the edges a square look like a mattress. This ribbon must be featherstitched on with embroidery silk; next make the tufting of the mattress with some of the same embroidery silk. This is done by putting two threads of the silk in a large needle, running it through from front to back and back again, then tying the ends very tight. After the silk is firmly tied it should be again tied, holding a few extra pieces of silk, which will give the tufting effect. This tufting is done in five places, the centre and an even distance between that and each corner.

The final touch is given by a bow at one corner and a loop to hang it up by, made of the ribbon that goes around the edge, and the cushion is finished.

Latest Paris Hatpins.

MAMMOTH dragon flies, beetles and four winged bugs duplicated in iridescent glass and metals of various hues or carved from horn and ivory form the tops of hat pins recently sent over from Paris. The head, legs and claws of these insects are usually of metal, while the eyes are of pearls, garnets or emeralds.

Cut crystal hat pins are another novelty. Some of them are mounted on white composition and are colorless, while others are set upon a peculiar metal which throws green, amber, blue or rose shades upon the glass according to the position in which the pin is held.

Among the pure white pins are some shaped like long, slender spikes, flat squares or pears incrusted with rhinestones or seed pearls, and one oddity with a small ball top has a larger sphere suspended from it by means of a tiny chain. Flat square topped pins are also to be had in amethyst, rose quartz and green kunzite; roses and clover blossoms are reproduced in hand carved coral pin tops and the omnipresent raffia braid is employed in the development of large, round pins. In these the braiding is wound over a metal circle, to which are attached jade, amber or turquoise beads, while a matching central stone is imbedded in an antique metal setting.

Attractive Suit Cases.

SMART looking dress suit cases, which will answer equally well for shirt waist boxes are capacious, albeit light weight affairs of brown or russet colored sole leather. They have ornamental brass locks and strap fastenings and are lined with substantial linen.

Still more attractive are the wicker suit cases having brown leather capped corners and leather straps. These are lined with heavy linen, as are also those of fibre grass, which are said to be waterproof.

Matting suit cases, strapped, cornered and lined with leather, are exceptionally substantial and capacious. They are only a trifle smaller than are the matting covered travelling hampers, which will do duty as a trunk, serve as a window seat and afford an excellent hiding place for soiled clothing while the owner is stopping at a hotel or a country house.

Raffia Belts.

RAFFIA belts to match the fibre bags are of various widths and close with buckles covered with raffia or made of white or tinted pearl, of enamelled metal or of silver in filigree effects. Finely woven raffia is employed for the Directoire belts, which have netted fibre streamers secured by a huge raffia ornament.

Next in favor are bronze leather belts of very shapely design, closing with bronzed metal buckles picked out with gold, and the girdles of flexible suede with white satin linings and pipings and large square suede covered buckles.

Among washable girdles are those of plain white linen, closing with invisible hooks and having an oddly shaped tailored pocket opening at the top and attached to the belt by very long stitched straps of silk elastic, flowered in natural colors, and of embroidered colored linen equipped with buckles of shell pearl permanently colored to harmonize with any costume.

Uses for Pongee Coat.

FOR a girl who expects to travel much one of the most useful of possessions is a long pongee coat. Of course, the uses of the pongee coat as a dust cloak in automobiling and driving are quite well known, but it is equally useful to take the place of a wrapper or bathrobe. It is certainly much more shipshape to slip on one of these coats when going to and from a bath or to the washroom on a sleeping car than to use an ordinary wrapper. Pongee has the advantage of washing beautifully, and the saving of space in a suit case or steamer trunk by taking one garment instead of two is another distinct advantage.

Fluffing the Hair.

TO make the hair which goes over the pompadour fluffy, some girls resort to the device of rough combing it underneath, which means running the comb backward over the hair, and then sprinkling powder over it underneath where it does not show when the hair is done up. Combing and powdering in this manner undeniably has a drying effect which makes for fluffiness, but both are too disastrous to the hair to be indulged in, for the rough combing breaks it, while the powder badly clogs the pores.

PRINCE OF WALES TO SOUTH AFRICA

Will Likely Open First Session of United Parliament There.

Cape Town, Aug. 19.—Efforts have already been set on foot to induce the Prince of Wales to visit South Africa in the autumn of next year to open the first session of the United Parliament there. It will be remembered that the Prince and Princess of Wales, as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, performed a similar ceremony in Australia a few years ago. A formal invitation has, at the moment of writing been sent to His Royal Highness, and there are reasons for believing that he will give the matter his very favourable consideration. Of recent years the Prince has been called upon to transact more and more of the business of State formerly attended to by the King in person, and this makes his engagements at home very heavy. It is believed, however, that he will be able to pass on some of this work to the Duke of Connaught, and thus leave himself free to go to South Africa. It is not anticipated that the Princess of Wales will accompany His Royal Highness on this trip, but she might eventually decide to do this. It is far more probable, however, that the Prince will take his eldest son, Prince Edward of Wales, with him, in order that he may see something of the outlying portions of the British Empire. This visit would, of necessity, have to be a very hurried one.

Sailors Were Abandoned On Uninhabited Island

Fourteen Japanese Sailors Tell An Extraordinary Story of a Struggle for Life---Three Died From Privation.

Tokio, August 20.—An extraordinary story is told by eleven Japanese, who claim to have been abandoned on an uninhabited island, whose name is charted as Gaspar Rico, and rescued by a German gunboat. They gained their livelihood by snaring birds and stuffing the skins on small islands off the Japan coast. With three others they arranged to charter a small sailing vessel of 75 tons, called the Hosa-Maru, belonging to Kawashima Heiji, of Tokio, and extend their operations further afield. Accordingly they left Shinagawa Bay on the vessel, accompanied by a Captain Minagawa Tomolichi, on June 17 last year, and on Aug. 27 arrived at a small island, whose name they did not know. They were landed, and the vessel departed, the captain promising to return to the island without fail in January to fetch the men off, and leaving a supply of provisions sufficient to last them till that time. The vessel did not put in an appearance, and as the month wore on the men became alarmed.

Without Provision.

Their supply of provisions had run very low, and towards the end of the month they reduced their rations to the smallest amount commensurate with existence, and discontinued work. Every day they went up to the highest point of the island and scanned the horizon for the little vessel, and watched by turns. Early in February their supply of provisions completely ran out, and from morning to night they wandered about on the shore, catching fish or digging the eggs of sea-birds out of the sand, and just managed to eke out a bare subsistance. For drinking purposes they had to distil the sea water, but unfortunately, on Feb. 7 the utensil which they used for that purpose was accidentally broken, and they were left to depend for their supply of drinking water on the scanty showers of rain which occasionally fell, carefully storing it in the vessel they had. They were now reduced to a most miserable plight, and hourly awaited death. On March 27, for the first time, they espied a vessel, but it was not the Hosa-maru. It proved to be a small German pleasure yacht cruising in the South Sea.

Disappointed Hopes

The vessel anchored at the island and remained there five days. Those on board landed and discovered the stranded men, but could not understand what they said, and did not appear to realise the gravity of the situation in which the men were placed. However, they rendered some assistance, but were unable to take the Japanese off the island, owing to the small size of their vessel. The yacht then departed, and the marooned struggled to keep life in them in the hope of rescue in a few days. However, it was not until May 8 that they were succoured. On that day the German gunboat Dorie, accompanied by two steamers, arrived at the island and the Japanese were rescued. On May 21 they arrived at Hong Kong, to which they had been transferred by the gunboat, and were subsequently sent to Japan. They numbered 14 when they left Shinagawa Bay a year ago, but three of them died from privations on the island.

Mr. and Mrs. Medbury Have Decided To Give Up Slang The Result Of The Attempt

"For goodness sake, John," said Mrs. Medbury "be more careful in the language you use around the house. I've been intending to speak to you about it for some time, but it got away from me.'

"What's the kick?" demanded her husband indignantly. "You don't hear me spilling any profanity or anything like that, do you?"

"No, but you will talk slang!" protested Mrs. Medbury, "and I'm getting into the habit so that I'm ashamed to talk to my friends. It's fierce, I mean it's distressing!"

"I never noticed you talking slang," said Medbury. "Besides, everybody talks a little slang nowadays. What's the principal noise about?"

"There you go now!" said his wife sharply. "You talk that way two-thirds of the time, and I can't help falling for some of it myself—I would say, unconsciously assimilating expressions from your conversation. When any of my friends call I'm in a nervous tremor all the time for fear I'll forget myself and make some kind of horrible break. They're not used to it."

"Oh, I guess you're not so bad," protested Medbury. "They can stand for anything you hand them without straining themselves. I'd like to see any of your set that you don't shape up with on the conversational thing when you put yourself to it."

"That's the trouble," went on Mrs. Medbury, "and that's why I wish you would cut out some of your slang. Then in time I could break myself of the habit. Only this afternoon Mrs. Miggles and Mrs. Jasper were here making arrangements about the lawn party at the church next week, and we got talking about the servant girl problem. I told them how annoying Minnie has been and how we planned to let her go, and in my absent-minded way, what do you think it was that I said?"

"Well, I was telling them how Minnie was growing more impertinent every day, and I said: 'I think she knows that I'm fixing to put the rollers under her.'"

Medbury pounded his knee with his open palm and shrieked with laughter.

Mrs. Medbury bit her lip and frowned. "You see!" she exclaimed. "That's the way it goes, and it's all your fault. You've simply got to talk better English around the house, because I'm sure all the women I know are beginning to get wised up on me, and the first thing I know I'll find myself getting ditched — I mean snubbed and ignored. It's really a serious thing, John, and I don't see where you get such a big laugh out of it."

"Neither do I," admitted Medbury. "I'm trying to be serious, no matter how painful. You know I ain't there with that long-faced stuff very much, but I'm really going to try to help you out. I can see where you're likely to get in wrong with these dames that aren't Joseph to our line of talk, and it isnt right. I appreciate that. I'm going to chop."

"Oh, will you try, John?" exclaimed Mrs. Medbury eagerly. "That's fine and dandy! We've simply got to frame it up some way so we won't use so much slang. Don't you see it my way?"

"Surest thing you know, kiddo!" exclaimed Medbury enthusiastically. "You can count on me being there with my hair in a braid when it comes to the reform gag. Nothing but the purest wells of English undefiled goes after this—just watch my smoke.'"

"That's the real goods!" said his wife in delight. "Now I know we can put it over."—Boston Post.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle

"Nay, Edith," said the young Squire, laughing back at the laughing girl. "I was indeed coming to Cosford."

"Then we shall ride back together, for I will go no farther. How think you that I am looking?"

Nigel's answer was in his eyes as he glanced at the fair flushed face, the golden hair, the sparkling eyes and the daintily graceful figure set off in a scarlet-and-black riding-dress. "You are as fair as ever, Edith."

"Oh, cold of speech! Surely you were bred for the cloisters and not for a lady's bower, Nigel. Had I asked such a question from young Sir George Brocas or the Squire of Fernhurst, he would have raved from here to Cosford. They are both more to my taste than you are, Nigel."

"It is the worse for me, Edith," said Nigel ruefully.

"Nay, but you must not lose heart."

"Have I not already lost it?" said he.

"That is better," she cried, laughing. "You can be quick enough when you choose, Master Malapert. But you are more fit to speak of high and weary matters with my sister Mary. She will have none of the prattle and courtesy of Sir George, and yet I love them well. But tell me, Nigel, why do you come to Cosford to-night?"

"To bid you farewell."

"Me alone?"

"Nay, Edith, you and your sister Mary and the good knight your father."

"Sir George would have said that he had come for me alone. Indeed you are but a poor courtier beside him. But is it true, Nigel, that you go to France?"

"Yes, Edith."

"It was so rumored after the King had been to Tilford. The story goes that the King goes to France and you in his train. Is that true?"

"Yes, Edith, it is true."

"Tell me, then, to what part you go, and when?"

"That, alas! I may not say."

"Oh, in sooth!" She tossed her fair head and rode onward in silence, with compressed lips and angry eyes.

Nigel glanced at her in surprise and dismay. "Surely, Edith," said he at last, "you have overmuch regard for my honor that you should wish me to break the word that I have given?"

"Your honor belongs to you, and my likings belong to me," said she.

They rode in silence through Thursley village. Then a thought came to her mind and in an instant her anger was forgotten and she was hot on a new scent.

"What would you do if I were injured, Nigel? I have heard my father say that small as you are there is no man in these parts could stand against you. Would you be my champion if I suffered wrong?"

"Surely I or any man of gentle blood would be the champion of any woman who had suffered wrong."

"You or any and I or any—what sort of speech is that? Is it a compliment, think you, to be mixed with a drove in that fashion? My question was of you and me. If I were wronged would you be my man?"

"Try me and see, Edith!"

"Then I will do so, Nigel. Either Sir George Brocas or the Squire of Fernhurst would gladly do what I ask, and yet I am of a mind, Nigel, to turn to you."

"I pray you to tell me what it is."

"You know Paul de la Fosse of Shalford?"

"You mean the small man with the twisted back?"

"He is no smaller than yourself, Nigel, and as to his back there are many folk that I know who would be glad to have his face."

"Nay, I am no judge of that, and I spoke out of no discourtesy. What of the man?"

"He has flouted me, Nigel, and I would have revenge."

"What—on that poor twisted creature?"

"I tell you that he has flouted me!"

"But how?"

"I should have thought that a true cavalier would have flown to my aid, withouten all these questions. But I will tell you, since I needs must. Know then that he was one of those who came around me and professed to be my own. Then, merely because he thought that there were others who were as dear to me as himself he left me, and now he pays court to Maude Twynham, the little freckle-faced hussy in his village."

"But how has this hurt you, since he was no man of thine?"

"He was one of my men, was he not? And he has made game of me to his wench. He has told her things about me. He has made me foolish in her eyes. Yes, yes, I can read it in her saffron face and in her watery eyes when we meet at the church door on Sundays. She smiles—yes, smiles at me! Nigel, go to him! Do not slay him, nor even wound him, but lay his face open with thy riding-whip, and then come back to me and tell me how I can serve you."

Nigel's face was haggard with the strife within, for desire ran hot in every vein, and yet reason shrank with horror. "By Saint Paul! Edith," he cried, "I see no honor nor advancement of any sort in this thing which you have asked me to do. Is it for me to strike one who is no better than a cripple? For my manhood I could not do such a deed, and I pray you, dear lady, that you will set me some other task."

Her eyes flashed at him in contempt. "And you are a man-at-arms!" she cried, laughing in bitter scorn. "You are afraid of a little man who can scarce walk. Yes, yes, say what you will, I shall ever believe that you have heard of his skill at fence and of his great spirit, and that your heart has failed you! You are right, Nigel. He is indeed a perilous man. Had you done what I asked he would have slain you, and so you have shown your wisdom."

Nigel flushed and winced under the words, but he said no more, for his mind was fighting hand within him, striving to keep that high image of woman which seemed for a moment to totter on the edge of a fall. Together in silence, side by side, the little man and the stately woman, the yellow charger and the white jennet, passed up the sandy winding track with the gorse and the bracken head-high on either side. Soon a path branched off through a gateway marked with the boar-heads of the Buttesthorns, and there was the low widespread house heavily timbered, loud with the barking of dogs. The ruddy Knight limped forth with outstretched hand and roaring voice:

"What how, Nigel! Good welcome and all hail! I had thought that you had given over poor friends like us, now that the King had made so much of you. The horses, varlets, or my crutch will be across you! Hush, Lydiard! Down, Pelamon! I can scarce hear my voice for your yelping. Mary, a cup of wine for young Squire Loring!"

She stood framed in the doorway, tall, mystic, silent, with strange, wistful face and deep soul shining in her dark, questioning eyes. Nigel kissed the hand that she held out, and all his faith in woman and his reverence came back to him as he looked at her. Her sister had slipped behind her and her fair elfish face smiled her forgiveness of Nigel over Mary's shoulder.

The Knight of Duplin leaned his weight upon the young man's arm and limped his way across the great high-roofed hall to his capacious oaken chair. "Come, come, the stool, Edith!" he cried. "As God is my help, that girl's mind swarms with gallants as a granary with rats. Well, Nigel, I hear strange tales of your spear-running at Tilford and of the visit of the King. How seemed he? And my old friend Chandos—many happy hours in the woodlands have we had together—and Manny, too, he was ever a bold and hard rider—what news of them all?"

Nigel told to the old Knight all that had occurred, saying little of his own success and much of his own failure, yet the eyes of the dark woman burned the brighter as she sat at her tapestry and listened.

Sir John followed the story with a running fire of oaths, prayers, thumps with his great fist and flourishes of his crutch. "Well, well, lad, you could scarce expect to hold your saddle against Manny, and you have carried yourself well. We are proud of you, Nigel, for you are our own man, reared in the heather country. But indeed I take shame that you are not more skilled in the mystery of the woods, seeing that I have had the teaching of you, and that no one in broad England is my master at the craft. I pray you to fill your cup again whilst I make use of the little time that is left to us."

And straightway the old Knight began a long and weary lecture upon the times of grace and when each beast and bird was seasonable, with many anecdotes, illustrations, warnings and exceptions, drawn from his own great experience. He spoke also of the several ranks and grades of the chase: how the hare, hart and boar must ever take precedence over the buck, the doe, the fox, the marten and the roe, even as a knight banneret does over a knight, while these in turn are of a higher class to the badger, the wildcat or the otter, who are but the common populace of the world of beasts. Of bloodstains also he spoke—how the skilled hunter may see at a glance if blood be dark and frothy, which means a mortal hurt, or thin and clear, which means that the arrow has struck a bone.

"By such signs," said he, "you will surely know whether to lay on the hounds and cast down the blinks which hinder the stricken deer in its flight. But above all I pray you, Nigel, to have a care in the use of the terms of the craft, lest you should make some blunder at table, so that those who are wiser may have the laugh of you, and we who love you may be shamed."

"Nay, Sir John," said Nigel, "I think that after your teaching I can hold my place with the others."

The old Knight shook his white head doubtfully. "There is so much to be learned that there is no one who can be said to know all," said he. "For example, Nigel, it is sooth that for every collection of beasts of the forest, and for every gathering of birds of the air, there is their own private name so that none may be confused with another."

"I know it, fair sir."

"You know it, Nigel, but you do not know each separate name, else are you a wiser man than I had thought you. In truth none can say that they know all, though I have myself picked off eighty and six for a wager at court, and it is said that the chief huntsman of the Duke of Burgundy has counted over a hundred—but it is in my mind that he may have found them as he went, for there was none to say him nay. Answer me now, lad, how would you say if you saw ten badgers together in the forest?"

"A cete of badgers, fair sir."

"Good, Nigel—good, by my faith! And if you walk in Woolmer Forest and see a swarm of foxes, how would you call it?"

"A skulk of foxes."

"And if they be lions?"

"Nay, fair sir, I am not like to meet several lions in Woolmer Forest."

"Aye, lad, but there are other forests besides Woolmer, and other lands besides England, and who can tell how far afield such a knight errant as Nigel of Tilford may go, when he sees worship to be won? We will say that you were in the desert of Nubia, and that afterward at the court of the great Sultan you wished to say that you had seen several lions, which is the first beast of the chase, being the king of all animals. How then would you say it?"

Nigel scratched his head. "Surely, fair sir, I would be content to say that I had seen a number of lions, if indeed I could say aught after so wondrous an adventure."

"Nay, Nigel, a huntsman would have said that he had seen a pride of lions, and so proved that he knew the language of the chase. Now had it been boars instead of lions?"

"One says a singular of boars."

"And if they be swine?"

"Surely it is a herd of swine."

"Nay, nay, lad, it is indeed sad to see how little your know. Your hands, Nigel, were always better than your head. No man of gentle birth would speak of a herd of swine; that is the peasant speech. If you drive them it is a herd. If you hunt them it is other. What call you them, then, Edith?"

"Nay, I know not," said the girl listlessly. A crumpled note brought in by a varlet was clinched in her right hand and her blue eyes looked afar into the deep shadows of the roof.

"But you can tell us, Mary?"

"Surely, sweet sir, one talks of a sounder of swine."

The old Knight laughed exultantly. "Here is a pupil who never brings me shame!" he cried. "Be it lore of chivalry or heraldry or woodcraft or what you will, I can always turn to Mary. Many a man can she put to the blush."

"Myself among them," said Nigel.

"Ah, lad, you are a Solomon to some of them. Hark ye! only last week that jack-fool, the young Lord of Brocas, was here talking of having seen a covey of pheasants in the wood. One such speech would have been the ruin of a young Squire at the court. How would you have said it, Nigel?"

"Surely, fair sir, it should be a nye of pheasants."

"Good, Nigel—a nye of pheasants, even as it is a gaggle of geese or a badling of ducks, a fall of woodcock or a wisp of snipe. But a covey of pheasants! What sort of talk is that? I made him sit even where you are sitting, Nigel, and I saw the bottom of two pots of Rhenish ere I let him up. Even then I fear that he had no great profit from his lesson, for he was casting his foolish eyes at Edith when he should have been turning his ears to her father. But where is the wench?"

"She hath gone forth, father."

"She ever doth go forth when there is a chance of learning aught that is useful indoors. But supper will soon be ready, and there is a boar's ham fresh from the forest with which I would ask your help, Nigel, and a side of venison from the King's own chase. The tinemen and verderers have not forgotten me yet, and my larder is ever full. Blow three moots on the horn, Mary, that the varlets may set the table, for the shadow and my loosening belt warn me that it is time."

CHAPTER XII.

In the days of which you read all classes, save perhaps the very poor, fared better in meat and in drink than they have ever done since. The country was covered with woodlands—there were seventy separate forests in England alone, some of them covering half a shire. Within these forests the great beasts of the chase were strictly preserved, but the smaller game, the hares, the rabbits, the birds, which swarmed round the coverts, found their way readily into the poor man's pot. Ale was very cheap, and cheaper still was the mead which every peasant could make for himself out of the wild honey in the tree-trunks. There were many tea-like drinks also, which were brewed by the poor at no expense: mallow tea, tansy tea, and others the secret of which has passed.

Amid the richer classes there was rude profusion, great joints ever on the sideboard, huge pasties—all the nose and ceases of the chase, with ale and rough French or Rhenish wines to wash them down. But the very rich had attained to a high pitch of luxury in their food, and cookery was a science in which the ornamentation of the dish was almost as important as the dressing of the food. It was gilded, it was silvered, it was painted, it was surrounded with flame. From the boar and the peacock down to such strange food as the porpoise and the hedgehog, every dish had its own setting and its own sauce, very strange and very complex, with flavorings of dates, currents, cloves, vinegar, sugar and honey, of cinnamon, ground ginger, sandalwood, saffron, brawn and pines. It was the Norman tradition to eat in moderation, but to have a great profusion of the best and the most delicate from which the choose. From them came this complex cookery, so unlike the rude and often gluttonous simplicity of the old Teutonic stock.

Sir John Butteethorn was of that middle class who fared in the old fashion, and his great oak supper-table groaned beneath the generous pasties, the mighty joints and the great flagons. Below were the household, above on a raised dais the family table, with places ever ready for those frequent guests who dropped in from the high road outside. Such a one had just come, an old priest, journeying from the Abbey of Chertsey to the Priory of Saint John at Midhurst. He passed often that way, and never without breaking his journey at the hospitable board of Cosford.

"Welcome again, good Father Athanasius!" cried the burly Knight. "Come sit here on my right and give me the news of the country-side, for there is never a scandal but the priests are the first to know it."

The priest, a kindly, quiet man, glanced at an empty place upon the farther side of his host. "Mistress Edith?" said he.

"Aye, aye, where is the hussy?" cried her father impatiently. "Mary, I beg you to have the horn blown again, that she may know that the supper is on the table. What can the little owlet do abroad at this hour of the night?"

There was trouble in the priest's gentle eyes as he touched the Knight upon the sleeve. "I have seen Mistress Edith within this hour," said he. "I fear that she will hear no horn that you may blow, for she must be at Milford ere now."

"At Milford? What does she there?"

"I pray you, good Sir John, to abate your voice somewhat, for indeed this matter is for our private discourse, since it touches the honor of a lady."

"Her honor?" Sir John's ruddy face had turned redder still, as he stared at the troubled features of the priest. "Her honor, say you—the honor of my daughter? Make good those words, or never set your foot over the threshold of Cosford again!"

"I trust that I have done no wrong, Sir John, but indeed I must say what I have seen, else would I be a false friend and an unworthy priest."

"Haste man, haste! What in the Devil's name have you seen?"

"Know you a little man, partly misshapen, named Paul de la Fosse?"

"I know him well. He is a man of noble family and coat-armor, being the younger brother of Sir Eustace de la Fosse of Shalford. Time was when I had thought that I might call him son, for there was never a day that he did not pass with my girls, but I fear that his crooked back sped him ill in his wooing."

"Alas, Sir John! It is his mind that is more crooked than his back. He is a perilous man with women, for the Devil hath given him such a tongue and such an eye that he charms them even as the basilisk. Marriage may be in their mind, but never in his, so that I could count a dozen and more whom he has led to their undoing. It is his pride and his boast over the whole countryside."

"Well, well, and what is this to me or mine?"

"Even now, Sir John, as I rode my mule up the road I met this man speeding toward his home. A woman rode by his side, and though her face was hooded I heard her laugh as she passed me. That laugh I have heard before, and it was under this very roof, from the lips of Mistress Edith."

The Knight's knife dropped from his hand. But the debate had been such that neither Mary nor Nigel could fail to have heard it. Mid the rough laughter and clatter of voices from below the little group at the high table had a privacy of their own.

"Fear not, father," said the girl—"indeed, the good Father Athanasius hath fallen into error and Edith will be with us anon. I have heard her speak of this man many times of late, and always with bitter words."

"It is true, sir," cried Nigel eagerly. "It was only this very evening as we rode over Thursley Moor that Mistress Edith told me that she counted him not a fly, and that she would be glad if he were beaten for his evil deeds."

But the wise priest shook his silvery locks. "Nay, there is ever danger when a woman speaks like that. Hot hate is twin brother to hot love. Why should she speak so if there were not some bond between them?"

"And yet," said Nigel, "what can have changed her thoughts in three hours? She was here in the hall with us since I came. By Saint Paul, I will not believe it!"

Mary's face darkened. "I call to mind," said she, "that a note was brought her by Hannekin the stable varlet when you were talking to us, fair sir, of the terms of the chase. She read it and went forth."

Results of analysis by Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture:

ORANGE MEAT is simply the whole wheat berry, steam cooked, mixed with malt, flaked and toasted. This process develops in each wheat berry the highest percentage of grape sugars. It converts the starches into a form most easily digested and assimilated.

Shower Baths On Pavement
Baltimore's Novel Project

Tents Divided into Lockers and Bath Rooms are Placed in the Populous Part of the City.

PLAN A SUCCESS

Baltimore has just worked out a new project for its tenement children—one of the most popular charities of the year.

It's shower baths.

Tents, divided into locker rooms and bath rooms, have been placed out on the pavement in the populous centres of the city, where the children—and grownups, too—can take a cooling, refreshing bath in the hot part of the day. They have had all the patronage they could handle.

The bath tents, which are 14 feet by 34, only cost $150 to equip, including everything, and do $1,000 worth of good.

For a city which wants to give the help of clean, cool baths to its poor children, and whose finances won't stand the strain of $25,000 or $50,000 permanent buildings, the tent system of Baltimore is to be commended.

The Associated Charities of the city started the plan early this summer, assisted by the city departments. Money was subscribed, and the city water department allowed mains to be tapped and all the water wanted free.

Rent, lumber for the floors, connections, piping, towels and all, only cost $150 in the first tent constructed. So popular did it become at once, that several more were started. The city charities department will take up the work on a bigger scale next year.

The people come to the bath tents, are given towels and tickets for their clothes. They put their clothes in one section of the tent, then hurry to get under the water. In one of the later tents, which is slightly larger, a stove has been installed so that hot water as well as cold can be furnished.

Two days a week the tents are given up to girls and women. Matrons from the charity headquarters take charge of them on those days.

PRETTIEST BACK IN THE WORLD

"Excuse my back."

Ordinarily we don't like to have people turn their backs on us. But charming Lotta Faust, the dancer, can do this every day, and get away with it.

For Lotta Faust, artists and critics agree, has the prettiest back in the world. As she is on the stage, she doesn't conceal it under a bushel of draperies.

Lotta is shown in the picture in the costume of the Spanish ballerino, a part she fits into as perfectly as if she were born in Andalusia in the time of Ferdinand and Isabella, instead of at Berlin.

FOSTER'S WEATHER FORECAST
FROM AUGUST 21st TO 27th

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 21 to 25, warm wave 20 to 24, cool wave 23 to 27. This disturbance was expected to cause severe weather on Pacific coast, a few shower east of Rockies and temperature averaging above normal.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific Coast about 26, cross Pacific slope by close of 27, great central valleys 28 to 30, eastern states and provinces 31. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 26, great central valleys 28, eastern states and provinces 30. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 29, great central valleys—longitude 105 to 85—about 31, eastern states and provinces Sept. 2nd.

This disturbance will inaugurate a ten days' period of severe storms and radical weather. I do not expect the storms of this disturbance to be as severe as those centring on July 17, but I advise all my readers to take no unnecessary risks from August 27 to September 6.

My frequent warnings as to the dangerous storms during the week centring on July 16, were the most complete and successful long-range forecasts of dangerous storms that have ever been published. The five days of which July 16 was central, were given as days of great danger from storms and earthquakes. All around the earth the storms and earthquakes were excedingly severe during those five days. Now look out for Aug. 27 to Sept. 6. The electric shock is expected September 4th, but severe storms will continue throughout the ten days.

The last week of August does not promise relief to the drouth districts. The hot weather will continue up to Sept. 4, and the long period of high temperatures will try the endurance of those who may not possess robust health. That long, hot, dry spell will determine, to a large extent, future prices of corn.

Probabilities are that eastern provinces of Canada will be too dry, while the middle provinces will be too wet for spring wheat. As heretofore stated northern killing frosts are expected Sept. 13 to 17.

These forecasts now cover all of this year's crop weather except for cotton and grain. Business promises to be good and the people of North America may expect prosperous years in the immediate future. They may also expect to see planetary meteorology gain a great victory over all other systems.

The DAY of the DUEL

A CANCELLED ACCOUNT.

(Copyright, 1900, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

IT was well toward the end of the second act. The tension of the stage situation having been lightened by a touch of comedy, there was a general relaxation in the close attention of the audience. Fans began to wave and silks to rustle, while here and there a head was turned askis toward this or that part of the house.

Clemence Hoyt leaned back in her chair in the right stage box and whispered to her escort, Benjamin Price. He glanced at her and bent nearer to hear her remark.

"I said that there is a gentleman in the next box who is making himself unbearable."

Price looked around quickly. In the adjoining railed space sat a young man in conventional dress who returned his stare in a manner that he easily interpreted as being highly offensive.

"Do you say that he has been annoying you?" he asked his companion.

"Since he came in he has not ceased to do as he is doing now. He is attracting notice by his behavior. it is most embarrassing."

Price turned about again and frowned angrily at the person thus complained of. The young man did not cease to use his eyes to best advantage. In a sudden gesture, as the act was brought to a close and scattering applause came from the house, Price leaned far over the intervening railing and struck the offending gentleman across the cheek with his open hand.

The object of this attack sat motionless in his chair a moment, his face showing white, save where the blow had left its mark in red. Few persons had witnessed the incident, for in that second the climax had claimed renewed interest. The young man rose slowly and made his way out of the box. A moment later he appeared in the doorway of the one in which Price was seated.

"May I see you a moment, sir?" he said.

Price, in spite of the agitation of Clemence, met him at the threshold and they continued in low tones.

"Sir," said the stranger indignantly, "you have grossly and publicly insulted me. May I know the reason?"

"Certainly, sir," returned Price. "The young lady with whom I am seated complained of your persistence in staring at her. You would not obey my signal to desist and I took the only course open to me."

"I protest," said the other with dignity and warmth. "that I was entirely free from any desire to convey offense. You must be sensible, sir, that your companion is most charming. I am Lieutenant Green, of the British service. I have been in New York but a few days. As a stranger I am, perhaps, too curious, a fact which at times may seem to lead me beyond a reserved attitude when persons or things attract me. I assure you again that my persistence, as you say, was nothing more than an involuntary tribute to the remarkable beauty of the young lady."

It was a singular speech, yet one that reflected credit upon its author, whose youth, direct address and manly bearing removed all traces of weakness from his words. Price recognized a frank and generous personality and accepted the apology in the spirit which dictated it. He extended a hand impulsively.

Lieutenant's Apology.

"I hope you will forgive me for my hot temper," he said. "Your explanation has been more than satisfactory. I am sincerely sorry that, as a stranger, you should have been subjected to such unpleasantness and doubly sorry that I should have been its agent. I am Benjamin Price, of — Vesey street. If you are prolonging your stay I trust you will honor me with a visit."

Green returned the handclasp in friendly manner and after an exchange of bows the two parted. Clemence, who had followed their movements, asked Price anxiously what had been said. He described the lieutenant's apology and assured her, to her great relief, that the affair had been amicably arranged. The occupant of the neighboring box carefully refrained from glancing in their direction during the rest of the performance.

Two months later Green had joined his regiment in Quebec. He found himself, as a newcomer, slightly out of it among his brother officers and set himself to remove the cause. In this he quickly discovered that one of the young men with whom he was thrown, Captain Wilson, nourished animosity against him. It was an instinctive clash of opposing natures, and though Green did nothing to aggravate the difference he found himself drawn more and more into a position of open antagonism to Wilson. The trouble came to a head one morning at breakfast. A trifling argument had set the two at odds.

"I trust that if occasion requires you will be able to display more spirit than you did recently in New York," was the remark of Wilson that silenced the mess table.

Green, always pacific, made no reply.

"What do you mean, Wilson?" asked one of the others.

"Why, a friend of mine in New York writes me of a most extraordinary incident. Lieutenant Green, as it appears, was attending a public performance at a theatre. He was in a box, prominently placed before all, when a young blood rose and slapped him across the face. It was supposed by those who saw what happened that reparation would be had in some form. On the contrary, as I am informed, there was no further action in the matter."

The officers of the mess, none of whom had been friendly with Green since his arrival, broke into exclamations of indignation.

"Is this true, Green?" asked Craig, the one who had spoken before.

"It is true, in part," returned Green. "But it concerns no one except myself. The gentleman apologized."

"Let me tell you, sir," said Wilson, sharply, "that under the code of honor there is no possible apology for a blow and no possible satisfaction short of a meeting on the field. You seem to be singularly ill informed concerning a matter which a gentleman must feel and know. As to your extraordinary statement that it concerns yourself alone, allow me to point out that you fail to perceive your responsibility to the service and to the regiment. If I must descend to elementals, sir, our traditions hold that you have brought contempt upon all who are associated with you by such conduct."

Green's temper was not proof against the domineering tone.

PRICE DREW A LARGE HANDKERCHIEF FROM HIS POCKET, AND, WITH THE SMOKING PISTOL STILL IN HIS HAND, WAVED IT TOWARD THE MANHATTAN SHORE.

"I accept no dictation in my personal affairs," he returned, hotly. "I must insist upon being allowed to arrange my private relations as I see fit."

Craig intervened.

"Kindly refrain from raising your voice, sir," he said. "You will not be permitted to quarrel with Captain Wilson, even should you be so disposed."

"Quarrel with me," sneered Wilson. "He has not the right. I tell you gentlemen, Lieutenant Green has put a reproach upon all of us and I cannot bring myself to have further dealings with one who has so unfortunately conducted himself. I think you will bear me out that until he removes the stain under which he rests he is not entitled to the consideration due a fellow officer of untainted honor."

The universal support which Wilson's words received showed Green how isolated was his position. He cast forward into what his life would be with these men under the system of ostracism they had prepared for him and he could not bring himself to face it. He would be little better than a pariah, despised, avoided, continually reminded of his cowardice.

"I hope there is no one here who thinks so ill of me that he will believe I avoided an encounter through fear of it," he said. "If the incident ended at the theatre it was because I believed myself the first, if unwitting, offender. Since I seem to have committed a breach of the code I stand willing to do anything you may suggest to prove that the fact was through ignorance of its demands."

"The only way to establish it is to return and fight the man who struck you," said Wilson, and he was borne out by the others.

"Then if that is the way that is what I shall do," said Green. "I plead but one thing. I am no shot and I must have time to bring my pistol practice up to a favorable standard."

"That is entirely reasonable," said Craig. And there the arrangement rested.

During the next three weeks Green practised with dueling arms for five hours each day. While he had had no previous experience with shooting, he applied himself so assiduously to this employment that by the time he could obtain passage on a vessel bound for New York he was able to hit a silver dollar at ten paces, nine shots out of ten.

Benjamin Price had nearly forgotten the affair with the British officer in the old Park Theatre. His engagement to Clemence Hoyt had been announced and the wedding was but a week distant. It was a rude shock that came to him through the medium of a letter the day after Green landed in New York for the second time:—

"Sir—You will recall that on a recent occasion you went so far as to offer me personal violence. There is no need to inform you that but one honorable method of making amends is open to you. Mr. Johnson, a friend of mine, will call upon any one you may designate to act for you. Your obedient servant,

"TERHUNE GREEN,
"Lieutenant, H. M., —th Regt."

Price was astounded. He could scarcely believe that the communication actually came from Green or that it was not some prank of an acquaintance. Running back over the incident he remembered that it had been satisfactorily adjusted and that there had been no suggestion of remaining ill will. However, mysterious as it was, the note called for response and he asked a friend to investigate it and act for him if it was really what it purported to be. The friend returned with the information that the writer of the note was indeed Green, that he was irreconcilable and that Price must fight or be branded a poltroon.

Sadly Adjusted Himself.

The young man adjusted himself sadly to the stern demand that had come so like an ominous flash of lightning. He had no thought to evade it. Such a proceeding would have been repugnant alike to his own convictions and the feeling of the persons with whom he was associated. The grim wantonness of fate that had dug up this dead quarrel and thrust it so inopportunely upon him found him without anger but ready for the issue. One thing he carefully guarded against was that any word of the impending duel should reach the ears of Clemence Hoyt. Her he desired to protect as long as it lay in his power. Should the outcome be unfortunate for himself he knew that he could not keep from her the knowledge that she herself had been the indirect cause of the combat.

As to the reason for the strange reawakening of Green's tenderness as to his honor, when in the spur and heat of the affront he had freely forgiven the blow, the problem was too much for Price. No explanation was afforded his second. The Lieutenant's word was that a blow had passed and that he was entitled to satisfaction. Before leaving his home early in the morning three days later for the scene of the meeting Price wrote out the circumstances and added an affectionate farewell to the beautiful woman whose marriage to him was set for a time but a matter of hours distant. Then, with his second, he embarked in a small boat upon the Hudson.

The ground chosen was near Hoboken. According to the terms fixed by Price the weapons were dueling pistols, at fifteen paces, each to fire at the word. The young New Yorker arrived to find his challenger already awaiting him, and it was with some curiosity that he regarded the man he had not seen since exchanging apologies with him months before. Green was pale and rather nervous. He conversed in a low voice with his second, Johnson, a retired British officer, apparently giving him final instructions. He avoided Price's glance. Price himself was cool but grave. He did not respond to a light tone of comment assumed by his second in an attempt to relieve the situation.

The distance was paced off carefully and the pistols, brought by Price, were loaded and handed to the principals. As the two men faced each other Green looked his opponent in the face for the first time. He flushed, but did not flinch. His belief in the rule of conduct so forcibly pointed out to him was complete, and whatever natural feeling of repugnance he might have had in thus reviving a forgiven injury was overcome by the conviction that his move was absolutely necessary to reinstate himself as a gentleman.

The sun was high in the sky when the men took their positions. They were placed so that neither had the advantage as to light. Their weapons were held downward at their sides, not to be raised until the final word.

"Are you ready?" asked Price's second.

They repeated the word simultaneously.

"One, two, three, fire!"

The two arms came up swiftly to a level and the pistols spoke as one. Without a word or gesture Price fell forward on his knees and then sideways to the ground. The bullet had passed through his heart. Green was untouched. The British officer rowed directly down the river into the bay, where he caught a vessel bound for Plymouth. The seconds fled in the remaining boat. Price's body was not discovered until late in the afternoon. On a paper pinned to his breast was the legend:—

"This is Benjamin Price, of No. —— Vesey st., New York. Take care of him."

Three years had passed. Clemence Hoyt had not married. After the death of her intended husband almost on their wedding day she had passed a year in retirement, from which she emerged thin and pale, but insatiably eager for company, gayety and a life crowded with color, light and movement. She was extremely striking in her beauty, which had gained in fire and interest. She became the leader of a dashing set and was always to be found where the rout was most brilliant. Her friends marvelled, but those who knew her best could look at times beneath the careless, flighty manner she affected and could find there a need for distraction that was almost desperate in its intensity. Some thought her shallow, but there were a few who could understand the depth of her feeling.

During the winter several visitors from overseas were introduced into the circle where Clemence moved. One of these was Captain Tobias Wilson, lately stationed at Quebec. His dashing ways and handsome appearance won him popularity and he was in demand for the social affairs of the season. Thrown much with Clemence, his admiration for the girl soon became pronounced. Nor did she repulse his advances. It began to be rumored that an engagement was to be expected, though in truth the affair had not progressed to that point. Captain Wilson never heard the name of Benjamin Price, since it was tacitly omitted by those who knew the story.

Clemence was one of a group one evening when the gallant captain, recounting adventures in the Canadas, mentioned the name of Lieutenant Green in a merely incidental and rather slighting connection. She made no comment at the time, but later, when they were alone in a corner of the drawing room, she checked a softer strain of conversation with which he ventured to address her by recalling Green.

"There was a Lieutenant Green here in New York not long ago," she said, as if trying to recollect.

"Ah, you heard of him then," returned the Captain. "The cub turned out fairly well; he's in India now, I believe. I suppose you remember the duel in which he figured."

She nodded, with compressed lips.

"Now here's an odd thing about that duel," he went on, seeing an opportunity to bring himself forward in a dominant and essentially masculine rôle. "Green was impossible, you know, when he came to Quebec. Actually, he had suffered mortal in the hands of this man Price and had not taken It came to our ears and we, that is I, insisted return and wipe out his disgrace. Glad, the had to do it, and he did."

She looked at him with wide eyes.

"I—I don't think I understand," she said fa

"Why, you know, Green could never have h his head again if he had let that pass—a sla the whole service. He'd actually shaken han apologized, after Price struck him. Quite imp As it was, I couldn't induce him to take it up until I showed him he'd be barred by every on didn't."

"Then you made him come back and fight"

"I may say it was I. A friend of mine here son, saw the affair. It was in a theatre, I thin wrote me about it and I put it squarely to Gr never liked the man and I had practically t him to do his duty. Why"——

But she was gone. With a little choking cry risen quickly and swept out into the hall. He see her again until she was stepping into her carriage.

It was late in the evening when she was dri to the Price house. A wondering servant ac her.

"Is Mr. Stephen Price at home?"

"Yes, madam, but he is ill."

"I must see him."

The servant took her name and returned to her to an inner room. On the bed, propped up lows, was Stephen Price, brother of Benjamin, one time lessee of the Drury Lane Theatre. H He greeted her kindly, but with a face dra lined with pain.

"Stephen," she began immediately, with eyes and voice that trembled, "the man who m your brother is in town."

With a spasmodic effort he thrust himself t ting posture.

"Green?" he cried.

"No, but the man who sent Green back to his apology, the fiend who drove him to it. here. I have been talking with him. And boasting of it, Stephen."

"Where is he staying?" asked Price, with brows.

"At the Washington Hotel."

She repeated the conversation she had ha Wilson and the way in which he was connecte the death of Benjamin Price. When she le they had come to an understanding.

A Strange Figure.

It was a strange figure that stumped in Washington Hotel next morning, a middle age with stooped shoulders and feet swathed in covered by a pair of enormous moccasins. He along by the aid of a cane, he demanded to be to Captain Wilson's room and followed a serv stairs with difficulty. On receiving response knock he flung open the door. Wilson was st near the threshold, a handsome and well g figure.

"Are you Captain Wilson?" asked Price, abru

"That is my name, sir."

"Then, sir, my name is Stephen Price, the b of Benjamin. You see, sir, I can scarcely put o before the other. I am afflicted with the gou object in coming here is to insult you. Shall to knock you down or will you consider that said enough?"

"Sir," said the Captain, with a smile, "I sha sider what you have said quite sufficient and a accordingly. You shall hear from me."

Price left on his painful way home without of words. Clemence Hoyt met him in her c outside the hotel.

It was on just such a morning as had witness death of Benjamin Price that his elder brot sombre, pain racked cripple, took boat at the B accompanied by his second, bearing the same dueling pistols that had been used in the pr combat. The second laid the course for Bedlo and, and when they landed they found the op party in possession. Johnson, the grim old officer, was again the second for the challenger. son was brisk and confident and looked upon versary with a pitying expression as the latter slowly to his position, supported on the arm second.

Stephen had named ten feet as the distance. placed he balanced himself on his bandages and off his coat. With his long gray hair blown ir ward strands, his tense, hollowed face, scowling and his clumsy feet, he presented a spectacle s ludicrous and terrifying. His eye held the glow of deadly resolve, and even Wilson as he his enemy with a smile, trim, active, alert, fe chill of that concentrated and invincible hatred.

Price moved his weapon about with supple, tised wrist a moment and then fixed his gaze ur ingly upon the Captain.

"Are you ready, gentlemen?"

"Ready," said Stephen.

"Ready!" came from Wilson.

"One, two, three, fire!"

The sharp explosion of Wilson's weapon rang upon the word, but Price did not waver. As the of smoke broke he sighted through it and pull trigger. Wilson staggered, raised both hands head and fell forward. When the seconds reach he was dead, with a bullet through his brain. they were still bending over him Price drew handkerchief from his pocket, and, with the s pistol still in his hand, waved it toward the Man shore. In the bright sunlight flooding across the a figure in white stood near the verge. The bra telescope flashed sharply as the figure lowered i

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association

As he spoke Von Grollernagen glanced at him quickly, and his eyes took on a tinge of surprise.

"Upon my soul, but I have, my friend!" Then he laughed outright. "Ah, from the first sight of you in the hotel at Napoli I saw that you were a great man."

Daniel looked at him and grinned in his face.

"What you doing, doc—running for congress?" he asked, and the German joined him in the humor of the situation and then turned gravely to the Russian.

"I fear the carabinieri did not depart without suspicion."

"Suspicion!" echoed Ivanovitch bitterly. "They will watch every exit from the hotel and grounds. What can I do until dark?" Pike interrupted him quickly and motioned to the hotel.

"Why, doc, he's got the whole lower floor of this wing. You're an enemy, sir"—

"I was about to suggest it," interrupted Von Grollerhagen, in his turn, with some grimness of manner. "I have a room that can well be spared for Professor Ivanovitch."

"How can I ever thank you? God bless you both!" said the Russian, going toward them with outstretched hands.

"Huh! Don't waste time talking about it," said Pike. "I shouldn't be surprised if you were hungry."

He took the refugee by the arm and steered him in the direction of the hotel, and as the three entered the wide door the curtains above the entrance were agitated violently and the head of Lady Creech popped out of the casement with the suddenness of a Punch. From the keen look on her face one might have imagined that had it not been for her deafness she might have heard every word of the conversation that had gone on below her. As it was, after gazing anxiously in the direction of the road she withdrew her head sharply and within a minute came out of the door of the hotel just in time to encounter Horace and Mme. de Champigny coming in from the grove. She approached them at once.

"Have you seen my brother?" she demanded excitedly. "Where is Lord Hawcastle?"

Horace looked at her with surprise.

"On the other side of the garden, Lady Creech," he answered, "down there on the terrace," and watched, with some amusement, the speedy efforts of the grim old lady as she hurried off. The amusement, however, rapidly gave place to a more interesting pastime, for, summoning all his callow courage, he set himself vigorously to hint at a possible union between himself and the noble countess.

It was evident from the first word that the lady was prepared for him and that, while she intended to offer him every bit of encouragement in her power, she would not be satisfied with anything short of a definite proposal and more likely before witnesses if possible.

He made his initial move with some gayety. She returned his banter with a mock seriousness and in answer to his challenge on her somber mood replied:

"But I cannot believe you are always serious, my friend."

"Try me," he demanded eagerly. "Set me some task to prove how serious I am." She smiled at him.

"Gladly," she said. "Complete this odious settlement. Overcome the resistance of this bad man who so troubles your sweet sister."

"HE'D TELL YOU HE'D SEE YOU IN HADES FIRST."

Horace took her hand and murmured:

"You promise me that when it is settled I may speak to you"—

"Yes. You may speak to me—when you please." And at the word he assumed an air and rapturously.

He kissed her hand rapturously.

In the meantime the suddenly rejuvenated Lady Creech had found her brother-in-law and had imparted to him words of the utmost importance. She had temporarily forgotten her deafness, or else the agitation that possessed her had removed it, for she was bordering upon "a state of mind."

She walked him back to the hotel when she found him and talked continuously all the way, and as she talked his excitement grew to match her own. As they approached the garden Lady Creech said to him:

"I couldn't hear distinctly, but they mumbled their words, but upon my soul, Hawcastle, even if I couldn't hear well, I saw enough."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE LETTER.

As Lady Creech and Hawcastle entered the garden, where Horace was still holding the hand of the fair countess, they encountered Almeric, who was strolling in aimlessly from the direction of the village. Hawcastle beckoned to him.

"Anything unusual down there?" he asked, pointing to the village.

"Rawther! Carabinieri still hunting that bandit chap," said his hopeful son languidly.

"Don't mumble your words!" snapped the old lady, and Horace and madame turned sharply and confusedly. Almeric made a gesture of impatience and, putting his head close to his respected aunt's ear, shouted:

"Hunting a baily bandit!" at which the old woman screamed sharply. Hawcastle took him by the shoulder.

"What do they say about him?" he demanded.

"That he is still in the neighborhood," replied his heir, with a languid sigh.

"What did I tell you?" asked Lady Creech triumphantly. And the earl made a gesture of impatience.

"Almeric, find your betrothed and bring her here," he said. And the young man trotted off slowly. Horace came slowly forward.

"What's the row, sir?" he asked, and the earl smiled.

"My dear young man," he said, "I congratulate you that you and your sister need no longer submit to all odious dictation."

He was about to say more, but at that moment Daniel came down the steps and walked across the grass to the motor. As he passed the group he smiled genially and observed:

"Looks to me as if it was going to clear up cold."

"Good afternoon, Mr. Pike," answered the earl and motioned the others to leave.

Pike merely nodded his head, and Hawcastle came up to him.

"It is a pity that there should have been any misunderstanding in the matter of your ward's betrothal," he said, and Pike smiled grimly.

"Oh, I wouldn't call it a misunderstanding," he said, and the earl went on.

"It would ill become a father to press upon the subject of his son's merits"—he began, but Pike cut him short.

"I won't talk with you about him," he said. "I don't want to hurt your feelings."

Hawcastle glared at him and was about to reply when Mariano entered with a letter on a tray, which he handed to the lawyer, who regarded it curiously. There was a growing menace in the earl's attitude, and as his anger grew his suavity grew with it.

"There is another matter to which I want to call your attention," he went on, and Pike answered him at once.

"I'll talk about anything else with you," he replied and looked up to see Ethel coming down the steps. She came forward to the earl and said:

"You wished me to come here?"

"I wish to tell you that I see light breaking through the clouds. Have another talk with our friend here, and, believe me, all will be well."

With a bow he left the garden, and Ethel stood staring after him. Pike looked up quickly from the letter he was reading and crossed over to her.

"I'm glad you've come," he said. "I've got something here I want to read to you. When I got your letter at home I wrote to Jim Cooley, our vice consul in London, to look up those Hawcastle folks and write me here how they stand."

"You did that!" she cried in anger. "You had the audacity to pry into the affairs of the Earl of Hawcastle!"

"Why, I'd 'a' done that if it'd been the governor of Indiana himself," he replied, with surprise. "Besides, Jim Cooley's 'home folks.' His office used to be right next door to mine in Kokomo. I haven't opened the letter yet, but I haven't much doubt but Jim 'll have some statements in it that'll show you I'm right about these people."

"How do you know that?" she demanded heatedly.

"Because I've had experience enough of life"—

"In Kokomo?" she asked scornfully.

"Yes, ma'am," he answered. "There's just as many kinds of people in Kokomo as there is in Pekin, and I didn't serve a term in the legislature without learning to pick underhand men at sight. Now, that earl, let alone his having a bad eye—his ways are too much on the stripe of T. Cuthbert Bentley's to suit me. T. Cuthbert was a Chicago gentleman, with a fur lined overcoat, that opened up a bank in our town, and when he caught the Canadian express three months later all he'd left in Kokomo was the sign on the front door. That was painted on. But, there, here's the letter. Read it for yourself."

He handed it to her and watched her while she broke the seal and then began to read:

Dear Dan—The earldom of Hawcastle is one of the oldest in the kingdom, and the St. Aubyns have distinguished themselves in the forefront of English battles from Agincourt and Crecy to Sebastopol. The present holder of the title came into it by accident. He was a younger son's younger son and had spent some years in Russia in business under another name. Nothing here in his English record is seriously against him, though everything he has is mortgaged to the hundle.

The Boy Who Wept When He Became "King Of Kings"

Amed Mirza, Shahinshar, 11-year-old Boy, Who Succeeded His Deposed Father as Shah of Persia.

Mohammed Ali Mirza, Shah of Persia, who succeeded to the Peacock throne on the death of his father in January of 1907, was deposed on July 17. He was succeeded by Sultan Ahmer Mirza, who, although not the eldest son of the ex-Shah, was the heir apparent, the mother of his elder brother not being a Kajar princess. The new Shah, who was proclaimed under the title of Sultan Ahmed, with Azad-Ul-Mulk, head of the Kajar tribe, as regent, is but 11 years old. He wept bitterly when the moment came for him to leave his predecessor on the throne and his mother, and it required a stern message to the effect that crying was not allowed in the Russian legation before he dried his eyes. Then the little man came out bravely, entered a large carriage and drove off alone. At Sultonatabad he was met by the regent and the deputation, and ceremoniously notified of his high position and of the hope entertained by the nation that he would prove to be a good ruler. "Inshallah. I will," replied the lad.

PITTSBURG MAN WHO BEGGED FOR A LIVING HAD HIDDEN GOLD VALUED AT $10,000

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 21.—People laughed at old Peter Liebauch, and called him crazy.

Peter begged for a living. Also he sold shoestrings and herbs. He wore funny, ill-fitting clothes. His house was a shack on the shelf of a cliff, worth as much as a pile of driftwood.

Peter lived there all alone—except for his half-starved mongrel dog. Only his neighbours and his customers knew him. And they pitied him while they laughed at him.

But when Peter Liebauch's foolish actions grew menacing, when he came to curse the children and threaten them, the police thought it would be only charitable toward the old man, as well as more safe for the neighbourhood, to remove him to an institution.

But when they dragged the old man, kicking and cursing and fighting like a madman, down those stairs which few but he had ever used they found—

GOLD!

Gold in piles and stacks. Gold hidden between the walls, gold heaped in old trunks and boxes. Gold everywhere. And much silver coin.

The little shack, stripped of its treasure, was worth perhaps $5.

As the shack stood when the police entered it, it was worth $50,000. Bank books hidden away in crevices in the wall showed deposits of as much more.

Peter Liebauch, who dressed like a tramp, was worth at a conservative valuation $100,000.

Two big express waggons groaned and creaked as they bore away the saffron treasure in 56 big bags, to a deposit vault. It took the clerks two days to count the money.

The finding of old Peter's hoard is all Pittsburg's sensation.

Now that the discovery has been made, old inhabitants are recalling old stories about Peter.

His father, Antono, before him, was a miser, they say. Peter and his brother Andrew followed his steps.

There was a romance once in the brothers' lives. There were twin sisters, the daughters of a wealthy man in Millvale, whom the two brothers fell in love with. But though they came to court, they did not dress or act as ordinary suitors. Their arguments were chiefly mysterious ones of MONEY. And the girls, being good, healthy, normal American girls, who did not value money for its own sake, laughed their strange spitors to scorn.

This closed the door to the Leibauchs' hearts. It was never again opened to the world. They retired to their little hut on the hillside forever.

It was built like a fortress, in a way. No-one could get in except by the long stairs which led to the level ground below. One of the brothers and the half-starved dog remained on guard all the time, while the other went out to beg, to gather herbs and mint, and to sell it around the city.

They had a great, old-fashioned shotgun, rusty and loaded with nails and slugs. It would doubtless have exploded if discharged, but it was a great comfort to the two brothers.

One night two years ago when Peter came home, it was to find his brother Andrew stretched out on the floor, two gaping wounds in his side. He was dead whether by suicide, or from the attack of some unknown intruder, was never satisfactorily explained.

Peter then went his way alone. He received no visitors. Even the priest from nearby St. Mary's could never get farther than the door.

When Sergt. Falkner and two policemen made their search of the shack, it was like the realization of a wild dream.

A table, so thickly covered with dust that its drawers were hidden, was bulging with coin. There were dollars, halves, quarters, dimes, nickels, pennies.

In closets and pantries was money. Old clothes, just rags of cloth—were groaning with treasure, every pocket, the linings even, filled.

Along pantry shelves was money—packed in cigar boxes, in pitchers and jars, and saucers and tobacco boxes, tomato cans, wash boilers, salt sacks tubs—everything that would hold money was filled.

Leibauch will be sent to a private sanitarium. He was not known to have any relatives but with the news of the finding of the fortune many claimants have appeared.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

A writer in a recent article declares his belief that there are very few young fellows of the many who go astray who are the victims of an original tendency to go wrong. He argues, and nobody who has a generous desire to condone the follies of youth as far as possible, but will agree with him, that one of the main causes of so much collapse in the ranks of our young men is due to their overweening anxiety to be up-to-date in dress and in all that constitutes "fashion" in our present day civilization. Owing to this failing many get head over ears in debt, and unless they are possessed of a certain amount of moral stamina that is proof against every onslaught made upon it, are practically done for, so far as success in the world is concerned.

Debt is one of the chief follies to which youth is addicted. Young men very rarely appreciate its seriousness. They see older people possessed of money, able to purchase the luxuries of life and in their endeavour to do the same as their elders begin by borrowing small sums of money from their friends. They fully intend to repay these loans at some time or another, but debts, like certain forms of disease, have an insidious habit of growing without showing a sign of the fatal height to which they have attained till it is too late for remedial measures to be adopted.

This straining after "position," and an anxiety to be in the swim has a fascination about it that is as fatal to some mortals as the eye of the basilisk was supposed to be to living things in the ancient world. Possibly the time will come when people, young people especially, will recognize that all is not gold that glitters, that true enjoyment is not to be obtained with borrowed money, and that the world at large, and the business world, especially, has a greater respect for those who pay their debts, no matter how humble their station may be, than for those who do not; when they do recognize this very important truth, the current of life will run perceptibly smoother for everyone.

Those of us who have been at any time "touched" for loans by impecunious friends, and there are comparatively few amongst us who have not had that misfortune, know full well how destructive it has been to our funds and our friendships. For the man who borrows money from you, and is unable to repay you, is never quite the same to you afterwards. However kindly you may feel towards him there is always a diffidence evinced by the unlucky borrower in your presence, and a desire to avoid your society that is not conducive to friendship or even good-will.

Help to a deserving case is only a right and proper proceeding, but we may take it as a solid piece of common sense that a tight hand on the pocket-book is more conducive to Christian brotherliness than the soft-heartedness that allows anyone free access to it. We have great sympathy with the afflicted soul, who after helping a friend for the tenth or eleventh time gave vent to his sentiments in the following lines:

"A friend in need's a friend indeed"
This really is great trash;
For I've a friend and he's in need,
and always wanting cash."

The storm created by the discovery that the T. Eaton Co. are using their contract for supplying school books as an advertising medium is general throughout the Province. That this possibility was not taken into consideration when the question of awarding the contract was under discussion does not speak much for the attention that the Minister of Education paid to the matter. Seeing that the contract has been awarded, however, we may thank our stars that the T. Eaton Co. have not gone the length that the proprietors of Beecham's pills are said to have done in a somewhat similar case many years ago. The story goes that a clergyman of a poor country parish in England was anxious to provide new hymn books for his congregation, and being at his wits' end to obtain funds for their purchase, he advertised for donations in the daily press. The proprietors of the cathartic referred to wrote to him offering to provide hymn books free if he would allow them to place a few advertisements amongst the pages. This the clergyman readily agreed to, thinking it would be an easy matter to tear out the interleaved matter when the books arrived. They came in due course, and much to his delight he could see no advertisements. The first Sunday that the books were used, however he was horrified to find the congregation singing:

Hark, the herald angels sing,
"Beecham's Pills are just the thing,
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
Two for man and one for child."

It might be as well for Dr. Pyne or some of his subordinates to go carefully through the books and see that at the end of some of the lessons, or even in the middle of them, some of the fine work of the adroit advertiser has not been introduced. Who knows but what we might get some specimens of home-made poetry somewhat after this strain:

Hail to the chief who in triumph advances;
With pleasure and pride let his praises be sung.

See with what joy at T. Eaton's he glances,
As he comes merrily prancing up Yonge.

It is to be hoped that the coming Peterborough Fair will be loyally supported by dwellers in county and city alike. The directors have spared no pains to get the best they can in the way of exhibits of farm produce and live stock, and also of attractions for lovers of high-class amusement. Last year plainly evinced the fact that Peterborough County and City, by working in harmonious co-operation can make a success of such an undertaking. With an excellent board of management and the same painstaking and energetic secretary, this year should eclipse even last year's successful exhibition. When Cobourg and other small towns can make such a splendid success of their Horse Shows, we need not doubt that Peterborough can do likewise with its Fair.

On Wednesday last, between the hours of twelve and one p.m., the edifying spectacle was presented of a boy of about 12 or 13 years of age, walking jauntily along King street puffing a cigar. Whether that cigar was sold to him by a tobacconist or presented to him by a man friend, the onus on one or the other is the same. A person who deliberately provides a youth of tender years with this sort of luxury has much to answer for. Apart from all question of detriment to a boy's health, he is paving the way for his indulgence in other forms of stimulant, much more dangerous and degrading. Smoking can never be classed as a graceful occupation even when indulged in by a lady, but when a child starts forth in knickerbockers smoking a cigar that makes his lower jaw hang down like the bottom of an empty dredge bucket, it's a sight to make the angels weep.

THIEF EXPELLED FROM THE NAVY

Seaman Also Sentenced to Nine Months Imprisonment.

London, Aug 21.—At a court-martial held on board the Minotaur, at Portland, Arthur George Patrick, able seaman, of the Inflexible, was charged with stealing £3 12s, belonging to Charles Richard Gibbs, signal boatswain, of the Inflexible, between July 1 and 12. Mr. Gibbs missed the money from an unlocked drawer in his cabin, and suspicion fell on two men, including prisoner. The latter, as warrant officer's servant, had access to the cabin. Commander Grace ordered prisoner to be searched, and the master-at-arms and ship's corporal found on him the sum of £12 3s 9d. Amongst the coins missed by Mr. Gibbs was a five-shilling piece dated 1844, and a coin of this description and date was found on prisoner. Mr. Gibbs positively identified the latter as his, it being in such a remarkable state of preservation considering its age.

Prisoner, in defence, urged that he always had plenty of money, and called a number of witnesses to prove that he was in the habit of lending money. Amongst these was a warrant officer, who was sharply cross-examined by prosecutor. The court found prisoner guilty, and sentenced him to nine months' hard labour and to be dismissed from the service.

RODE PONY INTO HOTEL

Deamington, Aug. 21.—Mr. F. J. Mackay, the American millionaire, was at Leamington Spa on Wednesday fined £2 for riding on the footway.

Mr. Mackay is an ardent polo player, and he made a wager that he would ride his polo pony round his billiard table and afterwards ride into the Beauchamp Hotel. When he galloped into the hotel hall the porter promptly turned him out, but he did not mind, as he had won his wager.

HURT IN CHICAGO

The Circumstances Which May Explain Identity of Peterborough Man Said to Have Narrowly Escaped Death.

WAS COMING HOME TO-DAY.

The bare message from Chicago stating that M. J. Sullivan, of Peterborough, has fallen on a live wire narrowly escaping death has not been explained by further intelligence and there is the possibility that the man referred to is M. J. Sullivan, whose home is at 247 Aylmer street, at the corner of Sherbrooke street. An Examiner reporter called at the house this morning, but Mrs. Sullivan had not received any intelligence of an accident, in fact she was unaware of it until she saw the brief reference in last night's Examiner. Her husband was expected home from Minnesota yesterday or to-day, and his route would take him through Chicago, where he would have to spend several hours. From letters he had sent it is evident that he expected be in the western Metropolis yesterday, hence the possibility that that this is the M. J. Sullivan referred to in the telegram.

The family came to Peterborough last November and in December the husband left for Minnesota, where he has been engaged in mining operations.

GREAT PROGRAMME

Finest Bill of Special Attractions This Year at the Canadian National.

The programme of special attractions which has just been issued shows that the entertainment part of the big Fair is to be more extensive than ever before.

The programme in front of the Grand Stand is divided into three parts of an hour each. The first hour is given to vaudeville and the bill has to be well squeezed to get it on to the four stages in that space of time.

The second part is given over to the Military Tournament, which includes the musical drive by the Artillery, the musical ride by the Dragoons, and a dozen competitions in many of which, the corps will be matched against corps.

The third hour is filled to overflowing with the British Army Quadrilles and Tattoo with ten massed military bands, the march past, the Siege of Kandahar and the Battle of the North Sea.

The whole concludes with a fifteen minute display of everything that is new in fireworks.

Add to this bill, the model military camp, the blowing up of ships by submarine mines on the waterfront, harness horse races, daily displays of Japanese day fireworks, athletic sports, etc., and it will be readily admitted that this is the greatest bill of specials the Canadian National ever presented.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for Bath or Toilet in hot weather. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

PICTURES TAKEN OF THE NORWOOD TRAGEDY

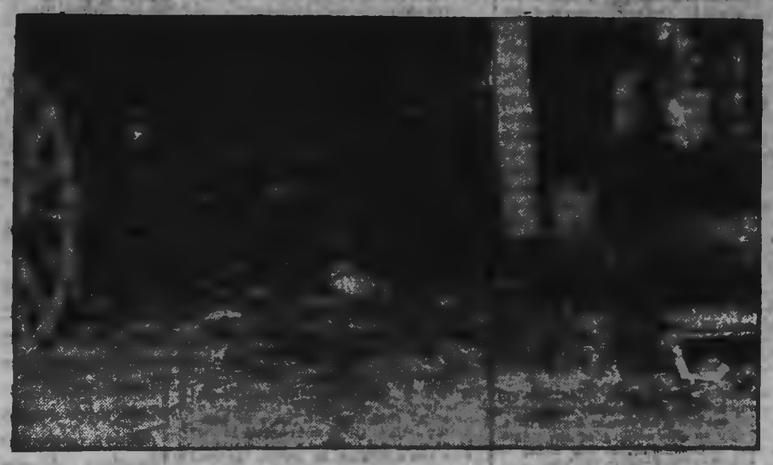
WOODSHED IN WHICH WILLOUGHBY SHOT HIS DAUGHTER



This part of the house in which the shooting occurred was a combined summer kitchen and woodshed. The floor extended half way across, and then a drop of about a foot and a half to the ground, as shown in the picture. Willoughby was sitting on the edge of this floor at the point marked "X", when the gun was discharged, accidentally, or not, is unknown. The little girl was standing facing him apparently, about four feet from the woodpile. The charge went completely through the left side of the body, touching the heart, and a number of pellets embedded themselves in the woodpile. After shooting the child the father carried her to the place where he had been sitting, undressed her, putting her clothing under the floor, and bathed her. He then wrapped her in a flannelette sheet, and carried her to the sofa in the parlour on which she was found, and beside which he himself was found dead when the neighbours arrived.

FOUR LIVES WERE LOST WHEN MOTOR CAR PLUNGED INTO THE OCEAN AT SEATTLE

Three of the Occupants Were Ladies and Were Members of Prominent Vancouver Families —Broke Through Railing.

ONLY TWO ESCAPED

Special to The Examiner.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20.—Three young women and one man, the driver of the automobile, met death, and two young women narrowly escaped a similar fate here late last night when a large touring car, going at a high speed, crashed through the railing of the long trestle over the Tide Flats. All the members of the party were from Vancouver, B.C., except the driver of the car, who was a Seattle man. The tide was at flood when the automobile crashed through the rail, and the victims were hurled into several feet of water.

Miss Mary Paul, a sister of one of the dead, and Miss Kate Hiscock were rescued by a boatman, who heard their cries and found them clinging to the wrecked car. All of the young women are said to belong to prominent families in Vancouver.

HASTINGS TEAM BEAT HAVELOCK

Railroaders Were Defeated 7 to 4 in a Fast Game on Wednesday.

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Aug. 21.—The Hastings baseball team defated the locals here Wednesday afternoon in a fast game of baseball, score 7 to 4. Game commenced at 4 o'clock. Visitors came by Water to Trent Bridge, and drove up to Havelock.

Mr. Baker, of Brockville, the principal of the continuation school, has moved to town and is residing in one of the new brick houses on Ann street.

Mrs. M. Kelleher, of Percy Township, and Miss Carrie Lajoie, of Hastings, were the guests of Mrs. M. Lonergan last week.

Mrs. Dafoe, of Cobalt, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Harry Taylor.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon of last week, 11th inst., when Miss Maude Davidson, daughter of Mrs. Jas. Hubbie, of Old Havelock, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Tinney, of Campbellford, at the residence of the bride's mother. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. D. Halfour, at 4 o'clock, took place in the beautifully decorated parlour under an arch of evergreens and pond lilies, and Mr. Chris. Keller, uncle of the bride, gave her away. The bride was attired in heliotrope silk and wore the customary veil and she carried a bouquet of white phlox. The bridesmaid, Miss Rebecca Chase, cousin of the bride, was also dressed in heliotrope silk and she carried a bouquet of pink phlox. The groomsman was Mr. Chas. Tinney, brother of the groom. After the ceremony, the guests of the number of about one hundred, sat down to a bountiful wedding dinner, after which the happy couple were escorted to the local express, leaving for Tweed, Belleville and other eastern points. They will reside in Campbellford on their return. Mr. and Mrs. Tinney received many beautiful and costly gifts in cut glass and silver, and their many friends join in wishing them much happiness.

Had To Walk 12 Miles To Reach Home From Cobourg

A number of well-known Peterborough people who hied themselves to the Cobourg Horse Show on Thursday in an automobile had a rather strenuous experience coming home. Just as they reached Bewdley on their return trip the tire of their motor car exploded and they were stranded 20 miles from Peterborough. A council of war was held and it was decided that the best thing to do under the circumstances was to do the Davie Hartley act across country to Fraserville and await the coming of the morning train to Peterborough. Now, a twelve-mile hike is nothing to Edward Payson but to the well-fed citizens who assayed the feat the other night it looked as if somebody was pulling the road away from them. However, they managed to reach Fraserville in time for the train.

Complains Of The Noise Of Operating Trains

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I heartily endorse what your correspondent in Friday's issue says about the nuisance arising from train operations. For over two years I have had the misfortune to live in close proximity to the G. T. R. curve between McDonnel and Dublin streets. Nearly every night a heavy freight train negotiates this curve and the resulting infernal racket surely could not be equalled outside of Pandemonium. What is only a grave annoyance to those in robust health becomes a serious menace to those who are in anyway delicate, and in the case of one member of my own family her breakdown in health and slow recovery are due in no small degree to the intolerable nuisance caused by the night traffic on the G. T. R. The amount of traffic on this line is comparatively so small that it ought to be possible to suspend operations during the ordinary sleeping hours, and it is to be hoped that the local traffic manager will abate the nuisance forthwith.

Yours truly,
BETHUNE STREET.

Peterboro To Have A New Moving Picture Theatre

Peterborough is to have a third moving picture theatre.

On Monday workmen will commence renovating the store on George street formerly occupied by Mr. Tisdale, confectioner, in order to turn it into a theatorium for Mr. Stanley Coons, formerly of the Crystal. Mr. Coons has a long experience in the amusement business and should make a success of this venture. It is his intention to have a modernly finished and equipped building and to give the best programme possible. The building he has selected is commodious and will afford seating accommodation for three hundred people. Mr. Hibbertson, the local contractor, is in charge of the arrangements and will commence work at once. The exterior of the theatorium will be handsomely finished, and the new amusement place will be a credit to the city. Mr. Coons has not yet decided upon the name for his theatre.

That stomach trouble will cease if you will take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. One after each meal.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

YOUTH IS TO BE TRIED FOR WHOLESALE MURDER

Barely Out of His Teens, Emil Victor is Slated to Appear for Trial on a Charge of Murdering Four People—Most Notable Murder Trial Will Commence Next Tuesday.

Special to The Examiner.

Aberdeen, S.D., Aug. 21.—What promises to be one of the most notable trials that has ever taken place in South Dakota is slated to begin before Judge McNulty here on Tuesday, when Emil Victor, a youth scarcely out of his teens, will be arraigned in court to stand trial for the alleged murder of four persons.

The quadruple crime, which Victor is said to have confessed, was committed on the night of July 2 last. The victims were John W. Christie, his wife, his daughter Mildred, and Michael Ronayne, a farm-hand. The scene of the tragedy was the Christie farm, near the town of Rudolph. Victor, the alleged murderer, was employed on a neighbouring farm.

Robbery is believed to have been the motive for the diabolical crime. Christie was agent for an elevator company, driving to and from the farm in the grain season. He was known to have considerable money in the house at times.

Christie was evidently the first victim of the tragedy. He had been milking a cow when the murderer appeared from behind and felled him with a blow from a hamer. Death probably was instantaneous. The Ronayne boy, who was working in a stall next to Christie, was killed by a blow through the skull with the hammer, a bullet wound through the side, and another through the arm.

The shots which completed the work of the hammer in extinguishing the boys life evidently attracted the attention of Mrs. Christie, who hurried to the back porch to investigate, and met her death. Two bullets were fired at her, one striking her in the abdomen, the other passing through her heart, causing instant death.

The shots which killed the mother aroused the daughter, who was still in bed. Springing up she hastened to the door of her room when the murderer entered. He held her with one hand and fired a bullet through her brain with the other. The murderer then ransacked every room of the house, hastily emptying the drawers upon the floor in order to examine the contents. Four purses were ripped to pieces.

Within twenty-four hours after the murder young Victor was arrested at Northville, about twenty miles from the scene of the tragedy. A watch belonging to one of the members of the Christie family is said to have been found on his person.

Victor's attorneys bent every effort to induce the State's Attorney to consent to a life sentence in consideration of Victor pleading guilty. When the offer was refused, with the statement that nothing but a death sentence would be satisfactory to the State, in view of the heinousness of the crime, it was decided to have Victor plead not guilty, and trust him to the mercies of a jury.

A BRITISH BOAT SURPRISES GERMANS

Cruiser Navigates in Dangerous German Waters Without Pilot.

Danis, August 20.—A prominent Dantsig newspaper reports that on the occasion of the Corawall's visit to Kiel a dense mist prevailed, and the harbor authorities, who had been advised of her pending arrival in the evening, did not expect her before the morning. But when day broke she was moored in her assigned position, having navigated the Kiel ford in the darkness and mist without a pilot. This feat she repeated at Danis and Swinemunde. "From the performance," adds the journal, "we are compelled to ask what would happen in the event of an outbreak of war with England? They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the High Sea Fleet in Kiel or elsewhere."

Willie Fallon Was Not Sentenced This Morning—Another Charge Preferred Against Him—Said to Have Stolen Watch.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Another charge was preferred against Willie Fallon at the police court this morning, who was to have been sentenced for assaulting and attempting to rob George Dunbero on the evening of civic holiday in Central Park. He pleaded not guilty to stealing a silver watch from John Lee, of Millbrook, on July 12th. Chief Rogel stated that he was not ready to go on with the case as it would be necessary to bring a man from Millbrook, whose name had been engraved on the time piece, but which since has been erased. The case will be proceeded with next Saturday and John Lee, who was present this morning, was instructed to be here.

BACK FROM EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. S. Dickson Hall Have Returned From a Long Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Hall returned on Thursday evening after six weeks spent abroad. They sailed from Montreal on July 2nd by the steamship "Corsican," returning by way of New York, on the "Arabic" of the White Star line. Mr. Hall's trip was largely one of business. He visited all the principal buying centres in Europe, including London, Paris, and Berlin. The modern store of the firm of Richard Hall & Son will be stocked with all the latest creations in mantles, fall and winter suits, millinery, and house furnishings. A marked improvement in trade conditions is evident, Mr. Hall stated, among the manufacturing concerns of England.

Mr. Hall had the pleasure of seeing the Bleriot monoplane, which was on exhibition in Selfridge's store, in London, which is run under American management. The people gathered around the place for blocks trying to gain admission. The securing of the aeroplane by this firm was considered one of the finest of business enterprises ever attempted.

M. Bleriot, who successfully crossed the English Channel on Sunday, June 25th, is the first man to achieve such a marvellous feat. He completed a distance of 31 miles in 43 minutes. This wonderful achievement has awakened widespread interest and the opportunity that was given persons to see the monoplane, through the enterprise of the American firm in London, was greatly appreciated. The Bleriot monoplane is one of the smallest in existance, and when the wings are folded, it stands in the space of a medium size motor car. The flight of July 25th proves that it cannot only fly but it overcomes the vertical currents of the air which experts have prophesied would be insurmountable. It is 28 feet, 3 inches in length and weighs 496 pounds. Its engine is a 20 h.p. "Anzani."

The immense crowds that lined the entrances to the store evidences the universal interest taken in Bleriot's wonderful feat.

TO-DAY'S PRICES AT THE MARKET

This morning's market brought in a large display of early fruits and vegetables, with prices rather favourable. New potatoes sold at 80c a bushel, and tomatoes at 40c a basket; eggs at 21c a dozen, and butter 24 and 25 cents a pound; chickens 75 to 80c a pair, and so on down the line. Plums were plentiful and apples were also to be had at fair prices, and the market on a whole was above the average of the past month.

APACHES HELD STREET BATTLE

Paris, August, 20.—The suburb of Aubervilliers, Paris, has been the scene of a tangic incident caused by apaches, who were put out of a wine shop in the Passage Caron for quarelling among themselves. Once outside, the apaches drew revolvers and kept up a heavy fusillade until the arrival of the police put them to flight. The police found lying on one sidewalk a little girl, six years old, who had received a bullet in the chest, and on the other the dead body of a workman named Christophori. They sent both shop. Here it was found that the dead man had no natural injury of any kind, but had succumbed to heart failure caused by fear. The little girl after her wound had been dressed, was conducted to the St. Louis Hospital. Her condition is critical.

COMMENDABLE.

The Streets Department are worthy of praise for their action in cleaning the streets, especial attention being given to the sides, where, owing to the absence of traffic, and, in many cases, defective drainage, grass and weeds have grown. Beginning in the business section the radiating streets have been treated, and the result is a complete change in appearance. The streets now look trim and tidy, and one is not ashamed to walk along with a friend from some outside city, and one's mind is not kept on the rack to devise excuses for the shabby appearance of the streets as they previously were and as some streets are. One who takes notice will be delighted with the change wrought in the streets already looked after; it is as transforming in appearance as a clean shave—the removal of a stubby beard, from a man's face. When the city authorities note the vast difference improvement done by a little work in the way of cleaning and trimming, and when the public take a similar view, the work of civic beautification will receive a forward impulse. The effect of the street clearing is not only absolute in the way of improvement, but will be reactionary. Private citizens, owners of lawns, will see that the streets are clean and tidy, and that will stimulate them to a rivalry to maintain their private premises in a similar, or even better, condition. The Streets Department is entitled to great praise, and that they may continue in the good way the citizens, in the formulary of the parliamentary petition, "will ever pray." We don't realize how infinitely the natural beauty of Peterborough may be improved and at what a trifling expenditure of money, work and good will it may be done, so long as these are conscientiously and intelligently directed; and when city and citizens cooperate in the matter of public streets and private premises respectively, Peterborough will be beautified out of recognition in comparison with what it is bound to be under the ill effects of neglect and carelessness.

NEED OF A KNOWLEDGE FOR LIFE-SAVING.

It is to be hoped that the efforts of the City Reception Committee to get Mr. Henry, the founder and secretary of the Royal Life Saving Society of England, to give an address in Peterborough, will be crowned with success.

There is really no limit to the amount of good that can be done, if our people, young as well as old, can be brought to a proper appreciation of the value of the knowledge of life saving. It is a subject that should be taught in all our schools and colleges, practical demonstrations should be given at all our regattas, and every effort made to popularise the science in the minds of the general public. The sorrowful and ghastly toll that our inland waters exact from our foreign and home holiday seekers, year by year, should have taught us long ere this to take all the precautions we can, tending to minimize the desolation they cause.

It is inconceivable that so little attention has been given to the matter. The two Stony Lake Cottagers' Associations might do worse than start a scheme of tuition in life saving on the plan outlined in last week's Saturday Examiner.

CANADIAN LINES OF NAVAL DEFENCE.

The Canadian view in its essential feature seems to have been adopted by the Imperial Defence Conference. The navy is to be one, the fleets are to be many. The fleets of the overseas Dominions are to belong to those Dominions, under their control in time of peace, and to be available for the defence of Imperial interests in time of war. It was for that Canada stood. In the end that view prevailed. Those Dominions which on the impulse of the moment offered "Dreadnoughts" as a gift to the Admiralty have come to see that both defence and Imperial interests would be served by local fleets, under control, but constructed according to Admiralty standards, and ready for service in the Royal Navy should occasion arise. That is the Canadian view adopted by the Parliament of Canada and presented in the Imeprial Defence Conference by the Canadian delegates.

The people of Canada will accept this decision of the Imperial Defence Conference as at once consistent with wise Imperial policy, and most effective for the purpose of naval defence. It leaves local autonomy unimpaired, gives local opinion the right of judgment on the justice of a cause to be served, stimulates local patriotism for Imperial concerns, and gives to the "wolf" the strength of the "pack."

Incidentally it is interesting to note the evident agreement as to fast cruisers rather than either "Dreadnoughts" or destroyers for the Canadian and Australian fleets. This also is in line with the Canadian idea.

It is plain that the Imperial Defence Conference, in dealing with both military and naval affairs, was not stampeded by the wild and whirling words of the war-scare jingoes on the one hand or held back by "smug prudence" on the other. A policy was adopted which, so far as Canada is concerned, will organize, direct, and make effective this country's endeavours to provide reasonable protection for Canadian shores, for Canadian sea-going trade, and for the world-wide interests of the British Empire. —Toronto Globe.

BRITISH AND OTHER NAVIES.

Recently Lord Rosebery said something to the effect that navies everywhere were bursting out. It is rather epigrammatic, but there is great truth in this, and the fact does not augur well for that universal and lasting peace which so many earnestly desire to see established throughout the world. In these days the proverb "To preserve peace, be prepared for war," is too literally and closely followed out. Great Britain is paring no effort or expense to keep her navy up to the any-other-two-Power standard, which she has set for it. Germany is increasing its navy as rapidly as possible. Russia is striving strenuously to create a new and efficient navy—better one than that which Japan almost entirely destroyed. In like manner Spain has contracted to build a navy far superior to that which the United States encountered and defeated at Manilla. Some years ago Italy abandoned adding to its navy, but is now building more battleships. France is strenuously endeavouring to regain its lost position as the second naval Power in Europe. Austria Hungary is also building warships, so as to be reckoned a naval Power. Japan is quietly and constantly adding to its already strong and efficient fleet. For what purpose or reason the United States is so strenuously adding to its navy would puzzle any one outside the inner political circle to conceive. All this, however, verifies Lord Rosebery's observant remark about "the bursting out of navies everywhere," while the evident jealous rivalry justifies the suspicion which has been excited.

As we formerly mentioned, there is said to be an understanding between Britain and France that the British fleet shall guard the French as well as the English coast of the Channel, and that in return the French fleet shall protect the British as well as the French interests in the Mediterranean Sea. Italy, again argues that it is necessary to keep its fleet superior to that of Austria-Hungary, while the latter maintains that its fleet must be made strong enough to contend for the mastery of the Adriatic, and even of the Mediterranean, with Italy. Thus, through partners in the Triple Alliance, they seem to be arming against each other. It would seem that all the Powers consider it necessary to surpass or equal some other Power. In consequence, three or four years hence, there will be in European waters over two hundred first-class battleships and thousands of cruisers, destroyers, and other fighting craft.

CANADA'S DEFENCE POLICY.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

The question to-day is not one of meeting an emergency, but of determining a policy to govern our future actions; and the Canadian proposition before the Imperial Defence Committee will be in accordance with the resolution adopted unanimously at the last session of the Dominion Parliament. This will look towards the establishment of a Canadian navy, which, while built, officered, and administered by Canadian authorities, will be standardized with the other British navies, thus adding to the efficiency of the combined naval forces of the empire. The obligation involves not only the building of a Canadian navy, but further the building of a navy that will be equal to the duties it may be called upon to discharge. To the charge that in the past Canada has been "sponging" upon the motherland for its naval defence a completely valid defence can be offered. Canada and the other overseas dominions had preforce to wait for what is now about to happen—the determination of the policy upon which the navies of the empire are to be built and administered. Once this is accomplished the necessity for action will arise; and Canada will be justly open to the charge of "sponging" if she fails to respond. Of this there need be no fear. Canada has become a nation, and is now a factor in world politics; and from the consequences of her status she will not attempt to escape.

NO MYSTERY.

(Toronto World.)

There is a general feeling that the Ontario farmer does not pay enough for his labour. A dollar a day and his food is regarded as excellent wages by the farmer for a man who has to work from five or six in the morning till eight or nine at night. The same man can get $2 or $3 a day in the city for eight or ten hours' work. There is no mystery about the lack of labour on Ontario farms.

Note.—This may be true in the district around Toronto, but in this section farmers usually pay their men what they are worth.

NEW BLOCK OF STORES

Taylor Brothers are Having a Fine Building Erected on George Street.

Work was commenced this morning by Messrs. Ruthreford Brothers on a new block of stores for Messrs. Taylor Bros. on George street, just south of Charlotte. A block of two stores commodiously and modern in design will be built. The building will be three storeys in height and in architecture and size will be a credit to the business portion of the city. Next year it is the intention to tear down the dwelling houses on both sides of the new building and to erect more stores, making a hondsome block of buildings. The end of the building at the corner of George and Charlotte streets iwll be a deparmental store, and will be a very handsome structure as befitting its central location.

With these contemplated buildings and the handsome block of stores erected by Messrs. Lundy and Brooks further down it looks as if the business part of the city were going to extend to the south and rapidly too.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN AGREEMENT

A Satisfactory Understanding Reached Between Two Nations.

London, August 21. — M. Ivolsky, the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, is highly pleased with the welcome accorded to the Czar and Czarina. In the course of an interview he said, dealing first with the political side side of the visit of the Emperor and his own conferences at Cowes with the British Foreign Secretary: "Both Sir Edward Grey and myself have agreed not to make any public declaration of the details of our recent conversations, but in reply to your question as to what will be the outcome of this visit, I can assure you that the Emperor is highly satisfied. We are sure that the cordiality displayed will only have the happiest results. Very good relations exist between the two countries. Our policy is clear and the arrangements entered into between the two Powers in distinct and special subjects have asserted themselves most brilliantly in the Persian question. In speaking of Anglo-Russian relations, let me state that they have no point against any other sate. The succession of Imperial visits show that the relations between London and St. Petersburg are quite compatible with the best relations with Germany and any other country."

Continuing, the Minister said: "We see our way towards further close understanding and recognise no reason for disagreement. As to the working of the Anglo-Russian understanding, it was owing to this and the arrangements resulting therefrom that a situation which was centred in Persia took such a satisfactory and pacific turn. This understanding will now be exercised on other political questions which may arise, being employed in the same friendly spirit." Speaking with regard to the near East, M. Isvolsky said: "We have the greatest desire to assist the consolidation of the new regime in Turkey and to favour a settled aspect of affairs in the near East. With regard to Crete the four Powers have agreed to maintain the status quo and the supreme rights of the Porte and we hope that nothing untoward will happen which will be against this line of conduct."

OLD POWDERHORNS.

They Were Once Important Implements of Warfare.

TREASURED AS HEIRLOOMS.

Handed Down From Father to Son and From Friend to Friend—Engraved and Ornamented, They Were Used as Gifts Instead of Jeweled Swords.

Modern inventions have robbed warfare of much of its romance and the soldier of much of his old time picturesqueness. Although the powderhorn as an implement of war disappeared long before the magazine gun of today was dreamed of, it wasn't so very long ago, as a matter of fact, that men were carrying powderhorns. Some of the soldiers in the Mexican war, for example, used them.

The powderhorns carried by the fighters in the early days of this country were often of comparatively simple workmanship, but they were cherished and handed down from father to son and from friend to friend. Strange to say, though cherished in this manner, collectors have had a very hard time in locating any great number of the powderhorns used in this country, and this in spite of the large numbers used in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

In the French and Indian war the English and Americans carried 10,000 powderhorns, it has been estimated, to say nothing of the number carried by those on the French side. In the Revolution there were, according to the best estimates, about 10,000 powderhorns in use in the American army without counting those on the British side. The European troops had long discarded them, of course, but their colonial allies naturally were equipped with them.

A few years ago Isaac J. Greenwood presented to the New York Historical society a collection of water color pictures of powderhorns he had found still in existence.

Although the search was prosecuted with great diligence, the number of powderhorns actually located and sketched was not much more than 400, showing how quickly the horns have been disappearing.

Powderhorns are supposed to have come into use almost simultaneously with the invention of gunpowder. A way had to be found to carry the powder and keep it dry, and men quickly found that there wasn't anything better or cheaper in medieval times for this purpose than the horns of an animal.

They were in general use in the sixteenth century and were brought to this country by the first settlers. The oldest horn whose picture appears in the collection was found near Schenectady, N. Y., and bears the date of 1683.

It was generally the horns of their own cattle that the farmer fighters of America used. The loss of a horn in nowise impaired the usefulness of the animal, and bulls frequently were called upon to make the sacrifice. Such horns were easily obtained and wouldn't rust and could be carried in the rain and through streams without the powder in them getting wet.

They were always worn under the left arm by a strap that went over the right shoulder, the curve in the horn conforming to the shape of the body and serving to keep it out of the way of the wearer. There was a stopple in the small end, and without being unslung the powder could be poured into the right hand and thence into the gun.

Boiled, scraped and cleaned and colored with an orange or yellow dye, which was the way most of the powderhorns were prepared, they lent themselves more readily to ornamentation by the owner than did any other part of his equipment, and it is this fact which has made them particularly interesting as historical relics. Admiring friends in the days when powderhorns were in general use instead of presenting a hero with an engraved sword gave him a finely decorated powderhorn.

Sometimes the horns were made to order and the engraving done by professionals. Many of these horns were beautifully colored, the most popular shade being a sort of orange tint.

Perhaps the most remarkable examples of the engraver's art to be seen on the geographical horns whose pictures appear in the Greenwood collection. These geographical horns took the place of pocket maps for the early pioneers. They were the work of professional engravers in places like New York and Boston.

Some of the horns in the collection contain practically complete maps of the old trails and waterways. One of the best of these bears the date of 1767 and shows New York with its harbor filled with ships and New York state as far as Lake Champlain and Ontario. The Hudson valley, with its settlements, appears on most of the geographical horns discovered. One horn shows the country between Elizabethtown and Pittsburg, each little settlement being carefully noted.

The horns thus filled a double purpose, supplying the traveler with a map and carrying his powder for him. One of the best specimens in the collection shows Havana, as well as the trail from Albany to Oswego. It is believed to have been owned by a soldier in the English army which captured the Cuban city and who later served in the colonies.

DO NOT BE HUMBUGGED.

MORE THAN EVER

Dishonorable and disreputable pharmaceutical concerns are flooding the market with cheap and worthless preparations designed to be imitations of "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."

Some of these are even labelled "Extract of Wild Strawberry," "Wild Strawberry Compound," etc., in the hope that the public may be deceived and led to purchase them, thinking they are getting the genuine "Dr. Fowler's."

Are you willing to risk your health—perhaps your life, to these no name, no reputation, likely dangerous, so-called Strawberry Extracts?

For sixty-five years "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry" has been used in thousands of families for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Summer Complaint, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum and all Bowel Complaints.

Do not let the dishonest or unprincipled dealer humbug you into accepting one of these cheap substitutes, to the detriment of your health and gain to his pocket.

Ask for "Dr. Fowler's" and insist on getting what you ask for. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35 cents.

MEXICAN WOOING.

From Making Eyes at a Senorita to the Grand Serenade.

In the uncertain illumination of the electric lamps some of the senoritas of Topic City appeared very attractive in breezy, fluffy gowns and fetching mantillas, and they know it pretty well too. They like to have you look at them directly and admiringly, and they will not drop their eyes.

If you have the nerve to give one a look of this kind—such a look as would be considered extremely rude in any American city—the chances are when you meet her on the next turn you will be rewarded with a smile and a challenge from the black eyes, and if you have a sufficient stock of nerve in reserve you will speak to her and pay her some complimentary remark upon the first opportunity that offers. This is good breeding and will not be resented.

Should you then become infatuated with the lady you will search out her home, visit her barred window and mope under it for an hour or two every morning, and if you impress her favorably she will make your heart glad by talking with you through the bars or dropping little scented notes to you.

Should you become real serious you will hire a stringed band to serenade her at night now and then. To conform with the custom you should start your band out at midnight and let it play as long as your money lasts.—Outing Magazine.

COSTERMONGER.

The Word in Former Times Was Spelled "Costard-monger."

The word costermonger is now used of an itinerant fruit seller. It was formerly spelled costard-monger, and in this form appears in Drant's "Horace," to translate the Latin word "pomarius."

Literally it means costard seller, costard being a kind of apple, the name of which Murray connects with coste, a rib.

Some etymologists connect it with custard, assuming that the pulp of apples was used in preparing this delicacy, but there is no real reason for this, since the "custard apple," mentioned in Dampier's "Voyages" (1699) is quite different fruit from the middle English costard.

Some connect it also with "costard," the humorous name for a head—"Take him over the costard with the hilt of thy sword" (Shakespeare). But it seems more probable that the head was called after the apple than the apple after the head.

The termination "monger" simply means a dealer or trader, as in fellmonger and ironmonger, and is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word "mangian," to traffic or barter, which is akin to the Latin "mango," a dealer who sets off and polishes up his wares.—London Standard.

Two Ribs Broken.

Several people saw him slip on a wet step and fall. Partly extricating himself from his umbrella, he set up such a wail of distress that every one in hearing ran to his assistance regardless of the drenching rain.

"Are you hurt?" asked a chorus of voices.

"Anything broken?" demanded another.

"Only two ribs," he muttered in tones of deep anguish as he wiped his bleared face on his sleeve.

Helping him up, a kind man dragged him into a drug store. One thoughtful person suggested a glass of brandy, another more generous said there were two ribs broken, and a second glass followed the first.

"That'll make you feel better, old man. Ribs hurt you now?"

"What ribs?" he puzzled, smacking his lips.

"Why, the ones you said were broken!"

"Oh," he replied, getting on his feet and moving toward the door. "Dey was de ribs in me umbrella."—Judge.

The Waiting Ones.

A gentleman meeting a young woman who had formerly been a servant in his house and in whose welfare he was interested, the following conversation took place:

"Why, haven't you got married yet?"

"No, sir."

"Well, I thought you would have been married before now."

"Oh, no, sir; there's two waiting."

"Two! Why, you don't mean to marry two, do you?"

"No, sir."

"Then who are they?"

"Why, the two that's waiting in the parson and me. We are waiting for the man."—London Answers.

A WIZARD OF THE PEN

SOMETHING ABOUT MR. J. M. BARRIE.

Thrums Was Very Much Upset When Jamie Repudiated the Kirk and Took Up Authorship as a Bread-Winner—Even His Mother Chuckled at the Idea of Anyone Publishing His Efforts—Boyhood's Games.

"When I left the University," Mr. J. M. Barrie says, "two maiden ladies asked what I was to be. When I replied brazenly, 'An author,' they flung up their hands, and one of them exclaimed reproachfully, 'And you an M.A.!'"

And these horrified ladies but expressed the general feeling of "Thrums," the little weaving town in Forfarshire, where the future author of "The Little Minister" had been cradled in one of the meanest of its cottage. For Jamie, who might have become a minister and an ornament of the kirk, to throw himself away on a scribbler's trade was—well, simply "an awfu' waste of a gude education."

His mother's heart, too—that mother whom he has so tenderly and beautifully immortalized as "Margaret Ogilvie" had set her heart on Jamie becoming a "meenister," and it was a sad disillusionment when she realised that her boy meant to live and die a mere author. And how the dear old lady chuckled at the idea—when she had got reconciled to it a little—of Jamie ever expecting to find anyone foolish enough to publish his writing. "You may picture," her son once wrote, "the Editor in his office thinking he was behaving like a shrewd man of business, and unconscious that up in the north there was an elderly lady chuckling so much at him that she could scarcely scrape the potatoes."

But Jamie meant to be an author, let who would scoff at his ambition. "The malignity of publishers," he says, "could not turn me back; there could be no humdrum dreadful profession for me; literature was my game." And with what magnificent success he has played the game and found a gold-mine in it, we all know.

Of course the weaver's boy of Thrums was born a writer. As a child he lived in a dream-world of his own. His favorite companions were "Robinson Crusoe" and "The Pilgrim's Progress"; and he was ideally happy when he had converted the tiny strip of back garden into Sloughs of Despond, with peasticks to represent Christian on his travels, and a buffet-stool for his burden. His schooling at Dumfries and his reading for his Edinburgh M.A. were only an irksome preliminary to the life-work he had mapped out for himself in many a wakeful hour in the cottage attic; and the first thing he did after he laid aside his college gown was to write a three-volume novel, which a publisher offered to give to the world—if the writer would make it worth his while!

In these 'prentice days the great-man-to-be was proud to see in the local paper his report of a cricket-match or a letter, signed "Paterfamilias," advocating longer holidays for schoolboys. How, in process of time, he drifted to Nottingham to serve his apprenticeship to journalism; how he found his literary feet in The St. James's Gazette with the first of a series of "Auld Licht" sketches which were to make Thrums and himself famous—this is part of literary history, as are all his later triumphs of the pen. To-day the man who was proud to earn three guineas a week on The Nottingham Journal has an income far advanced in five figures, and is said to have drawn $250,000 from the book and stage rights of "The Little Minister" alone.

And never was man less spoilt by the smiles and gifts of fortune; for Mr. Barrie is to-day as modest and even bashful as when he walked the streets of Kirriemuir, a lad of dreams and silence. He is, to quote Mr. G. W. Cable, "A smallish, sedate, reticent man, of a breadth and squareness of brow that would claim the attention of any passing stranger. His shoulders are square and sturdy, his eyes pensive, and his hands prone to seek his pockets for resting and hiding. When he speaks his word come in low procession, as though he were writing them. His voice is soft in tone, and I do not remember that in my three days of constant intercourse with him it ever rose to a high note." His smallness, by the way, was a sore trouble to his mother, who feared that when the editors saw her Jamie they would form a poor opinion of him.

One day Barrie, who is, of course, an inveterate smoker, came across a youth whom he employed smoking a dirty, reeking clay pipe, packed with black twist tobacco. Barrie lectured him severely on the terrible evil of boys smoking — especially smoking such vile "twist." That night some friends came to Barrie's rooms. He went to a cabinet which he kept stored with the choicest cigars. But the cigars had all gone. So had the boy. Instead was only a scrap of paper, on which the boy had written that Mr. Barrie was quite right. It was a bad thing (as Barrie had told him) for a young lad to smoke thick twist. So he wrote he had decided to give it up. Meanwhile, he would put up with the cigars. They would help him along till he was of the right age for clay pipes and "twist."

Make hay while the sun shines, and the sun never shines so steadily and bright as when you are young.

"Gone to the Devil."

"Gone to the devil" has nothing satanic in its history. It was long traced to a tavern in Fleet street, London, known by the sign of the "Devil and St. Dunstan," for it supplied good food and drink. It had a large clientele and was called the "Devil" for short. "Gone to the Devil," read a notice at many an office when the occupants went to dinner. Unhappily some went there too often and stayed too long, until at last when their patrons left them "Gone to the devil" became a synonym for the neglect or the loss of their business.

China Wants Wei-Hai-Wei.

The Chinese Government is stated by The North China Daily News, to have approached Great Britain in regard to the redemption of Wei-Hai-Wei for a naval base, but the latter country is said to have asked for £20,000,000 compensation. China, it is added, is thus compelled to abandon the idea for the time being on account of the difficulty in raising so enormous a sum.

Expert Drifting.

An expert workman in one of the great needle factories in a test of skill performed one of the most delicate feats imaginable. He took a common sewing needle of medium size, an inch and five-eighths in length, and drilled a hole through its entire length from eye to point, the opening being just large enough to permit of the passage of a very fine hair.

The Red Sea.

In the Red sea reefs of bright pink coral are chiefly to be seen. Much of the rocky bed of this sea is the work of the coral insect. But probably the true reason for the name of the Red sea is because along its eastern shore lies ancient Edom. This word signifies "red." It was given to the region not from the color of its mountainous hills, but from its people. These are the descendants of Esau who came in faint and weary from hunting and sold to his brother, "Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red pottage, for I am faint;" therefore was his name called Edom.

Only a Miss.

Little Muriel flew into the house flushed and breathless.

"Oh, mother," she cried, "don't scold me for being late to tea, for I've had such a disappointment! A horse fell down, and they said that they were going to send for a horse doctor, so of course I had to stay. And after I'd waited and waited he came, and, oh mother, what do you think? It wasn't a horse doctor at all. It was only a man!"—Everybody's Magazine.

A Coincide Explanation.

"How does that man always manage to appear as the leader of you people?"

"I suppose," answered Farmer Cornstossel, "that it's simply because he's smart enough to get ahead of us."—Washington Star.

A Romance From Real Life That Had Its Beginning In His Hearing Popular Song

Wealthy Young Chicago Club Man Drawn Into Love's Meshes in the Search for the Girl Who Wrote "Our Honeymoon"—Learned She Was Single and Suggested a Honeymoon of Their Own.

PARSON IS NOW WAITING

John Harcott was lonely, there was no doubt about that; likewise he was blue; also disgusted with things as they were.

But if he'd told all this to any one he would have been laughed at. And apparently, with every right. What business had John B. Harcott, stock broker, to be lonely? Or blue? Or disgusted?

He was rich—yes. Young? Only twenty-eight! Good looking? Well, he might not say so, but others thought so and especially now that he is lucky enough to—here, not so fast! At any rate, on this particularly pleasant spring afternoon in Chicago, John Harcott, all around good fellow, member of the best clubs, broker, with a suite of offices in South street, resident of the Auditorium Annex—smart a hotel as Chicago has—shouldn't have had a thing in the world to put him at all out of sorts.

Logic couldn't prove it. But the fact remained—he was.

So he slammed down his desk. He jammed on his hat. He grabbed up his stick. Then he stalked out into the street—he didn't know where, and cared less. He just wanted to get away. It was growing dusk, and the lights were beginning to twinkle here, there, everywhere. Folks were hurrying home by trolley and L—that is, all but John Harcott. He hadn't any home to go to, nothing but a club or a suite of rooms in a fashionable hotel.

Nature asserted herself as the disgusted stock broker strode on. It was dinner time; he was hungry. Where to go? Oh, bother take it all—where? He was sick and tired of that eternal problem, where to dine. Other men—envious of him, perhaps—didn't always have to plan out their dinner. They knew where to go—home!

What restaurant? He had tried them all, dozens of times. He hated them all, too, with their obsequious waiters, eager for the tip; their strident music, the ceaseless jingle of silver and clatter of plates; the jabber of many tongues; the eternal menu with the price after every dish.

"Oh, one's as good as the other!" concluded Harcott, and he went into the next one he came to.

It chanced to be the College Inn, in the basement of the Sherman House. A gay crowd was busy ordering lobsters and steaks and chops and salads and strawberries and ice cream and all sorts of cheerful things to drink, from beer to champagne.

"Oh, bring me a steak and some potatoes—any old way!" snapped the moody Harcott to the waiter, not deigning to cast a glance at the tempting bill of fare held out for his inspection.

"What's the use?" asked John Harcott of himself.

He looked aimlessly about at the tables. Every one was occupied, or even more. Only he of all that company was dining alone. The place opposite him was not set. He hated everything, everybody—even himself.

Then somebody started something on the piano. Harcott didn't listen at first to the little introduction in valse tempo. A woman's voice, clear and sweet, sang a verse—something about a honeymoon at sea. It made little or no impression upon the mooning Harcott. And then, the chorus:

On our honeymoon! on our honeymoon!
The dashing white spray taking us far, far away
From the land we call our home.
With the waves' gay tune we will sit
and spoon,
On the moonlight nights we will sit
and spoon,
On our honeymoon!

Harcott looked up. The singer began the second verse when the honeymooners were coming home to be welcomed at the pier by their friends to live happily ever after. The chorus again—Harcott, despite his sulks, found himself humming the catchy air. There was applause from the other tables. The singer sang the refrain again. This time Harcott applauded—think of it, really applauded!

The song had called him back to earth. Harcott was even smiling when the discouraged waiter appeared with his dinner. A honeymoon at sea? What a jolly thing! Yes, he had always loved the sea and the waves and the slip-slip of a boat's bow cutting the foam, and the glint of the sunshine through the spray. But he never thought of it in that way with a girl along and just those two alone and——

"Jolly good song; jolly well sung!"

Here was Harcott actually talking cheerily to himself. More than that. While the waiter was fetching the demitasse and perfecto the no-longer-moody Harcott strolled over to the piano.

"What's the name of that song the lady just sang?" he asked the accompanist.

"'Our Honeymoon,'" was the answer.

Who wrote it? The player didn't know, but he'd look over his music. Ah, yes—Emily Smith.

"Happen to know whether it's Miss or Mrs. Smith?" queried Harcott.

No, the accompanist didn't know. Besides, it might even be a man—songs written by women sold better and sometimes men adopted feminine noms de plume for business reasons.

Harcott was curious by this time, and rather enthusiastic. Just for the fun of the thing—or was it Fate?—he'd take down the publishers' name. So down in his note book went the address of a publishing house in New York. He finished his coffee and cigar with gusto, tipped the waiter so generously that the servitor bent double in bowing him out, and Harcott strode briskly down the street. His mind was made up. He needed a little vacation anyway. He'd run over to New York just for the fun of the thing and drop in when he had time at the office of the music company.

"Oh, yes," said the clerk somewhat astonished when a clean cut, well to do looking young man asked him several questions not many days later in New York. "It's Miss Smith—a real miss, too. She lives at No. 2234 Valentine avenue, in the borough of the Bronx. We've got a picture of her here—like to look at it?"

Indeed Harcott would like to. What he saw in the photograph made him more determined than ever to meet the girl who wrote the song he had heard far away in Chicago. He asked a question; at length he found a mutual frien dand got the introduction he was dying to get.

John Harcott found the girl even prettier than her picture—a striking brunette, with raven hair and flashing black eyes, and a mellow, limpid voice. Nor was "Our Honeymoon" her maiden effort at music. The enthusiastic Harcott learned that Miss Smith had received a fine musical education at the Boston Conservatory of Music, and had written "Arizona," "The Cricket and the Owl," "The Regimental March," "The Old Virginia Home" and a dozen others.

"Why did I write 'Our Honeymoon'?" laughed Miss Smith. "Because I just love the water. I'd rather swim than eat. And I adore the sea."

"So do I!" chimed in Harcott eagerly. "And a honeymoon at sea—that would be something like!"

In another moment the impulsive Harcott would have been in hot water—not the cool water of the sea—and he stopped before he got in too deep. He wanted to leave a good impression after his first call. A couple of days later he was there again at Miss Smith's home. What's the use of going any further? It was all over in a month. By that time the hustling Harcott thought he had used up enough valuable time in the preliminaries and boldly plunged in. Would Miss Smith, of New York, try a real, true honeymoon at sea with John Harcott, of Chicago?

Now, brides-to-be as a rule don't repeat to everybody just what they say when the crucial moment comes, but the gist of it, as you guess by this time, was "Yes!"

Mrs. Smith, her mother, announced the engagement. Mr. Harcott did the rest. He went to the manager of a motor boat company and put in his order for the $4,500 honeymoon yacht. It will be ready in a few days now—this handsome, sturdy 28 horse-power forty-footer, charmingly fitted out for honeymooning, and she is to be called Emily, after the bride.

They will be married the last of August. Then the honeymoon begins, sailing, as soon as the cars can take them there, from Key West to Bermuda over sapphire seas. Then they go to the Azores, to Gibraltar and the Mediterranean, even as far East as Suez, and back home again for the welcome of the words of "Our Honeymoon."

And so the promise of the song will come true at last!

SOUTH BEACH NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

South Beach, Aug. 21.—The past week has been a very pleasant one to the guests at Brooks' summer resort. With the exception of Monday, the weather has been of the most delightful character to the visitor who comes here for a change of air and enjoyment of a good healthy breeze. For the enthusiastic sportsman who comes for the fishing privileges, perhaps the enjoyment has been less, because of the prevalence of winds that have continued from the north. So that while this cool bracing air has been appreciated by the semi-invalid and the office man, it has made bad fishing weather. And, to tell the truth, not many catches have been reported here this week. Some bass have been brought in by parties who have had guides out with them, but not a solitary maskinonge has been captured at this point during the past week, so far as your correspondent learned.

Fully sixty guests have been here all this week, and the house has maintained a higher record for popularity this season than ever before. Many of the faces that have been seen here in previous seasons are here again, but there are more new faces this season than ever before. Americans are here from Rochester, Pittsburg, Scranton, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, New York, Boston and other States, with Rochester in the lead. And Canadians from Toronto, Preston, Port Hope, Peterborough, Oakville and Hamilton, unite in making a jolly community with varied idiosyncrasies, who never fail to admire the beauties of South Beach summer resorts and its well appointed tables d'hote.

The evenings have a particular attraction for the guests. As the twilight begins to appear, the dance hall becomes a scene of lively animation. Music and dancing and vocal selections while away the evening hours. The broad verandahs and balconies furnish splendid outlooks upon Clear Lake and woodland scenery as well as cosy nooks for coy couples to do their whispering or family groups to indulge in a homelike talk.

The walks are another pleasure pastime especially the favourite "Lover's Walk" through the fir and maple trees over the winding pathway that leads to Young"s Point. The visit to the Point is always full of interests to the guests, who watch the steamboats arrive and depart through the lock, or stroll over to the stores, the post office, or telephone, or listen to a bit of historic gossip from Lockmaster Young, who can furnish the ancient history of the place so well.

Illness of Captain Young

General regret has been felt the past two days by the serious illness of Capt. P. Young, of the steamer Majestic. He was seized with severe pains on Wednesday evening while attending to his duties up the lake. A physician at Crowe's Landing remained with him during the night, and next day he was taken to his father's home in Young's Point.

Dr. Fraser, of Lakefield, who has since been in attendance, pronounces the cause to be trouble with the appendix, and hopes to succeed in relieving it without resorting to an operation. To-day the patient was easier and free from the severe pain.

MASQUERADE BALL AT JUNIPER ISLAND SUCCESS

One of the Most Enjoyable Affairs of the Season Held in the Pavilion on Thursday Night—Attendance Was Very Large.

COSTUMES WERE VERY GOOD

Special to The Examiner.

Stony Lake, Aug. 20.—Juniper Island pavilion, the popular resort to which hundreds nightly flock for entertainment was the scene of more than usual merriment last evening when the first dance of the masquerade variety for this season was held.

The event which was arranged by Mr. Oxley, of Toronto, was a success in every particular for those taking part, the onlookers and last but not least, financially, there being a small charge of admission to defray the expense of making some improvements about the pavilion. The receipts amounted to about $22.00.

The costumes, of which there were about two hundred exhibited were of exceptional merit, many being highly artistic and bearing evidence of much originality in their conception and construction.

The representations were of extensive variety ranging from the stately and classic Grecian Maiden up to that creation of the present day the "fussy tribe" Lady.

Excellent music was voluntarily supplied by talented musicians present who generously responded to encores.

As there had been no system previously arranged of obtaining the names of those present, the following list is by no means complete:

Miss Acton, Toronto—Geisha.
Miss Annette Collins, Peterborough—Jockey.

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effective treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

He called the meeting to order and briefly reviewed the year that has just closed. Mr. F. A. Shannon, secretary presented his report, following which Mr. R. E. ## CARUSO'S VOICE IS UNIMPAIRED

He Sang to Enormous Attendance in Belgium.

Ostend, Belgium, Aug. 21.—It was proved at Ostend beyond the faintest shadow of a doubt that Signor Caruso is in complete possession of his unique vocal means. The famous singer achieved an unprecedented triumph, being acclaimed to the echo by 17,500 persons, who, besides filling the hall, listened to him from other parts of the building and from exterior points of vantage. Five thousand people were unable to obtain admission, and during the struggles consequent upon the extraordinary demand for seats, windows were broken and women fainted. Thus in more senses than one Signor Caruso has achieved a record.

On Invisible Keys Blind Girl Writes For Those Who Can See

MISS GRACE KEATOR AT HER TYPEWRITER.

London, Aug. 21.—Scores of blind girls in London are learning to be stenographers.

Miracles in this line are being accomplished by the Association for the Blind.

Miss Grace E. Keator, president of the Blind Girls' Club of London, is an accomplished stenographer, and can write as rapidly as an ordinary typist.

"We have a machine for taking shorthand notes," says Miss Keator. "It has six keys. These keys punch combinations of dots that take the place of shorthand notes. These dots appear on a narrow paper tape.

"A blind stenographer lays this tape across her lap, as she sits at an ordinary typewriting machine. With her fingers she feels out her shorthand notes. Then she writes by the touch system on her typewriter.

"I cannot tell you how strange and wonderful it seems to us to be able to write so that others may see and read our work. It is all the more wonderful to a blind person who has never ever seen a printed letter.

"Thousands of eyes will view what I have written on my typewriter for the readers of this paper, yet, in my mind's eye, I have not the slightest idea of what typewriter letters look like.

"It is work alone that can make the blind happy. And I believe that stenography is particularly adapted as work for the blind. I am told that an error rarely appears in one of the letters written by the girls in our stenography school for the blind in London."

Here is the message written on her own typewriter by Miss Grace E. Keator, blind stenographer:

It is only a few years ago that it would have been considered cruel to ask that a blind man or woman should take a place among the wage earners of the community. But this is an age of progress. Many fields are now open to the blind who have a good education, plenty of stick-to-it-iveness and are not afraid of hard work.

The thing we who are blind want most of all now is a chance to show the public what we can do. "Seeing is believin." If our seeing friends, instead of merely thinking that what we do is wonderful, would investigate our work, compare it with that done by sighted people, give us a chance, we then could prove our ability.

Those who are fortunate enough to be self-supporting, do not want to be looked upon as prodigies, for they are simply ordinary human beings who are striving, despite their handicap, to improve the faculties which God has given them.

It may be of intrest to the readers to know that I am myself blind and selfsupporting, being employed as a stenographer by the London Association for the Blind.

GRACE E. KEATOR.

King Manuel To Visit England In November

Portuguese Sovereign Has Accepted Invitation of King Edward, Which Was Contained in Personal Letter.

Lisbon, August 21. — Europe's most youthful monarch, King Manuel of Portugal, will visit this country early in November at the invitation of King Edward, who sent a personal letter to Lisbon inviting the young King to spend a few weeks at Windsor Castle. The Lisbon journals in announcing the visit, express great satisfaction and suggest the possibility that the marriage of the young King will be discussed during his stay in England. The Lisbon assassination of Feb. 1, 1908, brought Dom Manuel, who is now in his 20th year, from a naval training college to the throne. He has dark eyes and hair and pale skin, and has outgrown a tendency to delicate health which marked his boyhood. He is an active and well built young man, whose physique already shows the traditional embonpoint of his family, while his face habitually expresses a smiling good temper. His character has much of the charm of his mother, Queen Amelia, to whom he is tenderly attached. From her, too, came a strong love of books and artistic tastes—the young King sketches and is an excellent pianist. He was almost more studious than his late brother but his unforseen call to the throne necessitated the acquirement of much fresh knowledge. He has therefore applied himself to a strenuous course of study. Professors lecture before him daily and home and foreign affairs are explained to him by his ministers. He reads in several languages, perusing the chief Portuguese and foreign newspapers each morning. Less devoted to outdoor games than his late brother, the young King is yet, like his father, an enthusiastic lawn tenis player. He fences well, is fond of billiards and everyday rides on on horseback. Dom Manuel emulates King Alfonso in his fondness for motoring at a brisk pace for preference—despite the indifferent surface of many of th Portuguese roads. With the Queen, his mother, he plays bridge fro a short time after dinner. Many rumours of Dom Manuel's betrothal have been spread from time to time since his accession. A granddaughter of King Edward, and the Kaiser's only daughter are among the Princesses whom rumour—ony yto be promptly contradicted—have named as the future Queen of Portugal.

Salvation Army Asks The Citizens To Lend Assistance

Have Outgrown Old Quarters And Are Rearranging Them to Accommodate Sunday School and Band—Have Greatly Increased In Numbers.

HELPING WORTHY CAUSE

The members of the Salvation Army of this city have undertaken a number of changes in the interior of the Barracks made necessary by the growth in membership during the past few years. The Band and Sunday School quarters no longer afford adequate accommodation, and to meet the extra demand occasioned by the Army keeping step with the city's advancement the alterations were finally decided upon and the actual work has been commenced. The officers and members of the Peterborough corps feel that the citizens appreciate the work they are endeavouring to do, and the no small amount of success that has blessed their efforts. The Army people are not, generally speaking, a monied class, but they are doing their best themselves, and those who can better afford it have been very generous. However, they feel that they will receive the co-operation of the people of Peterborough and that this assistance will be cordially rendered.

In brief the alterations are explained as follows:

The band room and Sunday School room were in the basement. Accommodation had been provided for a Sunday School class of 50, but it now numbers 200. It will, therefore, be manifest to everyone that more ample accommodation was needed. The band room originally provided for fifteen, and there are at present upwards of 40 bandsmen. The basement is now being set apart entirely for the Sunday School, and will be arranged according to the general kind, being subdivided into class rooms.

The new quarters for the band will be upstairs in what has been the meeting hall where the services were held. The platform at the south end of the body of the barracks will be moved out and a room built in its place. This is where practices will be held and lockers will be provided for instruments. In the past rehearals were held in the main hall and in winter extra expense was occasioned through having to heat it. The officers' quarters, at the front, are being taken out, thus leaving the main hall the exact size as before. The three entrances will be replaced by one main entrance, and a home will be secured apart from the barracks for the officers in charge of the crops.

About half of the total cost has already been realized by a special collection made some months ago, and it is felt that the citizens will show their generosity towards the efforts of the Army to increase the scope of their work. The collecting will be continued in an endeavour to secure the amount required. The work of the Army is appreciated by all classes of people and it is expected that a liberal response will be given to their appeal for assistance.

GHOST KEEPS TRAMPS AWAY

Dublin, Aug. 21.—The latest visitor to the casual wards of the Clogheen Workhouse is an apparition in the form of a woman.

A Clonmel telegram stated that at the meeting of the Clogheen Guardians some amusement was created by a report from a clerk, in which he stated that there had been a very sharp decrease in the number of tramps, a ghost having been seen in the female tramps' ward, where it paraded the room on several nights recently, causing great disturbance to the inmates by tramping loudly up the stairs. Several inmates had complained that the ghost, in the form of a woman in white, approached their beds in a threatening attitude, and then suddenly disappeared through a window seventy feet from the ground.

The master said he had been called out of his bed on two occasions on account of the uproar occasioned by the ghostly visitor.

The clerk said that there had been a marked decrease in the number of casuals.

Mr. Fox suggested that the ghost might be accounted for by poison. whiskey.

You Can Defy The SPRING FATIGUE

And nervous exhaustion, if you will make the blood rich and red by using DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Fatigue and weakness tell of weak, watery and impure blood.

Are you going to go through the usual suffering and discomfort of spring this year or take a hand in the matter of your health and build up the system?

It is for you to decide, for you know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, by forming new, rich blod, overcomes the fatigue, the weakness, the feelings of depression, and discouragement which come with spring.

The nervous system is almost always exhausted in the spring. Your appetite fails because the nerves which control the appetite are exhausted, and so it is with digestion and the working of the other bodily organs.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest spring medicine because it is the greatest of nerve restoratives. It forms the new, rich, red blood from which vigor, energy and nerve force are created.

If you would restore the healthful glow to the complexion, sharpen the appetite, improve digestion, strengthen the action of the heart, revitalize the wasted brain and nerve cells and round out the wasted form you must use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. No imitation is just as good. There is no substitute but will disappoint.

Mrs. John P. Shannon, Whiteside, N. S., writes: "I used four boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found it an excellent medicine. It has proved to be a splendid treatment for headache and a run-down system."

BATTLESHIP IS USED AS TARGET

French Navy Practises on the Wrecked Vessel.

Paris, August 21.—Wrecked by the disastrous explosion of March 12th, 1907, the battleship Iena, now lying off the Island of Porquerolles, near Toulon, is being used as a target by a shore battery and three cruisers during the next few weeks.

The cruiser Conde began the firing on Wednesday. Shells of various destructive power were used, the object being to test the effects of the explosives on the Iena's armour.

The experiments will also prove the effect of the asphyxiating gases liberated by the explosion of the new French naval shells. For this purpose a number of live sheep and oxen were shut in the turrets of the dismantled battleship. After the shells had been fired the artillery committee on board the Conde visited the Iena to see what had been the effect. The results were kept secret and it is not known whether the animals survived.

Some of them had microphones attached to their bodies, with electric connections to instruments on shore, so that the effect of each explosion on a living organism might be noted.

OPIUM SMOKERS' LICENSES

Canton, Aug. 19.—The acting Consul-General at Canton reports that public opium smoking divans and restaurants have practically ceased owing to the strict enforcement of regulations by the police. The authorities have failed to induce smokers to take out licenses, which, perhaps, is not to be wondered at, since each license is printed on a board a foot square.

NEW TOWN HAS BEEN FOUNDED

Private Capitalists Lay Out a Town at Point Where National Transcontinental Crosses the River About Seven Miles From Cochrane—Government Takes Many of the Best Lots.

Cochrane, Aug. 20.—At the point where the transcontinental railway crosses the Frederick River, about seven miles from here, a new townsite has been surveyed and will be placed upon the market immediatly.

Th location of the townsite is chiefly due to the enterprise and energy of private individuals, as the Government had not intended to have a town at this point. The Government retained one-third of the future townsite, and in addition certain blocks of the surveyed townsite for special purposes. There is a series of streets running north and south, numbered First to Eleventh, and the two on the river front are named River street East and West. Across the town run North street, George street, Frederick street, Centre avenue, King street, Queen street and South street.

The Government has reserved two out of every six of the 1,500 lots. The Government also reserves a block of 36 lots in the choicest part of the town, near the station, for public buildings, schools, churches, hospitals, etc. At the only available place along the river frontage where it is possible to land logs for milling purposes, or that might be suitable for a mill-site, 48 lots have been reserved. For the purpose of developing a small water-power on the river, 27 lots have been reserved. There is also a reservation of 66 feet along either bank of the river. The Government also reserves the bed of the river, the islands in the river and all the water-power privileges.

The Transcontinental right of way is doubled to 200 feet where it passes through the centre of the townsite, the total area of which is 261 acres. The lots as a rule measure 33 x 120 feet, but some ranges are 125 feet deep.

The Government lots are scattered over the townsite, eight or ten in a block, and a great many of the best corners are taken. One of the Government officials said that the Government had certainly got the choicest lots.

"While the site is a nice one for a town," remarked one of the Government officials, "there is no chance of it becoming a lumber centre. The railway bridge and tracks are 75 feet above the bed of the stream, with high banks on either side.

"There is good farming country all around, but no mines of minerals in that vicinity. A town may build up from the agricultural interests around. It is all level ground and high above the river, the banks of which are steep."

On the Metagami River, 25 miles west of the Frederick House Crossing, there is another good point for lumbering interests.

Hold Up For Tax.

Sarnia, Aug. 21.—Several of the harvesters bound for the Canadian Northwest, who took the route via Chicago, had an unpleasant experience at Port Huron, where the United States demanded the four dollar head tax apiece. Some of the men were refused passage through the United States altogether, and were turned back by the immigration inspectors. A few returned home, but others went on west through Canadian territory.

New Steamer Under U. S. Register.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—The Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co. will have its new boat now being built at Detroit registered under the United States flag.

Such is the decision which has been come to in regard to the reorganization of the company's service, and this is done to extend the service and to escape the vexatious delays over the coasting laws.

Babe Swallowed Carbolic.

Sarnia, Aug. 21.—The two-year-old son of Harold Ellenor, Bunyan P.O., Sarnia Township, got hold of a bottle of carbolic acid that had been uncorked for use in dressing another child's injured finger, swallowed the contents, and died while being driven to town. Mr. and Mrs. Ellenor are ill in the hospital here with typhoid fever.

Young Actor in Jail.

Windsor, Aug. 21.—The matrimonial plans of Walter Pilson, aged 20, a nickelodeon actor from Toronto, were rudely interrupted by the Detroit police when Walter was arrested on a charge of having money belonging to Peter D. Campbell in his possession.

Campbell, who runs a saw mill back of Chatham, Ont., went to Detroit yesterday, and fell in with Pilson, who was to marry a waitress, who played Campbell for some honeymoon money. When searched Pilson had $34 in his possession. He is still locked up, though Campbell refuses to prosecute.

WOMEN CLIMBED ON TO THE ROOFS

Several Women Intrench Themselves On Top of Adjoining Building and Hurl Bricks Through Windows of Hall Where War Minister Is Speaking—Three Plan Excitement for Earl Crewe.

London, Aug. 21.—There were suffragette disturbances at several political meetings in the British Isles last night.

The women made determined efforts to invade St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, and a crowd of their sympathizers came into violent conflict with the police, which resulted in riotious scenes.

Secretary for War Haldane, while addressing a meeting at Liverpool this evening was greatly disturbed by a number of suffragettes, who took up a postion on the roof of an adjacent building and showered bricks through windows of the hall in which the meeting was being held. Seven of the women were arrested.

At Glasgow, three rain-soaked and benumbed but still valiant suffragettes were this afternoon dislodged from the roof of St. Andrew's Hall, where the Earl of Crewe, secretary of state for the colonies, is booked to speak to-night.

Strict orders had been issued to exclude all women from the meeting, so the suffragettes decided to break into the building through the trap door on the roof.

In the middle of the night the three women secured a ladder and climbed to the roof, where they hid behind a chimney waiting to put their plan into operation.

When they were discovered they were nearly perishing from wet and cold, but they declined to come down. Much difficulty was experienced in removing them from their perilous position.

Is This Murder?

Kingston, Aug. 21.—Pieces of human hair scattered about the woods, with torn shreds of a woman's dress, indicate that the disappearance of Miss Eliza Ellen Woodcock of Cross Lake, near Ardendale, is going to have a tragic solution.

Since Thursday night a week ago searching parties have been scouring the woods. Miss Woodcock, who is about 35 years of age, was last seen standing at the doorway of her house. No strangers had been seen about the place.

The hair and clothing were found four miles from the Woodcock house on the shore of Beaver Creek. Friends fear that her body may have been thrown in the creek, and it will be carefully searched.

Injunctions Refused.

Welland, Ont., Aug. 21.—M. German, K.C., M.P., to-day made application to restrain the F. H. McGuigan Construction Co. and De Muralt & Co., sub-contractors, from entering upon the property of Louise Felker and erecting their towers and poles or doing other work thereon in connection with the hydro-power transmission line.

On behalf of the township council of Gainsboro, application was also made for an injunction to restrain the contractors from erecting the hydro-electric transmission line on the highways of the township.

Both applications were refused, his honor taking the ground that the case had no features of emergency.

Consumption in Mail Matter.

London, Aug. 21.—C.A.P.)—Giving evidence before the postal commission at Sydney, New South Wales, Vice-President Phillips of the Letter Sorters' Association, stated that during the last twenty years eighty per cent. of the deaths among letter sorters had been due to tuberculosis. The men had contracted the disease after they entered the service. Mail matter coming from every part of the world necessarily included a vast amount of infected material. Consumptives licked the stamps on the envelopes, and a letter might come into the sorting room with enough germs to poison the whole staff.

New Industry.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 21.—Chippewa is to have another large industry, five acres of the race-course having been purchased for a site for the Electric Furnace Products Co.'s plant. Building operations are to begin at once. About 50 hands will be employed, which number will ultimately be more than trebled. The main building will be 180 by 135 ft., of brick, steel and cement. The company will manufacture railroad switches and rails.

Professor and Wife Suicide.

Craz Styria, Aug. 21.—The famous Sociologist Ludwig Sumplowicz, professor of political law at Craz University, and his wife, Franciscan, committed suicide yesterday by taking poison. The reason assigned for the deed is that Prof. Sumplowicz was suffering from an incurable disease.

A BRIBER GIVES STRONG EVIDENCE

Julius Barrit, of Cote Bros. and Barrit, Says He Put Cash, and Later $300, on Desk of Ald. Lesperance For Services Rendered — Thought It Was His Duty— Did Not Refund Money.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—At the sitting of the royal commission yesterday afternoon, a witness swore that he had left $300 in the office of an alderman as a return for the support he had received in selling the city the new large passenger elevator that was installed in the city hall last year.

When the last witness of the afternoon, Julius Barrit, of Cote Brothers and Barrit, was called, only a few had any idea of the evidence to come.

At first he was reluctant, but it was drawn from him that he had laid, first $200, and later $300, on Ald. Lesperance's desk in return for services Alderman Lesperance had rendered for him.

"I considered it my duty to give that man money," explained the witness. "Later on, I thought he deserved more, and I gave it to him."

Not a word, however, had passed between the two about the money, the witness said. Ald. Lesperance had not returned the money, Mr. Barrit added, in reply to Commissioner Cannon's question.

At the session in forenoon, Ernest Belanger of the Modern Paving Company, admitted that his company generally made sixty cents a yard gross out of all their paving for the city. Belanger only got 10 cents a yard of this, and Branet was given the other 50 cents a yard.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Allan Shaver, 12-year-old son of Mr. Alex. Shaver of Iroquois, was drowned while bathing in the river.

The bylaw granting twenty-two thousand dollars for water works was carried yesterday in Exeter by 122 majority.

The Canadian Associated Press understands that General French will make only a short stay in Canada. He will visit the chief places of interest, if time permits.

The Dominion police have been notified of the arrest by the mounted police at Regina of Ole P. Holtane, aged 50, a fugitive from Norwegian justice. He is wanted in Norway for forgery.

Rev. Carl S. Jones, associate pastor of the Northwood Ward avenue Congregational Church, Detroit, disappeared after preaching a sermon at his church on Aug. 1. His relatives think that hard work may have unsettled his mind.

W. G. Clement of Gibraltar, Ont., was seriously, if not fatally, injured on W. H. Babington's ranch, near Medicine Hat Alta., where he was employed. Clement was sent out for horses, and thrown from an animal which he was riding.

Suicides While Despondent.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—With a 38-calibre revolver grasped firmly in his hand and a great gaping hole in his head, the body of a man who had given the name of F. Brown, but who is believed to be W. Foley, was discovered in the Nottingham Lodging House at 52 Jarvis street by a fellow-roomer early yesterday morning. Coroner McCollum decided that suicide was evident, and that an inquest was unnecessary.

Despondency over ill-health is the motive attributed, as the man was comparatively well-to-do, having over $1,000 in various banks. He had been a bush ranger, trapper and Cobalt speculator. Upon him were found military discharge papers bearing the name Foley. He was a man of about 50 years of age. The body is at the morgue.

To Get Good Settlers.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, has returned from England, with good news concerning immigration prospects. There is little immigration so far to Canada from the southern part of Ireland, as the movement from there continues to be in the direction of the United States. This is largely due to the fact that the passages are usually paid by friends and relatives who have established themselves in the United States. Canada stands to get most of her continental immigration in the future from Holland, Belgium and Scandinavia, countries which supply the finest class of settlers.

Two New Coal Companies.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Two coal companies have been incorporated, each with a capital of one million dollars.

The incorporators of the Brazeau Collieries are: G. G. Rusl, A. J. Reid, A. J. Mitchell, F. C. Annesley and F. J. Bullet. The incorporators of the Rocky Mountain Collieries are the same individuals.

Mrs. Clara Louisa Holden of Toronto is seeking divorce from her husband, Clarence L. Holden, now of Chicago.

S. A. Constitution Bill.

London, Aug. 21.—The South African Constitution Bill passed through the House committee.

An attempt was made to amend the provision of the Bill that the Senators must be Europeans or of European descent. The amendment was rejected, and on motion the Bill was passed to the third reading.

New Arbitrator.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—W. T. Rankin, of Fort William, has been named to represent the man on the board of investigation and conciliation which will endeavor to settle the difficulties between the C. P. R. and its dock laborers at the lake port. Mr. Urrey, first named, declined to act.

Fatal Storm at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—One woman died of fright, a panic occurred in a street car which was struck by lightning, and a house roof was ripped off while the inhabitants lay in bed during a violent electrical storm which struck Pittsburg shortly before noon.

SHOULD MOVE QUIETLY.

Hon. Mr. Graham Declares I. C. N. Methods Are Too Open.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—"There is no better state-owned railroad on the continent than the Intercolonial," was the remark of the Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, who has just returned from a study of the railway and canal systems of Great Britain and the Continent. He is to make a report to the Government on the comparison between state-owned and corporation-owned roads. Long hauls and sparse population were adverse factors in Canada. Passenger rates were the same as here, but freight rates higher.

"The chief drawback to the Intercolonial," he said, "is that the details of all expenditures are made public. Every little tender is made public and contractors get a chance to force up the price. In Germany these details are not given out and the management is able to get an advantage in buying. The roads are discussed in the Landstag, but these details are not asked for. Give us less publicity and we can make the Intercolonial pay and pay well."

While in England he had an intimation from one of the largest firms there that they would be ready to build the Quebec Bridge.

The canal system he found hardly up to ours. There were no free canals, as in Canada.

An Open Verdict.

Simcoe, Aug. 21.—Emery Shelley was not even implicated by Coroner W. A. McIntosh's inquiry into the cause of old Michael Hall's death, the jury finding that deceased met death from a bullet fired by some person unknown.

The decision was, however, in accord with Crown Attorney Slaght's presentment of facts, and which inclined rather to charging young Shelley with criminal negligence.

George Neilson identified the rifle as the one stolen from Blacksmith Paul's shop, where it had been sent for repairs. He had once killed a hawk with it at 192 yards.

Constable Ables said the boy had expressed a wish to see Mr. Hall's body before going to jail, and he took him over. The boy showed no emotion.

C. P. R. After Crops.

Bangor, Maine, Aug. 21.—A strenuous war for the control of the railroad business in Northern Maine is being waged by the Bangor and Aroostook and the Canadian Pacific systems.

Potatoes and lumber are the chief commodities in the traffic which these companies are reaching out for, and last year the Canadian Pacific handled at least 42 per cent. of the entire export crop of potatoes.

That the potato business in Aroostook County is worth striving for by the transportation companies is evidenced by the fact that this county produced more potatoes than any other territory of its size in the United States, and probably in the world. Last year the shipments amounted to 15,000,000 bushels. This year the acreage has been doubled.

Disturbance in Mexico.

Mexico City, Aug. 21.—Special news despatches from various parts of Northern Mexico agree that the situation throughout that region is one of much political unrest. The Government has the situation well in hand. The trouble centres about the personality of Gen. Bernardo Reyes, Governor of Neuvo Leon, and formerly Minister of War.

One of the most dangerous elements is the alleged called meeting of all the clandestine lodges of Masons throughout the Monterey Region, who have pledged themselves to support Reyes.

President Diaz is a 33rd degree Mason.

Attempted to Break Jail.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—Ten prisoners made an attempt for liberty at the Bedford Jail, at Sweetsburg, Thursday night.

The men were about to be locked up for the night by Acting Turnkey Scott, who is 78 years of age. The prisoners beat the old man over the head and so injured him that he later had to go to the hospital. His cries for help brought High Constable Boisvert, who, with his revolver, cowed the prisoners into submission. The plot was evidently all arranged, as a rope was found hanging outside a window.

Cement Combine Assured.

Car Men May Yet Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Street car employes of the west and northside lines have refused to ratify the recent agreement, and demand a strike. International President Mahon has been telegraphed for. The objections are that the new men will not reach the maximum wage scale of 30 cents an hour during the term of agreement, three and one-half years.

SOME OF THE MINOR LEAGUE GRADUATES WHO ARE MAKING A GREAT BIG NOISE HIGHER UP

YOUNGSTERS THEY'RE TALKING ABOUT.

Few are the youngsters who break into the big leagues and achieve prominence as ball players of national repute. The difference between the fastest of the minor leagues and the major organizations is so great that the men who do break through must have "class" sticking out all over them like bankrupt sale signs on some stores. So when youngsters not only stick on their first trial, but make the fans talk until they are looked upon as the "greatest ever" or "wonders," the players in the leagues they spring from come to the conclusion that, all unsuspected, they were associating with unsung heroes.

Of all the men drafted or purchased by the 16 major league clubs last fall, but few have attracted attention to themselves the country wide. Many have, upon occasions, seen their name in big type, but they aren't making the noise that is heard from coast to coast. The new men who have created a national sensation in base ball this year number but six, when the last word is said.

Jack Myers, the aboriginal backstop of the New York National league team, is one of the big reverberations. Stepping into the limelight from the American association, he was "dubbed "Big Chief," and he has lived up to the name. His batting and backstopping have won him a place in the hearts of the metropolitan multitude, and of the three youngsters—Marquardt, Durham and himself—he proved to be the only live wire, capable of continuous high-class work.

Eddie Collins of the Athletics, who has been clouting the leather hard enough to reach first place in the list of American league batters, is another youngster who has endeared himself to the home fans. Collins won his job as a regular second baseman by sheer ability, and if Connie Mack's outfit does win the pennant this year, much of the credit will fall upon the shoulders of the hard-hitting infielder.

Ted Easterly, the Pacific coast boy—and he's only a boy at that—has made big talk around the ring. Going into the game without a bit of big league experience, not knowing the batters and the thousand-and-one tricks deemed necessary to a high-class bickstop, he jumped into the breach caused by Harry Bemis' illness and made good for Cleveland from the jump. It is not this youngster's fault the Naps are not nearer first place, for if the rest had played as consistently as he, another story might be told.

In Pittsburg they hail Joe Miller, the sensational second baseman, as the big thunder. Working beside Hans Wagner most players look like spots, but this kid shines like a 1000-candle-power search light on a dark night. A wonderful fielder and hitter, he forced recognition by sheer ability, and despite his youth shows the steadiness of a veteran under the heaviest fire.

Harry Krause, the left-hander introduced to the American league by Connie Mack this year, who won 10 straight games before he went down to defeat, was unheralded. He declares he was fortunate in not being defeated earlier. Maybe so, but the ster batters of Ban Johnson's organization who bowed before his cunning declare it was luck and a heap more on the side that helped him through.

Tris Speaker of Boston, is another wonder. Manager Fred Lake gathered a score of young players, the flower of the minor leagues. Tris was one of them. Speaker hit like the proverbial "house afire" the first two months. Although not getting them safe as often as he did, he still ranks with the big ones.

get a hunch that the first of April was too sudden.

Well, you need not be shocked to read some such paragraph. Unless I am very much mistaken, Lajoie's days as captain-manager of the Naps, are numbered. Indeed, I will be surprised if he plays with the team next season.

I know of no baseball story half as important as this right now. The transfer of Hans Wagner, Mathewson, Brown or Chance would make all of us sit up and ejaculate, "What the ——!" But to see Lajoie's name in some other batting order than Cleveland's would be as strange as reading a real poem by Alfy Austin.

Why, when Nap Lajoie is transferred you and the man next door and the fellow around the corner will forget to go to work while you talk it over, and the back fences will be decorated by the cooks. The mysterious disappearance of Leon Ling and Charlie Ross won't be a circumstance.

Ask ten men which American League team ought to come home in front with the jockey breaking his arm to prevent the other seven getting the flag, and nine of them will say, "Cleveland OUGHT to, but"——

And there's a lot of meaning in that last word. Every base ball writer around the big wheel knows that the real trouble with the Cleveland club is LARRY LAJOIE.

As a matter of fact they will all give odds that the Naps will never win a pennant while the big Frenchman is retained as manager.

THE SECRET OF TY COBB'S SUCCESS IN BASE RUNNING

"How do you do it, Ty?"

The question, addressed to Detroit's great outfielder, had to do with Cobb's marvellous base stealing.

The Georgian "peach" leads the American League in base pilfers for 1909, with more clean steals to his credit than any other two players.

Ty blushed scarlet. He's about the most modest man in baseball anyway.

"Oh, I can't tell about that," he said. "Maybe it's because I try to get a good start. Maybe it's something else, just luck, for instance. Hughey knows. Here's Jennings now. Suppose you ask him."

"Oh, that isn't a very hard question," remarked the Tiger leader, when the question was put to him. "Ty not only gets a good start and is marvellously fast, but note this:

"He is in full motion the moment he starts away.

"Now, there are a lot of fast men in baseball; men who run the bases like racehorses, but it takes them two or three strides to get their gait.

"Cobb's different. When once he plunges down the line he's going at his top speed already. That saves him the fraction of a second that often saves his life.

"Then, too, Ty is a very hard man to touch out. He is a splendid slider and has a knack, all of his own, of throwing himself out of the reach of the man with the ball.

"Old-timers compare Bill Lange's base stealing with Ty Cobb's, but there is no similarity. Lange came head or feet first into the bag. All the man at second or third had to do was to straddle the base and touch him as he came along.

"'Billy' Hamilton was an awfully hard man to get. He was a good deal like Ty, away at full speed the moment the signal was given. When the second baseman or shortstop got the ball and rushed out for Billy, why Billy simply wasn't there.

"One of the hardest base stealers to touch was old Tom Brown. He'd come charging into the base in utter disregard of the man at the base, and many a shortstop and second baseman who stood his ground was cut down.

"Ty has a method all his own in sliding around the man with the ball, but I should say that his ability to get off at tip-top speed is his best asset."

Ty led the American League last year and the year before in batting. His fielding was always a sensation. This spring he set out to become as much of a marvel on the bases as he had been at bat and in the field.

"He was put on his mettle when Lou Criger said: "Cobb is a dub on the base, and I'll show him up every chance I get.'

Ty bids fair to surpass his ambition and the hopes of his ardent friends. He has already stolen more bases by two than any man in the American League stole last year. Pat Doherty, with forty-seven stolen bases to his credit, led the league in base running in 1908.

Eddie Collins is Ty's nearest rival this year, with twenty-seven stolen bases to his credit.

WILL BOSTON TEAM WIN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE TITLE?

New York, Aug. 17.—Will Boston win the American League pennant. All New England is asking this question just now and is prepared to do some lively "rooting" during the present trip of the team on the road. The Red Sox won all their six games last week and are right on the heels of the Detroits and Philadelphia Athletics. They were scheduled to play the New Yorks here yesterday, but the rain compelled them to remain at their hotels, where they talked baseball from every angle. The Boston players, it may be said, are confident of winning the championship and taking part in the world's series. They have improved steadily in every department of the game and predict that they will capture a majority of the games to be played in the West.

Manager Lake is a close mouthed fellow who does not indulge in making predictions, but his players said yesterday that within the last three weeks he has grown more confident of success than ever before. The development of the Bostons by Lake is just as remarkable as the rounding out of the Athletics by Connie Mack. Lake is a believer in young blood and when the present season opened he got rid of two famous veterans, Cy Young and Lou Criger. By means of patient management he has moulded his talent into a well oiled machine, which Boston and New England fans regard as a sure participant in the struggle for baseball supremacy this fall.

Lake's pitchers are all young men. Arellanes, the main stay, was picked up in California by President Taylor in the nick of time, as Hal Chase had strongly recommended him to the New York Americans. Wood, Hall, Karger, Schetzer, Wolter, Circotte and Nourse are the other slab men, and all have shown remarkable effectiveness.

When Catcher Spencer deserted the Red Sox, Lake placed the burden of back-stopping on young Carrigan, who is rated near the top of the list of American League receivers. Lake's success as a manager is due to the fact that he has insisted upon harmony and scientific team work. He has played no favourites and has compelled his players to get their money strictly on their merits.

McINTOSH SAYS THAT JEFF IS HOLDING UP BIG FIGHT

New York, Aug. 19.—Hugh Donald McIntosh, the Australian who promoted the Johnson-Burns contest, is still sure that he will land the biggest fight plum in history.

"It's all up to Jeff," he said. "Jeff is certainly holding up the match now. Whatever they say about Johnson, he must be given credit for being sincere in his desire to fight Jeff. Otherwise, would he offer to let Jeff make winner take all? Johnson was willing to do that in Australia. He said so here, and he said so in Chicago.

"Where? Well, I've set my mind on England as the place. Its so much better than Australia, because of the distance, besides having a population of 16,000,000 to draw up, against Australia's 5,000,000. They have never had a big fight in London, and it would create a tremendous sensation. Men who usually give up $125 for inferior fights at the National Club would give any amount to see this fight. The pictures would be a mine.

"London is the centre of the world's market, and I'd have the pictures on Broadway in six days. They'd fight in open at noon. The law says that the fights there must be limited. I've had the best lawyers in England to look the matter up and they find no clause that would prevent a fight limited far beyond twenty rounds. It's a cert that I'll make it England's greatest day if I'm lucky enough to land the bout. I count on the pictures, if Jeff wins. If Johnson wears Jim down and knocks him out, I'll sell the pictures to the first bidder. Their value hinges on Jeffries being returned the winner.

I'll have them in Paris in eight hours, and in ten different houses in London on the night of the fight. I won't consider California. I like Coffroth, and will not consider any encroachment on his ground. I have a substantial offer to do business from a spot in California that might serve in a pinch. But England! Oh! I'll move heaven and earth to send them there.

"There would be erected an arena that would command a revenue that has never yet been equalled in the history of the world's greatest shows. I will stand by my offer of $62,000. Jeff has us all on the anxious seat. I do hope that he does something soon."

No Worm Medicine acts so nicely as Miller's Worm Powders; no physic required.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

PETERBOROUGH CLUB HAD AN EASY WIN AT CAMPBELLFORD

Beat the Homesters by an Innings and 33 Runs—Coleman's Bowling, Hill's and Campbell's Batting and the Fielding of the Peterborough Team Were the Features.

Peterborough cricketers went to Campbellford yesterday and defeated them by an innings and 33 runs. Peterborough won the toss and elected to send the Campbellford team to bat. They were retired for 37 runs, George Coleman taking six wickets for 8 runs. Hill did the bowling at the other end. The latter took the honours in the batting line, making 43; Gordon Campbell came next with 21, and Elliott and Coleman, with 16 and 12 respectively. The fielding of the Peterborough players was really a surprise to themselves, there being no extras to the Campbellford team in the first innings. Mr. Hill, A. Campbell and Mr. Elliott made sensational catches, while Duggan made the most brilliant attempt of the day, and although he was unfortunate enough to miss the ball it was a brilliant "stunt."

Warkworth play with the locals on Thursday next, and Campbellford on Labour Day at the Oval.

FRED SIMPSON BEATS RED HAWK, THE MIDLAND RUNNER

Fred Simpson returned last night from Christian Island, Georgian Bay, where he ran a matched race on Thursday with Henry Jackson, otherwise Red Hawk, the well-known Midland professional Although the Hiawatha boy has had but little training he had no trouble in running Red Hawk into the ground, the Midland Indian throwing up the sponge in the tenth mile, and Simpson finished the twelve miles by himself. The field day, which was attended by many Midland and Penetang people, was a great success. The Simpson-RedHawk race was the only professional race on the calendar, the others being amateur events.

Fred will start training in a short time for the fall campaign.

The running game is in full vogue in Hiawatha just now and a number of likely speed merchants are working out. Young Parker, who has made a good showing in several races around this section this summer is getting ready for the Hamilton Herald race, in which he will probably start. If not he will face the starter's gun in the Examiner's Thanksgiving Day race. A number of other Hiawatha boys, including Geo. Paudash, may also be in the line for the Lakefield to Peterborough race.

WESTERN WHEAT CROP HAS SUSTAINED LITTLE DAMAGE

Reports Received by the Winnipeg Telegram Show That the Conditions are Good—Fine Yields are Expected.

HARVEST UNDER WAY

Reports from nearly three hundred correspondents received by the Telegram by wire Saturday and carefully compiled and analyzed demonstrate that the western wheat crop up to the commencement of harvesting operations, has sustained no serious damage from any cause. A number of districts have suffered from hail, but these represent an almost inconsequential percentage of the wheat area. It is also to be noted that most of these hailed districts report that their increased acreage will enable them to reap a heavier crop than last year notwithstanding their losses from hail.

This briefly stated describes present crop conditions in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. So much apprehension appeared to exist, especially in Eastern Canada, and the recent heavy rains had inspired the publication of such exaggerated reports of crop losses in eastern newspapers that The Telegram decided to secure the most comprehensive and reliable reports available from every wheat growing district in Western Canada. With its large staff of western correspondents, supplemented by the agents of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph companies, who were asked by their respective companies to co-operate, every point in the three provinces which could be reached by telegraph contributed to the mass of detailed information which The Telegram offers to its readers to-day.

Three Hundred Inquiries.

The message sent broadcast throughout the west called for the most accurate information obtainable and specific mention of any damage the crops had sustained.

The information contained in the replies to this message is embodied in a general way in the above tabulated statements: Broadly speaking the damage reported amounts to very little. Of 271 places heard from 197, or 73 per cent. of the whole number confidently state that there has been no damage at all. Seventy-four report some damage, but in 61 of these cases it is very slight, and in only thirteen is it at all serious. Even in these thirteen instances, the loss has been generally confined to a few farms which were injured by hail without affecting any large part of the district.

Look For Good Yields.

The reports as to the yield are extremely cheering. A hundred and thirteen places say the crop will be over twenty-two bushels to the acre, and in a great many, perhaps the majority of these, the estimate is made that the yield will ultimately be found to run from thirty-five to forty bushels. One hundred and nineteen places predict a crop ranging from eighteen to twenty-two bushels, and only thirty-nine expect less than eighteen. Several of these thirty-nine have been affected by special causes and in their various ways have had rather hard luck, but even they, with a few exceptions, will run close to the eighteen bushel mark.

It is noticeable also that the crops of oats and barley are everywhere reported excellent. The barley falls nowhere below thirty bushels and in a few cases runs very much higher. A majority of the bulletins indicate a yield of from forty to sixty bushels of oats, while several of them run to considerably higher figures. Flax in the districts where it is cultivated also done well.

Harvesting Under Way.

Harvesting operations are pretty well under way. Cutting has commenced in many sections and will become fairly general by the beginning of next week. The weather, generally speaking, seems to be favourable for harvesting operations. There has been a good deal of rain in some places, but for the past few days it has been warm, and dry. Some anxiety existed as to whether the recent heavy rains would have the effect of lodging the wheat, but no serious damage seems to have arisen from this cause. About the only misgiving the farmers appear to be now experiencing is as to whether sufficient farm labour will be available to harves the crop.

SCOURING YOUR SCALP.

Will Remove the Loose Dandruff Scales But it Won't Cure Dandruff.

If your hair is brittle and thinning, you have dandruff. The mere scouring of the scalp of the loose scales, won't cure dandruff; because dandruff is nothing but scales of scalp being thrown up by a pestiferous little germ in burrowing its way to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality causing falling hair, and, in time, baldness. Now you can't stop dandruff nor falling hair, nor prevent baldness unless you destroy that germ; and the only preparation that can do it is the new scientific discovery, Newbro's Herpicide. In fact no other hair preparation claims to kill the dandruff germ—all of them will clean the scalp; soap and water will do that, but only Newbro's Herpicide gets at the root of the trouble and kills the dandruff germ. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE ALPS STILL CLAIMS VICTIMS

Londoner Disappeared a Month Ago and Body Has Just Been Found.

The body of Mr. A. C. Williamson, of Woburn-place, London, who has been missing since July 14, was found on Monday at the bottom of a precipice 200 ft. high, called "The Burg," one of the spurs of the Englehorn group near the Great Scheidegg.

He set out from Meiringen on July 14 to walk over the Scheidegg, and it was not until his knapsack was found with all his money that the clue was got which led to the sad discovery. He had taken off his knapsack to climb for edelweiss and evidently slipped and fell to instanteous death, for the body was greatly disfigured.

Five other Alpine fatalities are also reported. A chemist named Jules Sidler, aged twenty-five, of Offenburg, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, and a tourist named Prosche fell while plucking edelweiss.

Three tourists of the city of Zurich on Sunday went on an excursion to the Bristenhorn, but only two of them returned. The third named Grebinger, is missing.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 21.—Oscar McLellan, 16 years of age, employed by the Rock Co., manufacturers of explosives, had returned from work with a particle of explosive on his clothing. While smoking a cigarette hot ashes dropped on his arm and a terrific explosion followed, tearing and burning the flesh all over his body.

The new contract is for approximately $10,000,000. There are several long tunnels, one-half mile in length. The line will cross Skeena by a cantilever bridge, 16 miles below Hazelton.

YOU TAKE IT MIXED WITH AIR.

A Powerful Destroyer of Disease Germs, Which Cures Every Type of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Throat Trouble, Asthma.

Ever since Adam, the air of the pine woods has been known to possess marvellous healing properties. In fact, doctors claim that people living in the balsamic atmosphere of the woods never contract consumption or catarrh.

A new remedy that embraces all the healing curative powers of the pine woods has at last been realised. It contains the balsams, the ozone, and many other antiseptics that make it an absolute cure for all catarrhal diseases.

For years doctors have been looking for just such a remedy, and claim the newly-discovered Catarrhozone is the most effectual, the most scientific cure for catarrh, bronchitis and winter ills they have met.

USED IN ALL HOSPITALS.

So powerfully healing is Catarrhozone that simple colds in the head and coughs can be cured in less than an hour. Chronic catarrh is eradicated from the system in the most thorough manner. It doesn't matter whether the catarrh affects the nose, throat or stomach, it can be completely driven from the system by using fragrant, healing Catarrhozone.

The remotest parts of the lungs and air passages often contain germs of catarrh and consumption which cannot be reached by the ordinary treatment, but the searching vapor of Catarrhozone carries its antiseptic healing power right to these isolated spots. So thoroughly does Catarrhozone reach all diseased surfaces that it cures for all time, and no relapse need ever be feared.

CATARRHOZONE A SURE CURE.

No matter how long you have suffered from disease of any portion of the breathing organs, it matters not how many disappointments you have sustained from the hundred and one remedies you may have tried, an hour's use of Catarrhozone will afford better results than you could obtain from months' use of other remedies.

You can readily understand why this is possible—it is because you breathe it right to the parts that are diseased: immediately the droppings in the throat will lessen, irritation and soreness grow less, the stuffiness and difficulty of breathing will disappear almost as if by magic, and in the majority of cases a very short time is sufficient to effect a radical cure. Druggists sell Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Curtain Saved Theatre.

Brantford, Aug. 21.—The Grand Opera House erected one year ago, and formally opened for the second season last evening, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire shortly after 6 a.m. yesterday. The fire is supposed to have broken out from a match or cigar dropped on the stage. The large stage was completely gutted of scenery and fittings. The fireproof curtain between the stage and the auditorium saved the latter.

Mother Kills Children.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 21. —Mrs. Anton Strauss, mother of six children, residing at Tabor, 10 miles northeast of this city, killed her one-year-old daughter and three-year-old son, chopping off their heads with an axe. She then ran to the nearest neighbor to borrow a gun to shoot her other four children who were working with their father in a field. The woman was released from the state asylum three months ago.

Medal For Little Heroine.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 21.—Twelve-year-old Ann Stadt of Chippewa is to receive a life-saving medal from the Humane Society for her bravery in diving into the Welland Canal and saving Mina, the nine-year-old daughter of Detective Thos. Greenwood, of the Ontario Police, from drowning.

Two Years For Burglar.

Peterboro, Aug. 21.—Elf Dion of Penetanguishene, arrested here on Monday charged with breaking into two factory offices, was sentenced yesterday morning to two years. In the Peterboro Canoe Co.'s office he got a number of Bank of Montreal cheques, and tried to pass a bogus cheque on R. P. Carey.

Terrible Railway Disaster.

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21.—A terrible railway disaster occurred today when two trains came into collision 30 miles north of Santiago.

Many persons were killed or injured. Both trains were completely destroyed.

The monetary loss will reach $150,000.

The Point of the Pin.

Mechanically the interviewer droned out his well worn questions.

"And how, Sir William, did you get your start in life?"

"I got my strat in life, young man," said the pork merchant, "through picking up a pin in the street. I had been refused employment by a butcher, and on my way out I saw a pin. I"—

"Quite so!" chimed in the seasoned interviewer. "You picked it up, the butcher was impressed by your carefulness, called you back and took you into partnership. I know that pin so well!"

"Excuse me," broke in the pork vender, "but you proceed too fast. I saw the pin and picked it up—quite true. But I sold it for $500. It was a diamond pin."—London Mail.

The Balloon Fish.

A Berlin journal, Prometheus, contains a letter from Africa, in which the writer describes a fish which is known to the natives as the fahaka. It makes its appearance in the Nile at high water time. The creature might properly be named a balloon fish. Its whole body, with the exception of a part of the underside, is covered with a thick layer of a jelly-like substance. On the uncovered part there are many sharp prongs. When attacked the fish rises to the surface, inhales air until its body assumes almost a globular form, then turns upon its back, leaving the protecting prongs upward in the water. "Fish and man alike know how sharp these are and what painful wounds they can inflict, and they give the balloon fish a wide berth."

A Royal Fowl.

In England under an old law still in force the swan is a royal fowl, as whales and sturgeons are royal fish. All swans the property whereof is not otherwise definable when within the British dominions belong to the crown by virtue of this prerogative. When swans are lawfully taken into the possession of a private person such person may be said to have a property in them, but if they be at liberty they belong to the crown. Formerly it was necessary for persons who wished to keep these "royal fowls" to obtain a swan mark, which was granted by the crown and which could not be legally impressed without grant or prescription.

French Convicts' Gold Mine.

Convicts in French Guiana seem to be in luck. They are reported to be working a gold mine on their own account. Their warders have apparently so far failed to discover where they have successfully panned their claim. The convicts in turn escape from the settlement by twos or threes and remain hidden for a day or two. They then return with their pockets full of nuggets and have a great time. Others get away in their turn, but come back eventually, also with gold. The mine is thus kept regularly working by shifts of convicts. The latter when they return to the settlement are regularly sentenced to a few days' imprisonment for absence without leave, but this is a low price to pay for a share in a gold mine. Where the latter is the authorities have never yet been able to discover.—London Telegraph.

A Tutti Frutti Cordial.

Here is a tutti frutti cordial from the recipe book of a woman who is never caught by her summer visitors without a delicious, cooling drink. She takes three oranges and three lemons and scrubs them clean, then chops them fine, after removing the seeds. She adds a pineapple, chopped, and then a quart of some good berry in season, cherries or strawberries being especially good. Three bananas, cut into slices or small dice, she adds to the mixture, and three cupfuls of powdered sugar. Over the whole she lays a great piece of ice. She leaves this for three hours, and when ready to serve she adds two quarts of ice water. A single bottle of seltzer or some other effervescent water gives additional "go" to the mixture, which is voted delicious by all who try it.—Suburbanite.

THE COMING RACE.

Mrs. Annie Besant Says America Will Be Its Home.

Mrs. Annie Besant has just arrived in America for an extended tour.

Mrs. Besant has been making an impression in England by her anti-vivisectionist speech in the Queen's Hall, London, and her address in New York the other day indicates that her oratorical powers are as great as ever, establishing her as the greatest living woman orator.

She spoke of the evolution of the human race as proceeding by regular stages over many million years. There had been four great root races, she said. So far, each with seven subdivisions or sub-races. The fourth root race came to perfection in the lost continent of Atlantis and were far ahead of the present fifth root race of Europe and America, which had so far only passed through the earlier stages of the Atlantean experience. As soon as the fifth race catches up on the Atlanteans it will begin to surpass them and the flying machine is an indication of such progress.

"In our times," she said, "the theosophist sees the spectacle of the fifth sub-race of the fifth root race approaching its zenith, and he looks for signs of the new sub-race, the sixth, which shall follow. The leading race must always be in the minority. Our own forms but a small part of the world's people. The Japanese and Chinese are of the fourth sub-race of the fifth root race, and millions of them still survive. The negro tribes are almost pure third sub-race.

"Our higher duty is toward these children of the sixth sub-race who will come among us; these children of fraller nerves and tenderer feelings; these elder subtiler egoes who are seeking parentage among us. They will be more delicate than we, as we are more sensitive than the Japanese of the last great sub-race.

"The shock and racket of your cities must go, to make a place for the new race to be reared. Your subways and your motor noises tear the nerves of all those delicate children to rags.

"Every great race has two leaders who come from the great occult hierarchy to lead and teach. We must be looking for such a leader for the sixth sub-race. Of the second sub-race of our fifth root race came Hermes, and aided in Aryanising, Egypt. To the third came Zoroarster, and to the fifth came the Teacher of the Christian faith. These all were the same person, or to speak more scientifically, the same individual. He will be the same individual in His appearance for the sixth sub-race."

"I cannot set the time by calendar date," said Mrs. Besant, when questioned, "but the duty of theosophists is to spread the principles of compassion and justice and prepare for the next coming. It may be that the younger persons of the present will witness that event. The Christ will be in a new body—probably, I am told, in a western one for the first time."

What's Your Pet Phrase?

Of course you have a pet phrase or expression. You are one of the few exceptions if you haven't. Very likely the very words with which this article begins—"of course"—are used by you at every turn, but you don't know it. You have a particular ejaculation which does duty in all circumstances. It may be a variation of "Great Scott!" such as "Great Scotland Yard!" or it may be Good Grace church street!" which is a variation of "Good gracious!" You probably end most of your sentences with "you know" or "you see." Then you have a pet word which you bring in wherever you can. Perhaps, it is "logical," and the number of times that word and its opposite—"illogical"—appear in your conversation is simply alarming. But you don't see it, you know. —London Answers.

A deer in the bush is worth more than a deer in hand, for the live deer attracts the tourists and the sportsmen, who leave money behind, money found because it cost the state nothing. This is borne out by Germany, where 600,000 people yearly pay for hunting in the forests. The returns from hunting licenses and rentals amount to $32,500,000 yearly for Germany. Germany is ahead of the United States in this respect. Only one state approaches Germany in revenues from hunting and tourists. Maine's 250,000 tourists yearly leave $25,000,000 behind them. Alabama collects yearly $25,000 in hunters' fees. —Outing.

TWO BROTHERS LOCKED IN DEADLY EMBRACE DROWNED AT WAWA, MUSKOKA

Two Sons of Rev. R. M. Hamilton of the Presbyterian Church at Weston Perish Near Wawa, While Third Manages to Get to Safety—Two Women Drown at Jessop—One Man at Schreiber.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—John and James Hamilton, sons of Rev. R. M. Hamilton, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Weston, were drowned near the Wawa, Lake of Bays, Muskoka, on Sunday.

Henry Hamilton, twin brother of John, saved himself by swimming ashore.

The three boys were in a canoe when it upset. James and John were expert swimmers, but they locked themselves in a deadly embrace and sank, while Henry struck out for the shore, which he reached safely.

The double drowning occurred two or three miles from the Wawa, near which the Hamilton family have been camping for a couple of months. Mrs. Hamilton went up with the boys when the season opened, and Rev. Mr. Hamilton joined them about three weeks ago.

James was 18 years of age, John and Henry, the twins, 17. Another brother, Gordon, aged 10, is purser of one of the boats of the Niagara Navigation Co., and did not go with the other members of the family to Muskoka.

Drowning at Schreiber.

Fort William, Aug. 23.—Geo. Ross, for some sirteen years C. P. R. conductor on the east end, but latterly a butcher of Schreiber, was drowned yesterday a few miles east of Schreiber. He was out with Crown Timber Agent Oliver of Port Arthur in a canoe and upset. He leaves a widow and six children.

Two Women Drowned.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 23.—A double drowning occurred at Jasper, six miles from here, Friday afternoon, the victims being Mrs. Harry Stephens, aged 28, and her sister, Miss Jessie Jones, aged 21, of Syracuse, N.Y., both of whom were visiting in the village at the home of Mrs. James O'Neil.

About 3 o'clock the ladies went out in a boat to fish in the small creek, and three hours later were found dead by a boy.

Found Body at Lewiston.

Lewiston, Aug. 23.—The swollen body of a man was taken from the river here last evening. It is supposed to be that of Augustus Spohr, 18 years of age, who while swimming in the river near the Maid of the Mist Landing on Monday last, was swept into the rapids. He was last seen alive near the spot where Capt. Webb lost his life, and afterwards his body was seen floating in the Whirlpool.

A Narrow Escape.

Newport, L.I., Aug. 23.—Four men had a narrow escape from death late yesterday afternoon when the 51-foot cabin launch Allegro caught fire and burned at a point about three miles east of Brenton's Reef lightship. Thrown into the water by the capsizing of the tender in which they had taken refuge from the burning launch, the four men themselves afloat for nearly an hour until rescuers arrived.

AGREEMENT TO BE EXTENDED

England and Germany Renew Arbitration Stipulation.

London, Aug. 21.—The Foreign Office has issued an official announcement containing a letter from Sir Edward Grey to the German Ambassador, informing him that His Majesty's Government were prepared to renew for one year from July 12 the agreement between the United Kingdom and Germany, providing for the settlement by arbitration of certain classes of questions that might arise between the two Governments which was signed in London five years ago.

VALUABLE DOG WAS POISONED

Mr. Louis Houedry has lost a valuable Scotch Collie last night, the animal having been poisoned. It was seen eating meat that apparently must have been poisoned, or mixed with powdered glass. The canine was a very valuable one and Mr. Houedry feels his loss keenly. He offers a large reward to anyone who can furnish information as to who is the guilty one who gave the dog the poison.

ORILLIA'S BEST INDUSTRY DESTROYED BY BIG FIRE

Tudhope Carriage Works Devastated at a Loss of Half a Million Dollars---Other Business Places and Ten Residences Also Wiped Out---Origin of Fire a Mystery ---Glencoe's Business Section Scorched to the Tune of $60,000---Other Fires.

Orillia, Aug. 23.—Half a million dollars went up in smoke Saturday afternoon in a fire which started at 2.15 o'clock in the paint shop of the Tudhope Carriage Co., and destroyed the entire plant, as well as about a dozen other buildings. The insurance is roughly placed at about $250,000.

The blaze inaugurated in the paint shop of the big Tudhope works. Although the plant closes at noon Saturdays, three or four men were still at work in this section of the plant when a sudden cloud of dense smoke enveloped them, and they had to hurry for the stairs. By the time the alarm was given, this building was thoroughly on fire, and despite the efforts of the fire brigade of 16 men, with scores of volunteer workers, it ate its way through the works and spread to surrounding property.

D. C. Thompson & Co.'s bakery, Walker Bros.'s foundry and ten residences were also burned. Most of the contents of the latter were removed in time. J. R. Easton & Son's planing mill was saved, after heroic efforts on the part of the employes.

Luckily there was little or no wind or the whole town might have been devastated. Barrie sent a fire engine and men by special train, and Midland was in readiness to send a detachment. The local water pressure, which is from the waterworks, was excellent. Firemen were on duty all night, and even to-day the ruins were smouldering. The cause of the fire is still a mystery.

The Tudhope Co. estimate their loss at from $400,000 to $450,000, with insurance about one-half, distributed among thirty insurance companies, in amounts ranging from $3,000 to $15,000. It is fully expected that they will rebuild. The company employed over 300 hands, and has been the town's greatest industry. It was established in 1886 by Wm. Tudhope, having its beginnings as a blacksmith shop. In 1876 J. B. Tudhope assumed control.

Bad Fire at Glencoe.

Glencoe, Aug. 22.—Glencoe had a disastrous fire early this morning, when four of the leading business houses were wiped out, together with their contents. The buildings destroyed were the John Roy McRae Block, occupied by W. E. Currie, grocer, loss $6,000, insurance $3,700, and James Wright & Sons, hardware merchants, loss $10,000, insurance $5,000; one-storey building occupied by J. E. Roome, grocer and shoe merchant, loss $4,500, insurance $1,500 and the Bell Telephone Office, loss $300, insurance $300, and the McCreary Building, occupied by E. Marhem & Co., as implement ware. The loss on this building was $7,000 and the insurance $3,000, while the loss to Mayhem & Co. is $12,000, and the insurance $2,500. Other losses are: Miss Parish, $400; C. J. Mills, $700; Traders' Bank, $200; Mrs. Mary McAlpine, $200; D. J. Thompson, $400; J. T. Hunter, $150.

$50,000 Loss at Decatur.

Decatur, Ill., Aug. 22.—A score of business buildings were burned and a dozen others were damaged yesterday by a fire that swept along the business portion of East Main, Merchant and Water streets. The total damage is placed at $1,000,000, with insurance of about 50 per cent.

The fire started from 1 o'clock this morning until sunset to-night, and was the most in the history of the city.

Historic Church Burns.

Kirkfield, Aug. 22.—The Anglican Church, The Toronto World Building and contents were completely burned in less than thirty minutes during the time of morning service yesterday. The church was insured for $1,100 on Friday last.

Train Goes Through Bridge.

Whonnock, B. C., Aug. 23.—There is no truth in the story that Grand Forks, B.C., is in danger of being burned by bush fires. There was a small bush fire east of that town last week, which burned a few haystacks and fences, but that's all.

Owing to a bridge burning out on the Canada Eastern, a couple of miles north of Rogers Saturday, a passenger train from Moncton to Newcastle, with engine, mail car and combination baggage and passenger coach, went through the bridge, the engineer being unable to stop his train. Two coaches are a total wreck, having caught fire after the accident.

No one was killed or even seriously injured. The passengers were tossed about pretty badly.

$1,000,000 Loss at Monterey.

Mexico City, Aug. 23.—Fire Saturday night destroyed property in the business centre of the City of Monterey to the value of about $1,000,000.

The whole business section of the city was threatened, but escaped destruction largely because there was no wind.

The fire started in the establishment owned by the son-in-law of Gen. Trevino, commander of the Monterey military zone, and the opponent of Gen Reyes, and it was first thought that it was the work of political malcontents, but investigation showed that it was due to defective wires used for lighting purposes.

WALTER WELLMAN MADE ONLY 32 MILES IN HIS TRIP TO THE POLE

Came to Grief After Leaving Spitzbergen---Ballast Lost and Drops After a Wild Ascent---Effort Attended by Ill-Luck From the Outset---No Further Attempts This Year.

Camp Wellman, Spitzbergen, Aug. 15, via Hammerfest, Aug. 23.—Walter Wellman's second attempt to sail over the North Pole in a balloon has resulted in failure. The giant dirigible balloon, America, in which Mr. Wellman and his party of three set out upon their perilous flight to-day met with a mishap after it had proceeded about 32 miles from the starting point.

Mr. Wellman and his party succeeded in making a landing without injury to any member of the party and returned to this point on board the steamer Fram, which also towed in the disabled balloon.

After a long preparation and waiting for favorable weather, the opportunity came to-day, and Mr. Wellman decided early in the morning to make the start. It was 10 o'clock in the morning when the great airship was brought out of its shed and the daring explorers took their places in the car. When the anchors were cast loose, the airship ascended beautifully, the engines were set in motion and everything seemed to work to perfection. The big air craft was manoeuvred for some time and answered the helm perfectly. Then its head was turned to the northward and it set out at a speed of 25 miles an hour.

Suddenly, after having covered some 32 miles, the leather guide rope to which was attached a thousand pounds of provisions and stores, broke away. The accident occurred just as the airship was nearing the pack ice off North Spitzbergen.

Released from this great weight, the airship shot upwards at a terrific pace until it was at a great height above the clouds. The pilots succeeded, however, in bringing her down near the ice and commenced their flight southward against a strong wind. The airship proceeded slowly southward to the edge of the pack ice, where the steamer Fram was anchored.

After much difficulty a tow rope was gotten aboard the Fram, which started immediately to tow the airship to Spitzbergen. The strain was so great, however, that it threatened to tear the car to which the rope was attached to pieces, and Mr. Wellman finally decided to bring the airship down to the surface of the water.

But the ill-luck of the expedition was not yet at an end. Just as the airship had reached the landing stage and everything looked favorable for its rescue without serious damage, a sudden gust of wind caught the big inflated bag broadside on and snatched it away from its tow lines. It was carried careening over rough ice hummocks for some distance, and then it exploded.

Mr. Wellman will return to Norway next week. He says the airship was not seriously damaged and can be repaired, but that any further attempt this year is impossible. He is enlarging the balloon house to accommodate a longer and more powerful ship for future use.

THE ENGLISH BUDGET.

It would be interesting to be over in England just now and to hear what the landed proprietors think of Lord Northcliffe, the erstwhile champion of their interests in the press. The cables we may be sure, only give an echo of the disturbance that is being caused by his recent turn over in sentiment.

After attacking the budget most ferociously and picturing in the dismallest colours the ruin that it most certainly will cause if it passes in Parliament, the Daily Mail and the Times, both owned by Lord Northcliffe, suddenly made a complete volte-face and are now rebuking the party, of whose cause they were once the sturdiest champions. The reason is not far to seek. Lloyd-George's proposals are becoming better known, and it is now pretty generally seen that the provisions he recommends in regard to taxation of landed estates will only hit the pockets of those who can well stand it, whilst they will help to ameliorate to a certain extent the condition of the poor. The country, as shown by the results of the recent bye-elections, is with the Government, and nothing short of a miracle is going to stop the triumphant passage of the bill.

FOLLY OF THE FARMER

The fact that wheat has sold in Winnipeg—the new wheat off the farm—for $1.11 a bushel has given ground for alarm. Not that the tiller of the soil is not entitled to the highest rewards for his labour, and that the millions of dollars, of which the crop of this year in the Canadian Northwest is estimated will not be welcomed by the owners of the land.

But there is a danger, and a note of warning is being sounded by the press, by the agricultural experts, by the representatives of the government. It is that the land, even the fertile soil of the Canadian prairie, cannot stand the succession of wheat srops. There are many examples of this folly, and they are to be found this day in the southern and middle states. In these wheat-growing has been conducted until the soil has been exhausted, and it will take time and money to restore it to its former condition of richness. Indeed some of this land has been left by men who are now settled in Canada and pursuing here the futile policy that led to their undoing in the United States.

The temptation to take from the earth the riches it has to offer is very great, but it must be resisted and by every man who has his best interests under consideration. Out of the soil must be taken the sustenance of life, but it must be done reasonably. —Brantford Expositor.

CANADA'S BORROWING IN JULY

(Monetary Times)

That London is the Mecca for capital seekers was abundantly proved last month, when the total issues there aggregated £30,697,800. Not for ten years has such a plethora of flotations been recorded. July is always a busy month for the company promoter in England. In the spring the young man's fancy turns to thoughts of financing his aims and requirements. Unless summer and the necessary capital come along together, he has to wait until after Michaelmas. Circumstances this year have been unusually favourable, with the result that the promoter has rushed into the market where apparently no one has feared to tread. Some interesting figures are given in this connection. For the past thirteen years the number of new, exclusive of bill, issues, and their aggregate capital, has been as follows:

| | No. | Amount. |
|---|---|---|
| 1896 | 117 | £ 30,182,600 |
| 1897 | 80 | 31,482,400 |
| 1898 | 76 | 46,654,200 |
| 1899 | 67 | 22,022,100 |
| 1900 | 70 | 41,244,800 |
| 1901 | 89 | 13,709,100 |
| 1902 | 44 | 13,853,000 |
| 1903 | 39 | 14,220,200 |
| 1904 | 31 | 9,544,300 |
| 1905 | 56 | 23,189,300 |
| 1906 | 45 | 9,900,000 |
| 1907 | 37 | 14,138,700 |
| 1908 | 46 | 23,974,400 |
| 1909 | 90 | 30,697,800 |

Public loans account for twelve issues and nearly fourteen millions sterling; commercial and miscellaneous are responsible for thirty-seven issues and five and a half millions sterling. Thirty-six issues were made by existing companies and five mining enterprises sought the investor's favour to the extent of a little more than half a million sterling. The Dominion Government was in the market with a loan of £6,500,000. London, because of this fact, escaped the onus of an Ontario Government loan of $3,500,000. The latter was floated at home, as it was thought the Dominion Government should have the full support of the English market, so far as Canada was concerned. The India Government was another borrower.

Canadian cities asked for £623,400. The City of Vancouver successfully placed £286,400 four per cent. bearer debentures at 101, and the City of Edmonton disposed of £187,300 4½ per cent. sterling debentures at 102½. Regina, another progressive Western Canada city, went to the market with $313,609 4½ per cent debentures, while the City of Westmount invited tenders in London for $436,000 four per cent. bonds. It is interesting to note how these issues were handled. The Vancouver block was purchased in Canada and floated in London, the Edmonton bonds were placed direct in the English market, and, although tenders were asked in London for the Regina and Westmount issues, a Canadian house in each instance was the purchaser.

The industrial branch of the market last month afforded most activity. Established undertakings and new ventures about divided honours. For the past ten years, the industrial figures are as follows:

| | No. | Amount. |
|---|---|---|
| 1900 | 30 | £ 24,837,500 |
| 1901 | 18 | 4,790,000 |
| 1902 | 9 | 2,479,500 |
| 1903 | 13 | 5,456,000 |
| 1904 | 7 | 1,385,000 |
| 1905 | 6 | 440,000 |
| 1906 | 7 | 3,475,000 |
| 1907 | 13 | 7,785,000 |
| 1908 | 9 | 1,385,000 |
| 1909 | 37 | 6,636,000 |

The formation of several big textile and insurance companies helped to swell the aggregate of July, 1909. Rubber flotations accounted for £2,000,000 of the £6,636,000 total. Roller skating rinks, over which there is a craze in England just now, also assisted to make big figures. Canada, again, came in for a fair share of capital in the industrial class. The Grand Trunk Pacific floated £2,000,000 three per cent. first mortgage bonds, while the Dominion Iron and Steel Company went to the market with £1,200,000 five per cent. consolidated mortgage bonds. The Standard Chemical Company, of Toronto, offered £100,000 five per cent. first mortgage debentures.

Of the £30,697,800 last month, Canada claims in round figures £10,423,400, or more than one-third of the total flotations. Considering that capital seekers, cap in hand, came to London last month from the world over, from Yokohama, India, South Africa, Ceylon, Java, the Argentine, Canada has made a remarkable showing in a still more remarkable record.

KING EDWARD AND ANARCHISTS

Britain's Soverign is But Little Afraid of Them and Frequently Slips Away From His Bodyguard.

Marienbad, Aug. 21.—The King on his well-deserved holiday to Marienbad is accompanied—at a respectful distance, by a group of detectives in plain clothes. Unlike the Czar, his Majesty takes this elaborate safeguarding otherwise than seriously, and he has been known to give the detectives the slip. Some years ago he was seen to come out of Ritter's Hotel, in Homburg, stroll along the Kaiser Friedrich's Promenade, hail a frowsy cab, and drive away, with a humourous twinkling in his eyes, delighted that he had managed to elude his police bodyguard. In an hour he returned and might have been seen standing in some disquietude on the kerb-stone opposite the hotel, disquieted not because of any fear of Anarchists btu because he had difficulty though he searched his pockets diligently, in finding his fare.

WEDDING BELLS

SANDY—BARNECOTT.

A very pretty wedding took place Tnesday afternoon, Aug. 17th, at 2.30 p.m., in Trinity church, Aylmer, when Emma L., eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barnecott, John street, north, was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Sandy, of Peterborough, Rev. Chas. Miles officiating. The bride looked very pretty in a white costume, with white chip hat covered with daisies, and carried a shower bouquet. She was given away by her father. Miss Annie Barnecott, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a dress of pale blue cobweb silk, trimmed with baby Irish lace and insertion, with blue and white hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. T. L. Barnecott, brother of the bride, very ably assisted the groom. After the service, the wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which the happy couple left on their honeymoon for a trip up the lakes. The bride's travelling suit was of plum coloured broadcloth, with hat to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst, and the best man a pearl scarf pin.—Aylmer Sun.

OBITUARY.

ALFRED B. McMILLAN

Word has been received in the city of the death in Indian Head, Sask., of a former resident of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. Alfred B. McMillan, son of Mrs. McMillan, 1001 Water street, city. The deceased until four years ago lived in Peterborough, and was well and favourably known here. He was before his departure a corporal of No. 1 Company, of the 57th Regiment, and was noted as one of the best shots in the regiment. His comrades in the militia, as well as the many other citizens who knew him, will regret to learn of his death, which followed an operation for appendicitis.

He is survived by his mother, one sister, Mrs. E. Belleghem, and two brothers, Herb. and Albert C., both residing in Peterborough. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Baseball

The T.A.S. ball club has succeeded in arranging a baseball game for Labour Day, when the Lindsay team, captained and managed by Bill Cinnamon will be on hand. It should be a rattling game as Cinnamon has the habit of gathering around him a bunch that make things interesting. In addition to the ball game a programme of sports will be run off, and it looks like a big afternoon's fun for the holiday.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S SERMON

"Paradise Regained," the Statement of the Christ to the Thief on the Cross---Elect Will be the First Fruits and Restored Humanity Will Constitute the After Fruits.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 28.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached here twice to-day to large and attentive audiences. One of the discourses was from the text, "Verily I say unto thee to-day, Thou shalt be with me in Paradise" (Luke xxiii. 43).

Paradise is another name for the Garden of Eden, the abode of bliss. It was lost through the sin of our first parents, but the gracious promise of our great Creator is that this condition of earthly bliss shall be re-established—not merely in a little corner of the earth, but that the whole earth shall become the Paradise of God. Heaven is God's throne and the earth is his footstool, and he assures us, "I will make the place of my feet glorious"—"in due time." How this will be accomplished is the Gospel message.

The Divine promise to Father Abraham, that all the families of the earth should yet be blessed through his Seed, includes the thought of man's full restoration to Divine favor—as before he sinned and before he fell; before Paradise was lost; before man came under the curse or sentence of death. The Jews hoped that Messiah would come and constitute their nation the earthly Kingdom of God and re-establish Paradise with Palestine as its centre. They expected that under his wise ministration, using their nation as his instruments, the Divine Law would extend to all and, by bringing all people into harmony with God, would gradually bring back all to the Paradise state.

It was in full harmony with this expectation that the dying thief asked the Lord to remember him when he would come into his Kingdom, the Kingdom whose dominion would establish righteousness in the earth, and thus convert the world, under Divine favor, into the Paradise of God. Our Lord's answer was that verily, truly, his request would be granted—the thief would yet be with him in Paradise. Paradise has not yet been established, because God's Kingdom has not yet come to earth and it delays until a certain work for the Church shall be accomplished.

It is not the Divine intention to make of the nation of Israel God's Kingdom in the highest sense of that word, though it will be actively identified with the heavenly Kingdom as its earthly representative. God is selecting during this Gospel Age a new nation, Spiritual Israel, from every nation, people, kindred and tongue. At our Lord's First Advent and subsequently he gathered from Israel such as were saintly and ready for the Kingdom; and since then he has been taking out from other nations enough to complete the foreordained number of the "elect" Church. These will constitute the Kingdom per se, and it cannot be set up or established in power until this election or selection shall have been completed and the "elect" "changed" or glorified on the spiritual plane by the power of the First Resurrection.

Paradise, or the Garden of the Lord, not only represents that earthly condition which will be restored for the benefit and blessing of the natural man, as the reward of his obedience to the rules of Emmanuel's Kingdom during the Millennial Age, but it also applies in a figurative sense to the glorious and heavenly position which God has in reservation for the Church. Thus we read in the Book of Revelation that the Lord has promised to the overcomers of the Church that "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the paradise of God" (Revelation ii, 7).

This is a grandly beautiful and symbolic message and promise assuring us of the happiness and heavenly bliss in eternal life conditions of all who are faithful followers of Christ in the present age—walking in Jesus' footsteps in the "narrow way." The Book of Revelation pictures the history of this Gospel Age down into the Millennial Age and shows us Paradise re-established with the Heavenly City, the glorified Church, as its centre or capital. The River of Life is pictured as flowing from under the Throne. On either bank of its crystal waters of Truth and grace grow the trees of Life, after the manner of Eden of old. The future state will all be Paradise. The completeness of blessedness will first be manifested in the Church on the spiritual plane, and, secondly, it will be manifested in the Ancient Worthies on the earthly plane—perfected Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the holy prophets, the earthly representatives of the heavenly Kingdom. Gradually the paradisiacal condition shall fill the whole earth. The wilderness shall blossom as the rose and the solitary places shall be glad and streams shall break forth in the desarts, as we read in Isaiah xxxv. The morally lame shall learn to walk in the paths of righteousness. Yea, they shall leap for joy, as they come to a knowledge of the grace and goodness of God. The world's eyes of understanding shall be opened and their deaf ears shall be unstopped, that they may hear and see the goodness and mercy, the justice and the love of our God. The willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land, but the evil doers shall be cut off in the Second Death. Gradually the boundaries will be spread abroad until, in the end of the Millennium, they shall include the whole earth. Gradually the members enjoying Paradise shall increase until, in the end of the Millennium, the entire race of Adam shall experience this blessed privilege of God's love and mercy through Christ.

St. Paul, like John the Revelator, was caught also to Paradise in vision and saw the glorious things of the future age, which he was not permitted to explain to us, because the due time had not yet come. Neither was John the Revelator permitted to reveal fully the particulars of the Paradise condition. He could merely give us a few symbolical hints or suggestions respecting the glories of Paradise restored.

We have already noticed that Paradise was lost by sin through disobedience of the heavenly command. Life and Eden bliss and Divine favor and fellowship were all lost to Adam and to us, his children, under the death sentence. There was no hope for any of us any more than for the brute beast, for while the latter was born to die, man, created with possibilities of life eternal, was sentenced to the loss of all. Indeed, under the demoralising influences of sin and death we find many of the human family really more degraded than the brute creation and apparently less worthy of Divine favor. But God, rich in mercy, in the great love wherewith he loves us, provided for mankind a recovery from the sentence of sin and death, while he has made no provision for future life for the brute creation.

God's provision for man's recovery from the sentence of death is the story of the "Cross of Christ." Because a man had sinned the redeemer must be a man. Because the penalty was human death, the perfect man must die for the sinner's release from death sentence—to uplift the willing out of sin and death conditions up, up, up to fellowship with God and eternal life. Because the race of Adam inherited naturally his mental, moral and physical defects, therefore none of his posterity was worthy of eternal life. But, in the Divine arrangement, as Adam had involved all of his children and their Paradise home in the wreck of sin and death, so a redemption has been effected through Christ.

The great Work of Messiah will therefore be the restoration of the world to all that was lost in Eden and redeemed at Calvary. The work of restoration, St. Peter tells us, has been spoken of by the "mouth of all God's holy prophets since the world began" and will be accomplished by Messiah at his Second Coming (Acts iii, 21). But the Divine Plan changes not. Sin is still objectionable to God, will always be so. And the Divine sentence is that no sinner may have eternal life; hence the offer of Divine Grace is merely that all who will may have Divine assistance, resurrection, restoration, uplifting out of sin and death conditions to perfect conditions. But these things will be accomplished only in those who are willing and obedient. Only such shall eat the good of the land—the fruits of Paradise (Acts iii, 23).

Furthermore it is the Divine arrangement, and a just one, that any good and noble deed of the present life works a measure of character development which will be assistful in the future life, enabling the faithful the sooner to mount up in the full perfection of earthly life. Correspondingly every wilful sin, every violation of conscience and principle, works a defilement and impairment of manhood, which, likewise, will have its effect in the future life in the difficulty of rising out of degradation to the heights of Divine perfection and approved and everlasting life. If all mankind could appreciate these facts what an influence it would have in restraining, governing and developing self control and true manhood!

Does some one inquire as to why he who redeemed Adam, his Eden home, and all his race, and who proposes a restoration of all—why he has not begun this restitution work during the eighteen hundred years since the sacrifice of himself? The Scriptures answer that another feature of the Divine program is being carried out. The Lord is gathering the "elect" Church from Israel and all the nations to be Messiah's assistants in his Kingdom and the gracious work of uplift—resurrection—restitution. This "elect" Church class first selected is in the Scriptures called "A first-fruits of God unto his creatures" (James i, 18). The world of restored humanity will be the after-fruits.

The Scriptures exhort such as in the present time are blessed with the hearing ear to give heed to the special invitation of the elect. They exhort such as have the eye of faith to aspire to the crown of glory and joint-heirship that is now being tendered to a very select class. He that hath an ear let him hear. He that hath an eye let him see. So many of us as have been blessed of the Lord with the ear of faith, the eye of faith, let us rejoice therein with the blessed opportunity. Let us seek indeed to make our calling and election sure to this heavenly estate of glory, honor and immortality and joint-heirship with our Lord, the King of kings and Lord of lords!

Both the thieves crucified with our Lord lost their right to the original Eden or Paradise of God through father Adam's disobedience, as did we all. Both of those thieves were "born in sin and shapen in iniquity, in sin did their mothers conceive them," as with us all. Both of those thieves were redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, as were we all; for "Christ Jesus, by the grace of God, tasted death for every man." "He is the propitiation for our sins (the Church's sins), and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world." Thus, as we have seen, the Redeemer has made provision for both of those thieves, as well as for all of us—all of Adam's race—to be recovered from the sin and death conditions of the fall and to be restored to Paradise. The Church now called during this Gospel Age may reach the spiritual Paradise or highest condition of holiness and happiness. The two thieves and the remainder of mankind will have their opportunity during the Millennium. Their opportunity will be for a return to earthly life and perfection and happiness and an earthly Eden—world wide. How much grander a work will thus result from our Lord's death than we had previously supposed!

Let none suppose, however, that those two thieves will enter Paradise on the same footing. While both were guilty of robbery, they evidently were dissimilar in the condition of their hearts. The one was hardened, as evidenced by the fact that he could speak thus rudely to the Redeemer, whose face bespoke sentleness, purity and innocence of crime. Such cruelty implied a deep degradation of mind—implied that he was sin-hardened. And yet we must remember that others of the multitude standing by used similarly cruel language. And we must remember that there are many thieves who are not caught and many, perhaps, as morally wrong, as evilly intentioned, who, for fear of the consequences, never committed the wrongs. We can even suppose that some of the scribes and Pharisees and Doctors of Divinity of those days were in God's sight much worse than the impenitent thief—murderers at heart and in deed. Yet of the latter St. Peter declares, "I wot, brethren, that in ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers," when you crucified the Lord of glory.

Ignorance and superstition and inherited depravity all bore down upon the impenitent thief to a degree which we are not capable of properly estimating. The Lord will judge him—both thieves—all mankind. The penitent thief will unquestionably have a two-fold blessing. First he will be blessed because of his penitent attitude of mind; secondly, because of his faithfulness in expressing that penitence and mercy to our Lord in his distress. Our Lord declared that even a cup of cold water given to the least of his disciples will have its reward. Surely it will be in harmony, then, that the penitent thief will have a reward for his defence of the Master.

That reward will consist, first of all, in the blessing to his own heart through the action therein of the merciful sentiment. A reward will come to him in proportion to the exigencies of the occasion and the greatness of the One whom he loved. If the one who favors a righteous man will receive a righteous man's reward and the one who favors a prophet will receive a prophet's reward, surely the one who favored the Redeemer would receive a special reward, such as the Redeemer might be expected to grant.

The penitent thief manifested not only sympathy but honesty and it is entirely in keeping with the general teachings of our Lord's Word that the honest-hearted and the merciful have special blessings. Those blessings cannot reach them in the grave and it is not always that they reach them in the present life. Virtue is not always its own reward. Our Lord declares the Truth on the subject, assuring us that such shall be "recompensed in the resurrection of the just." That is to say, when the just, the justified, the Church, shall be resurrected in the First Resurrection and when then the heavenly Kingdom shall be established amongst men and the general awakening of the world from the sleep of death shall gradually follow—then every good and every evil word, every good and every evil act, will be recompensed—in Paradise. Let us be glad and rejoice that the Divine arrangement is an earthly Paradise, possible to every member of the race, and a heavenly Paradise, possible to every member of the spirit-begotten Church, and that the alternative of Paradise is not eternal torment but everlasting destruction—the Second Death.

Birthday Knight Criticized.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree tells a funny story of a day when he was "off his form" at golf. His first drive was a miserable foozle, and the actor as men do in such circumstances, turned to see how his caddie took it. "Did you ever see a worse drive than that?" he asked, but the boy remained silent. Sir Herbert's next stroke was no improvement on the drive, and again he appealed to his henchman with the clubs. "Did you ever see a worse player?" The boy was still silent, at which the actor's irritation increased. "Do you hear me?" he shouted. "Aye, I hear ye," came the gentle reply, "but I'm juist thinkin'."

There is no hesitation or quibbling about the claims which the Coleman Medicine Company make for their wonderful "Little Digesters". They come out straight with the statement that "Little Digesters" will positively cure even chronic indigestion or Dyspepsia, as well as Heartburn and Sour Stomach.

They GUARANTEE "Little Digesters" to cure, or if they fail, you get your money back, promptly and without question.

Of course they would not make such positive statements, or give such a guarantee, if they had not proved, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that "Little Digesters" WILL CURE.

"Little Digesters" do it simply and naturally, too, by helping out the weakened stomach in supplying just what it needs in the process of digestion, and enabling it to assimilate the food. Soon the whole system regains its vigor, and the stomach needs no further help.

Just as long as you have dandruff your head will itch. It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part but when they do, they will destroy the life of the hair in a very short time.

"BURGLARS" PAINTED THE PARSONAGE FLOORS

Burglaries have been rare in Stirling of late years. A rather bold entrance was made into St. Andrew's manse a few days ago in the absence of the occupants. Unknown parties secured a key and in broad daylight entered the house. The disordered furniture in some of the rooms showed that considerable trouble had been taken by the daring parties, but nothing of value was taken. Newly-painted floors and a kitchen painted throughout proves the "burglars" to be of a better type than the ordinary.—News-Argus.

To Whom It May Concern:—

George Hartley ,Agent for The Dominion Lightning Rod Company, of Dundas, Ont., erected lightning conductors on my buildings on the eleventh day of June, 1909, and on the sixteenth day of August lightning struck the rods, and was conveyed to the ground, without damaging the building in any way. Two of the balls on the rod were burned out by the lightning. I notified George Hartley, the agent, at Peterborough, and he came to my place two days later, and he replaced the balls, with new ones, and inspected the rods without any cost to me. I am satisfied the rods are a protection and saved my barns from damage by the lightning and I recommend them to all farmers.

OLDEST SOLDIER.

London, Aug. 21.—The death has occurred at Norwich, at the age of ninety-one, of a well-known Norfolk veteran of the Crimean and Indian Mutiny campaigns. Thoss. Mann, ex-sergeant of the 57th Foot, was discharged after twenty-one years with the Colours, but afterwards joined three militia battalions, so that his service extended to thirty-six years and 140 days.

He had drawn a pension for over fifty-two years, and is believed to have been the oldest soldier in Great Britain. He was the oldest man at the review of Crimean and Mutiny veterans by His Majesty at Sandringham in May, 1907, and claimed the King's special attention.

YOUNG LADY VISITOR WAS LOST IN WOODS AT VIAMEDE

Search Party Found Her—Several Upsets in Eel's Creek Cause Excitement—Stony Lake Shows Few Signs of the Drawing Near of the End of the Season—Captain Young is Recovering.

Special to The Examiner.

Stony Lake, Aug. 23.—Although the end of the season is drawing near there are few signs of it around Stony Lake just now, although the next two weeks will see an exodus of considerable proportions as people leave for home for the opening of school or in the case of Toronto visitors for the opening of the Toronto Exhibition. Just now, however, nearly all of the cottages are still open and the boarding houses and hotels are still flocked with summer visitors. The coming of the begining of the end, however, is felt in the increasing coolness of the nights and in the foliage which here and there is showing signs of departing from the conventional summer green and adopting the no less beautiful garb of early autumn.

A very big crowd left the lake this morning on the steamers Majestic and Empress, some week-end visitors but the majority people returning from a vacation well tanned faces and arms bearing undeniable evidence of their sojourn near the sun-kissed waters. The down steamers this week and next will probably do more business than those going up although visitors are yet arriving and the Peterborough people at least are not likely to return until after Labour Day.

The many friends of Capt. Pat. Young, of the Majestic, will be glad to learn that the popular captain is getting along nicely and is recovering from the attack of appendicitis which attacked him last week. He has suffered no pain since Saturday, and his condition is very favourable. The number of inquiries that are hurled at the crews of the steamers at every point at which they call shows the great regard in which Mr. Young is held by the people of the lake. During his absence Mate "Billy" Copperwaite is presiding at the wheel of the Majestic, and there have been no complaints as to the manner in which he is performing his duties.

The services at Juniper Island and at Crowe's Landing yesterday were well attended. In the evening several song services were held.

Some excitement was caused at Viamede yesterday owing to a well-known young lady losing her way in the woods. She undertook to walk to Burleigh, but wandered off the path and was gone for a long time. Her friends became uneasy and several searching parties were sent out before she was finally recovered.

Two upsets occurred at Eel's Creek yesterday owing to attempts to paddle up the rapids. In each case the attempt was a failure and in each case also the two young men in the canoes received a ducking. Fortunately all could swim and the results were more humorous than serious.

To-day only two boats are in commission as the Stoney Lake is at Peterborough running an excursion.

Mr. Harvey Staunton, of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, spent Sunday, the guest of Mr. Harry Beale.

Messrs. Ross and Allan Cameron were at Syndicate for the week-end.

Mr. Jas. Donnell spent Sunday at "Kilkenny."

Mr. Geo. Lundy was a week-end visitor to the lake, returning this morning.

Aid. Buller Satisfied With The City's Fire Department

Peterborough's Fire Department is one of the most modern on the continent as far as it goes. Ald. Buller always thought that the city was pretty well fixed, but he is convinced of that fact now. While away he visited many fire halls, and while others are fitted with more apparatus than Peterborough, they have nothing on this city in the way of cleanliness and appearance about the hall, the way the apparatus is handled, in discipline among the men, and lastly Chief Howard is just as good in his position as any chief at the convention. There is one thing the city does need, however, and that is a chemical engine. He saw the chemical engines in action, and he talked with a great many chiefs on the subject and they were all of the one opinion, vis., that the chemical engine is one of the greatest assets to a fire department.

Ald. Buller also made enquiries about fire alarm systems, and gained a lot of valuable information. He also spent a lot of time at the apparatus exhibition where he saw everything that is on the market for fighting fires. The apparatus was all exhibited in an automobile garage about the size of the local armouries, and for test and demonstration purposes they were taken outside.

The chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee will make a full report to his committee in the near future.

M. J. Sullivan Had Narrow Escape In Chicago Friday

Circumstances combining in a rather strange manner resulted in an accident to M. J. Sullivan, Aylmer St., while riding on a 'bus in Chicago on Friday. As stated in Saturday's issue the few facts received in a newspaper query seemed to indicate that this was the man referred to. He was coming east, on his way home from Minnesota, and had to stop over in Chicago for a short time. In going to the G. T. R. station he rode on a 'bus with the driver, all the seats inside being occupied. The 'bus approached a corner and was turning at the same time as a street car, going in the same direction. The car made the turn, but the trolley wheel continued along the first wire, having failed to successfully negotiate the switch at the intersection. After running along in different directions for a few feet the trolley pole had, of course to submit, and swung over against the wire it should have followed. This latter snapped and swerved down toward the bus. It struck Mr. Sullivan on the hat, destroyed it, and gave him a severe shock. The escape was a fortunate one for both Mr. Sullivan and Edward Dunn, driver. The wire was carrying a heavy load of "juice," and a fatality might easily have resulted.

Ladies Appreciated The Ball Game On Saturday

One of the features of the ball game on Saturday was the large number of ladies present. The grandstand had its best showing of the fair sex for the present year, and now that the league is nearly closed and the games are at fever heat it is expected that they will take advantage of the opportunity presented by the league of attending the remaining games. The admission is free and they are also given the privilege of the grand stand which is kept from being overcrowded by charging gentlemen ten cents. It looked promising to see the gay colour scheme, into which the ladies transformed the grandstand, and it is hoped that the remaining few games will be as largely attended. The fine points of the game may not be at their fair finger tips, but the average girl or woman knows when a player slams the ball out of the lot, or when a fielder gets a long one on the run that was intended for four bases. Every woman is a sport if she is given the opportunity to let that innate desire show itself. The remaining games in the league will be of the best, and it is expected that a large attendance will see both games.

HONOUR SAVED BY TAKING HIS LIFE

Director of Japanese Company Suicided When Concern Was Declared Dishonest.

Tokio, Aug. 21.—Having provided a short sword, should his revolver fail, Dr. Tsune-Kai Sakawa, ex-chairman of the Great Japan Sugar company, shot himself after reading in a newspaper that the directors of the company had been found guilty in connection with the recent scandals; and, according to the spirit of Bushido, he is held to have vindicated his character before family, friends and country. The company, a combination of existing concerns, was established three years ago with a capital of £1,900,000 and paid dividends of 15 to 64 per cent. Startling disclosures followed the inquiry into the affairs of a bank with which the company had had dealings. It was found that the company was virtually bankrupt, and that the directors had bribed members of the Japanese House of Representatives. Several members were recently convicted and sentenced on this account. The evening before his death, seated at supper with his wife, three sons and two daughters, Dr. Sakawa described how he had been wronged by unscrupulous men, on account of whose misconduct he was accused of serious offences of which he was innocent. He warned his children to be careful in their choice of companions, lest they should be led away by influences that would ruin them and dishonour the family name. His death is cited by an old friend, Viscount Kiyoura, as displaying the true spirit of Bushido, cultivated and esteemed by the Samurai of ancient days. In his will Dr. Sakawa says he had heard that once when a company in Europe was in difficulties, the chairman, a man of title, shot himself with a revolver. The story "sounded very pleasing and noble to the ear of a Japanese whose national character is incarnated in the spirit of Bushido." The will ends with the words "Banzai! Banzai! Banzai!" (Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!).

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly prized by aged people because they can be relied upon to invigorate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and so remove the cause of pains and aches.

AUGUST BLANKET SALE

PRICES LOW ON GOOD GOODS

Undoubtedly there are seasons of the year when the housewife's mind turns to things pertaining to the comfort of her family and herself. Naturally, the house is the first thing she starts to inspect—she looks over her stock of bedding, such as blankets, comforts, quilts, pillows, pillow cases, and beds, too, that need replacing are shoved out and replaced with bright new ones. All these things add to the comfort of a family during the cold winter weather and help to make home homelike and cheerful.

The thrifty housewife will be on the look-out now for bedding sales, windows, displays of all kinds, and the moment her eyes greet this class of goods her whole attention is centred there. In Cressman's, just now, the centre of attraction is this self-same home-making sale of Bedding—the Maish laminated cotton-down Comfort is in evidence on both the Main and Third floors, in all the different grades, colourings, styles and sizes, from the baby's bassinette size to the large double bed comfort.

There you greet the Blankets in the various grades from the white and grey flannelette to the heavy wool blankets for zero weather. The pillows and cases too are shown there in abundance, along with sheets, white spreads, etc., also lace and net spreads at very low prices. A trip to the Third Floor on the safety elevator will be interesting as well as educational to any woman or man who are interested in what is doing in the bed world. A very fine range of low, medium and high grade Iron and Brass Beds are on display, showing the very latest styles of the season, also an immense stock of dainty Bedroom Papers in all the new 1909-10 effects and wall treatments. Special prices on many lines of Bedding are attached throughout the store. It's time now to look, whether you buy or not. Try CRESSMAN'S again this year—satisfaction is assured.

BELIEVED TO BE WORK OF MADMAN

Series of Murders Have Disturbed the Province of Silesia.

Frankfort, Aug. 21.—A series of horrible murders, accompanied by mutilation of the victims' bodies, has terrorised the provinces of Posen and Silesia, and the perpetrator of the dastardly crimes, who is still at large, is believed to be a madman. Traces of his vile work extend from the Polish frontier to Frankfort-on-the-Oder. The first murder was committed near Kempin. A man named Joseph Bieda, was assassinated in a forest. He had been surprised in his sleep and killed with a knife, the criminal mutilating the body. On the following day a second victim was found near Adelnau. He was a young man, supposed to be an apprentice in search of work. He has not yet been identified. The third murder was committed near Rawitsch, a woman named Sebola having been found in a field with her throat cut and her body mutilated. The fourth victim, a woman named Smentak, 65, was murdered near Kobyleni, and the last murder discovered is that of a woman named Piasacki, who was murdered in a forest near Bejanowo. Attempts were made to murder a girl of 14 and a boy of 8 near Franstadt, but it is not known whether these two crimes have to be plaqed to the account of the madman.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"I WISH I HAD A GIRL."

A prominent theatrical paper published in New York recently contained an interesting sketch showing how a progressive company can make a hit of a song that possesses features which they feel will appeal to the public. Among the songs that have been popular this summer and still clings to the general fancy is I Wish I Had a Girl". It is not a 1909 song as far as its appearance is concerned, but according to the article referred to it remained for the Jerome Remick Publishing Co. to take hold of it and get it before the public. It was not widely known until they paid $1,000.00 to the first publishers for all rights to it and since then they have advertized it extensively, and su successfully that wherever popular music was in demand this summer it was one of the favourites, and has likewise become one of the best sellers they have offered the lovers of music of the day.

ASBESTOS CURTAIN.

Brantford, Ont., Aug. 23.—Only a fireproof wall and a curtain between the stage and the auditorium saved the Grand Opera House from destruction by fire, which broke out on the stage at six o'clock Friday morning.

The theatrical season opened Thursday with the presentation of a play, "Texas." How the fire originated is a mystery, but it is supposed it started from a cigar or match thrown among the scenery. All the wiring was apparently in good condition. Fire completely gutted the large stage, travelling from floor to floor, burning all the scenery and equipment. The roof was only scorched. Had it not been for the fireproof curtain, the flames would soon have consumed the auditorium, but, as it was, this was in no way affected.

Sir,—Your report of the game at Campbellford should have included the expenses. Fare $1.30 on the railway, omnibus 10 cents, tea 40 cents. Call it two dollars and say we are "grouches." Why should prices be "boosted." The officials of the club might arrange games in this district and we could spend our money here. Wake up boys, and take care of yourselves.

MARTIAL LAW PREVAILS SIX STRIKERS WERE KILLED

Pressed Steel Car Company's Strike Assumes Serious Proportions—Many Killed or Injured in the Rioting—Situation Just Now is Very Serious.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 23.—Schoenville and McKees Rocks are practically under martial law to-day, with the State Constabulary patrolling the streets and the strikers of the Pressed Steel Car Company sullen and threatening. It is almost assured that Sheriff Gumbert will appeal to Governor Stuart to-day for the aid of the state militia in preserving order in the strike scene. Unless a detailed canvass is made of the strikers homes it may never be known how many were killed and injured in the rioting and fighting last night, but nuofficial figures early to-day place the number of dead at six, fatally wounded, six; while scores were wounded.

Lady Gothard Wins A Second In Classy Field

SUMMER COLONY IS BEING FORMED AT HATRICK'S POINT

Mr. B. Larocque is Erecting a Cottage There and Other Peterborough people, it is Said, Will Follow Suit.

OTHER RICE LAKE NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

Rice Lake, Aug. 23.—As predicted some time ago in these columns the embryo of a summer colony near Hatrick's Point, Rice Lake, has been formed and with the ground once broken it should not be long until this place becomes popular with many of Peterborough's residents. Around on Hatrick's Point Mr. Baptiste Larocque has erected a two-storey home, which is practically completed, and on the river above the Angler's cottage Mr. John Trombley is building a summer home. These locations are considered the vantage points of the lake and river and are ideal spots. It is learned that since the movement was begun to build in these places the owners of property have developed the idea that they should secure high prices for their land, and as stated by prominent regular visitors to the lake this will only have the tendency to impede progress in building up that section and may prevent others intending to locate in the neighbourhood. It was pointed out to the farmers that with a large colony around the river's mouth the supplying of food, etc., to the cottagers would soon mean considerable money to them.

The fishing is now at its best and the late visitors are meeting with splendid success in their piscatorial trips on the lake and river.

The Idyl Wyld hotel is this year run by a Cobourg man, Mr. Joseph Fox, and all who visit this ideal place receive careful attention and come away satisfied. Among the guests there are: Mr. Groh and family, of Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. Jigger of Denver, Col.; Miss Jones and Miss Allin of Rochester, N.Y., Mr. Jones, wife and daughter, of Toronto; Mr. John and Miss Stinson of Toronto; Mr. Patterson and family of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Talbot of Peterborough; Mr. P. # WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and thus causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozengers and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Biliousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. The physicians pronounced his illness due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Hill's Son Sleeps Out.

Great Falls, Mont., Aug. 23.—Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, and a son of James J. Hill, was compelled to spend a night this past week in a haystack. He started from Helena to Great Falls in his automobile. Near Fort Shaw the machine stuck in a mud-hole.

Mr. Hill applied to a settler for a bed and supper, but was told that he could find a bed in a nearby haystack and that he could help himself to refreshments at the pump.

When he did not appear here on time a searching party started toward Helena. They found the automobile in the mud-hole, and a short inspection of the nearby neighborhood revealed Mr. Hill and his chauffeur asleep in the haystack.

FATAL STRIKE RIOT.

Sheriff and Three Troopers Killed in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 23.—After almost a day of quiet, rioting broke out last night at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company, Schoenville, a suburb, in which one deputy-sheriff and three state troopers were killed.

Shortly before 9.30, a mob of strikers gathered in front of the swinging gates of the stockade, and began a concerted attack. The state troopers resisted and in the melee Harry Exeter, a deputy-sheriff, 50 years old, was shot and killed by a supposed strike sympathizer.

In an effort to arrest a man picked out of the crowd as the one who did the shooting, State Trooper Smith was killed by a revolver bullet.

Two other troopers on foot were also shot and killed, falling into the arms of their comrades.

The state troopers then opened fire on the mob in a volley for the first time since the inception of the strike.

Six strikers fell to the ground at the first round, three of them reported fatally wounded.

The members of the mob then opened fire with rifles in return. Several troopers are reported to have been wounded.

An ambulance which was carrying the wounded troopers to a hospital was later attacked and the driver was forced to flee. The frightened horses plunged through the crowd, knocking down several persons. A detachment of troopers drove the ambulance to the hospital.

Among the seven casualties reported was that of Harry Eckley, an ex-policeman serving as a deputy-sheriff, whose only relative, a sister, is said to live in Toronto. The information comes from Jack Laroque, one of the escaping Canadians, who fraternized with him at the plant.

The King Nearly Mobbed.

London, Aug. 23.—King Edward was assured by the authorities that he would not be molested at Marienbad this season, but he was so badly mobbed the first day that he had serious thoughts of leaving immediately. The nuisance has been mitigated somewhat since, but it is still pretty bad, and the officials are constantly kept on the qui vive by visits of the King's suite.

Edward is walking much more than usual and is playing croquet daily to the satisfaction of his physicians. This year among the ladies most acceptable in the King's entourage is Maxine Elliott, the actress.

The King is leading the simple life at Marienbad, rising at 8 a.m. to drink the waters, while walking to the golf course, after breakfast giving three hours to correspondence and state matters, then after a simple lunch more walking, a little croquet, more waters, an early dinner and to bed at 11 or thereabouts.

Baku Is Bankrupt.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 22.—Baku, the rich oil magnates' capital, is municipally bankrupt.

For three years the oil companies, a majority of which are Swedish, English and Belgian, have been pressing the Russian Government to compensate them for the destruction of their property, amounting to $15,000,000, during the recent revolutionary uprisings. Their charters entitle them to be protected, but the Government now pleads force majeure.

The companies who own all the property on Baku, have therefore stopped paying local taxation. The schools are closed and the teachers are begging charity. The city employes are unpaid and have gone to look for work as harvest hands.

600 Men at Rockcliffe.

To Chart the Seven Seas.

New York, Aug. 23.—Starting out to chart the seven seas, the non-magnetic yacht Carnegie glided from Theboe Basin, at the foot of Twenty Third street, Brooklyn, in tow of a tug, shortly before noon Saturday.

The Carnegie, the first ship of her kind, was constructed at a cost of $125,000 for the use of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institute, of Washington, D.C. She was built for the purpose of surveying oceanic areas and determining distribution of magnetism in those areas, in connection with similar work undertaken on land by the institute and the Government.

Police Too Rough.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Two policemen are to answer in the courts for the death of a drunken man under their charge. Ernest Racine was picked up drunk and taken to East Oak Station by Constables Lemieux and Brown. They were taking him to the basement to the cells when he fell to the bottom and broke his skull. ### Must Get $1,200 or Be Single.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Everybody knows that bank clerks have to rise to a certain fixed salary before they are allowed to marry.

As the result of an order issued by the general manager, those clerks who happen to be employed by the Molsons Bank have had the barrier raised considerably.

It is just $200 harder to get married now. The young man who aspires to enter the bonds of matrimony must now be receiving $1,200, not $1,000, as has been the case.

Foreigner Killed by Train.

New Liskeard, Aug. 23.—W. Goyer, a foreigner, was struck by the first section of freight No. 14, going south, and died two hours later. The accident occurred about two miles south of this place. Papers found upon him show that he was a former employe of the Grand Trunk, and was insured against accident by the Grand Trunk Railway Insurance of Canada. He had been living at Uno Park and, being without friends or money, started to walk south.

Big Barn Burned.

Woodstock, Aug. 23.—Fire, which started from a mysterious origin early Saturday, destroyed the fine bank barn of Ex-County Councillor T. E. ## T. A. S. HAD AN EASY WIN OVER THE LEAGUE LEADERS

Quinlan Had the Southerners Sewed Up All the Way While the Abstainers Hit in Bunches and Fielded Splendidly —Biggest Crowd of the Season Saw the Game.

T. A. S. 11.
Park St. A. C. 2.

Is the way the score board read after the encounter between the above mentioned nines at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon.

The contest, which had Park St. won, would have decided the championship, was witnessed by the largest audience that has attended a City League affray this season. Although the game was rather onesided, the Southerners putting up a very wobbly exhibition of ball, the excitement was at fever heat until the last man was retired.

"Prunes" Quinlan, the man on the hill top for T. A. S. was cynosure of all eyes. He kept the hard hitting Park Streets well under his thumb all afternoon allowing only four safeties, two of which came in the opening session. After that it was a regular Hague peace conference the church boys cut with their slap sticks. They struck out, lifted up weak flies and pounded easy grounders with gusto and the Park St. fans sank back limp and watched the well running cold water machinery slowly operate.

"Norm" Dusty, the main stay of the South-enders tried to superintend the destruction of the hostiles, but his team mates made a number of egregious errors and these, mixed in with thirteen hits allowed eleven of the bark clad athletes to flash around the bases and score. There was only a couple of slips in Quinlan's machine, and it outclassed its rival at all stages of the test.

The fielding features of the game were contributed by "Bill" O'Brien and Crowe in centre field, each pulling down difficult flies, after a nice run, while "Yebbie" Flaherty carried off the batting honours, getting three singles in five times at bat.

Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, handled the indicator to the satisfaction of all, there not being the slightest whimper raised against any of his decisions.

Park St. got a flying start. "Teddy" Pilling singled to centre, Quinlan threw to catch him napping off first but O'Brien missed the ball and runner made third. Jack Pilling went out Quinlan to M. O'Brien. Harry O'Brien fouled out to Callaghan, but Ben Dusty singled between first and second, scoring Pilling. Bell made the third out, Callaghan to M. O'Brien. One run.

For the T. A. S. Callaghan skied to Crowe. Cahill died, N. Dusty to Pilling. Flaherty got life on Pentland's error and stole second, but M. O'Brien was out, Ben Dusty to Pilling. No runs.

Second innings, Park St.—Crowe skied to W. O'Brien. Jim Pilling out Cahill to M. O'Brien. Pentland fanned. No Runs.

Sparks from Balldom

T. A. S. played great ball.

The championship is still unsettled.

Park St. had a bad day, anyway they were due to strike the greased ladder sooner or later. There isn't any club that sails through a season minus a slump. It seems to be one of the rules of the game.

The saffron fielding behind Dusty didn't tend to make his task any easier.

Flaherty stung the pill hard.

The T. A. S. have a couple of hard games yet in the West Ends and the Straths before they can get a clear championship title.

Capt. "Bill" Shaw, of the Straths, remarked after the game if the T.A.S. expect to beat the Straths next time they'll have to play just a little better than they did Saturday.

Jack Oldham came down from the lakes for the game.

Jack Rosevear was all to the mustard.

"Friskie" Bell caught over half the game with a sprained finger, and that requires no little "grit."

A fan remarked after the game that it was a pleasing feature to note that neither team raised any objection to the umpire's decisions and that the game was played through without a hitch.

Another feature of Saturday's game was the large numbers of ladies that was in attendance, there being over 100 in the stands.

Next Saturday the T. A. S. will tackle either the West Ends or Strathconas.

The Park St. and the Straths will likely play a post season series of the best two in three games.

MARATHON RACE STRONGLY CONDEMNED BY ATHLETES

That long distance running is detrimental to the upbuilding of a perfect physical manhood and is vitally harmful to the majority of athletes who participate in this branch of sport is being brought to light more forcibly day by day. So much indeed that physical directors of athletic clubs all over America are discouraging it amongst their atheletes. Toronto physical directors and athletes who are authorities on the game are not entirely idle in the matter as will be noted in the following interviews:

Thos. W. Stafford, physical director West End Y. M. C. A.: "We do not want to develop any Marathoners in our association at all. Such races are too harmful. A five or ten mile race is far enough for any man, and not too many of them either."

J. J. McLeod, physical director Central Y. M. C. A.: "Long distance running is too hard on any athlete and we do not encourage it around our association. We have our Harriers Club of course, but they do not have any races over five miles We do not want any of our men to run any race that is over 15 miles, or still better ten miles, and no more than two in the year at that distance."

Claude Pearce, captain I.C.A.C.: "I would be just as well pleased if there were no more Marathon races. I don't think a fellow who is running all season should run in a race over 15 miles, one Marathon should not hurt a fellow a whole lot though, if he trains properly, but the trouble is they are not usually in condition for such a race. The medical examination before a Marathon race is a farce."

Chas. Bauckham, secretary W. E. Harriers: "Though ours is a distinctly long distance running club we do not encourage Marathon racing. Five or six miles is the longest race we have. We have seen too much of the ill-effects of Marathon races to encourage our men to enter them. A fifteen mile Marathon is long enough for any man to run."

Not Likely to Run.

It would not be a surprise to a large number of people this fall if with one or two exceptions there would be no Y. M. C. A. entries in races over 15 miles. There has been considerable talk amongst the athletes to that effect and when any sane person stops to consider the matter they will readily come to the conclusion that a 15 mile race is both a test of speed and endurance which really cannot be said of a longer race. Take for instance a 20 or 25 mile race, the fastest runner does not always win. in fact his chances are in most cases very slim, the strong steady runner, not necessarily fast, is in most cases returned winner. The speedy runner falls by the wayside. He can negotiate 10 or 15 miles at a good fast pace, but after that his strength gives out and he is beaten by the slow, steady runner.

Therefore a race of over 15 miles is not a test of speed, it being only an endurance test and therefore should be eliminated from athletic programmes for that reason alone, as running races were inaugurated for trials of speed.

The Physical Strain.

Then there is the other side of a long distance race. Most athletes say they do not feel any evil after effects of a long-distance race. They have trained for it and were prepared for the test, but if any of them wants to find out just what it has cost him physically let him run five miles about two days after the race. He may consider himself pretty good if he does it in 30 minutes, which is rather slow time for five miles. The physical energy expended is greater than the athlete thinks. If this runner were examined by a doctor he would no doubt be very much surprised at his condition.

Melvin Sheppard, one of the greatest runners in America, remarked after his return to America from the Olympic games where he won the 800 metres and 1,500 metre races, that those races took two years off his life. What then must a Marathon race do?

A big American newspaper once asked in a big headline:

"Who is fit to run a Marathon?"

The answer was "Nobody."

No human heart can be trained to a condition that will permit its owner to run 26 miles at top speed without exposing him to the danger of collapse, or bring about conditions that favour the development of disease in later life.

A Poor Exhibition.

Besides all this a race of over 15 miles, at the very outside, is usually a mighty poor exhibition from the standpoint of the spectator. It is a peculiar kind of interest and a peculiarly constructed person, who seeking entertainment, can sit out and enjoy a killing struggle for hours at a time between human beings, wild-eyed, exhausted and gasping for their very breath.

BASEBALL

The T. A. S. have two games left to play and will win the championship if they carry off both. They have still games with the West Ends and Strathconas, and if defeated by either will be tied with Park Street and a special series will have to be played. The standing of the league just now is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| T. A. S. | 5 | 2 | .714 |
| Park Street | 6 | 3 | .666 |
| West Ends | 3 | 5 | .375 |
| Strathconas | 2 | 6 | .250 |

The teams in Saturday's City League game between Park Street and T. A. S. had no fault to find with the umpiring. The veteran indicator handler, Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, gave every satisfaction to the teams, and spectators, the latter being particularly pleased with the fact that he started the game on time and that he kept the players on the jump all the way. His voice is good and his eye has lost none of its keenness.

The Man From Home
A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name
By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON
Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association

She finished with a look of triumph. "What a terrible indictment!" she said scornfully. "So that was what you counted on to convince me of my mistake? I shall tell Lord Hawcastle that you will be willing to take up the matter of the settlement the moment his solicitor arrives."

"What a terrible indictment!" she said.

Pike shook his head sadly.

"No, I wouldn't do that, because I won't take up any settlements with him or any one else."

"Have you after this any objection to my alliance with Mr. St. Aubyn?" she inquired, her anger at white heat.

"It isn't an alliance with Mr. St. Aubyn you're after," he replied calmly. "You're after something there ain't anything to. If I'd let you buy what you want you'd find it as empty as the judgment day the morning after. You think because I'm a jay country lawyer I don't understand. Why, we've got the same thing at home. There was little Annie Hoffmayer. Her pa was a carpenter and doing well, but Annie could not get into the Kelowno Ladies' Literary society, and her mame didn't show up in the society column four or five times every Saturday morning, so she guile her pa to give her the money to marry Artie Seymour, the minister's son, such a regular minister's son he was! A most broke Annie's heart and her pa's too, but he let her have her way and went in debt and bought them a house on Main street. That was two years ago."

Pike paused momentarily.

"Annie's working at the depo candy stand now," he resumed, "and Artie's working at the hotel bar—in front—drinking up what's left of old man Hoffmayer's—settlement!"

She flung away from him in a temper and then wheeled on him in a flash.

"And you say you understand—you, who couple the name of a tippling yokel with that of a St. Aubyn, whose ancestors have fought on every field of battle from Crecy and Agincourt to the Crimea!"

"But you won't see much of his ancestors!" complained Pike.

"He bears their name," she answered.

"That's it, and it's the name you want. Nobody would look at you and see as it wasn't him! It's the name! And I'd let you buy it if it would make you happy—if you didn't have to take the people with it. Don't you see they're counting on it? The earl—he's counting on living on you." The Indianian became excited. "Why, a Terre Haute pickpocket could see that! Ain't his old Lady Creech—she's counting on it, and this Frenchwoman that's with them—isn't she trying to land your brother? The whole kit and bodle of them are on the track of John Simpson's money!"

"I gave Almeric my promise. It was forever, and I shall keep it," she answered slowly, as if she had been impressed with his earnestness. He looked at her quietly.

"I'm not going to let you," he replied.

"Then I'll throw your interference to the winds. I shall marry without your consent."

"Do you think they'd let you?" Pike asked quickly. For a moment she stood still, and then came the sound of the guitars from over the wall. Pike went on after a time.

"Sounds kind of foreign and lonesome," he said. "I'd rather hear something that sounded more like home—'Sweet Genevieve,' for instance. You know it, don't you?"

"I used to," she answered, hanging her head. "It's old fashioned and common, isn't it?"

"That's why I like it, I guess," he answered. "I couldn't get you to sing it for me before I go home, could I?"

She looked at him thoughtfully for a moment.

"I'm afraid not," she answered and went quickly into the hotel, leaving him looking after her curiously.

CHAPTER XIV.
BLACKMAIL.

PIKE was still standing with the letter in his hand, looking after Ethel, when he awoke to the realization of what her words meant to him. She had given her promise, and she did not mean that anything in the world should make her revoke it. That promise was sacred to her, just as if it had been spoken before a clergyman.

In his heart Pike knew he would have to give in if he was to make her happy, and yet he knew that in making her temporarily happy he would be making her eternally miserable. If he could have the strength to hold out against her and refuse to sanction the marriage he knew the crew of aristocrats would never accept her without the cash, and that by the terms of John Simpson's will could never be theirs without his consent.

Of his own hopes he could see but the faintest glimmering. He had irretrievably offended the girl, and she would hate him all her life for it, he feared. His entrance into her new phase of life had been unfortunate. His continuance in it was little else than an insult, according to her way of thinking. And Jim Cooley, whom he had trusted to find the flaw in the Hawcastle escutcheon that he knew had existed, had failed him miserably.

The lawyer felt that he was a long way from home. He sighed and turned to where the sun was sinking in a haze of red across the bay. Then he heard the voice of Horace and chirping with it the cultured accents of Lord Hawcastle. Apparently they were coming to seek him. She had reiterated his refusal.

Wearily he turned again to the automobile and leaned against it. As he did so he heard Horace say:

"But Ethel says Mr. Pike positively refuses."

In return he heard Hawcastle reply: "Leave him to me. In ten minutes he will be as meek as a lamb."

Dumbly Pike wondered what fresh argument the earl had to offer and mentally steeled himself against it. As he looked up he encountered the steady glare of the earl.

"My dear Pike," began the latter, "there is a certain question"—

"I said I would not discuss that with you. I meant what I said," observed Daniel quietly.

"This is another question," went on the other, heedless of the warning or at least unaffected by it.

MANITOBA IS URGENTLY IN NEED OF MORE HARVESTERS FOR HER WHEAT FIELDS

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—An officer of the Provincial Government is authority for the statement to-day that this Province is in urgent need of about ten thousand harvesters, and is facing a serious situation. He said that of all the men who have made west only two thousand have remained here, and cited instances of how certain districts are handicapped by lack of sufficient help. Out on the Hartney branch five hundred men were asked for, but only a dozen could be sent. Grandview asked for 130, and received only twenty. Minto and Southwestern Manitoba are in equally bad condition and several thousand acres are lying unstooked there. The Government has arranged with the railroads to give a cent a mile rate to men from the city who will go out to the fields.

Out around Radisson, Sask., women and children are working in the fields, as men have not been available, and the crops are very heavy.

Mr. F. Cook, Ottawa, representative of The London Times, arrived here yesterday, after a tour of the west. He states that the consensus of opinion throughout the country is that the wheat yield this year will be between one hundred and fifteen million and one hundred and twenty million bushels. Mr. Cook has just returned from Seattle, and in discussing the Fair there he said: "Considering the fact that thousands of Canadians and British people are visiting the Fair, it is somewhat galling to observe the complete absence of the British flag from the Exposition. Nowhere on the grounds can there be seen a single flag of Britain, with the exception of of one on the Canadian pavilion."

A heavy hail storm passed over Baldur section Monday night, and did considerable damage there, at Mariapolis and Glenboro'.

Danger Period Passed.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—With the critical period—around Aug. 20 and 25—now safely passed without frost, and wheat cutting in progress in many parts of Canada West, a general feeling of optimism prevails among grain men here. Past experience assures that the frost danger is now over until, possibly, the new moon in the middle of next month, by which time a large proportion of the crop should be in stook.

WRECKED IN PACIFIC

Australian Liner Brings Story of Terrible Sufferings—Tragic Tale of the Sea.

FIVE SURVIVORS RESCUED

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 25.—Few more tragic tales of the sea are on record than that brought by the steamer Makura this morning from Australia of the wreck of the Norwegian bark Errot, which struck the Middleton Reef June 18., and the sufferings of the survivors.

Five remained of 22 when they were rescued, so emaciated from thirst and starvation that they had to be carried.

The Makura brings detailed stories of their vain struggles to find water on the reef, their unsuccessful search for a cache of provisions and a lifeboat maintained there prior to 1882 and which the sailing directions stated to exist, of their abandonment of hope and subsequent delirium.

Captain Anderson and the second mate drowned while building a raft, while his wife and children looked on, and finally after others had succumbed and the remainder were weak from starvation, the captain's wife drowned her four children, aged from one to eight, under the impression that the five survivors were planning to resort to cannibalism, and she followed the children into the waves.

Patrick Palmer, one of the survivors, in relating his story, said: There was another wreck on the reef and we thought it was a store ship. We boarded it, but found nothing to eat. It was musty, old and all it held was a bottle with about two gills of water that must have been there for years by the horrible taste it had.

"I and the carpenter drank that. We afterwards found some more water, and although it was in a bad state, we drank it. We then decided to build a punt from the wreckage, and while we were working at this we lived on shell fish."

The Trouble Is Now At End

Reconciliation Board Has Been Successful in Fort William Strike.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—W. L. MacKenzie King, Minister of Labour, was to-day informed that what is understood to have been an unanimous report has been received by the Board of Conciliation, which was appointed last week to conduct the inquiry into the dispute between the C.P.R. and the Freight Handlers at Fort William. The settlement is said to be satisfactory to all parties but the terms are not obtainable.

1200 Men On Strike

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—One thousand two hundred carpenters quit work to-day because of the failure of the contractors to advance wages 90 cents per day. Three firms surrendered to the remands of the men, but work is held up all over the city.

Building operations this season were far in excess of any previous year.

THE RAILROAD NAPOLEON HAS RETURNED TO NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 25.—Edward H. Harriman, genius of finance, leader of men, and master builder of railroads, came back to the United States yesterday, while the financial world stood on its tiptoes in anxiety and expectancy.

He came back as he left on June 1st last, a sick, tired man, seeking health.

Last night, surrounded by his family and physicians at his magnificent, though uncompleted summer home at Arden, on the Hudson, he has begun the "after cure," which he needs after the enervating baths and dietic treatment he underwent at the Austrian resort, Bad Gastein. How long he will remain in seclusion, how long it will be before he resumes the active direction of his vast railroad interests, depends solely upon his health.

He arrived yesterday feeble, face gaunt, and voice weak. "And I have come home," he said, "for a cure and not for work."

Many great Americans have returned to their country's shores under extraordinary circumstances, but never has there been a more remarkable home-coming of a private citizen than E. H. Harriman's.

Great stock market operators passed as his ship drew near, the stock itself marked time, and the industrial world turned its eyes seaward, as it were, eager for a glimpse of the face of the man whose illness abroad has furnished much material for stock market rumors.

Contrary to expectations, the financier did not leave the Kaiser Wilhelm II. down the bay, but remained on board until the vessel docked at Hoboken. Then, after being assisted ashore, he boarded a Southern Pacific tug and was taken to Jersey City, where he was again assisted to his private car. From there the trip was quickly made up the Hudson to his mountain home at Arden.

Then, reclining on a couch, pale and enfeebled, but with his usual optimism and tenacity of mind, he talked to an audience of more than a score of newspaper men before leaving for Arden.

Turning to railroad matters, one of the first questions asked concerned his reported option on a controlling interest in New York Central stock, an option which would give him with his other railroads, an unbroken line of steel east and west from coast to coast.

"That is an easy one," said the financier, smiling, "but I would not tell you if I had."

"Do you mean to put the surplus earnings into the roads rather than to turn them over to the stockholders?" he was asked.

"Yes, that's about it," he said, "that is my plan—construction and development—and I guess the public and the press are convinced now that I am not a speculator; it was a hard three years. I wish I could wipe them out, but I can through with that now."

Mr. Harriman would not say just what new undertakings he proposed, "but," said he, "it is in my mind to open up new territory and to build new tributary lines. This means new settlements and more people."

AN INJUNCTION CLAIMED AGAINST THE COMMISSION

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 25.—A writ has been issued claiming an injunction to restrain the Hydro-El. Power Commission from entering into an agreement with the Ontario Power Company for the supply of Niagara Power, and to prohibit the erection of transmission lines of transformer stations and other necessary appliances John A. Murray, of Toronto, is the applicant for the injunction and the plea is that the Niagara River, being a navigable river and the boundary line between the United States and Canada, the Province has no power to deal with its waters.

Plums And Peaches Cheap And Supply Is Plentiful

"Plums and peaches will be cheaper and more plentiful this year," said a prominent fruiterer to an Examiner reporter this morning. The present situation is very encouraging from the consumer's standpoint and the outlook points to an abundance of the small fruits that are now coming in. Early peaches have arrived and are selling at from 25 to 65 cents a basket. They are not as fine a preserving peach as those which will soon be received, but they are of fair quality. Plums are plentiful and at present may be purchased for as good a price as will be offered this season. The grocers and fruiterers are asking from 35 to 65 cents a basket. It is a little early for gages, but they are coming in and promise to be cheap. Consumers know by experience whether a policy of delay is a good method for buying fruit, but the salesmen state that if the housekeepers follow their advice they will not go far astray. A grocery or fruit store that has won the confidence of the people will continue to deal with them in a straightforward manner and it may be taken for granted that if the proprietor states that the time is advantageous for buying fruit no mistake will be made by following his advice. The fruit season is now coming to its own and there will undoubtedly be a big business carried on while it lasts in Peterborough.

Another Business College To Be Established Here

Peterborough is to have another Business College.

Ald. A. P. Gibbon, principal of the Woodstock Business College, has been in the city for the past couple of days looking over the prospect, and has been very favourably impressed with Peterborough. He believes that the city is large enough for two such institutions and has decided to establish one here. The new building will be ready to open for the fall term on Sept. 7.

Mr. Gibbon, who is one of the Woodstock City Fathers, in addition to being principal of the Business College, in that city, is an auditor and accountant and is an honour graduate and member of the International Accountants' Society of America. He will have a capable staff and a commodious building and the new institution should receive a liberal share of patronage.

COL.-SERGT. MOORE IS DOING WELL

Col. Sergt. W. H. Moore of the 57th Regiment, who is taking part in the Dominion Rifle Association's matches at Ottawa, has made a fairly good showing so far and has been getting his share of the money. On Monday in the MacDougall challenge cup match, seven shots, each at 200 and 600 yards, possible 70, he won $4, with a score of 63, and in the president's match at special targets, at which the riflemen have forty-five seconds to fire seven shots, using the magazine, possible 35, Sergt. Moore scored 24, winning $4.

One Man Killed and Three Others Fatally Injured by a Terrific Explosion.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

New York, Aug. 25.—With a [illegible] that could be heard a mile the boiler of the tug "Bee" exploded [illegible] East River to-day, killing one [illegible] and fatally injuring three others. The tug "Director" towed the "Bee" which was rapidly sinking. The "Bee" belonged to the Packard Dredging Co. The dead man is George Drinkwater, forty-five years old, and the three injured, Peter Barlin, fireman; John Jacobs, fireman; Albert Cardell, cook.

INTERNATIONAL AMENITIES.

Chief Tremblay of Montreal deserves a pat on the back for the outspoken words in regard to international amenities which he uttered at the Convention of Fire Engineers, which has just concluded its labours at Grand Rapids, Michigan. A report of his speech will be found in another column of this issue.

No doubt it was by an oversight that the British flag was omitted in the decorations of the hall where the meetings of the convention were held, but it was a distinct breach of courtesy to the visiting British delegates, and as such deserved reprobation. The same lack of propriety is, unfortunately, often noticeable amongst the American owners of small craft, who ply our waters during their summer holidays. They know enough to make use of their own flag, so one is almost forced to the conviction that their attention might be drawn with advantage to the old saying:

"Manners make the gentleman;
The want of them the fellow."

HOW TRADE GROWS

The July trade returns prove conclusively that hard times in Canada have passed and gone. For the four months ending July 31 of the current fiscal year, the total trade of the Dominion amounted to $191,919,304, as compared with $163,551,024 in the first four months of the last fiscal year. This includes exports and imports of coin and bullion and foreign merchandise exported through Canada.

Imports for consumption for the four months amounted to $114,265,502, an increase of $22,377,303 over the corresponding period of last year. The exports totalled $77,856,408, an increase of $6,193,585 over the corresponding period last year. Total trade increased $28,570,886 in the past four months over the same period last year. The total trade of July exceeded that of last year by $7,440,616. The customs receipts for the past four months amounted to $17,855,948, a gain of $3,633,440 over the same period of the last fiscal year.

These figures will indicate that confidence has returned, that the factories are busy, that the people have more money to spend, and that the revenue is rising as a result of continued confidence in the administration, and a return to prosperity.

The people of Canada will approach the problems of the future as they apply to the Empire as a whole, with a greater degree of confidence than ever. Any scheme of Imperial defence in which Canada participates will be accepted with the knowledge that Canada is well able to assume her proper share of the burdens of empire, knowing at the same time that the principles of perfect autonomy will never be varied by so much as a hair although loyalty to the mother land will grow as the years pass.

QUESTION FOR MANITOBANS.

For years past large sums of money have been remitted to the provincial authorities by the Federal Government for school purposes. This sum of money cannot legally be applied to any other purpose. Last year the interest on the Manitoba school lands account remitted to the Provincial Government of Manitoba amounted to over $60,000, in addition to this a sum of $108,886.41 was also remitted, consisting of odds and ends of interest.

What has Premier Roblin done with this money?

The sums remitted to the Manitoba Government since 1902 amount to $905,338.92, up to June 19, 1909, as follows:

Statement of amounts paid to the Manitoba Government for interest on sales of school lands and other revenue (less cost of management):

|---|---|
| June 11, 1902, revenue not principal | $224,114.76 |
| Sept. 19, 1904, revenue, not principal | 6,886.24 |
| Sept. 10, 1904, revenue, not principal | 43,934.26 |
| Aug. 15, 1905, revenue not principal | 59,774.04 |
| Aug. 15, 1906, revenue, not principal | 58,447.71 |
| June 11, 1907, revenue, not principal | 39,572.70 |
| July 15, 1908, revenue, not principal | 59,886.14 |
| June 19, 1909, revenue, not principal | 108,886.41 |
| Total | $600,664.16 |
| In addition to the above the following sums of interest have also been paid up to 30th March, '09 | 304,674.76 |
| Grand Total paid over | $905,338.92 |

That is, the Roblin Government have been paid $905,338.92 by the Federal Government to be expended for no other purpose than educational—and the question now is:

What has Premier Roblin done with this money? Has it been expended for school purposes or has some of it been diverted from legitimate channels?

The Dominion Government has been very careful in the administration of school lands in the Western Provinces. The last sales averaged $11.30 per acre, and the cost of making a sale which produced for the fund the sum of $1,865,238, was under $2,000. In 1892 the Conservative Government sold school lands which only produced $127,000 and the expense was over $1,000. This illustrates how carefully the Dominion Government protects this trust fund. In the first place securing the very highest figures for the land—sellig the same at a very low expense, and then administering the fund at a cost of about three per cent. After all this care and caution the proceeds are handed over to the Roblin Government and all trace is lost.

This leads to a repetition of the question. What has Roblin done with the money?

Every person knows how the Roblin Government squandered the swamp lands of the province. The swamp lands it must be remembered are held to be the property of the province, and after they are found to be such, and are surveyed, the Dominion Government hands them over. These are very choice lands, and the Roblin Government has wasted them by disposing of them to political favourites at a low figure, they are then exploited at large figures in the English market, and political heelers reap the profit.

Reference to the records of the province prove this. It will be an easy matter to quote half a dosen instances of cases where Conservative politicians have become possessed of these lands at figures far below their value, and have sworn they were worth several dollars an acre more when filing certificate in the registrar's office, as required by law.

Reference to this is made merely to enforce the query, "What has Roblin done with the school lands money?" If he has been as recreant to his trust in the case of the school money, so wisely provided by the Dominion Government, as he was with the swamp lands, which he acquired from the same source, it is a subject of proper enquiry by the people of Manitoba.

Premier Roblin should be made to produce a return showing the disposition of every acre of swamp land acquired from the Dominion Government and of every dollar of money handed over by the Dominion Government as the proceeds of the interest derived from the sale of school lands. This gentleman, Premier Roblin, was very outspoken about the Crow's Nest deal during the late campaign, and it is only right that he should explain to the people what he has done with the swamp lands and the school funds handed over to him by the Dominion Government.

RETREATING FROM AN IMPOSSIBLE POSITION.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

The Canadian naval policy formulated by the Dominion Government and decided upon not only for Canada but also for Australia and New Zealand by the representatives of the Government of Canada, Australia and New Zealand in conference with the British Admiralty has the emphatic endorsation of every member of the Dominion Parliament, Conservative as well as Liberal, given on March 29 last. It has the endorsation not only of the British Admiralty, but of the recently retired commander-in-chief of the British Navy, Lord Charles Beresford, who does not see eye to eye with the heads of the Admiralty in regard to some matters. The policy thus decided upon and thus overwhelmingly endorsed has been attacked only by the Winnipeg Conservative organ, by the Toronto News and by some three or four other Conservative papers in Canada, which with singular obtuseness have considered that by that course they could make political capital for their party.

It has not taken very long for the truth to force itself upon this little group of insensately partisan papers that they have made a mistake in underestimating both the intelligence and patriotism of their readers. The Winnipeg organ, after four days of furious verbal warfare against the policy of national navies for the overseas self-governing nations of the Empire in co-operation with the British navy as the best policy for the maintenance of Imperial sea power, is abandoning its attacks and its impassioned advocacy of a centralized navy. Its method of abandoning the position which it has been occupying, and which it now realizes to be an impossible position, is to attempt to cover its retreat by an appeal to an absolutely non-existent prejudice which it imputes to the people of this country who have crossed the international line to make their homes on Canadian soil.

Its leading editorial on Saturday, under the heading, "A Local Navy Can Be Only an Irritant," says that the naval policy decided upon is a policy of "gratuitous irritation not only to our friends on the other side of the line, but to the tens of thousands of excellent Americans who have taken up their homes in Canada." The article harps upon the "distrust of our "neighbour," which, it says, is "implied" by the adoption of a national naval policy by this country, and harps also upon the absolutely non-existent prejudice which it is an insult to the Canadian citizens of United States origin to impute to them, as the organ does.

To speak of the creation of a Canadian navy as irritating to the United States, or irritating to the Canadian citizens of United States origin, is as absurd as to say that the policy of the United States in maintaining a navy is irritating to Canada, or irritating to United States citizens of Canadian origin. Never was there a more pitiable attempt to crawl out of an impossible position by an ostensible appeal to prejudice which does not exist, than this attempt of the Winnipeg Conservative organ. There is absolutely not a vestige of that prejudice which the organ imputes to the Canadian citizens of United States origin. So far are they from entertaining any such sentiment that the truth is that there are no citizens of Canada who are more heartily in favour of a national naval policy, than they are, and none who will be prouder to see a Canadian navy created.

POEM WRITTEN BY SASKATCHEWAN MAN

Norman W. Sherwin, Formerly of Rose neath, Contributes a Eulogistic Effort on the West.

Come all my old neighbours, give ear to my song;
I pray, do not weary, if it should prove long.
It's about this fair country, that is known
As the land of rich prairie—called Saskatchewan.

When summer comes on the grass is all green.
Wild flowers, in their beauty, are everywhere seen.
Mosquitos are plenty; fine weather on;
And the farmers are breaking in Saskatchewan.

When haying come on, they're busy all day,
In mowing and raking the sweet prairie hay;
On a small piece of ground you get all you can draw,
No thistles, no daisies, in Saskatchewan.

When the harvest comes on they're all hard at work;
They don't mind their old hat, nor the sweat on their shirt.
But look at the stacks, and the wheat to work at in the sun,
Don't you wish you were farming in Saskatchewan?

When the harvest is over the threshing begins;
And many the granary with o'erflowing bins;
They just take a match and burn up the straw;
No man will use much of it in Saskatchewan.

The threshers bring with them their gangs of men,
And while they are threshing the ploughing goes on,
And finer fall weather very seldom is known,
Than the month of October in Saskatchewan.

When the winter comes on don't let it frighten you;
For there is many a fine day, and stormy one, too.
With lots of hard wheat to market you run,
There's no time for freezing in Saskatchewan.

Come, all my old schoolmates, to mankind you've grown;
And if you are intending to start out alone,
Pack up your old duds, say good-bye to your Ma,
And try your luck farming in Saskatchewan.

SUCCESSFUL TEA AND CONCERT

Two Churches Unite in Holding an Enjoyable Affair Near Mount Julian

Special to The Examiner

Mount Julian, Aug. 25.—A very successful and enjoyable picnic was held by Eden and Holy Trinity churches recently in a beautiful maple grove about three quarters of a mile from Mt. Julian.

An excellent dinner and tea was served by the ladies and was appreciated very much and the ice cream, was well patronized.

Games and swings were provided for the children, while the young people tripped the light fantastic to the music of the violin, ably furnished by Mr. Joe Northey. The Apsley Lodge numbering 35 members, of Loyal True Blues, No. 74, attended in a body, and marched to the music of drum and flute to Mount Julian and back, after which they favoured the gathering with several fine selections. The W. M., Mr. Wellington Lean, deserves credit for his management of the lodge and the members of it join with him in his efforts to make the Apsley Lodge one of the best in the county.

We were pleased to have with us, besides the ministers of the district, Mr. Garbutt, and Mr. Lord, a large number from Apsley, the Rev. A. Hart of St. Mary's parish, Dovercourt Road, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid and Mrs. J. Moore, from Stony Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bell from Cedar Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, from Mt. Julian; Mr. H. Moore and Mr. J McCracken, of Dummer, and several ladies from Viamede. The entire proceeds amounted to one hundred and twenty-two dollars ($123.00), and were equally divided after paying expenses between the two churches.

Sir,—'Cricketer', by some queer method of reasoning, accuses me of attempting to discourage "the local team who went to Campbellford," perhaps, also, the team who didn't go to Warkworth. I am always in "form" for anything likely to be met with, and as for defraying my expenses, I always do more than my share or stay away The word of the local club, if you will be personal, is not worth much, and the fact that the season is over and we have not had one game here, proves your correspondent a poor cricketer.

$25,000 WAITING FOR OWNER

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Twenty-five thousand dollars is lying in the safe of the German Hospital, awaiting the finding of heirs to the estate of Mrs. Tindel, who died at that institution of apoplexy.

The money was in large bills, concealed in Mrs. Tindel's clothing, and was brought to light, together with her will, after her death.

Apoplexy claims hundreds of victims every year. Yet apoplexy is but an advanced stage of blood poisoning which manifests itself in headaches and backaches. Very frequently the cause is constipation.

Such a case as the above shows the importance of keeping the bowels active, the kidneys regular, the skin healthy, so that the blood will be always pure and rich.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—are safe and efficient regulators for stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"Ivanoff!" he called, and the Russian came into the room. At the sight of him Hawcastle fell back against the mantel, and the countess collapsed in a heap on the floor. Ivanoff saw none but her and, striding to her, lifted both clinched hands above her head.

"Ivan—oh, mother of God!—Ivan! Don't kill me!" she gasped.

For a moment he stood over her, then collapsed into a chair, where he wilted, sobbing violently.

"He has betrayed me himself!"

CHAPTER XVII.

FACE TO FACE.

If the roof of the building had collapsed and had left the persons there assembled in the room confronting death itself, there could have been no more complete astonishment.

It was Horace who first appreciated the somberness of the crouching, terror stricken woman upon the floor.

"Helene!" he whispered, but Pike stepped forward and waved him back.

"You stand back!" said the lawyer. "She's his wife!" And at the words Horace fairly staggered. Daniel went on, pointing to the cringing Hawcastle, "And there's his best friend."

The words seemed to rouse some of the fighting St. Aubyn instinct in the earl, and his eyes flashed.

"It's a lie!" he cried hoarsely. "I never saw the man in all my life before."

"The lady seemed to recognize him," said Pike grimly. "I guess you won't have to jab your memory too hard. It's only ten years to St. Petersburg, Mr. Glenwood!"

"Almeric, go for the police!" ordered the earl.

"No, no!" cried the countess. "I can't stand it!"

Pike laid his hand upon Ivanoff's shoulder and spoke loudly:

"Call 'em in! We're ready!"

Almeric, with a frightened glance around, stepped to the doors and threw them wide, calling as he reached the passage:

"Tell that officer to bring his men here!"

He turned and again entered the room, and Pike's face lit up unpleasantly as he looked at him, then softened as he turned to Ethel.

"I want you always to remember that I consider it cheap at the price," he said.

There was a quick step without, and Von Grollerhagen entered, followed by Ribiere. For an instant he glanced about the circle and then spoke in a clear, ringing voice.

"There will be no arrests tonight, my friends," he said, and at the words Hawcastle sneered openly.

"This man goes, too!" he declared violently. "Call those carabinieri!" he reiterated to Almeric.

Von Grollerhagen smiled sweetly and raised his hand deprecatingly.

"The officer is not there. You see, the carabinieri have been withdrawn." He turned to Daniel. "For you, my friend, I have relinquished my incognito." Pike stared at him uncompromisingly, and the German turned to Lord Hawcastle.

"This man Ivanoff," he said, "is in my custody."

For a moment the two men measured each other, and then Hawcastle burst out violently:

"By whose authority? Do you know you are speaking to the earl of Hawcastle?"

Von Grollerhagen smiled. Ribiere stepped forward and addressed Hawcastle directly.

"More respect, sir!" he cried. "You are addressing the Grand Duke Vasili of Russia!"

Hawcastle paled and fairly staggered into the arms of his son, who reeled from the shock. The others stared uncomprehendingly, and Pike looked up with a curious frightened look upon his lean face. Quite slowly he moved to the table and rested a hand upon it and with the other caressed his chin. His eyes were looking straight ahead, and he murmured in awestruck tones:

"Good Lord! And think what—why, I've been calling him—doc!"

The grand duke perceived the agitation on Pike's face and came forward to take his hand.

"My friend," he said gently, "it has been refreshing." He spoke to Ribiere. "I shall take the man Ivanoff's statement in writing. Bring him to me with you."

He turned on his heel quickly and went off through the door on the other side of the room that led to his private chamber. When he had gone Ribiere touched Ivanoff on the shoulder as a signal, and the stricken man arose. One glance he cast upon the guilty woman, who shrank so shiveringly into a corner as he gazed upon her, and then said:

"I would not touch you—even to strangle you!" and then to the thunderstruck Hawcastle he said:

"God will let me pay my debt to the Earl of Hawcastle!"

In an instant he was gone, and Hawcastle, pale with rage and anguish strode forward to Pike, who was smiling.

"Why, you"— the earl began.

Daniel raised his hand. He spoke softly, even genially.

"Oh, I hated to hand you this, my lord," he said. "I didn't come over here to make the fine flower of Europe any more trouble than they've got. But I had to show John Simpson's daughter, and I reckon now she ain't wanting any alliance with the remnants of Crecy and Agincourt."

From the other side of the sofa, where she had been sobbing on her brother's shoulder, Ethel came trembilingly.

"I have no choice," she said slowly. "You see, I gave Almeric my promise when I thought it an honor to bear his name. Now that you have shown me that it is a shame to bear it the promise is only more sacred. You see, the shame is not his fault, is it? You—want—me—to—be—honorable—don't—you?"

"It is milor' the Earl of Hawcastle."

When she had finished Daniel was leaning well back on the table.

"Your father and mother—both—came from Missouri, didn't they?"

He sighed heavily, and she hung her head. Hawcastle looked toward the open door of the room and touched his son upon the shoulder. When they had reached the door the earl looked back and shook his fist at Pike.

"You haven't heard the last of this, curse you!" he said and disappeared quickly. Lady Creech, who had been in a semi-swooning condition, came suddenly out of her trance and gazed sharply about her.

"Don't mumble your words," she said sharply and rose to her feet. With a withering glance at Pike she turned to Ethel.

"Come, my dear," she said. "This terrible place is not for you. Let us go."

Horace came suddenly to life and closed his drooping jaw. He stepped forward and faced the old lady.

"My sister will remain for a time, Lady Creech," he said. "I will look after her—in the future."

Lady Creech put up her lorgnette and stared at him and with a haughty sniff left the room with the air of a conqueror. Pike gazed after her whimsically.

"There goes the last of the empresses," he said and looked down at his feet.

Twice Ethel essayed to speak, and twice she put out her hand in his direction, and both times she failed. Then, with a choking little sob, she picked up her dress and fairly ran from the room. Horace followed her quickly, and still Pike stood there in an attitude of incomprehension.

The point he had striven for had failed. He had shown this girl the true rottenness of the people she had tried so hard to ally herself with, and the knowledge had failed to move her. His brilliant plan had recoiled upon his own head and had resulted in more firmly implanting a sense of duty in her heart. He saw no way out now. At first it had been a desire—now it had become a duty, and he wondered if he had the right to withhold from her her patrimony.

It was not until he saw a dark figure with a bag in its hand walk quickly down the steps and out through the entrance garden, not until he had heard the creak of carriage springs and the muttered directions and then the crunch of the wheels, that he awoke. He called a passing servant—Mariano, it proved it be—and questioned him.

"Who was that?" he asked.

Mariano bowed deeply.

"It is milor' the Earl of Hawcastle," he replied. "He has gone to keep the appointment he have made some days since at Napoli, it is said."

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

LADY CREECH was out early the next morning. Perhaps she had hope that something might be saved from the wreck and recollected the ancient adage about the early bird. She was seated on the terrace having breakfast and keeping a keen eye on the main entrance when the hopeful Almeric appeared, yawning and inexpressibly bored.

"Mornin', aunt," he said.

"Where's your father, Almeric?" she demanded.

"Flew the bally coop for Naples last night. Seemed to be jolly well upset, you know. Feared this beastly convict chap would take a shot at him or something like that."

Lady Creech snorted.

"He always was a fool. Bah! He should have stayed. Where's the countess?"

"Naples; to look after the governor, I'd say. Went off this morning. Beastly about this convict chap, you know. What's to become of him?"

"I can at least give you some information," the old lady replied. "This grand duke person's obtained for the fellow a pardon by telegraph from St. Petersburg."

"How's the dear Ethel this morning?" asked Almeric when he had digested his astonishment.

"Behaving very peculiarly—outrageously, I might say."

"How?" demanded Almeric, stifling a yawn.

"Shedding tears over this Ivanoff's story. What's more, she has sent that dreadful Pike person to him with assistance."

"Money! By Jove! Good girl! Buying the beggar off to keep him from making a scandal for us! How's that?"

Lady Creech looked at him with something akin to admiration.

"Almeric! How clever of you! Of course she is! Your father will be pleased. What a pity he didn't wait!"

Daniel appeared at the top of the steps and, seeing the pair, came slowly toward them. As he reached the table where they sat he addressed Almeric.

"Your pa seemed in a hurry last night," he said.

Almeric started violently, but Lady Creech arose and, with a haughty glance, swept into the hotel. Pike looked after her and then back to Almeric.

"Oh, yes," the latter answered. "Had to catch a train—the pater had—he's easily worried by trifles, you know."

"Well, you don't worry—not too easy, do you, son?"

"Oh, one finds nothing particular this morning to bother one," the young man replied, yawning. "Nothing at all. Of course Miss Ethel is standing to her promise?"

"Yes, she is," replied Pike grimly, and Almeric went on:

"Ye-es, the governor only thought it best to clear out a bit until we were certain that she manages to draw off this convict chap—what you Americans call 'affixing him,' isn't it?"

Pike lifted a warning hand.

"Don't try to talk United States, son. Just tell me in your own way."

HAD UNION JACK FOR CANADIANS

Fire Chief Tremblay of Montreal Called Committee's Attention to Omission at Grand Rapids Convention—Was Added to Decorations.

15 CANADIANS PRESENT

"Mr. President, we call this an international convention and yet I cannot see one British flag among the decorations of this hall."

With these words Fire Chief Tremblay, of Montreal, commanded the instant atttention of the 600 delegates to the International Convention of Fire Engineers, just concluded at Grand Rapids, Mich.

The hall was in complete silence as the Chief continued with his eyes fixed on Chief Tyson, of Louisville, Ky., who sat anticipative, gavel in hand.

"This is the second day of the convention," continued Chief Tremblay, "and the decorations are exclusively American. I did not say anything yesterday because I thought that the local committee had been too busy receiving and making comfortable their guests to notice the omission. But this is the second day and I think in justice to the representatives from Canada—and we number fifteen—a British flag should be displayed. If it is only one I shall be satisfied."

Applauded the Chief

The speech of the Chief appealed at once to the delegates in the hall, who applauded him generously. As soon as the noise had died down President Tyson said:

"Admitting the justice of your contention I do not see that it is up to this convention to supervise decorations and ensure that they are of such nature that visiting delegates should not feel that they are being neglected. I am sure that it is purely a case of oversight."

"I willingly admit," continued Chief Tremblay, "that you were all too busy yesterday to look into what may seem a detail, but if this is an international convention it should have been seen to that a British flag was not omitted. Knowing Chief Lemoine of this town as well as I do I know it must have been unintentional, and I agree with you, Mr. President, that it was a matter for the committee. Chief Thompson, of Toronto, being on the committee that had some of these arrangements in charge I wonder that he, a Canadian did not see that some emblem representative of our country was not displayed."

President Tyson replied that the matter should be rectified at once and when the afternoon session opened the Union Jack was conspicuously in evidence together with the flag of Ireland.

The first match between teams chosen by Jack Pilling and Pentland, ending in a win for Pentland's team by 8 to 6.

The second match was a game between the Park Street boys and a team of United States tourists, captained by Alderman Dan Eagan, of No. 2 Ward, Rochester, N. Y., and after a very pleasant and exciting game, ended in favour of Park Street by 11 to 5.

Between the two games of baseball the races were run off and below a list of the winners is given:

The school children and friends embarked for the return journey about 5 o'clock, reaching home about 8 o'clock, one and all agreeing that they had had one of the most enjoyable picnics ever held and Pastor Riddiford and his committee are to be congratulated upon the success achieved.

EXPERT OPINION ON THE SEWER NEEDS OF CITY

Main Sewer Big Enough if Surface Water Could be Excluded ----Pumping Machinery is Needed--The Romaine Street Sewer.

Mr. Willis Chipman, the well-known engineer, has made the following report to the Board of Works:

Chairman Board of Works:

Dear Sir,—I beg to submit for your consideration the following interim report upon the sewerage and drainage of the south-western part of the City of Peterborough:

Typography.

The greater part of the area lying south from the General Electric Company's works has a continuous and practically uniform slope to the Otonabee river, although apparently level ground. There is not one well-defined water course in the whole area, the surface water running southerly down Park street side ditches, easterly along the ditches or gutters on the streets at right angles to Park and Lock streets. At the C. G. E. the surface water flows easterly to the river through a timber drain built for the purpose.

Main Sewer.

The main sewer on Lock street, constructed in 1891, was designed to convey the entire domestic sewage of the city to the river by gravity. Examinations were made of this sewer and levels taken under my direction early this season, and I am pleased to be able to say that the sewer is in good condition and that it was built carefully to the grade intended, reports to the contrary, notwithstanding.

It is of ample capacity for the domestic sewage from a city much larger than Peterborough if the surface water be excluded. During high water in the river, however, this main sewer would be flooded for many blocks if nothing were flowing down the sewer, but the flow further gorges it and I am inclined to believe that at times it may run full from Townsend street to its outlet.

An overflow was constructed at Townsend, but this also serves as an inlet in high water. Proper valves and chambers should be provided at this point to control the overflow.

Romaine Street Sewer.

I do not think that the present Romaine street sewer will ever prove satisfactory. This was due to improper laying of the pipes. The sewer was designed all right and would have been satisfactory for at least 11 months of the year.

Pumping Station.

After a careful study of the problem I have reluctantly arrived at the conclusion that the domestic sewerage for that part of the city lying west of the river and south of Rink street cannot be conveyed by gravity to the river, unless cellars and basements be prohibited throughout the greater part of the area.

I am of the opinion that the problem can best be solved by constructing a sewage pumping station as near as possible to the lowest point in the area under consideration. The exact location is not important but I have selected Romaine street at its intersection with the G.T.R. line to Port Hope. It should be possible for the city to acquire a triangular piece of land at this point at a reasonable price.

The Romaine street sewer west of the pumping station should be relaid at such lower depth as will permit all streets within the low area being surveyed by gravity, to the proposed pumping station. Between the railway and the Lock Street main sewer, the Romaine street sewer as laid may be used as an outlet.

Pumping Machinery.

The pumping machinery should be in duplicate, one pump being operated by an electric motor that will start and stop automatically with the fall and rise of the sewage, the other pump to be operated by a gasoline engine, this latter unit to be held in reserve for an emergency.

The power required will not exceed 10 h.p., for the immediate service but I would advise 15 h.p.

The building for housing machinery should be about 16 feet wide by 24 feet long to accommodate the machinery, the basement to be of full size to serve as pump wells. It is quite possible that you may intend to erect in this district, a hose station or other municipal building, if so, it might be combined with the pumping station. The supervision of the plant would then be constantly under a city employee.

Pumping sewers are no novelty in this Province. This year I have designed two sewage pumping stations—one for Brantford, the other for Orillia.

By laying the Romaine street sewer at a sufficient depth, it will serve as an outlet for all sanitary sewers to be constructed between the Electric works in the north and the city limits in the south.

When the area now lying outside the city limits becomes part of the city, another sewage pumping station will be required.

Storm Water.

The timber drain on Rink Street from the General Electric to the river, should in my opinion, be replaced by a proper concrete drain, from which all domestic sewage should be rigidly excluded. At the time of my visit in June, it was in a foul, unsanitary condition.

If the surface drains on Park St., Lock street and Monaghan road be cleaned out and brought to uniform grades, it will not be necessary to construct underground drains or sewers for the removal of the surface water until these streets are well built upon.

Eventually it may be necessary to construct another main sewer on Park street, but it is not now required, and when built it will not drain basements and cellars in the low area, without pumping the sewage into it.

If a large main sewer were laid on Park Street at a sufficient depth to serve as an outlet for all tributary sewers, it would be necessary to pump the entire flow in this sewer at the outlet, and this scheme may be adopted at some future date.

Rink Street Drain.

The timber drain on Park street, north of Rink street, should also be replaced by a concrete or tile drain, and if there be not a proper sanitary tile sewer in this street, one should be laid at the same time as the storm drains.

Costs.

Romaine street pumping station will cost from $10,000 to $12,000, and probably $400 per annum for power and maintenance. Romaine Street and Aylmer street sewer from $3 to $4 per lineal foot. The sanitary sewers $3 per lineal foot. On streets where there is no quicksand the cost should not exceed $2.

New storm drain on Rink street about $3.50 per foot and Park street about $3.00.

GIRLS WERE NOT MISBEHAVING

Were Reported by Elderly Man Who Mistook Them for Gypsies.

A gentleman stated to the Examiner that he had seen a party of Gypsies on Monday night in the southern part of the city on one of the less frequented streets. Although it was after dark still he believed that he was not mistaken. An enquiry has been made and the gentleman's statement is found to be a trifle exaggerated. The party was composed of local young women out for an evening stroll, and away from the rest of the people they were not following the most conventional methods in walking along the street. They were in other words out for a lark. They had pulled each others' hair out of becoming knots and with their hair flowing had probably given the man the idea that they were gypsies. A little fun is relished by the best of people, but this gentleman seems to have thought the girls were over-stepping the propriety boundary when they were only having a little fun which in any other place they would never think of indulging in.

PETERBOROUGH SCHOLARS ARE MORE FORTUNATE

Schools Do Not Open Until September 7.

The pupils of the Peterborough schools are more fortunate than those of some other towns and cities throughout the province. In Ottawa the young generation is bewailing the fact that they must return to school on Sept. 1. Peterborough children will have a week longer and are likely not sorry for that concession.

Nervous People

SALT OF THE EARTH

But when overstrained their highly strung systems give way and depression and suffering is intense.

Money is made these days at the expense of brain and nerve rather than muscular tissues.

The successful men and women are often of the highest strung nervous temperament and active—but with two little reserve force.

A little extra worry and anxiety and may goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigour are regained.

Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise but the blood must also be made rich and red by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Much as they may disagree on some points the best physicians are unanimous in claiming that an abundance of rich, red, life-sustaining nerve invigorating blood is positively necessary for the restoration of the exhausted nervous system.

There is too often little sympathy for the nervous sufferer. When as a matter of fact his sufferings are most intense, being of mind as well as body.

Headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability, pains and cramps are often the lesser, felt because of the depressed spirits and discouragements which come with loss of memory and gloomy forebodings of the future.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion and prostration can rap Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with positive assurance that the benefits derived therefrom will be both thorough and lasting.

There is no reaction from this great nerve-builder because it is not a stimulant but a restorative and reconstructor of the wasted nervous system. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

CRESSMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORES

THE OLD

This week we wish to sell every garment from our Summer stock. We want no leftovers to carry to another season. The odds and ends (most of them are natty) must be cleared out regardless of price. Our object is not to make money on them but to clear the Summer stock completely out. This is to make room for the New Fall Suits, Costumes, Skirts, and Blouses.

THE NEW

We are receiving almost daily shipments from the best Canadian and American makers and they require space. Many lines have been shipped in advance, and will be priced at figures that will pay early buyers to select now. Then, too, the first choice is considered wise; you not only get a first-class assortment, but you are not rushed in making a selection. Wise buyers, buy now.

The New Fall Suits Now On Display !

Not because we (CRESSMAN'S) have any particular style of Costume this season, is it the only new thing. Not by any means would we claim such, for there are hundreds of styles offered to us by the different women's wear firms, and we only select what we think are the nattiest and newest, and no other firm in the city can get or would want duplicates. Our styles are exclusive, each Suit is exclusive.

These notes are taken from our stock as you will see it to-night on display in the windows. Long [mostly 45 inch] semi-fitted Coats, with skirts made with inverted pleats to the knee, giving the mayon age effect, are the leading Fall features, but there are many other pretty styles. The cloths are varied, but principally Broadcloths, Traverse Ottomans, Silk Ottomans, Twilled Serges and Fancy Worsteds, and in colour, the Cataba, Ashes of Roses, Ashes of Old Roses, Wisteria, Amethyst, Payone, Taupe, Green [Olive and Hunter], Navy, also Black, are the favoured shades, with some tones of Red.

Moire Silk and Buttons are taking a strong stand for first place in trimmings, with military braids in a front place among others. The effects are very striking and will be greeted with favour by the dressers who know. See our display to-night.

AGED LADY HAS A WALK OF ELEVEN MILES

Fraserville, Aug. 24.—An old lady, who gave her name as Mrs. Huggins, came to the village the other morning in search of her cow, which strayed away some days ago and came to the farm of Mr. Cunningham here, where it was shut in till its owner could be located.

The feeble, though smart, old lady, stated that she had started out early in the morning and walked eleven miles before learning of her cow's whereabouts. She also stated that she was seventy-three years of age.

She stayed but a few minutes in the village and then started off with her cow on the return trip.

Her home is east of Centreville.

MOST SUCCESSFUL REGATTA WAS HELD AT VIAMEDE

Special to The Examiner.

Viamede, Aug. 25.—On Saturday evening, after tea, a small regatta was held in front of the dock at Viamede, the events, though few in number were most exciting and the excitement was intense. Miss Chenowith and Mr. Lech were declared winners of the tandem canoe race after a very close race with Miss Hudspeth and Mr. Teskey.

Clifford Cramer won the boys' single skiff. At the concert which followed the regatta, the prizes were presented to the winners by Mr. J. R. Sullivan, the chairman. The programme of the concert was as follows:

Piano Solo—Miss M. Bell.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Passmore.
Recitation—Miss G. Miller.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Passmore.
Dance—Miss Sternberg.
Piano Solo—Mrs. Silliman.

After the programme dancing began and continued till eleven o'clock. The evening was a most enjoyable one and was much enjoyed by all present.

On Sunday morning five young ladies took a long walk in the country intending to "loop the loop." At Holy Trinity Church they kept on the Burleigh road instead of turning toward the lake and only discovered their mistake when they were several miles on the Burleigh road. They were all tired, but otherwise none the worse of their experience.

The service on Sunday evening was taken by Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, Diocesan Evangelist. Mr. R. S. Soanes took charge of the music in an able manner. The service was a fine one and every one enjoyed it. Mrs. Passmore kindly sung a solo which was a great treat for all.

Messrs. Cramer, Kimball, Hibbard, Farragher, King and Dr. Beis have had splendid luck fishing this week.

Among the guests registered at Viamede during the last week are:

Mr. and Mrs. H. Edington, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Passmore, Miss Louise Passmore, Mr. R.S. Soanes, Miss Elsie Waller and Miss Katherine O'Neill, Toronto; Mrs. E. F. WHITTON — SYMONDS. — On Saturday, August 21, 1909, Francis Corbett Whitton, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Whitton, of Hamilton, Ont., to H. Greta L. Symonds, second daughter of Rev. H. and Mrs. Symonds, of Montreal.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

From enquiries that have been made of the Peterborough County representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Mr. H. C. Duff, at Norwood, it would seem that many are contemplating giving up the fight against the more obnoxious weeds, such as perennial sow thistle, wild mustard and bladder campion. These weeds are not beyond successful control. All can be readily eradicated, if attacked at their weakest points. Information as to the best methods of dealing with these weed pests can be had by calling at, or writing to, the office of the Department of Agriculture at Norwood.

Underdrainage is one of the live problems of many farms in Peterborough County. Inferior crops, drowned out crops and weeds are inseparable from land in need of draining. Part of the work of the Peterborough County representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture located at Norwood, is to render assistance in planning drainage systems, taking levels, estimating cost, size of tile and giving any general information concerning drainage to those who ask for it. Those in need of drainage work should get in touch with Mr. H. C. Duff, the agricultural specialist at Norwood, whose duty and privilege it is to give assistance in just such matters.

Many are deterred from underdrainage by lack of funds. It should be encouraging to such to learn that they can borrow money from the Government through the Municipal Council at the nominal rate of 4 per cent. for drainage purposes, the loan to be repaid in 20 years on the instalment plan. There is every reason to believe that the borrowers would receive their money back in increased returns long before they would be required to repay the loan to the Council. As a matter of fact, investments in underdrainage rarely fail to return at least 30 per cent. per annum—high interest to be sure, but quite possible for all those in need of underdraining on their farms. Write the Peterborough County representative of the Department of Agriculture, Mr. H. C. Duff for literature and information on drainage work.

Much interest is being taken in the class in agriculture now being organized in connection with the high school at Norwood. We have it from the agricultural specialist, Mr. H. C. Duff, that already a goodly number have signified their intention of taking advantage of the instruction in agriculture to be given in the course offered. Those interested in boys who will make farming their occupation should communicate with Mr. Duff with a view to having these boys enrolled in the class to be started September 1st.

OBITUARY.

MRS. DAVIDSON

Mrs. Davidson, widow of the late Canon Davidson, formerly of Colborne, died at her residence, 30 Charles street, yesterday morning. Mrs. Davidson was a prominent member of the Church of England Women's Auxiliary and an officer of the Toronto Diocesan Board, and was greatly beloved by all who knew her. She was the third daughter of Captain George Cheyne, R. N., and a lineal descendant of Nicholas Ferrar, the father of the Nicholas Ferrar of Little Gidding fame. In her early life, as the wife of a missionary, she was always most active in parochial work, and after the sudden death of her husband, which occurred during a convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Toronto in 1892, Mrs. Davidson came to live in this city. She had been the President of St. Luke's branch of the Women's Auxiliary for many years, and had frequently been elected a delegate from the diocese to the meetings of the General Board. Of a family of eight children, the following seven survive her—namely: Rev. Canon Davidson, rector, of Peterborough; Nicholas Ferrar Davidson, K.C., of Toronto, formerly President of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; William Edward Davidson, of Toronto; Mrs. Ketchum, of Cobourg; Mrs. Gossage, Orillia; Mrs. H. Loosemore and Mrs. Harry C. Rae, of Toronto. Although 77 years of age, Mrs. Davidson was up to the time of her death a devoted and enthusiastic worker in the missionary cause, the literature department being her special interest.

The funeral service will be held in St. Luke's Church at 7:30 on Thursday morning, and the interment will be in Colborne. The members of the Women's Auxiliary in the city will assemble in the guild room of the church at 7:20 and will attend the funeral service in a body.—Globe.

MRS. RICHARD DARLING

A very well known resident of the district passed away on the 16th inst. when Katharine M. Ferguson, wife of the late Richard Darling, of Dummer, died after a long illness. The deceased was born in Perth in the year 1830 and soon after the family removed to Dummer, where she had resided ever since. She was married to her late husband in Peterborough in 1852 and had seven children, six of whom are left to mourn her loss. The surviving children are Mrs. Mark Edwards, of Warsaw; Mrs. John Hunter, and Mrs. Robt. Lennox, of Lakefield; Frank Darling, Peterborough; John Darling, Norwood, and Alex. Darling, residing on the Homestead in Dummer. The other son, William James Darling, was killed by a falling tree in 1888.

For the last seven years the deceased had lived with her youngest son. This spring she showed signs of failing and for the past three months had been confined to her bed peacefully passing away on August 16, at the ripe old age of seventy-nine years and seven months.

The funeral took place on the 18th of August, conducted by Rev. Dr. Marvin, of Warsaw, and was very largely attended, showing the respect in which she was held by her many acquaintances.

Among the many floral tributes was a beautiful wreath of flowers from her children inscribed "Mother," wreath and bouquet from Mrs. Mark Edwards, a wreath from her niece, Mrs. Levi Payne, a pillow of flowers from Mrs. M. E. Crowe, and a bouquet from Mr. Lazarus Payne.

MAUD E. LOUISE ROBERTS

Particularly sad is the death of Miss Maud E. Louise Roberts, who passed away at the residence of her father, Mr. W. H. Roberts, 496 Stewart street, shortly after dinner today. This is the third in this family within the past six months, the late Miss Roberts' brother, having passed away only a short time ago.

The late Miss Roberts was a young lady of many estimable qualities and the news of her demise will be received with the profoundest regret. She was a teacher in St. John's Sunday School and was an earnest and consistent member of that church.

Her parents, one sister, Miss Ethel, and three brothers, Messrs. Bert, Will and Harry are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place on Friday at 2 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

WAS PUT OFF THE LINDSAY TRAIN

William Murphy did not have the two dollars to pay his fine for being drunk, and had to go up on the hill for ten days. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning and pleaded guilty to having been the worse of liquor. He said that he belonged to Barrie. He was put off the Lindsay train. He pleaded hard to be given a chance to pay his fine but His Worship couldn't see it that way.

Starvation Treatment a Failure

The Sensible Cure for Indigestion is "Little Digesters"

Probably because the taking of food causes such intense discomfort, many dyspeptics think that by abstaining from this and that—practically starving themselves—they can cure the trouble.

Of course, where Indigestion is caused by sheer gluttony, cutting down the food would no doubt do good. But in most cases Indigestion is caused, not by overeating, but by lack of physical exercise, and consequent lack of vigor in the organs of digestion. Partial starvation still further impairs the bodily vigor, and makes the trouble worse.

The dyspeptic needs plenty of good, wholesome food. He can eat it, and DIGEST IT, TOO, if he takes a "Little Digester" after each meal. "Little Digesters" help the weakened stomach to do properly that which it cannot do alone—digest and assimilate the food needed to build up the system.

MAY BE ANN ODELIA.

New York Priestess Thought to Be Mme. Diss de Bar.

Windsor, Aug. 25.—The "Flying Rollers" here, the remnant of what was a flourishing colony, are agog over the operations of a self-styled occult priestess, who is holding forth in New York, and claiming to furnish the long sought Elixir of Life by which its devotees may live forever.

She is thought to be none other than "Mother Elinor," or Ann Odelia Diss De Bar, who for a time assumed charge of the Flying Rollers here. She is aided, too, by a young man she calls David, whose description is like that of David McKay, with whom the priestess eloped from here two or three years ago.

Thirteen women and four men attended her first meeting, according to a writer in a New York newspaper. On a throne, under an artificial rubber plant, they found a large women dressed in silk robes, who in a speech informed the flock that the cardinal dogma of the faith was that any who followed its teachings might live forever.

"Mother Elinor" had a sensational career. She left New Orelans some years ago with Theodore Jackson, with whom she went to England and was sentenced to seven years for teaching immoral living. In the Old Cotintry she came in contact with "Prince Michael," leader of the Flying Rollers, and came to Windsor to become queen of the colony here, but her exposure followed soon after, and she disappeared.

Explosion Destroys Hotel.

Elmira, N.Y., Au. 25.—The police are investigating the origin of an explosion and fire which completely destroyed the Olympic Hotel, on West Water street, in this city, and caused the death of Mrs. E. W. Roby yesterday morning. A policeman on his rounds tried the door of the hotel just before the explosion and found them locked as usual. He had proceeded only half a block when there was a terrific report and the rear portion of the building was blown into the Chemung River.

Mrs. Roby was sleeping on the second floor of a frame building adjoining the hotel. The force of the explosion tore a hole 12 feet long and 20 inches wide through the ceiling of her room near her bed, and the shock threw her from the bed to the floor. She had been suffering from heart trouble and the shock killed her.

A Real Patriot.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—A humorous turn was given to the work of the civic Royal Commission, when Mr. Rodolphe Brunet, the famous middleman for the distribution of road contracts, came into the limelight on the witness stand. Mr. Brunet described his work as a patriotic triumph for the French-Canadians, as opposed to their English-speaking fellow-citizens.

Despite his patriotism, however, Mr. Brunet was compelled to admit that he had been quite impartial, and accepted commissions from English contractors who wanted to get their tenders approved by the council as readily as he had taken the same from his own friends of the French-Canadian persuasion. He will probably [illegible]

Gramophone Can't Be Stoped by Law.

Kingston, Aug. 25.—Robt. Lipman, owner of the Princess Theatre, was in court yesterday for infraction of civic ordinance recently for running his gramophone to the disturbance of citizens. The council thought it had the matter clinched, but the magistrate after hearing the evidence decided that the noise was not unusual and dismissed the complaint. He said the whistling by steamers in the harbor might be disturbing, but it was not unusual, and the same applied to gramophones.

"Look Out For That Little Cold"

The wise physican says "cure it before it grows large and dangerous. To-day is the time to commence treatment." The remedy, the best one, which doctors say surpasses all others, is "Nerviline." Rub it on the chest and throat, use it as a gargle, and then take 20 drops in hot water—Cold will disappear.

"Last spring I caught a severe cold," writes George V. Smart, of Gibson P.O. "Every cough rasped my throat, which became perfectly raw. When almost in desperation I was advised to try Nerviline. I rubbed it on and used it as a gargle. Immediate relief followed. For breaking up colds it's the great remedy of to-day.

Use "Nerviline" It Cures Colds

Flower of Imperial Scientists Gather in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 25.—This morning saw the opening of the Convention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

The notables in the realm of learning of the Empire poured into the city all yesterday, until last night it was difficult to secure quarters at any of the prominent hotels.

Thomson, will give his inaugural address. There will also be short addresses of welcome by Premier Roblin and Mayor Evans.

A large contingent of American guests of the British scientists, arrived yesterday to take part in the deliberations.

That the meeting of the Association will be of great practical value to the West and Canada is shown by the action of Rev. Dr. Grey, warden of a large college at Berkshire, England. He has purchased 2,000 acres of land of his own at Fish Creek, to the southwest of Calgary. Here he will establish an up-to-date and thoroughly equipped farming school, to which he can send the boys direct.

With this arrangement, he is certain that a large number of boys will be willing to come, and he will make preliminary arrangements for the first contingent on his arrival home. Dr. Grey will put an experienced man in charge of the farm.

French-Canadian Congress Postponed.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The French-Canadian Educational Congress, which was to have been held in Ottawa next month, has been postponed till some time in November. Over 400 delegates are expected in the city for the Congress and some very prominent figures in French-Canadian political, professional and religious circles will attend.

Strathcona at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—Last night the city was en fete and the population marched along the streets taken by Lord Strathcona. Not since Royalty visited Winnipeg has so much interest been manifested in any one person. Every notability in town [illegible] the depot to greet the High Commissioner, and a guard of honor and escort was furnished by the Strathcona Horse, late R.C.M.R.S. Brief greetings were voiced by Lieut.-Governor Sir D. McMillan, Mayor [illegible] several members of the Provincial Cabinet, including Premier Roblin.

Strathcona expressed gratification at again visiting his former home and inspected the cadets outside the depot with the Kilted Boys' Band. Some four thousand took part in a torch-light procession, which passed through decorated streets to Government House, where the High Commissioner is the guest of the Lieutenant-Governor. At the Government House a number of old-timers greeted Strathcona.

Steamer Collingwood Rammed.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 25.—The big steamer Collingwood, owned by the Farrar Transportation Co., of Collingwood, Ont., was rammed and sunk in a collision on the river here last night with the steamer George L. Craig. The crew, numbering 23 hands, succeeded in reaching the shore safely.

The Collingwood, immediately after the collision, was headed for the American side, but filled rapidly from a big hole in her starboard side amidships, and sank in 40 feet of water about 100 yards from the bank.

Bugproof Potato Found.

Montague, Mass., Aug. 25.—The Rev. Amos N. Somers, a Unitarian minister here, stated yesterday that he has succeeded in growing a "bug-proof" potato. He said:

"The vines of my potatoes have a peculiar odor, which is offensive to the potato bug, for it never goes near them. I have taken bugs from plants of the usual type in the next row in my potato patch, and put them in my new vines, and in half an hour I can't find one."

Hid Peanuts Under Bananas.

Windsor, Aug. 25.—Joseph Zakoor, a Syrian, tried to bring a 100-lb sack of peanuts into Windsor yesterday without paying duty. He came over from Detroit with a wagonload of bananas and in the bottom of the wagon, all covered up, were the peanuts. Zakoor declared to the customs officers that he had nothing but bananas, so when a search revealed the goobers, he was compelled to pay a double duty.

"Suicide Seeker" May Die.

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 25.—Burt Williams, billed on Park Park Vaudeville Circuit as the "Suicide Seeker," was probably fatally injured at Waukesha Beach. Williams leaps the gap on roller skates, turning a backward somersault into the lake. He struck his head on the chute, sustaining a fracture of the skull.

Mission Steamer Lost.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—The loss of the missionary steamer Hiram Bingham and the death of her master, Captain Alfred C. Walkup, were reported in a cablegram from Sydney, N.S.W., received by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missionaries yesterday.

Easterner Wins.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—Splendid weather favored the marksmen at Rockcliffe for the second day of the D. R. A. shooting.

The only match completed yesterday was the Dominion of Canada match, 600 and 800 yards. Lieut. Sutherland, of the 78th, Truro, N.S., regiment, won the Patterson Cup and $30 with a score of 69.

Phenomenal scoring was done yesterday by a Toronto man, Sgt.-Major Dymond. He secred 136 out of a possible 140 in shooting at the 200, 500, 600 and 800 yards.

At the "kickers" meeting last night Major Davidson of Quebec said that the bullets used had caused rifles to become coated to such an extent with copper, that a very large number had practically been put out of action. This, he said, would be a serious matter in time of war. Major McRobbie, of St. John, agreed, and instanced cases in the Maritime Provinces where they had trouble with British ammunition.

Freight Train Derailed.

New Glasgow, Aug. 24.—Another freight train was wrecked near New Glasgow yesterday morning. Fourteen cars were derailed and four rolled down a bank and were badly damaged. The train was an eastbound special freight. No one was injured.

CHANCE FOR SPEED MERCHANTS OF CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Mr. Harry Neil Offers a Splendid Prize for the Player Making the Best Time Around the Bases---All The Teams Will be Represented by Their Fastest Men.

Here is a chance for the fast men of the City Baseball League.

Mr. Harry Neil has offered a splendid prize for the man making the fastest time around the bases, and the contest will likely take place on Saturday before the West End-T. A. S. game, although this has not yet been definitely decided. The contest will be open to any player who is eligible to play in the City League, the only stipulation being that the contestants may wear their regular uniform including ball shoes.

There are some speedy men in the City League, and the contest will arouse a lot of excitement. All four teams will be represented by their fastest runners, and there will be keen rivalry.

WEST ENDS CONFIDENT OF BEATING T. A. S. ON SATURDAY

The Oldham-Davidson Combination Will Have All Their Old Stars Back in the Game and Figure on Annexing Big End of the Score---Looks Like an Even Money Battle.

The West End-T. A. S. game on Saturday is attracting the attention of the fans and the indications point to another bumper house, when the teams get going, at 3 o'clock, at Riverside Park. Dan McCabe has consented to handle the indicator, so that there can be no kicking over the umpiring. Both teams will be strong with the best lineups of the season in action, and they both expect to win. The West Ends are especially proud and say that there will be nothing to it but an extra series of games to decide the championship. They have been working out faithfully, and are in tip-top shape to get after the Abstainers. All the men who have been away on their holidays are back and their presence will bring the team back into its early season form. The T. A. S. know what they have before them and therefore are not taking any chances. They are keeping in shape with nightly practises and will send out the same team that so decisively defeated Park Street last week. It should be some game looking at it from this far away.

HAMILTON TIGERS WILL BE STRONG IN SPITE OF LOSSES

Hamilton, Aug. 24.—Art Turner will not play with the Tigers this year as was expected. He will attend Osgoode Hall at Toronto, and it is likely that he will turn out with the Argos. Turner captained Queen's University team in the Intercollegiate series last year, and was one of the stars of the team.

All of the strong Tiger wing men of last year with the exception of Isbister and Marriott have as much as announced that they will turn out again this year. Husky Craig will be found in the scrimmage again, but two new men will have to be selected as McCarthy states that he is positively through with Rugby.

With several vacancies to fill on the senior Tiger team, the intermediates will be fighting for the places. Geo. Awrey, who captained the intermediates last year, looks like the man to take Ballard's place at quarter, and with Kid Smith, Dutch Burton and other good talent to select from the back division should be as strong as ever.

LADIES ARE INVITED BY CITY LEAGUE TO GAMES AT RIVERSIDE

The entire privileges of the Riverside Park are extended to the ladies of the city during the remaining games of the city league. The attendance last Saturday was most encouraging and shows that the feminine nature can appreciate sport as well as a new dress or a new hat. The presence of the ladies is an added incentive to the players who would rather be fanned ten times when there are no ladies present than once when the grandstand is graced by their presence. In order to reserve the stand to a certain extent for the ladies a charge of ten cents will be placed on gentlemen. The game itself should be a warm contest. The West Ends have twice met the T. A. S., and on each occasion they gave them a stiff argument. The West Ends will be strong on this appearance, and if they do not put a kink in the Abstainers' aspirations for the silverware there will be more than one guess go wrong.

ROOTED HIMSELF TO DEATH AT GAME

Excitement at Detroit Baseball Game Proved Fatal for Young Sherbrooke Fan.

Detroit, Aug. 25.—Arnold Brown, 22, who came to Detroit a few weeks ago from his home in Sherbrooke, Que., to visit friends, died at Harper Hospital yesterday, as a result of too much excitement over a game of baseball between the Detroit and Washington teams at Bennett Park.

The young man, who was an ardent "fan," was seized with a violent hemorrhage, after attending a couple Saturday games and his death, the physicians say, can only be ascribed to the vigorous manner in which he used his lungs in "rooting" for the home team thus bringing on the attack. Up to within a few moments of his death his interest in the national game was unabated and he continued to inquire eagerly for baseball scores.

PARK STREET BALL TEAM DEFEAT THE VISITORS

Rochester Aggregation at Jubilee Point Taken Into Camp.

One of the features of the annual excursion of Park St. Baptist Church Sunday School to Jubilee Point yesterday was a ball game between the picnickers and a picked aggregation composed of the boarders at the Point. Previous to this game the married men and single men of Park St. played a tie game. Rev. Mr. Riddiford on the slab for the benedicts shot everything that goes by the word of elusive in speaking of shoots, but the "bachs" were there with the stick and kept alongside their misguided opponents. The other game was full of excitement and Ald. Dan Eagan, Rochester, who captained the outlay nine that elected to honour Jubilee Point, fell far and hard from grace, the Park Streets putting it over his misfits to the tune of 11 to 5. Fishing is Dan's game. He may have seen a few ball games, but the spectators of yesterday's fray have their doubts as to whether he ever had a ball in his hand before. His team was composed largely of American visitors, many of whom were classy enough, but were discouraged by the poor work of their acting manager. The Park Streets' lined up as follows: Jim Pilling p, Pentland c, Jack Pilling 1b, Roddy 2b, Ted Pilling 3b, F. Barrie ss, Alex. Haddow rf, J. Tranter lf, Brown cf. Umpire Rev. W. C. Rdidiford.

BOX OF CIGARS FOR NEXT HOME RUN

May Add to the Interest in Remaining City League Games.

As an incentive to the City League players the Vice President and Secretary-Treasurer have offered a box of cigars to the player who, in a league game, bats out the first home run. There have not been many straight flushes in the league this year, although the interest for the box donated by Mr. Talbot, kept up the interest until Yeb Flaherty nearly lost a ball thrown by Hickey of the Strathconas, with the bases full.

THE VILLAGE CATCHER.

Behind the erstwhile willow tree
The village catcher squats,
A cross and hostile man is he,
With fingers tied in knots.
Festooned about two mammoth palms
As big as corner lots.

His neck is short, and thin and red,
His face is black with tan
He tears his mussle from his head
And kicks where'er he can.
And shakes his fist at all the world,
For he fears not any man.

The merchant kings with eager grins
Come flocking by the score,
To see him rake the wide one in
And wave his arms and roar,
And hear his pungent chaff which flies
Like sparks from the furnace door.

He goes on Sunday to the park
And sits among the boys
Upon the bench with visage dark
And loud infernal noise.
And when the umpire dodges rocks
It makes his heart rejoice.

Broiling, rejoicing, thundering
On through the game he goes
Each inning sees some reason new
To rise upon his toes,
And put it o'er the other crew
By means each player knows.

Thanks, thanks, to thee, my worthy friend,
For the lesson thou has taught,
Turn loose your tongue to join the strife,
When battles must be fought.
Hot air will do as much in life
As muscle, nerve or thought.
—Omaha World-Herald.

BASEBALL

The Old Timers are again reminded of the practice at Riverside Park this evening at 6 o'clock sharp. Get busy!

Sporting Comment

The Torontos took two games from Jack Ryan's Jersey City team yesterday, thereby stopping the oncoming rush of the Skeeters with a sudden jolt. It is a very respectable brand of ball that the Leafs are handing out just now.

The victory of the Canadian cricketers in the International match is very gratifying. The Canucks were victorious by 143 runs, making the second victory for the Maple Leafs since the annual match was inaugurated.

With West Ends and Strathconas both claiming that they will beat the T.A.S. it begins to look as if the path of the Abstainers to the championship is not going to be such a primrose one after all. For both the teams have played good ball this season and the Straths have so far broken even with the leaders, winning the last game played in clever fashion.

Rugby will flourish in Peterborough this year. The players are enthusiastic and there will be more material than ever from the outlook now. Allan Campbell, who starred at quarter back for the T.A.A.C. senior O.R.F.U. champions last season, is in the city and may be here for the Rugby season. He will be of great assistance to the team.

SHE WOULD BE A REPORTER

By Allen P. Ames

"If I were a man," declared Molly with intense conviction, "I'd be a reporter and nothing else. Billy, aren't you glad you're poor?"

"Well, I suppose one could be a reporter and have money, too," suggested Billy, "although I never heard of one. It isn't all beer and skittles, though. Evans, the city editor, told me to-day he wasn't satisfied, and that if I didn't make good on this Kilmartyn assignment, he wouldn't answer for what would happen."

"Do you mean Lord Kilmartyn?" asked Miss Benson.

"Yes. The one they say is following an American heiress everybody is guessing about. Do you know him?"

"We met him last year in Scotland," replied Molly, looking the other way. "What do you mean by 'making good' with him?"

"Mainly finding out the name of the girl," said Billy.

Then they talked of other things.

His Lordship arrived on schedule time and proved the same enigma the London correspondents had found him. Billy Anderson, like the others, went back to his office and wrote half a column of mildly entertaining stuff about the titled Englishman's appearance and peculiarities; then watched anxiously for the rival papers next morning to find if he had been "scooped." He had not. No paper contained anything more than a wild guess about the identity of the young lady.

It was the next afternoon when Anderson sent his card up to Kilmartyn's suite. It was a vain hope; but to his intense surprise he was admitted.

"You may be surprised at what I am about to tell you," the Englishman said to the reporter. "But you are vouched for by a mutual friend in whom I have the utmost confidence. I learn from her that it will be of great personal value to you if your paper is able to make the first announcement of our engagement. Am I right?"

"You certainly are," said Billy. "But who, please, is the kindly lady?"

"An old friend of your family, I understand—Miss Mary Benson."

"What!" You're going to marry Mo"—stuttered Billy. "You authorise me to announce your engagement to Miss Benson?"

Then the reporter's instinct asserted itself, and although all but the newspaper lobe of his brain was numb with the shock he listened while the Englishman gave him the details. Still in a daze, he went back to his desk, wrote the "story" and turned it in to Evans. For once this dignitary was jarred out of his sarcastic calm. "It's the best stuff ever," he cried.

Then Billy went out. He wanted air and time to think. Half an hour later he came to himself with a start to find himself on the uptown block where the future lady Kilmartyn resided.

There was Molly's house, and, yes, there was Molly herself coming down the front steps.

Heartsick at the sight of her beauty and what it meant to him now it was lost, he was about to turn down a side street, when she beckoned. Of course there was nothing to do but join her and walk by her side.

She did not keep him long in suspense. "Did he tell you?" she asked.

"Yes."

"And what did that bear of a city editor say?"

"Oh, he was delighted. And of course I am too. I congratulate you, Miss Benson. That is, of course—I congratulate his Lordship."

"It will be a fine 'scoop,'" won't it? And there'll be another for you when it is broken off."

"Broken—what?" gasped Billy.

"I said 'broken off,'" replied Miss Benson calmly. "Goodness, Billy, you don't suppose I really mean to marry him? I just wanted to give you a chance to 'make good' as you call it, with your paper."

THE TOURIST IRON A GREAT CONVENIENCE

The Collier-Cunningham Co., with their usual enterprise and progressiveness, have placed a new electric iron on the market, known as the "tourist iron". This is an iron, only four pounds in weight, and is designed to meet the needs of the commercial traveller or the tourist. The Company realize that the travelling public must keep their clothes clean and properly pressed. Most hotels are now fitted with electricity, and it is very convenient for a traveller to use the iron. In this way he can be his own valet, and can keep his clothes neat and dressy.

A very unique feature is that the iron is fitted with a removable handle and can be packed into a very small space in a trunk or grip.

THE OPENING DAY FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

At the last session of the Ontario Legislature an act was passed fixing the first Tuesday in September as the opening day for High Schools and Collegiate Institutes throughout the Province. This year the opening day will, therefore, be Tuesday, September 7th.

In towns and cities it has been found impossible to get the students to attend either High or Public schools before Labour Day, which accounts for the act.

In Peterborough the Public schools reopen on the same date as the Collegiate Institute.

Salt Rheum and all eczematous conditions of the skin are cured by the use of Miller's Compound Iron Pills.

MAY GIVE ADDRESS IN THIS CITY

Alderman Turner, the Chairman of the Reception Committee, has received a communication from Toronto to the effect that Mr. Wm. Henry, the founder and Secretary of the Royal Life Saving Society of England, is at present at Temagami, but that he will shortly write as to whether it is possible for him to give an address in Peterborough on the objects of the Society.

Alderman Gillespie, President of the Board of Trade, has, with his confreres on the Board, entered most heartily into the project. As was pointed out a short time ago, in these columns, Mr. Henry's object in coming to this country is to form local branches of the Society.

We have much to gain by taking a live interest in such a question, and it is sincerely to be hoped that Mr. Henry will be enabled to include Peterborough in his itineraty.

Some curiosity has been aroused in the past few days by a secret invention which one of the villagers has been working on.

Some of the villagers expressed their opinion that, it might possibly be an aeroplane, and have been daily watching to see the bird soaring; but this vague idea may be punished, for the correspondent had an interview with the inventor, who stated that it was the latest invention of a "Locomokive" (locomotive).

"THE POWER OF LOVE"

This a most powerful Drama and one of the best stories yet seen in a motion picture show. It depicts the love of a lover for his sweetheart and the love of a sweetheart for her lover, and the intense love of the father for his daughter, that he would not sacrifice to another. The ending is most happy as "Sunshine Follows Rain."

"HIS OWN SON"

A splendid and most interesting drama, showing how an innocent man is sentenced to penitentiary for stealing, how his accuser then adopts the prisoner's only child, and then seven years later the prisoner escapes and saves his own little son from a band of Gypsies. It is a beautiful story.

PRACTICE AT SCHOOL

Sir Wilfrid Pays High Compliment to the Gallant Colonel's Work in Behalf of the Militia—Royals of Quebec Carry Off Borden and Caron Prizes in Rifle Matches—Weather Is Fine.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—The annual luncheon give by the president, Col. Sam Hughes, was a most interesting function at the D. R. A. yesterday. Among those present were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. Frank Oliver, and Col. John Barlow, of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in reply to a graceful tribute from Col. Hughes, said that while he was a man of peace, he thought the best way to prevent war was to be prepared for it. The Premier proposed the health of Col. Hughes.

"I have not always been able to agree with him," said Sir Wilfrid, "but I will say that I believe no man in his day and generation has done more for the militia of Canada than he has done."

The gallant colonel's reply was that he and the members of the D. R. A. executive believed in keeping their powder dry.

Hon. Frank Oliver congratulated the D. R. A. on the fact that for the first time on record all of the nine provinces were represented.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux intimated that he favored teaching rifle shooting in the public schools, and was not afraid to say so in his own province.

Good conditions favored the D.R.A. marksmen at Rockcliffe Ranges.

The Caron Cup match is for tyro teams, and the competitors showed up this year far better than usual. This challenge cup was donated by the late Hon. Sir A. P. Caron, and there is $30 added by the D. R. A. The cup goes to the team making the highest aggregate score at 500 and 600 yards only in the Tyro, Bankers', MacDougall and Dominion matches. The winners were announced yesterday morning as follows:

Cup and $20, 8th Royal Rifles, Quebec (first team), aggregating 608 points with Corp. S. Murphy 119, Corp. P. Fitzpatrick 120, Pte. G. B. Todd 120, Pte. A. McCusker 127, Sgt. M. Aunn 120,; $10, 8th Royal Rifles (second team), total of 597, with Pte. Prendergast 116, Sgt. C. Carey 120, Captain Kiely 120, Pte. Carrington 123, Corp. Slater 116; the 43rd D. C. O. R., Ottawa (first team), with 568 points, and the 3rd Vics., Montreal, with 562. the 90th, Winnipeg, with 560, and the 13th, Hamilton, with 572, showed up well.

Corp. Rutherford, of the Q. O. R., Toronto, made a possible in the "running man" competition Tuesday, scoring 25. This is something seldom done in this competition. He won the daily prize of $5. F. P. Lushinger, of the 23rd Regiment, came second with 21 points.

For six men from any military unit 600 and 800 yards, ten shots for each man:

Coates Cup and $60—13th Regiment, (Hamilton), Capt. Robertson 90; Sgt. Major Huggins 87; Lieut. Sgt. T. Mitchell 95; Col. Sgt. Freeborn 92; Sgt. Freeman 90; Pte. Armstrong 93—548.

$40—78th (Truro), 548.
$30—90th (Winnipeg), 544.

THE ELECTION PROTEST IN WEST PETERBOROUGH

Mr. Burnham's Refusal To Be Examined Results in Application To Postpone Trial.

A notice was served this morning that a motion would be made on behalf of the Hon. J. R. Stratton before the Hon. Mr. Justice McMahon and the Hon. Mr. Justice Magee, the judges appointed for the trial of the petition in the West Peterborough Protest at Osgoode Hall, Toronto on Thursday, the 2nd day of September next, for an order that the trial of the petition and cross petition be postponed until such time and place as the judges shall deem proper under the circumstances upon the following among other grounds,—

That Mr. J. H. Burnham refused to answer certain questions that were asked him on his examination on the 29th of June last, and that he also failed to produce on such examination certain books, papers, vouchers and receipts showing the expenditure of his legitimate expenses and the expenditure of other moneys and such examination was adjourned to the 6th day of July to enable Mr. Burnham to produce his cheques and papers.

That Mr. Burnham refused to submit to examination and produce his documents and papers on the 6th of July last, on the ground that he claimed that July and August were legal holidays and that he was not bound to do so notwithstanding that it was expressly pointed out that it would prejudice Mr. Stratton in his preparation for the trial of the petition on the 7th of September.

A motion was thereupon immediately made on behalf of Mr. Stratton to compel Mr. Burnham to attend upon his examination, answer the questions and produce his books and documents and this motion was returnable at Osgoode Hall, on the 13th of July last.

Upon the hearing of this motion Mr. Burnham's solicitors applied for an adjournment thereof until the 20th of July last, and Mr. Stratton's solicitors opposed such adjournment on the grounds that if he could not get Mr. Burnham examined it would prejudice a fair trial of the motion. The motion was nevertheless adjourned.

Upon the hearing of the adjourned motion Mr. Burnham's solicitors again applied for a further adjournment until the 23rd of July last, which application was opposed by Mr. Stratton's solicitors. The further adjournment was granted.

Again upon the hearing of the adjourned motion on the 23rd of July last, Mr. Burnham's solicitors again applied for a further enlargement until July 28th last, which adjournment was again opposed by Mr. Stratton's solicitors upon the ground that if the trial were to take place on the 7th of September, these constant enlargements would prejudice a fair trial of the action and that the granting of these requests would result in the adjournment of the trial.

Finally the motion was heard on the 26th of July, argument took place before the Hon. Mr. Justice Magee and he reserved judgment, and has not yet delivered judgment.

On or about the 6th of July last, a notice of motion was made returnable on the 13th of July at Osgoode Hall, on behalf of Mr. Stratton, to compel Mr. Burnham to furnish better particulars of the time and place, when and where, he alleges that the violations of the Election Act took place, and to give the names of the parties that he charges so that they would be in a position to meet them at the trial, and would have an opportunity to subpoena their witnesses to answer the charges, and that the particulars furnished by Mr. Burnham were vague and indefinite, and if better particulars could not be given they should be struck out altogether.

That upon the hearing of this motion for better particulars on the 13th of July Mr. Burnham's solicitors applied for an adjournment thereof to the 20th of July, and Mr. Stratton's solicitors opposed the adjournment upon the ground that if it were granted he would not have time to investigate the charges before the date fixed for the trial of the petition on the 7th of September. The enlargement, at Mr. Burnham's request, was granted.

That upon the hearing of this adjourned motion for better particulars on the 20th of July, Mr. Burnham's solicitors again applied for a further enlargement until the 23rd of July, which adjournment was again opposed by Mr. Stratton's solicitors.

Finally the motion for better particulars was heard at Osgoode Hall before the Hon. Mr. Justice Magee on the 23rd of July and judgment was reserved, and judgment has not yet been delivered.

That every adjournment of these two motions has been made at the request of Mr. Burnham and his Solicitors and have been vigorously opposed by Mr. Stratton and his Solicitors, and, hence Mr. Stratton says that under the circumstances and in view of the number of charges that are made against him and others in the indefinite particulars furnished it is impossible to prepare for the trial of the petition on the 7th of September without having a full and complete examination of Mr. Burnham as he is entitled to under the Election Act so as to ascertain the grounds upon which Mr. Burnham makes his charges, and to ascertain the names of parties he charges and the time and place, when and where the alleged offences were committed.

COMMISSION WORSE THAN SPANISH INQUISITION

Rodolphe Brunet of Montreal Admitted Receiving Rakeoffs From Paving Contractors—Contributed Towards the Cost of Electing Certain of the Aldermen.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—Rodolphe Brunet, the patriotic friend of the French-Canadian, had a hard time of it yesterday before the Royal Commission. On Tuesday he was quite communicative, but yesterday information had to be dragged from him. He finally became angry, and stated that the Royal Commission was worse than the Spanish Inquisition. He was compelled, however, to answer, and finally admitted accepting commissions or rake-offs from the Lawrence firm of paving contractors and of using his "influence" with the aldermen to get their products accepted. He also furnished a list of the amount he contributed towards the election of certain aldermen, as follows: Mr. Renther (1908), $75; Mr. Larocque, ex-Ald. Rochon, amount not specified; Ald. Duquette, $100 to $200; Ald. Lamoureux, $50; Ald. Sadler, carriages; Ald. J. B. A. Martin, amount not specified (several hundred dollars); Ald. Major, $300 to $400; Ald. Noe Leclaire, $200; Ald. Labecque, $100 (recently elected for Dubrimier).

In this connection Mr. Brunet had to relate two pathetic incidents: both Ald. Lamoureux and Ald. Leclaire had voted against him in spite of his subscriptions. He told Ald. Lamoureux about it, and mentioned certain qualities of gratefulness. He had also seen Ald. Leclaire, and thanked the alderman for voting against him.

"But, of course," Mr. Brunet told the commissioner, "I did not really thank him."

TALL MAN HAD BOTH LEGS BROKEN WHILE STANDING

New York, Aug. 26.—When Frederick Stockholm, an engineer in the employ of the Otis Elevator Co., of Yonkers, suddenly fell beneath a desk at which he had been standing yesterday, those who thought he had fainted and had run to aid him found, to their amazement, that both his legs were broken.

At St. John's Hospital, in Yonkers, his was said to be one of those rare cases in which a person's limbs are snapped like toothpicks by the mere contraction of the persons muscles.

Stockholm, who is a giant in stature, was looking over some plans on the high desk and was leaning heavily on his right hand. The hand slipped off the edge of the desk, and, in making a sudden movement to regain his balance, the man came down heavily on his feet, the muscular strain breaking both right and left femurs—the former a few inches above the knee, and the latter close to the hip.

GREAT BRITAIN TO LOAN WARSHIPS TO CANADA

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

London, Aug. 26.—The Canadian Associated press learns on high authority that two third-class cruisers are to be loaned Canada by Great Britain, one for the Pacific, and the other for the Atlantic. These ships will require some refitting and some alterations, which can be made on this side, at Canada's expense. The officers for the vessels will also have to be loaned to Canada and paid by her. When Canada starts to build warships, which will be of British type, they will be built in Canada. A representative of a leading shipbuilding firm will shortly proceed to Canada to select a site for the shipyard.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

In the past few years the passion for the "town beautiful" has become a national ideal. City councils have taken up the work, philanthropists have contributed fortunes, and civic associations have put their shoulders to the wheel. That everyone knows; but what scarcely anyone knows is that the movement began in the brain of a quiet, unassuming woman in Springfield, O., says the current number of Hampton's Magazine.

Miss Jessie M. Good was an assistant in the Springfield library, and had been for 16 years. One day, in an interval of her work, she happened to pick up a magazine and read therein of how the village of Stockbridge, Mass., in order to attract summer tourists, had formed a local improvement society to clean the town. That was her inspiration, as narrated with a wealth of interesting detail in Hampton's. Clean the town! Why should not all towns be clean? Why were dusty streets, littered sidewalks, disfiguring vacant lots, treeless highways and unsightly back yards necessary? Why should not every town have parks and public gardens?

Miss Good told her plan to the editor of a floriculture magazine published in Springfield, and wrote an article about it for him. The idea spread, letters came in shoals, and Miss Good and D. J. Thomas, the editor, calling a convention of those interested, formed the American League of Civic Improvement. That was in July, 1901. A year later, at a meeting in Buffalo, N. Y., the American Park and Outdoor Art Association merged with the league under the title of the American Civic Association, which now embraces every state in the Union.

The foregoing is clipped from a Buffalo, N. Y. paper, and is respectfully brought to othe notice of Peterborough residents. Why should not we also have a League of Civic Improvement. There is certainly need of one.

FEATURES OF THE BRITISH BUDGET

(London Advertiser.)

The land taxes proposed in the British budget fall into three classes.

First and perhaps most important is the increment tax, which has been described in these columns. Briefly, it appropriates 20 per cent. of the increase in the value of any parcel of land required for other than agricultural purposes. Past increments of value will not be touched—only the future increase. For this object all land will be officially valued as soon as possible. The tax will be collected only when the property is sold or leased anew. In defining these imposts Sir Edward Grey recently said: "They are not, strictly speaking, taxes upon land; they are taxes upon the value which some land has acquired, not by its own inherent quality, not by labour or enterprise spent upon it, but by something quite outside itself, which is the growth of the community around it." He added:

"We do not propose in the unearned increment taxes to take the whole of the unearned increment. We only take 20 per cent. We do not propose to take the unearned increment which has accrued in past years and deprive anybody of anything which he possesses at the present moment. We apply the principle in regard to the future, and we do not propose to take any increment value which is due to expenditure upon the property by the owner himself. I call that a fair, moderate and reasonable application of the principles.—(Cheers.) When I am told we are ruining the enterprise nad imperilling the security of capital, I say on the contrary we have taken all pains possible not to press upon enterprise, not to deprive any man of the value spent on the property by himself, and not to do anything which would impair security of capital. That is why we do not go back on the past. That is why we do not attempt to take any incremented value which has accrued in past years, because banks, insurance societies, perhaps, have invested monies in mortgages on that unearned increment, and to go back on the past would be to do something which would make capital feel insecure. But the future is open to us all, and in applying our principle to the future and carefully not applying it to the past, we have secured the application of the principle which is not fairly open to the charge that it imperils the security of capital."

The second tax, and one almost equally fruitful, is one of a half penny in the pound upon the capital value of all "undeveloped land," by which is meant land that is not being put to the most productive use. It will fall with the greatest severity upon the owners of those vast tracts of arable land which have been converted into shooting preserves for the pleasure of a few rich people. It will also hit the speculator in urban lands, and tend to throwo vacant lots upon the market. The only land under cultivation to which it will apply will be that in the neighbourhood of cities and towns which could be more profitably used for building than for agriculture; so that a ground-owner who is growing hay, vegetables or grain upon land while it has a steadily-rising value for building purposes, must pay for the privilege of keeping it out of the market.

The third class of land taxation is the mining royalty. It is very clearly explained by Mr. Churchill, as follows:

"In the first place a mining royalty is income derived without any service of any kind being rendered. —(Hear, hear.) The capitalist puts his money into the mine, the miner risks his life, but the royalty owner exacts a mere dead weight charge in return for which there is no contribution either of capital or of labour, and this income from royalties which is derived in respect of no services rendered is also a privileged income. It ranks first in the charges upon the whole mining industry, and it does not participate in any way in the fortunes or the risks of that industry."

Like a tax upon rent, a mining royalty cannot be shifted to other shoulders. It will be borne exclusively by those upon whom it directly falls.

The increment duty and the undeveloped land tax will this year produce an estimated revenue of £325,000, an amount which will steadily and rapidly increase. The tax on mineral royalties will yield £350,000 the first year. It will cost £2,000,000 to value all the United Kingdom for the purpose of the new taxes, but this valuation will serve for all time. It is said that the land-monopolists fear the valuation even more than the taxes, as it will show that many of them have been paying upon ridiculously low assessments, some of them fixed a century or two ago.

The budget blazes a new path in national finance and one which leads the tax collector to a treasure-trove hitherto protected beyond other forms of wealth. It will solve the problem of financing the Government's schemes of social reform without throwing the burden upon the classes least able to bear it.

OBITUARY.

MRS. EDWARD GREEN

Last night in the Nicholls Hospital Mrs. Edward Green, of 326 Water street, died after being in the hospital for about four weeks. Previous to that she had been ill over six weeks, although she did not enjoy the best of health for the last twelve years, having at that time fallen on an icy sidewalk and broken her hip from which she had been crippled.

The late Mrs. Green was eighty-eight years of age. Her maiden name was Mary Ann Mitchell, being the daughter of Capt. Thos. Mitchell, of the Township of Emily, who had charge of a company in the rebellion of '37. On September 30th, 1858, she was married to Mr. Edward Green, by the late Rev. Mr. Roger, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Green celebrated their golden wedding last year. For over 46 years they had lived in Mr. Green's present residence. Mrs. Green was the last member of a large family of brothers and sisters. She was one of the oldest members of George St. Church, and was always faithful in her attendance, for years being a member of the Ladies' Aid Society. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Edward, and son, W. F. Green.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 326 Water street on Friday, at 3.30 p.m.

A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs. H. Wright, of Enfield, N.S.:

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss, and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale, and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat, and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better, and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone, and my cure was complete."

NOT ILLEGAL TO SELL CIGARS ON THE SABBATH

In Case of Restaurants and Hotel Keepers, Decides Toronto Magistrate Yesterday.

IMPORTANT RULING

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Magistrate Denison clearly intimated in the Police Court this morning that hotel-keepers or restaurant-keepers may sell cigars to anyone on Sunday without fear of conviction.

The hotel-keepers or restaurant-keepers must have cigar licenses, of course.

"In view of the magistrate's decision I will not seek to procure convictions against hotel-keepers or restaurant-keepers who sell cigars on Sunday," said Staff-Inspector Stephen to The Star when interviewed as to the future policy of the police.

"That means that I can walk into any hotel or restaurant which has a regular cigar license, and buy a cigar on Sunday without danger of the seller being prosecuted?"

"Yes," replied Inspector Stephen.

This decision means that a cigar is not a drug nor a food, but just a cigar.

The case which settled the vexed point was that in which Mr. Albert Williams, who keeps a restaurant at 101 Yonge street, was accused of selling a cigar on Sunday to Wm. Beverley.

"Has Williams a license to sell cigars?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes," said Staff-Inspector Stephen, "but not on Sunday."

Then Magistrate Denison delivered his dictum:

"Restaurants don't require a special license to sell cigars on the Lord's Day," he said. "Hotel-keepers can sell cigars. What is the difference between a hotel-keeper selling a cigar to a guest and the keeper of a restaurant selling one to a man who has just bought a lunch? They are both selling to guests in their eating houses, and there is no sin committed in either case, so far as violating the Lord's Day Act is concerned."

"You will know what to do in future," said Staff-Inspector Stephen to the other inspectors.

Staff-Inspector Stephen added that he understood the decision to mean that a man could now buy a cigar in either a hotel or a restaurant on Sunday without buying food of any kind.

WILLOUGHBY'S DEATH DUE TO "ARTERIAL CHLOROSIS"

Norwood, Ont., Aug. 26.—That the death of Thos. G. Wiloughby was due to "arterial scholarosis" was the opinion expressed by Dr. Sutton at the inquest into the death of Mr. Willoughby and his little girl, Stella, who was shot by her father a week ago yesterday. Willoughby's stomach, which was sent to Toronto for examination, has not been returned, as the analysis was not completed. The inquest, therefore, was adjourned for a week.

URGES THAT ALL WAGE WAR UPON CONSUMPTION

Head of Pasteur Institute in Paris Would Stamp Out Propagation of Tuberculosis.

Paris, Aug. 26.—"When a woman is taught a small school is founded," said Jules Simon, and the famous words are quoted by Dr. Calmette, head of the Pasteur Institute at Lille, in a call upon women to enrol themselves in a peaceful army to fight tuberculosis.

Dr. Calmette was reading a remarkable paper before the members of the French Association for the Advancement of Science. His speech was on "The Problem of Vaccination against Tuberculosis."

He referred to the failure of all the boasted serums which were to render humanity immune against the most terrible of scourges. The brilliant promises of Koch, Behring, Maragliano etc., only raised hope to be doomed.

"There is," said the professor, "no anti-tuberculosis serum in existence which has any real curative power."

At the same time, Dr. Calmette still inclines to the belief that the problem is not unsolvable. He agrees with Brouardel's dictum that most men are or have been, tuberculous, and that those who have resisted are almost rendered immune. He asks himself if the true treatment of tuberculosis is not precisely to treat and cure the patient at the first attack.

To this end a rapid diagnosis is necessary, and must be followed by the immediate dispatch of the patient to a "preventorium," or place of isolation, where they may be protected from fresh contamination whether by the family—if there is a consumptive in it—or by the milk of a tuberculosis cow.

Dr. Calmette believes that consumptives vaccinate themselves, but they must be helped. Consumptives whose malady is fatal are those who have been exposed to successive re-infection at short intervals by co-habitation with consumptives or by infected food.

Dr Calmette urges that war should be waged without respect against the propagation of tuberculosis by suspect saliva, mead, and milk.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The annual picnic of the Piccolo Band to Hastings on Tuesday was enjoyed by several hundred citizens who found the trip down the lake and into the Trent a very pleasent one. The sail was made in good time and the afternoon was spent in the village on the Trent. The outing was voted one of the best that has been conducted this summer. A good orchestra was on board and the music added considerably to the success of the affair. The crew of the Otonabee were courteous and greatly assisted the committee.

Milkmen Were Fined For Selling Adulterated Milk

The adjourned cases of the two milkmen charged with deteriorating the milk that they sold to their customers were heard yesterday afternoon in the police court and after hearing the evidence, His Worship imposed fines of ten dollars with costs, in each case amounting to about fifteen dollars. Mr. R. F. McWilliams, who appeared on behalf of the accused, gave notice of appeal, at the conclusion of the magistrate's judgment.

Additional evidence was taken yesterday.

Mr. G. G. Nasmith, of Toronto, chemist, of the Provincial Board of Health, stated that he had analysed the sample of milk numbered 20. There was a quantity of borax in the samples but he could not say how much. The chemical was used as a preservative to keep the milk from fermenting, and his opinion was that it was a detriment to the health of the consumer of the milk.

One of the accused milkmen, said that the sample of milk secured from his waggon by Mr. Ball was taken at the laneway leading into the Oriental Hotel yard, and not on Simcoe street, as stated by Mr. Ball. It was about 10:35 in the morning and Mr. Ball did not put the number on the bottle while in his presence. He used borax to clean out the milk pails at the farm, but had never put any in the milk which he delivered.

Dr. Gray was called. He stated that he had been taking milk from one of the accused for years and had no complaint to make. In fact he wouldn't wish for better. Borax, in his opinion did not hurt milk nor the person using it. It was a good antiseptic and was used in medicine.

The other accused milkman said that he bought his milk from different persons. As far as he was concerned, he had not put any borax in it.

LIFE SAVER HENRY WAS UPSET BY BIG FISH

Camp Temagami, Aug. 23.—Mr. Wm. Henry, the world-famous swimmer and founder of the Royal Life-Saving Society, who is now touring Canada in the interests of the Society had a peculiar experience while fishing in Lake Temagami on Saturday morning.

Mr. Henry, accompanied by Mr. Arnold Morphy, of Upper Canada College, the president of the Ontario branch of the Royal Life-Saving Society, left Cochrane Camp, where Mr. Henry is a guest of Mr. Cochrane, to fish for lake trout. After landing three beauties, they hooked on to a monster. "The fish," as Mr. Morphy expressed it, "pulled like a horse"—pulled so well, indeed, that their boat was upset and they were left floundering half a mile from shore. With no help near, there was nothing for it but to put their theories in practice and to swim for land. An accident such as this might easily have resulted in a tragedy to persons less accomplished, but was regarded as a joke by the experts, who, after removing their clothing, towed the rowboat to shore—Mr. Morphy with the painter in his teeth and Mr. Henry at the stern—and, after emptying it, returned to camp in time for dinner, expressing enjoyment of the swim, but bewailing the loss of the fish and one shoe. After conducting the examination of the life-saving classes at Camp Temagami, Mr. Henry is returning to Toronto, where he will be the guest of a number of our prominent citizens and a distinguished visitor and speaker at the Exhibition.

While in Canada Mr. Henry will make Toronto his centre for extending the work of the society. After touring Canada Mr. Henry is invited to New York and other American cities to explain and demonstrate the objects of the society.

KING SEEKS AN ENGLISH BRIDE

This is Stated to be Portuguese Monarch's Purpose in Visit to London.

London, Aug. 26.—The real reason for the visit of the King of Portugal to this country in the late autumn is formally to sue for the hand of the Princess Alexandra, the eldest daughter of the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife. The suggestion for this mariage was laid before the King over twelve months ago by the Marquis de Soveral, Portuguese ambassador in this country, and a most intimate friend of the King and the Prince of Wales. The King, with his customary tact, declined to take any personal interest in the matter, and referred the ambassador to the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife. In the meantime, the King has personally invited King Manuel to come to this country, in company with his mother, Queen Amelia, in order that the young people may become acquainted with each other, while their elders discuss the pros and cons of the case. Queen Amelia is strongly in favour of her son marrying an English Princess, and will strain every nerve to bring this about. The King is maintaining a strictly neutral attitude, and is disposed to counsel the policy of allowing the young people to settle the matter for themselves. This forthcoming visit, therefor, will be one of the most interesting that have ever taken place, and important developments may come from it.

PRAISE FOR WORK OF LOCAL COMPANY

Messrs. Cook & Co. Complete Painting of Church in Toronto.

On Sunday evening, August 22nd, the reopening of St. Patrick's Church, Toronto Gore, took place. The new church has been for some weeks in the hands of the decorators. Messrs. Cook and Co., of Peterborough, who have completed a very fine piece of decoration. Large paintings adorn the sanctuary and numerous emblems and symbols are to be found on the panels of the ceiling in the nave. The prominent colours are white, cream and gold, which give a very chaste appearance to the whole design. Grand musical Vespers were chanted by Rev. Father Murray, C.S.B., assisted by Mr. Costelloe, Mr. Eeits and the local choir. Rev. Father Minehan, P.P., Albion, and Father Robert Walsh, officiated in the sanctuary. The Rev. Dr. Treacey preached the sermon, taking for his subject "the constitution of the Church of Jesus Christ." A large congregation from the surrounding districts filled the sacred edifice to overflowing. Father Walsh and the parishioners are to be congratulated on the celebration.—Catholic Register.

Makes the Glassware Fairly Sparkle
Mirrors and glassware are hard to clean with ordinary soap. The oily matter often leaves streaks and spots that are hard to remove.
But with Taylor's Borax Soap the result is wonderful. The surface is left without a single streak—it glitters and sparkles as though it were diamond.
And your work is only half as hard. For this soap reduces rubbing to a minimum—it works almost like magic.
Taylor's Soap
Borax is the most powerful cleanser in the world. It does wonders that are almost unbelievable until you once see the results for yourself. When you spend an hour cleaning the bath room, the tub, the wash bowl and the mirrors, you have wasted just half an hour. You would have done less than half the rubbing and finished in half the time with Taylor's Borax Soap.
For this soap does more than any other soap you have ever known. It loosens every bit of dirt instantly, it destroys every possible germ and leaves everything both clean and sweet. Hard water often hardens the hands—it leaves them red and rough. But this delightful borax soap softens the water and so softens the hands—it leaves them whiter and daintier than ever before.
We use only the finest of cocoanut oil in this soap. We go more than 12,000 miles to the isle of Ceylon just to be sure this oil is pure and fresh. Then we boil it doubly long and run thousands of gallons of pure water through it to remove every impurity. It is the cleanest and purest of soaps.
It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed.
Yet this soap costs no more than the ordinary. We make millions and millions of cakes every year and are thus able to buy at the lowest of prices.
Why use the ordinary soap any longer when this wonderful soap costs no more?
Try a bar this very day—learn for yourself its real merits.

SENSATIONAL AEROPLANING IN CONTESTS AT RHEIMS

Paulham Flits About Like a Bird, Soaring to Height of 500 Feet—Raced a Railway Train and Altogether Treated Spectators to a Thrilling Exhibition.

BLERIOT BREAKS RECORD

Rheims, Aug 26.—A marvellous prolonged high flight of 30 kilometers (18¾ miles) in a 20 knot breeze by Paulham and the establishment of a new world's record for 10 kilometres, at a rate of 74,318 metres (46 miles) an hour by Bleriot were the sensational features of the aerial race meeting on Wednesday. Owing to the high wind there probably would have been no flights except of the visit of the afternoon by President Fallieres and members of his cabinet. The president was accompanied also by distinguished officers of the French and British armies. His presence stimulated the sky pilots to a display of prowess and a dozen machines were brought out on the field but the majority of them were unable to battle against the wind for more than a few hundred metres. Young Bunau-Variella, however, with his machine reeling and plunging, like a ship in a stormy sea, managed to navigate the turbulent air currents for one round. Then Paulham began his thrilling flight. He made the first two rounds at an altitude of 250 feet but, ascending in front of the Tribunes as he centred the circuit he reached a height between 400 and 500 feet The spectators gazed aloft in admiration, mingled with horror. The machine swayed in the wind but each time righted itself from seemingly dangerous angles. Paulham completed his daring exploit with a wonderful exhibition of manoeuvring. Paulham's achievement has made him the unrivalled hero of the meeting. After the fight the aviator described the sensations he experienced as magnificent. Paulham's time was six minutes slower than that of Monday for 30 kilometers.

Bleriot's record making lap was accomplished with his 60 horse-power machine. He made the circuit of 6 1-5 miles in 8 mins. 4 2-5 seconds. The best previous record was made Monday by Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, 8 mins. 35 2-5 secs.

Latham put two machines out of commission in attempting to start. Finally just as dusk, he got away and made a superb flight of three rounds at an average height of 100 feet. This was Latham's second try for the Prix De La Vitesse in actual time of 80 mins. 2 secs. One twentieth must be added as penalization. The management of the Wright machines declined to take any chances, explaining that they had nothing at stake, as those machines are at present classified as first, second and third in the Prix de La Vitesse.

President Falliers was present in the afternoon to watch the competitions. During the president's tour of the field the wind subsided slightly and half a dozen pilots brought out their machines. Young Bunau-Varialla was the first to ascend and he treated the crowd to a thrilling sight. The breeze was still over 15 miles an hour and the biplane rocked like a ship in a heavy sea, but the daring aviator continued his flight, managing to round the first turn and come back to the tribune. A wild cheer broke out when Bunau-Varialla descended safely. He was followed a few minutes later by Paulham, who flew past the tribune at a height of 100 feet. He saluted President Fallieres as he went by.

After Paulham had rounded the turn and was racing down the back stretch a railroad train came along the track under him moving in the same direction. Paulham gradually overtook the train and passed it. Returning to the tribune he ascended to the dizzy height of 350 feet and passed over the tiers of seats at this altitude. He waved his cap in response to the enthusiastic cheers, when his machine was caught by a wind and he keeled over to a dangerous angle. But the intrepid pilot righted his aeroplane promptly and continued his flight. He made the round in 12 minutes and 13 seconds.

Without appreciably coming down from this great altitude Paulham completed his second and his third round of the course. As he approached the finish he descended suddenly in a great curve. Many of the spectators thought he was falling and cries of horror went up frfom the crowd. But when at a distance of 20 feet from the ground the biplane righted and crossed the line on an even keel and at once rose in the air.

After a couple of spectacular circles in front of the tribune Paulham came to the ground in front of the tiers of seats amid thunders of applause. His was the most remarkable feat of aviation yet witnessed here, and as Paulham stepped out of his machine the frenzied excitement broke out in three rousing cheers. At the end of the second round Paulham arose to the remarkable height of 500 feet.

The spectators spellbound forgot to cheer and many women turned their faces away as they saw the machine sway in the wind. Paulham continued at this height for some time. Paulham's three rounds were completed in 38 minutes 12 2-5 seconds.

The Lamentable Tale Of How A Mammoth 'Lunge Got Away

CAUGHT A 12-POUNDER

Jubilee Point, Aug. 25.—Somewhere in the river or the lake there is a mammoth 'lunge, weighing anywhere from 20 to 25 pounds, with Mrs. (Dr.) Armstrong's favourite bait firmly fixed in its jaws and therewith hangs a tale that has already been entered in the archives of Jubilee Point. Yesterday morning Lou Dobbin, of Peterborugh, and Dr. Armstrong of Oshawa, went out on the lake, turning east towards Spook Island, crossed to Hatrick's Point, and turned the nose of their craft towards the eastern channel, after trawling for nearly an hour without striking anything but an occasional cluster of weeds. The only thing that maintained their good spirits was the thought of breakfast, for which their morning workout had whetted a keen appetite. They rounded into the river and were coming down towards Jubilee, when Doc disgustedly remarked that they had better haul in their lines.

"No chance!" Lou replied, "we'll stay it out to the wharf. We certainly cannot do any worse."

They had only gone a short distance farther and were about 100 yards from the wharf when—"Gee, I have got one Doc." came from Dobbin in the stern of the boat.

"Hang tight!" the Doctor excitedly remarked; "pull slow!" in another breath.

And then something happened.

"He's got away!" Dobbin said, in despair, as his line slackened and grew limp in his hand.

"No, he hasn't!" the doctor quickly replied, and pointing to a ripple in the water, "he's coming up to the skiff!"

Almost immediately the fish—a big lunge, Doc. fancied he had him on shore, and the bunch were standing around green with just envy, but congratulating them nevertheless—shoved his nose a few inches above the water with the bait dangling free, but the three hooks firmly embedded in his open jaws. His "25 pounds-ship" disappeared in a twinkling and Lou pulled in his line, which had parted a few feet from the sinker.

Away in the distance a binder rattled around a field of grain growing gradually smaller and the faint metallic click-click of the knives sounded across the intervening marsh; a squirrel's blatant purr-r-r broke the stillness of the wood stretching back from the wharf; neither spoke. Both silently gazed at the broken line.

"That was my wife's lucky bait," the Doctor finally remarked, half to himself.

"A fisherman's luck, Doc.; a fisherman's luck!"

"We've used that bait in these waters for five years," the Doctor mused, and it hooked in some pretty ones, Lost by a treacherous line! By Jove, Lou, that was a 25-pounder."

"No!"

"But it was. I have seen some big 'lunge around here, but that beat them all."

"Don't tell them that: they will only laugh, anyway."

"But no joking. Ah. Metheral landed a big one up around the bend in 1907, but it couldn't touch that by pounds!"

"Well, let's get into breakfast," Dobbin remarked; but Doc. said his hunger had vanished. However, they pulled the few remaining yards to the wharf and dejectedly dragged themselves up to the verandah.

Doc. is in hopes that the fish will die and come up to the top, for more reasons than one. It will convince the doubters and that little luck bait will undoubtedly be found in the fish's jaws.

The fishing has not been encouraging of late. Charlie Hellems, of Rochester, thinks the new generation of 'lunge and bass are wiser than their ancestors. He canot even buy them from the Indians now.

Jubilee House is taxed to its utmost those days.

Our baseball team met a sad fate on Tuesday at the hands of a bunch of picnickers from Peterborough. Bill Allen, of Peterborough, is blamed for losing the game.

Mrs. Lou Dobbin caught the biggest fish of the week to-day, in the eastern channel. She was trawling with her husband after dinner and hooked a twelve-pounder, which she bravely landed, unassisted.

THE BEST HERITAGE

Good health is one of the first requisites to success. Prolonged application to any subject cannot be sustained without well fed nerves.

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Pure fresh air, exercise, and eating the simplest foods will produce this desired result.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportions than any other cereal.

ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

NEW SONGS

Among the new songs which have been favourably received lately and have been classed as hits are "Daisies Won't Tell," "Don't Be An Old Maid Molly," "Gee, But There's Class to a Girl Like You," and "Love Me All the Time." The latter was written by Foos. Toward and is sung by himself in "The Blouse Mouse" in which he is supporting his wife, Mabel Barrison.

REPORT OF LABOUR CONDITIONS IN PETERBOROUGH DURING JULY

The report in the Labour Gazette showing the conditions along various lines in Peterborough during July, by the local correspondent, Mr. J. Arthur Sharpe, is as follows:

Conditions during July were steadily improving. The building trades were very busy. The contract for a new Public Library has been let, a local firm securing it. The price is $31,887.00. All the large factories were busy, some of them working overtime. The Quaker Oats Company was working to full capacity. The Central Milling Company is installing new machinery and by the 1st of September will be turning out four hundred barrels of flour a day. The Wm. Hamilton Co was very busy, having received several large contracts lately. The General Electric Works were in some departments working overtime and were busy in all departments. A car load of machinery has arrived for a company which will start boring for gas and oil.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture—The hay crop is rather light. Fall wheat presents a promising appearance, also alsike and clover. The farmers are getting a good price for pork, viz., 8 cents for hogs on the foot, the highest paid in any previous season.

Lumbering—Lumbermen were busy getting logs to the mills.

Manufacturing — Industrial establishments were active, and showed some improvement over last month.

Railroad Construction—On account of the increased traffic on the main line of the C.P.R., it has been found necessary to contract a meeting siding east of the city half a mile from the station.

Condition of Particular Trades

Bricklayers, masons, carpenters, plasterers have been very busy this month. Painters were also busy. Plumbers have been fairly well employed. Builders' labourers were very busy. Iron moulders and core makers were fairly busy, also machinists and electric workers. Wood workers were all well employed. Printers had all they could do. Tailors also had a good month, and bakers were very busy. Cigar makers reported a slight improvement in business. Among railroad employees conditions have been very good. The traffic on the railway lines was heavy both in freight and passengers. Steamboat men have had all they could handle. Unskilled labour has been well employed.

Roller Skating At Brock Street Rink Early In September

For some time past negotiations have ben in progress between parties from Toronto and the owners of Brock street rink, looking to the opening up of a new roller skating rink in that building. The deal was completed yesterday, and the rink will be open for business early in September. The new proprietors will start at once to put down a magnificent wood floor 172 x 70 feet, covering the entire floor space of this spacious building and making one of the largest, if not the largest in Canada. The proprietors have purchased 600 pairs of ball-bearing roller skates, of the latest design and will spare no expense in catering to the public, and a better or more convenient place for such an amusement could not be found in the city.

Roller skating is one of the most healthful and vigorating of pastimes and a large patronage for the new institution is assured.

The rink will be in operation from the time of opening up to the beginning o fthe ice skating and will reopen again about the first of April.

The flooring of the Brock Street rink will make it suitable for the holding of public meetings, although it is understood, it is the intention of the management to give the building over almost exclusively to roller skating.

FINED $5.75 FOR BEING DISORDERLY

A policeman was walking in that vicinity and happened to hear the noise Gibbs was making in his home. He went and arrested him and brought him to the police station. Gibbs pleaded guilty this morning and was fined $2 and costs amounting to $5.75.

THE Bedding Sale which has caused so much stir and considerable favourable comment has not abated in the least, in fact it seems to gather momentum with each day. Of course the time has not yet come when warm bedding is appreciated, but the keen observing housewife does not heed that ; she is ever watchful for money saving values for she knows that summer cannot stay much longer. Cool nights will soon be in evidence and warmer bedding will need to be brought forth. However this sale is not exclusively for the direct turning over or passing out of goods ; it is to advertise the fact that we are already prepared amply to meet all demands no matter how exacting they may be. ## HER GENTLEMAN FRIEND

The following is a sentiment that is purely American in its origin but is more widespread in its existence to-day. It may not be considered exactly orthodox by some parents and other people but it seems to be the growing tendency of the age.

The girl who wishes to possess a boy chum should powder her nose before him, allow him to replace fallen hairpins and button the back of her waist. Talk straightforwardly to him and banish all quibbling as to the probable ideas of suburban minds on the subject.

Encourage him to tell you about "the other girl," and invite them both to tea, not forgetting to mention that the other girl's hat is charming or to inquire the name of her dressmaker. And, above all, love the boy chum's mother, admire his sister and flirt just a little bit with his father. They will love you for it, and welcome you to their house, not as a designing female on their son's affections, but a valued "pal" of Jack's..

Don't be afraid to let him see you in an unbecoming gown when you are suffering from a cold, and in a dressing sacque, propped up by pillows on the sofa. He will appreciate the feeling of sensible "chummy" intimacy between you. And, after all, there is nothing so disfiguring as influenza, so it prove an effective check upon any sparks of sentiment which may smoulder in his breast.

Take him with you when you buy a hat, and insist upon paying for your lunch, and travel in a car in preference to a taxicab. Boys may be devoted to you, but their pockets are seldom long. By your words and actions let him understand that you value his companionship, and not the possible "good time" or "scalp" he may provide.

The boy chum is much to be desired. There is something comforting in the feeling you have only to write or telephone and he will be with you and help you out of a difficulty, and offer you his shoulder upon which to weep. And the knowledge that he will not think you are well, "rather keen," or wont to give you an undesired kiss.

Sir.—W. A. Bailey seems to me to be highly conceited about always being in form for whatever turns up, and I should like to ask him if he exhibited his form at Campbellford? If so, it certainliy is not up to much, and like his form at canoeing, leaves a lot of room for improvement. Now, Bill, instead of growling about others, why do you not come up to the Oval of an evening and practise? Then you would possibly be a little more useful and perhaps have less to say about others. You would also find out that the balls used at Peterborough are just as hard as those at Campbellford.

A Preparation Discovered that Will Destroy the Dandruff Germ.

For some time it has been known that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp into little white flakes, and by sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, causes falling har, and, of course, finally baldness. For years there have been all kinds of hair stimulants and scalp tonics on the market, but there has been no permanent cure for dandruff until the discovery of a preparation called Newbro's Herpicide, which destroys the dandruff germ. Destroy the cause, the effect will cease to exist. Kill the dandruff germ and you'll have no dandruff, no itching scalp, no falling hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

QUEEN NEVER SENT TELEGRAM

Nor Looked Into Shop Windows.

London, Aug. 26.—Those who wear a crown undoubtedly forego many little privileges which the average number of their subjects regard in the most matter-of-fact manner. For instance, it is said that Queen Victoria had never in her life looked into a shop window, and that alone might make many women gladly forego a crown. Again, she had never seen a telegram. She had spent, no doubt, thousands of pounds in communications which were sent as telegrams, but she had no idea how the thing was done; and if she had ever had to go to a post office and stick the stamps on she would have been fairly helpless. Another story is that once, late in her life, she went unexpectedly to tea with a lady at Windsor. She was offered that not unfamiliar tea dainty, a bun split and toasted and buttered. The Queen did not know what it was, praised it extravagantly, and asked if she could get her servants to make one.

Warfare Over Benson Street Walk Residents Were Very Indignant

Work Was Commenced Yesterday Inside the Trees and Citizens in the Neighbourhood Had a Special Meeting of Council Called---Ald. Phelan Blamed for Not Consulting Committee---Walk Will be Built on the Inside After All---The Council Arrive at That Decision After a Warm Session This Morning---Mr. Kidd Threatens an Injunction to Prevent Work Going On.

If there is an angry bunch of citizens anywhere in Peterborough you will find them to-day in the neighbourhood of Benson street, and the new pavement on that street is to blame for it all.

For months the location of the sidewalk has been a bone of contention. The citizens of that thoroughfare wanted the walk outside the trees. The Board of Works, following the principle laid down two years ago, wanted it inside. Several meetings were held with deputations of the citizens interested. Finally the Board of Works decided that the walk should go inside and made a report recommending that step to the Council. When it came before the Council the clause was struck out and nothing further done in the matter.

However, yesterday it was revived in a manner that caused the Benson street residents to forget the intense heat and start out on the war path at once. Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, had the sidewalk plant moved to Benson street, and with a big gang of men, made rapid headway of the work of constructing the sidewalk inside the trees. Mr. R. J. Kidd, one of the most active "outside" supporters, happened home to tea, saw what had been done and rose to the occasion. Getting Dr. Pentland, another resident of the street, the two started out to look for the mayor and aldermen. The members of the Board of Works, with the exception of the chairman, knew nothing about the matter and were startled and considerably indignant when they learned what had been done.

Some of the expressions used by the aldermen when they heard the news were :

"It's a high-handed piece of imposition."—Alderman Turner.

"He ignores everyone and everything."—Alderman Morgan.

"He had no right to do that without calling or consulting his committee."—Alderman Gillespie.

"We'll stop the work. The mayor can stop it. If not they will have an injunction issued."—Alderman McIntyre.

"I was greatly surprised when I heard it. There were lots of other works to do. For instance, Charlotte street."—Alderman Duncan.

At nine o'clock the mayor and Alderman Phelan were called to Alderman Gillespie's office for the purpose of settling the trouble.

There were present with them Aldermen Gillespie, Turner, Duncan, McIntyre, Metheral, Morgan, Duffus and Buller.

In giving his explanation Alderman Phelan said he was following the principle of the Board of Works for the past two years, viz., to build all walks within the tree line. He said the mayor had received a letter from the government's engineer asking for the walk inside. The principal of the schoolo wanted it inside and he wanted it built before the school was opened. Most of the people, he said, wanted it inside. He thought the quietest and best way was to go ahead and built it without saying anything. He couldn't see what kick there was.

"Why didn't you call up the members of your committee. We nearly all have phones? You knew the petition was in. You knew the understanding with the committee. There was lots of other work to do."

These were some of the questions thrown at the chairman.

"You're going too far," said Alderman Morgan. "You ignore everybody and lay walks just when and where it suits you. You're not running this town yet."

"My kick is that the committee was not consulted. I'm open for conviction as to where the walks should go. But I want to be consulted," said Alderman Gillespie.

"Will you stop the work?" asked Alderman Turner, "until the Council meet in the morning and settle the thing?

"No," said Alderman Phelan, "I can't see any reason for stopping the work. Even the people who signed the petition for the walk outside are now tickled to death that it is going inside."

There was a lot of exchanges of views and Alderman Phelan left for home. Then the aldermen got after the mayor and wanted him to stop the work claiming that he had authority to do so.

"I'll not go back on the chairman," said the mayor. "If he wants to stop all right, I'll not order him to stop."

A petition was signed by a majority of the members of the Council for a meeting of the Council to be called this morning at nine o'clock.

This Morning's Session.

That was last night's session and this morning the anger of the Benson street people was made complete when the Council, at a special meeting, and by the casting vote of the Mayor, decided that the walk should go on the inside of the trees. There were eight aldermen present and they deadlocked on the question. The Mayor, however, supported the Chairman of the Board of Works and the City Engineer, and the work of building will go ahead. Meantime the Benson street residents are talking of injunctions and other things.

A deputation composed of Messrs. Kidd, Pentland, Staunton, Thompson, and other residents of Benson street were present this morning while the Council was represented by the Mayor, Ald. Duncan, Gillespie, Morgan, Metheral, McIntyre, Buller, Turner, and Phelan.

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, explained his reasons for starting work on Benson street. The Government Engineer, he said, was in favour of the walk on the inside, and the Government had voted $200 to help build the walk. The architect had also recommended the inside of the tree line. The Board of Works, the chairman thought, had gone thoroughly into the matter, and he did not think it was fair to the chairman or the engineer, when they were doing the best they could in the interests of the city that a number of individuals should be able to corrall the Council. He had nothing at stake in the matter, no axes to grind, and had acted in what he believed to be in the interests of Peterborough. "It's mighty poor encouragement to be treated the way I am being treated on this occasion," remarked the chairman of the Board of Works.

Ald. Turner stated that he had understood some time ago that the work would be suspended until the Government Engineer had arrived, and that it was the intention to have him meet the Council and the citizens of Benson street with a view of definftely deciding where the sidewalk should be. He thought the people of Benson street had acted most fairly in the matter. They had offered to remove all objections there were to the walk being built outside, and he was going to vote for it being outside. The Chairman of the Board might have called his Committee together when the Government Engineer was here.

Ald. Phelan explained that he had not seen the Engineer hiself.

Ald. Morgan said that at last night's meeting Ald Phelan had stated that Mr. Thompson, one of the residents, had changed his mind and wanted the walk on the outside. Mr. Thompson, he said, was present, and wished to deny that statement.

"We've had enough of the gallery," remarked Ald. Phelan.

"I wish to deny that I said I wanted the sidewalk on the inside," stated Mr. Thompson.

Ald. Phelan explained that he had merely said that he had been told that Mr. Thompson had made such a statement.

"What about the part of the walk already built? Who will have to pay for that?" was asked.

"The city wil have to pay it," replied Ald. Turner. "Our servant has incurred the cost and we are all responsible. It might be boiled down to the Chairman of the Board of Works, but we are responsible for the expense."

"I decided that the walk ought to be built on the inside of the tree line and I believe it yet," remarked Ald. Duncan, "but I think Ald. Phelan has ignored his committee shamefully. I have been sore about it all summer. Sidewalks and sewers have been built, about which I know nothing. Only two meetings have been called, where there should have been at least two a month. Last meeting night there was a motion made that the street machinery, which was then on Kirk street, should be moved to Charlotte street, and do the work wanted there, but Ald. Phelan ignored that motion and went to Benson St.

"Ald. Phelan, have you ever done any work that was not authorized by the Board of Works?" asked the Mayor.

"I have not," replied the Board of Works chairman.

"I don't know what is being done by the Board of Works. It is all Dutch to me," remarked Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Buller stated that he had supported the walk being built on the outside, provided a piece of land was obtained from Mr. Fizgerald to widen the street. He would not vote for the outside unless this was done. City Engineer Hay stated, in reply to a question, that the first block of the pavement from Wolseley to Aberdeen avenue had been finished.

"I am totally disgusted with the matter," said Mr. R. J. Kidd, one of the deputation. "That man (the Chairman of the Board of Works) got a snap verdict and went ahead with the work. He had a report from the Engineer and kept it in his pocket. When we asked for it we couldn't get it."

"I deny that," remarked Ald. Phelan, "I never carried any report around in my pocket."

Mr. Kidd explained that they had been unable to see the report any way.

"It's a shame to have the walk on the inside, and spoil all those people's properties," was the way Ald. Morgan looked at the matter. "Over on my street the sidewalk was laid on the outside of my side of the street, while on the other, because they did not have the pull that I had from being in here, it was put on the inside. It has raised the value of the property on my side fifty per cent., and it would do the same on Benson Avenue. I don't like the high-handed way you do things, Ald. Phelan; I am telling you fairly. The people are going to have the walk on the outside, where they want it; by my vote any way."

Ald. Gillespie blamed the Chairman of the Board of Works for not calling them together on the matter. He thought that when the hing did come up yesterday it would have been better to have left the matter with the Board of Works and let them settle the question.

Ald. Metheral supported the walk outside. He explained that the Board had decided on the inside, but when the Council met their resolution was struck out. It had been said that the Water Commissioners were opposed to the walk being on the outside, but they had stated that they were willing to have it there, and put up with the inconvenience for the sake of the residents. The ratepayers, who had to pay sixty per cent. of the cost, should have some say in the matter.

Ald. Turner moved that the sidewalk be built on the outside of the tree line, provided the residents made their grades accordingly., and that Mr. Pentland remove his barn as agreed upon.

Mr. Pentland remarked that he was quite willing to remove the old building, which was an eyesore, provided the walk was laid outside the trees. If not he would let the barn rot down before he would remove it.

Ald. Morgan seconded Ald. Turner's motion.

Ald. Phelan moved in amendment, that the original report of the Board of Works be carried out, but there was no seconder.

Ald. Turner's motion was put with the following vote as a result.

For—Ald. Turner, Morgan, Metheral and McIntyre.

Against—Ald. Phelan, Duncan, Gillespie, and Buller.

Mayor Rush remarked that he would support the chairman and the engineer, voted against the motion, and the walk will go on the inside.

"I shall not allow digging any ditch in front of my property," emphatically remarked Mr. Kidd; "I'll issue an injunction. They'll not walk under the shade of my trees. We were prepared to build a nice boulevard. If you want the street to be nice you'll have to make it nice yourselves. You have gone to work and ruined our little homes. Ald. Phelan is not fit for the position he holds."

Ald. Morgan tried to move that the remainder of the walk be built outside the tree line and the part already constructed left where it is, but the meeting was adjourned.

No Dogs on Beach.

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 26.—Pugs and poodles and all other four-footed animals are outlawed from the beach. Mayor Stoy yesterday signed the new ordinance which provides when they may appear for their airing or bath in the surf.

The law says: "It shall be unlawful for any dog to be in the water of the Atlantic Ocean within the confines of Atlantic City between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The penalty is a fine."

Dogs under other ordinances are barred from the boardwalk unless held in leash. The new law was passed because of the numerous animals which shared the breakers with bathers.

There has been some protest among dog owners, but the mayor insisted that the law is necessary and will be rigidly enforced.

Alabama Dry Laws.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 26.—The special session of the Alabama Legislature, which has adjourned after 22 working days, accomplished the chief purpose for which it was called by passing drastic prohibition laws and capping the laws by submitting to the people an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the sale or manufacture of intoxicants in Alabama.

The election will be held the last week in November. At least ten prohibition measures were passed. Under the new laws a person may not have liquors anywhere but in his home. Foreign corporations may not do business of any kind in Alabama if it be shown that they sell or manufacture liquors in other states.

Prisoners Tortured.

Tangier, Aug. 26.—By the Sultan's special order, according to advices received from Fez, the prisoners captured at the defeat of El Regia have been barbarously tortured.

The Sultan first personally questioned them, and then had them taken in procession to the gate of Rabelhamis where, in the presence of troops and populace of Fez, every prisoner had his right hand severed and the stump plunged into boiling pitch. The women had their teeth drawn, some of the leaders having their right foot amputated also. The whole operation was conducted in the most cruel manner. The British Consul has entered a formal protest against these atrocities.

QUAKE IN ITALY.

Several Districts Feel a Violent Disturbance.

Siena, Italy, Aug. 26.—A heavy earthquake was felt throughout the Province of Siena at 1.20 a.m. yesterday. Practically all the houses in San Lorenzomerse were destroyed or badly damaged. Many persons were injured. The people were badly frightened, however, and rushed into the streets, where they wandered about in a state of semi-panic until they were assured that the quakes were over.

The quake was felt most severely within a radius of 20 miles from Siena. Considerable damage was done in Buonconvento. Several houses collapsed and one person was killed Several persons were injured in Monteroni. A number of houses there also were damaged and masonry fell into the streets.

The shock was recorded in Piombino, on the coast, about 50 miles southwest of Siena, at 1.25 a.m., and there was a repetition five minutes later. The people fled from their houses in terror, but no damage has been reported.

Siena itself escaped with a severe shaking.

Felt in Florence, Too.

Rome, Aug. 26.—Earthquakes yesterday morning were recorded also in Florence, Perugia and Grosseto, but no damage was done.

A telegram from the prefect of Siena Province says the damage there is less than was at first feared. Troops and tents have been sent to Buonconvento and San Lorenzo.

Thousands of Prisoners.

Lisbon, Aug. 26.—A despatch to The Mundo from Barcelona says that at the last meeting the Spanish Cabinet decided upon the most stringent measures against all those suspected of taking part in the recent revolutionary movement. An enormous number of arrests have been made during the last few days. Whole families, men and women, and even young children, have been taken from their homes.

Civil guards, with fixed bayonets, went to the residence of Senor Dias, a wealthy merchant, and dragged him and his wife and two children, aged 7 and 9 years, from their beds at 2 a.m. A rich banker, his wife and daughter were treated in a similar way.

The prisoners at Barcelona alone number 5,000. Seventeen hundred are confined at Montarol and 1,000 at Manresa.

Men, women, and children are packed together indiscriminately. Meanwhile flying columns of infantry and cavalry continue to scour the whole province in the search for revolutionists.

Lost in the Woods Thirty Days.

Port Arthur, Aug. 26.—Lost in the woods for thirty days and found almost dead by Indians at Bull River, north of Nepigon, Herbert Reeves, 30, a former United States soldier, who served in Cuba and the Phillipines, was brought here yesterday by Fire Ranger Douglas. ### Cannot Compel Arbitration.

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—In a decision handed down by Judge Asa McFarlane yesterday, concerning the petition presented by the striking employes of the Pressed Steel Car Co., in which compulsory arbitration was asked, the law is declared unconstitutional and the petition refused. ## CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Hogs Fairly Active and Strong at Buffalo.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—London cables for cattle are firm, at 13⅛c to 13½c per lb., for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10½c to 10⅝c per lb.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—Owing to the continued limited demand for ocean freight space September's shipments, an easier feeling has developed in the market of late and rates to most ports have eased off about 2s 6d per head for cattle and now agents are asking 22s 6d to 25s for Liverpool, 25s to 30s for London, 22s 6d to 25s for Glasgow and 22s 6d for Manchester. At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings were 950 cattle, 650 sheep, 700 lambs, 535 hogs and 150 calves. A feature of the trade continues to be the weak undertone to the market for cattle and prices are steadier, tending towards a lower level, which is due to the increased offerings and in consequence prices to-day scored a further decline ¼c per lb. At this reduction, however, the demand was good, owing to the large attendance of buyers, and an active trade was done, which resulted in a good clearance being made at an early hour. There were some export buyers on the market, but as choice beeves were rather scarce no business was done in this direction. Top quality steers sold at 5c, good at 4c to 4¾c, medium at 3c to 3¾c, cows, at 2½c to 3¼c, and bulls, at 2c per lb.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for sheep or lambs. Supplies were larger, but as the demand for local consumption was keen prices were well maintained and an active trade was done. Sheep sold at 3¾c, and lambs at 6c per lb. Calves are becoming rather scarce as usual at this period of the year and prices in consequence are advancing under good demand, with sales at from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

A stronger feeling developed in the live hog situation on account of the comparatively small offerings, for which there was a keen demand from local packers and dealers and prices in consequence advanced from 10c to 10½c per cwt., with sales of selected lots at $9.50 to $9.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the supply of live stock for sale this morning consisted of 350 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 450 hogs and 150 calves. The demand was ample to absorb all the offerings and a good trade was done at much the same prices as quoted above.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

HAMBURG BELLE, WHICH SET A NEW WORLD'S TROTTING MARK

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—Hamburg Belle defeated Uhlan in two straight heats in their match race at North Randall to-day, and also set a new world's record for a trotting race and for the fastest two heats ever trotted.

The new record for a mile is 2:01¼, and was made in the first heat of the race. The former record of 2:03¾ was held by Cresceus. The stallion made the record in a match race with The Abbot at Brighton Beach in 1901. Swet Marie formerly held the record for the fastest two heats trotted, 2:04¾ and 2:03¾, at Syracuse, N.Y., September 12, 1906. Hamburg Belle's time is 201¼ and 2:01¾.

Immediately after the first heat Hamburg Belle was sold to H. M. Hanna, of this city, for $50,000 by Edward and Joe. Madden, owners of the mare, and sons of John E. Madden. Mr. Hanna will permit the mare to finish her season, including the series of races of two best in three between the mare and Uhlan. The race to-day counts as one of the races. The second will be run at Readville, Mass., September 3, and if a third is necessary the meeting place will be selected later.

The weather was ideal, and the new track was lightning fast. The betting at first was at even money, but when the pools opened the Hamburg Belle money came in a stream. Finally the Uhlan backers became so scarce that the odds dropped to $25 to $18 in favour of Hamburg Belle. Hamburg Belle got away with a head advantage at the start. The bay mare drew away from Uhlan until she was a length ahead at the quarter pole. Uhlan sped up in the next quarter, and at the half he was but a neck behind Hamburg Belle, but the mare came home a winner by a head.

In the second heat Hamburg Belle got away a neck ahead and lengthened her lead to a length in the first quarter, which she made in .30¾. Uhlan spurted at the turn, but a few feet from the half pole a quarter boot slipped down, causing him to break. After losing one hundred yards, Driver Proctor got the horse on his feet, when the boot slipped further down, caught in Uhlan's shoe and pulled it off, causing the horse to break again and be distanced.

Time by quarters:

First heat—Hamburg Belle; .31, 1:01, 1:31, 2:01¾.

Second heat—Hamburg Belle; .30¾, .59½, 1:30, 2:01¾.

STRATHS TO PLAY T. A. S. IN PLACE OF THE WEST ENDS

The T. A. S. wil have as their opponents in the City League game at Riverside Park on Saturday the Strathconas instead of the West Ends. The latter have found that several of their men will not be available on Saturday, and have asked the Straths to change dates and play the Abstainers Saturday. The Commissioners were agreeable and accordingly Manager Metheral's braves will line up against the Coldwater squad this week. This means that there will be a game worth seeing. The last time the two met the Commissioners beat the Leaders 4 to 2, and they are equally confident of doing so on this occasion as they will have a stronger team in the field. The Straths are dead anxious to take the series from the Abstainers. They have broken even so far and would like to grab the rubber game, so that they may be depended upon to be there with their strongest team. The Commissioners have had several good practises at the Oval this week and will be in good shape. There is every reason to expect one of the hardest games of the year.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to b had for the asking by means of that which has been aply described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as

WHEN WAGNER BATS

I know just how a fellow feels the cold gray morning after; when all about the ceiling reels there's little show for laughter; I know just how it hits a guy when bills begin to grow, and bill collectors on the sly line up in motley row; I know exactly how it feels when up and down they face him, and with a line of endless spiels they follow him and chase him, but in the line of ticklish deals that send one to the mat, I wonder how the pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat? I know about how Roosevelt feels out in the jungled space, with boa constrictors at his heels and hippos at his face. I know how it would strike me out in some wild western lair, if I should swiftly turn about and face a grizzly bear, or walking down a street high-fenced, with no long stretch to run, should find my features pressed against an automatic gun; but in the line of ticklish deals that leave one feeling flat, I wonder how a pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat?

RUNNING

PEARCE WON AT MADOC.

Madoc, Aug. 25.—The ten-mile race, the feature event of the Sons of Scotland games, which were held here to-day before an immense crowd, was won by Claude Pearce, the Irish-Canadian runner of Toronto, with Robert Phinn, of Hamilton, second, and Jones, the Indian runner from Niagara Falls, third.

Phinn is the runner who beat Pearce at Ingersoll last Wednesday, but the Irish-Canadian, who was in great form to-day, pulled away from Phinn at the nine-mile post and won with a lot to spare in the fast time of 56.10. Pearce was given a great reception at the finish, and was presented with a handsome trophy by the Reception Committee. The gathering of the clans brought out the largest crowd that ever attended this event, about nine thousand people being in attendance.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column:

Sir,—In reply to W. A. Bailey's vagary in yesterday's issue, let me state that while no one accuses him of being valetudinarian, yet by the same "queer process of reasoning" he mentions, I should like to know how he arrives at the conclusion that pays "more than his share." (Was the dog with you Bill). As to the word of the local club not being worth much, he must evidently class it alongside his vacuous emanations, and "to be personal if he will," let me remind him that members's subscription for the present season are long past due—savey-vous Guillaume? Methinks a Valhalla might be erected in Peterborough where our worthy W. A. B. (of philanthropic and other fame) might find a last resting-place when he gets "stumped" in his final innings, for truly he is a hero and martyr.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly.
MEMBER.

Kidney Suffering IN THE SPRING
Backaches and tired feelings tell of weak kidney action—Prompt relief by using DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

No organs of the body are so susceptible to the quickly changing temperature of spring as the kidneys. Sudden cold waves mean chilling of the surface of the body, closing of the pores of the skin and over crowding of the kidneys at a time when they are already overworked in an effort to free the system of the accumulated poisons of winter.

The tired draggy feelings you experience and the weakness and pains in the back tell of a poisoned system and defective kidneys.

There is no treatment for kidney disease which will afford you relief so quickly as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and none which will so certainly cure the most complicated forms of this disease.

There is a reason for this. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills awaken the action of the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys and thereby effect a thorough cleaning and regulating of the whole excretory system.

In this combined action Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique. There are no substitutes or imitations which possess this principle.

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick last spring. The doctors said I must go to the hospital for an operation but I didn't want to. My liver and kidneys did not act and I suffered terribly. I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and nothing else, and am now fully cured and doing my own work for a family of seven."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Duty on Hay.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—A Washington lawyer arrived in the city yesterday morning and held a consultation with a number of hay shippers, who are seeking to recover from the United States Government excess duties on hay which they have shipped across the line during the past four years. There are over 150 claimants, and the amount involved in the neighborhood of $250,000. The duties charged were 20 per cent., as the U. S. Customs officials classed the hay as a "manufactured article," instead of the ten per cent. leviable on hay as a natural product.

One claimant has won his case in the Court of Claims at Washington.

Blacksmith's Narrow Escape.

St. Catharines, Aug. 26. — What might easily have been a fatality occurred this morning, when John Carlson, blacksmith, was thrown from his rig when the horse bolted at an approaching car. Carlson landed on the car tracks a few feet in front of the wheels of the car and was almost under the fender when the car was brought to a stop. He escaped with but a few bruises to his cheek.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

HAMBURG BELLE, WHICH SET A NEW WORLD'S TROTTING MARK

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—Hamburg Belle defeated Uhlan in two straight heats in their match race at North Randall to-day, and also set a new world's record for a trotting race and for the fastest two heats ever trotted.

The new record for a mile is 2:01¼, and was made in the first heat of the race. The former record of 2:03¾ was held by Cresceus. The stallion made the record in a match race with The Abbot at Brighton Beach in 1901. Swet Marie formerly held the record for the fastest two heats trotted, 2:04¾ and 2:03¾, at Syracuse, N.Y., September 12, 1906. Hamburg Belle's time is 201¼ and 2:01¾.

Immediately after the first heat Hamburg Belle was sold to H. M. Hanna, of this city, for $50,000 by Edward and Jos. Madden, owners of the mare, and sons of John E. Madden. Mr. Hanna will permit the mare to finish her season, including the series of races of two best in three between the mare and Uhlan. The race to-day counts as one of the races. The second will be run at Readville, Mass., September 3, and if a third is necessary the meeting place will be selected later.

The weather was ideal, and the new track was lightning fast. The betting at first was at even money, but when the pools opened the Hamburg Belle money came in a stream. Finally the Uhlan backers became so scarce that the odds dropped to $25 to $18 in favour of Hamburg Belle. Hamburg Belle got away with a head advantage a tthe start. The bay mare drew away from Uhlan until she was a length ahead at the quarter pole. Uhlan sped up in the next quarter, and at the half he was but a neck behind Hamburg Belle, but the mare came home a winner by a head.

In the second heat Hamburg Belle got away a neck ahead and lengthened her lead to a length in the first quarter, which she made in .30½. Uhlan spurted at the turn, but a few feet from the half pole a quarter boot slipped down, causing him to break. After losing one hundred yards, Driver Proctor got the horse on his feet, when the boot slipped further down, caught in Uhlan's shoe and pulled it off, causing the horse to break again and be distanced.

Time by quarters:

First heat—Hamburg Belle; .31, 1:01, 1:31, 2:01¼.

Second heat—Hamburg Belle; .30½, .59½, 1:30, 2:01¾.

STRATHS TO PLAY T. A. S. IN PLACE OF THE WEST ENDS

The T. A. S. wil have as their opponents in the City League game at Riversidé Park on Saturday the Strathconas instead of the West Ends. The latter have found that several of their men will not be available on Saturday, and have asked the Straths to change dates and play the Abstainers Saturday. The Commissioners were agreeable and accordingly Manager Metheral's braves will line up against the Coldwater squad this week. This means that there will be a game worth seeing. The last time the two met the Commissioners beat the Leaders 4 to 2, and they are equally confident of doing so on this occasion as they will have a stronger team in the field. The Straths are dead anxious to take the series from the Abstainers. They have broken even so far and would like to grab the rubber game, so that they may be depended upon to be there with their strongest team. The Commissioners have had several good practises at the Oval this week and will be in good shape. There is every reason to expect one of the hardest games of the year.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to b had for the asking by means of that which has been aply described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress, including loss of memory, insomnia, irresolution, weakness of the will, &c.), but also in anæmia, digestive disturbances and consumption.

WHEN WAGNER BATS

I know just how a fellow feels the cold gray morning after; when all about the ceiling reels there's little show for laughter; I know just how it hits a guy when bills begin to grow, and bill collectors on the sly line up in motley row; I know exactly how it feels when up and down they face him, and with a line of endless spiels they follow him and chase him, but in the line of ticklish deals that send one to the mat, I wonder how the pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat? I know about how Roosevelt feels out in the jungled space, with boa constrictors at his heels and hippos at his face. I know how it would strike me out in some wild western lair, if I should swiftly turn about and face a grizzly bear, or walking down a street high-fenced, with no long stretch to run, should find my features pressed against an automatic gun; but in the line of ticklish deals that leave one feeling flat, I wonder how a pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat?

RUNNING

PEARCE WON AT MADOC.

Madoc, Aug. 25.—The ten-mile race, the feature event of the Sons of Scotland games, which were held here to-day before an immense crowd, was won by Claude Pearce, the Irish-Canadian runner of Toronto, with Robert Phinn, of Hamilton, second, and Jones, the Indian runner from Niagara Falls, third.

Phinn is the runner who beat Pearce at Ingersoll last Wednesday, but the Irish-Canadian, who was in great form to-day, pulled away from Phinn at the nine-mile post and won with a lot to spare in the fast time of 56.10. Pearce was given a great reception at the finish, and was presented with a handsome trophy by the Reception Committee. The gathering of the clans brought out the largest crowd that ever attended this event, about nine thousand people being in attendance.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column:

Sir,—In reply to W. A. Bailey's vagary in yesterday's issue, let me state that while no one accuses him of being valetudinarian, yet by the same "queer process of reasoning" he mentions, I should like to know how he arrives at the conclusion that pays "more than his share." (Was the dog with you Bill). As to the word of the local club not being worth much, he must evidently class it alongside his vacuous emanations, and "to be personal if he will," let me remind him that members's subscription for the present seasoon are long past due—savey-vous Guillaume? Methinks a Valhalla might be erected in Peterborough where our worthy W. A. B. (of philanthropic and other fame) might find a last resting-place when he gets "stumped" in his final innings, for truly he is a hero and martyr.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly,
MEMBER.

WELL KNOWN SUMMER RESORT HOTEL WAS BURNED TO GROUND YESTERDAY

Hotel Strathcona at Chautauqua Park Prey of a Disastrous Blaze---Forty Guests Had Barely Time to Make Their Escape and Everything Was a Total Loss---The Damage Will Amount to About $25,000---Explosion of a Lamp Caused the Conflagration.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 27.—The well-known summer hotel Strathcona, at Chautauqua Park, was burned to the ground yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock. Smoke was noticed coming from the basement and shortly after the whole five stories was a roaring furnace.

About forty guests barely had time to make their escape and everything was a total loss, including clothing, etc. A number of guests bathing at the time did not save enough clothing to dress with.

The hotel was owned by C. D. Warren, Ed. Gurney and Brown Bros. of Toronto, who refused $25,000 for it last week. The manager, J. Tasker, had $1,500 insurance on the contents in the Rimouski. This is only about one-half his loss.

A number of the guests who lost their all are; Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe and daughter, Mrs. Dr. Kelly, Louisville, N.Y.; Mrs. Janes and family, Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. McKiernan, New Orleans, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. McAdams, H. G. Buckland and family, Mrs. J. McVittie and Mrs. Coombes of Toronto; Mr. Haron, wife and son, Cleveland, Ohio; and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Cincinnati. The latter was ill, and was with difficulty carried out.

There was no fire protection, the water pipes being too distant to be of use.

The fire is supposed to have started in the servants' quarters in the basement by the explosion of a lamp one of the girls had been using to curl her hair.

The sufferers are being housed by those who occupy the cottages near by.

BRITAIN MAKES NEW PLANS FOR THE DEFENCES OF HER IMPERIAL POSSESSIONS

Premier Asquith Makes Announcement of Policy in the House---More Ships Will be Stationed in the Pacific and the Far East Squadron Will Consist of Three Units Australian, East Indian and Chinese---Canada Will Follow the Bristol Style of Cruiser

London, Aug. 27.—Premier Asquith, imparting to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon the results of the conference on Imperial defence, held recently in London, gave a detailed account of the proposed remodelling of the Pacific fleet, which both Australia and Canada are anxious should be of appreciable strength.

The remodelled fleet will consist of three units, the East Indies, the Australia, and the China squadrons, he said, each unit to be composed of a large armored cruiser of the Indomitable type, three cruisers of the Bristol type, six destroyers of the River class, and six submarines.

It has been arranged that New Zealand and Australia present the Empire with vessels of the Indomitable type, instead of the proffered Dreadnought, and these ships will form a part of the Pacific fleet.

Subject to the approval of the Canadian Parliament, it was agreed that Canada should make a start by building cruisers of the Bristol class and destroyers of the River class, making use of both Pacific and Atlantic ports for the construction work.

Premier Asquith stated that it had been arranged at the Imperial Defence Conference to so organize the military forces of the Crown as to preserve complete autonomy for each dominion, while allowing of assistance in the defence of the Empire by coming into one homogeneous Imperial army.

Replying to a member, Mr. Asquith said the resolutions of the conference had to be submitted to the various Governments before they were binding. The South African delegates did not feel in a position to sanction the problem for naval and military defence, or approve any proposal arrived at by the conference until the Union of South Africa had been accomplished.

Mr. Asquith, after replying to a member, explained that after the main conference in the Foreign Office, a military conference took place in the War Office. At this it was recommended by them that complete control together each dominion over the military forces raised by those dominions, and that the forces should be standardized, the formation of the unit arrangements of transport, etc., being as far as possible assimilated to those unusually worked out by the British Army. The military conference entrusted to a sub-committee to work out the detailed application of those recommendations, and a complete agreement was reached.

The Bristol type of cruiser, which Canada will build, establishing a shipyard for the purpose, is a second-class protected vessel, being of 6,800 tons displ., and capable of developing a speed of 25 knots an hour. Britain is at present building five such vessels, to be completed next year. They will have turbine engines.

The Indomitable, of which class Australia and New Zealand will contribute to the navy, was the flagship of H. R.H. the Prince of Wales, on his visit to the Quebec Tercentenary last year.

The Indomitable, with her length of 620 feet, is the largest and largest armored cruiser afloat. Her artillery is immensely powerful, she carrying eight 12-inch guns each 45 feet long and capable of firing an 850-pound shell twice a minute. The guns are mounted on four turrets, which are so arranged that all the eight big guns can fire on either broadside. At 500 yards, projectiles will penetrate 14 inches of strongest steel armor.

The Indomitable also carries sixteen four-inch guns to deal with torpedo boat attacks. Equipped with turbine engines, she can develop 41,000 horsepower and can exceed 24 knots an hour. Her equipment, including wireless telegraphy outfit and signalling apparatus, is of the newest design.

Two cruisers, which Great Britain will loan Canada for training purposes, will be of the Apollo type, of second-class cruiser, of 3,400 tons, and carrying eight large guns.

These ships will require re-fitting and alterations, which will be done on this side at the expense of the Canadian Government.

The officers of these ships will also be loaned to Canada, and be paid by Canada.

A representative of a leading firm of shipbuilders will shortly proceed to the Dominion to select a site for a shipyard.

Regarding the site of a shipyard on the Pacific a prominent naval expert was asked his opinion by a Canadian official and he replied: "Vancouver is more suitable than Esquimalt, though it might also be necessary to have a dock at the latter."

The Canadian Associated Press understands that the idea of having submarines on the St. Lawrence River and the Pacific Coast has been received with some favor.

New Concrete Bridge Fell

Alexandria, Ont., Aug. 27.—The new steel and concrete bridge which was being built across the River de l'Isl eon the 9th concession road of Lancaster, Glengrary county, collapsed Tuesday, Aug. 10, at 5:55, but although several workmen were on the structure at the time, none were hurt.

The bridge, which had a span of 90 feet, was being constructed by the Chatham Bridge Co., after plans prepared by M. J. McLennon, C.E., of Williamstown, and would have been completed to-day.

The steel work of the bridge was in place, and the men putting in the concrete expected to finish their work in another two hours, when the first hint of trouble came in the buckling of the girder at the centre of the span, and the whole structure swayed to one side, finally settling down about four feet till it came to rest on the pier of the old bridge, which had been left in place.

The specifications called for a bridge to sustain a weight of 15 tons in addition to its own weight. Including approaches, the total cost was to be $4,000.

BOY DIES FROM HEART DISEASE WHILE BATHING

Thomas Campbell of Keene Was Just Climbing Out of the Water To-day When Attack Seized Him--Died Almost Immediately After Being Taken From Water by a Companion.

Special to The Examiner.

Keene, Aug. 27.—Death's call came with startling suddenness this afternoon to Thomas Campbell, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, of this village. During the noon hour with several other young men of his own age, young Campbell went down to the wharf for his usual swim in the Indian River. The boys swam around for some time, and finally all but Campbell came out of the water. He took another swim and then started to climb out. He had reached the top of the wharf when his companions saw him fall back into the water, which is only about three feet deep, just at this point. One of his chums, Norman Taylor, plunged into the water and brought him up almost immediately. He was gasping for breath and a hurried call was sent for Dr. McWilliams. Young Campbell, however, passed away almost at once and was dead when the doctor arrived. Dr. McWilliams stated that death was due to heart disease. The boy had been complaining to his companions of a pain in his heart and was by no means of robust build.

His father and mother are at present visiting their son-in-law, Thos. Wigmore, in Oxbow, Sask., and the unfortunate young fellow was living at home with his two sisters. One brother, Dr. Jas. Campbell, is practising in Toronto, and just now is camping at Birdsall's.

The deceased was very well known in Keene and the vicinity, and his sudden death has cast a gloom over the neighbourhood.

The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

SPANISH ARMY HAS MET WITH CRUSHING DEFEAT

Lisbon, Aug. 26.—General Marina's Spanish army has suffered defeat in Morocco. The Moors have checked Marian's advance at Restinga, and while they are torturing their Spanish prisoners their chiefs are gathering reinforcements to attack the entire Spanish column. Dispatches to-day state that 400 Spanish have fallen in the past forty-eight hours' fighting, but the dispatches were censored and the total number of dead is believed to have reached nearly twice this number. The Moors have taken 1,000 Spanish prisoners and 1,000 of the tribesmen have fallen.

PREMIER SCOTT ON THE WEST.

(Stratford Beacon.)

Premier Walter Scott of Saskatchewan, writes of the West with western optimism in the current issue of Collier's. He expresses the opinion that there is no more important factor in the development of Canadian prairie country than the so-called American invasion. If the American farmers require cheap, fertile lands for themselves or their sons, they will be compelled to cross the 49 parallel of latitude to obtain it. It is almost a case of Hobson's choice. The American farmer brings with him an invaluable prairie experience, which prevents him from getting discouraged by the initial difficulties and drawbacks inseparable from the new country. He brings also a great amount of actual wealth realized from the sale of his old farm and stock and implements and general effects; and not least, American courage, enterprise, snap, and up-to-date knowledge. The Canadian West, Mr. Scott contends, will be in a comparatively few years the only stretch of country in the world where millions of acres of cheap, rich virgin land, easily available for tillage, can be found. The influx of population may be checked from time to time, but it will never be stopped until every acre of the millions now lying idle is privately owned. The proportion of the bad lands, waterless areas, rocky waters and mountain lands is smaller in Saskatchewan than in any similar area in the world, and he predicts that in fifty years' time there will not be a farmer more than nine miles from a railroad, a stage which Southern Manitoba has recently reached. He estimates the population of the province 50 years hence at 8,000,000, and the whole Canadian West at 20,000,000. Illimitable fields of coal; an abundance of natural gas and petroleum; mineral and forest wealth, and fisheries—these will make a country of diversified interests. It will not be agricultural and pastoral exclusively, having just sufficient urban facilities to supply rural needs, but will have great industrial development.

CANADA AS THE BRITISH CAPITALIST SEES IT.

(Brockville Recorder)

Some statistics furnished by Mr. R. M. Horne-Payne at the annual meeting of the British Empire Trust are of interest. During that concern's financial year there was raised in London by public issue approximately $930,000,000. Of the $787,500,000 invested outside the United Kingdom $455,000,000 was sent to foreign countries, including $85,000,000 to the United States, and only $330,000,000 was invested in the whole British Empire. Of this latter amount Canada received $152,000,000, more than half of which, or $80,000,000, was raised directly by the Dominion Government largely for the purpose of paying off maturing loans, which have carried a higher rate of interest than that now paid. A further $7,500,000 was raised by the governments of the provinces of Canada, and $18,500,000 by the principal cities, and the remaining $46,500,000 by steam and electric railways and various industrial undertakings.

The sum of $152,500,000 in one year seems a lot of money for a young country to make itself responsible for, but Mr. Horne-Payne points out that it is not so large when we consider that in the same year this young country's mineral production exceeded $85,000,000, its fisheries produced about $25,000,000, its exported lumber yielded over $10,000,000, and its 27,500,000 acres of field crops contributed a harvest which, computed at average local market prices, was worth $430,000,000; in other words the country which dared to raise $152,000,000 of capital produced from its natural resources something over $550,000,000.

Like all well-informed English financial men Mr. Horne-Payne recognizes that Canada has scarcely begun to exploit her natural wealth, and he predicts that she will this year have a record crop exceeding in value $500,000,000. "Whether," he says, "you look at the coal fields of Nova Scotia, the great asbestos fields of Quebec, the iron, silver and nickel of Northern Ontario, the petroleum and coal of Alberta, the gold, silver, and copper of British Columbia, the agriculture, lumber, fisheries, or fruit of the whole country, the industries are but beginning, and it is no prophecy, but a matter of absolute certainty, to foretell that they will all double in every decade of this century."

COAL DEALERS WORKING TO SECURE LOWER RATES

Meeting Held in Lindsay Recently —Are Trying to Obtain Better Freight Rates From Railways— Any Advantage Secured Will be Given to People.

PETERBORO' REPRESENTED

A meeting was held recently in Lindsay of the coal merchants of the district for the purpose of discussing matters of interests to the trade. Nearly all the coal dealers in Lindsay and Peterborough county are represented and there are also representatives from other points.

Peterborough delegates were: J. A. Fitzgerald, of the Fitzgerald Coal Co.; W. Scott, of the Scott Co.; Alderman W. Buller, of the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Co.; Archie Weir, of the O'Brien & Weir Co., and Mr. Rackham, of the Ontario Coal Co.

All of the Lindsay coal dealers were represented at the meeting.

Freight Rates

An important point discussed was the equalisation of freight rates. The freight rates from Black Rock to Lindsay are $1.15 per ton, which is considered altogether too high, and the association will ask the Railway Commission to look into the matter and try and have the rate reduced to $1 per ton, which is considered a fair freight rate.

This again will tend to reduce the price of coal in Lindsay.

Another benefit that the association obtained recently was that all coal is now re-weighed at the Suspension Bridge as well as at the mines and the dealers have only to pay for what coal is on the cars at the bridge. Previous to this arrangement they were compelled to pay for the coal on the cars at the mine.

The local merchants claim that they lost considerable in a year for the reason that a certain amount of coal fell off the cars and considerable was stolen. At any rate the cars as a rule, were short in weight.

The merchants also have the privilege of weighing the coal in Lindsay if they so desire, but they consider that they lose very little coal from the Bridge to Lindsay, consequently they do not weigh it here.

To the Examiner Alderman Buller stated to-day that the Lindsay coal dealers do not deliver coal. The purchaser pays a carter to draw it to his house. It is also not screened. Coal is screened in Peterborough. The screenings are practically worthless and are thrown away. They amount to about 6 or 7 per cent. of the whole load. Coal is selling for about $7.00 a ton in Lindsay and $7.50 in Peterborough, the difference being made up by the delivery, screening and freight charges. An attempt is being made to have Peterborough coal brought to Cobourg on the ferry. It would mean a considerable saving in freightage and anything that may be gained in this respect will be given to the people by a reduction in the price of coal. The dealers are doing their best to secure lower rates and any advantage secured will benefit the consumer for the most part.

Lansdowne Street Citizen Sees Trouble For The City Council

A Lansdowne street resident stopped an Examiner reporter on the street this morning with a story of something the same nature as is reported from some of the citizens on Benson street. "Say," he began. "When are we going to get that walk on our street?"

"Now let's see," the reporter answered." "You'll get that sidewalk—well I am not sure as to the date, but I may safelysa y that you will get that sidewalk perhaps this year, probably not until next, but as I said before ——"

"Here get off th atstuff. I want yoso to put a line or two in the paper to the effect that we once had a sidewalk and someone pulled it up to put a cement one down. However, something went wrong and we can't have a cement walk, and they forgot to bring the wooden one back. We have raised a howl and they promised us a cinder path; now we have to get something or there will be doings around this burg before long. This is no joily. We've put up with this long enough and it is up to the City Council to make this matter right. They have been talking about it and considering it, but I wish to goodness they would wake up and do something."

The gentleman from the vicinity of the Carpet Works considered that the south end was not being fairly dealt with. "What we want is an alderman to look after this ward. We've got more people in the south ward than have any of the others, and still we can't get our fingers near the pie let alone in it. We've got to have an alderman or two of our own soon, and next year is as good as any to begin."

He turned to continue on his way when he stopped and remarked: "You can make that as strong as you like. Remember we mean it and we can stir up the sympathy of the city if this isn't soon fixed."

It has been learned that the sidewalk on the north side of Lansdowne street was built by private citizens, about 30 years ago. It was kept in repair by the city until torn up this summer.

"WEST MUST CONSOLIDATE, NOT EXPAND"—PROF. MAVOR

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—Imperial problems loomed large at yesterday's session of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. At three sections, questions of an interest to the Empire as a whole were discussed.

In the engineering section, which was attended by Lord Strathcona, Sir William White, the eminent naval designer, in his presidential address, discussed Imperial defence, and the connection between a powerful fleet and the development of mercantile shipping.

Sir William dealt with the important influence engineering has had upon the foundation and development of the colonies and dominions beyond the seas, with particular reference to Canada. He discussed at some length questions of economy in the cost of overseas transportation and of increase in speed and dimensions of ships. He also illustrated the intimate connection between a powerful fleet and the development of mercantile shipping and commerce.

In the educational section, Dr. Gray, head of Bradfield College, in his presidential address, pointed out the ignorance of many of his countrymen, even the best educated, in regard to Canada, and advocated the teaching of more geography in the English schools, and subjects bearing on the history, economics, etc., of the Empire.

In the anthropology section, Prof. John L. Myers, in his presidential address, advocated the establishment of an Imperial bureau of ethnology to study the races of the Empire. It was a dream he hoped would soon be fulfilled. What was more practical and nearer conception was a Canadian bureau, and he hinted that during the convention plans would be laid for founding one.

What kind of men is Canada making out of the raw material which Europe is feeding into God's mills on this side? This was the question that they should study. They studied trains, cattle, land, etc., but not men.

Other questions of particular interest to Western Canada were also under consideration. At a joint session of the economic and agricultural sections, papers of vital importance to the west were read. One was on "The evolution of wheat culture," by Prof. Albert Perry Brigham, secretary of the Association of American Geographers, and the other "Agricultural Development in the Northwest of Canada," by Prof. James Mavor, of Toronto University.

Prof. Brigham dealt with the migration of the wheat centre from New York westward, and the probable present centre of wheat for North America.

He thought that it would not be many years until the United States home production would be such that it could no longer export to Europe. He predicted that in a few years Canada would be shipping wheat to the Republic.

Prof. Mavor's paper went fully into the agricultural resources and developments of the west. He placed the total area in the west available for wheat culture at 17,250,000 acres, with a total production at 18 bushels per acre of 317,375,000 bushels, leaving about 232,250,000 for export. He refused, however, to assume responsibility for the figures.

He closed with an optimistic statement as to the future, and a plea for caution and care in developing the country

"The country," he said, "needs no fantastic exaggeration or attention either to its achievements or its possibilities. What it needs at present is a cool estimate of these, and consolidation, rather than excessive expansion."

In the geological and geographical sections, J. B. Tyrrell gave a paper on the geology of Western Canada and Prof. A B. Coleman read a paper on "The extent of the ice sheets of the great plains."

Somewhat of a sensation was created in the chemical section when the president, Prof. Armstrong, attacked methods of advertising used by some scientists.

"I thought," he said, in conclusion, "the reputation of scientists was liable to be besmirched by the way they were seeking notoriety. I know that not a few who have labored steadfastly and seriously in the old-fashioned, exact and painstaking way, have been deeply hurt by the manner in which their efforts have failed to meet with encouragement, whilst those who have thrown caution to the winds have been favored."

Mr. Glassco, of Toronto, wrote us on May 13th last:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.,
269 Church St., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—

I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters". All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief, until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters". Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion, and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. S. GLASSCO.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association

"Why," repeated Almeric, "she's been giving him money, hasn't she? You took it to him yourself, didn't you? Naturally we understood what it was for. She's trying to keep the beggar quiet."

"So that's what she sent the poor cuss the money for, was it? That's the way you look at it, eh?" the American asked.

"Why, of course! What other reason could there be?" asked the other.

"Well, you know I'd sort of gathered it was because she was sorry for him—thought he'd been wronged, but, of course, I'm stupid!"

"Well, ray-ther! I don't know that it was so necessary for her to hush him up, but it showed a very worthy intention in her, didn't it, eh, now?"

Pike looked at him carefully.

"Would you mind my being present when you thank her for it?" he asked, and Almeric laughed riotously.

"Shouldn't in the least if I intended to thank her. It simply shows that she considers herself already one of us. It's perfectly plain—as plain as you are, eh?"

He walked off whistling.

Pike gazed after him with an admirable chuckle. As he turned about he saw Ethel standing at the head of the steps, and there was a sad look upon her face.

"I hear that Lord Hawcastle has left," she said quietly.

"Yes. I saw him go last night," he answered, looking up at her.

"He left very quickly," she said absently.

"He did seem to be forgetting the scenery," the American replied. "Did you see Ivanoff?"

"Yes. I am almost sorry. He made so much of—what I could do."

"There are some good people over here, ain't there?" he ventured, and she looked at him quickly.

"When you are at home again I hope you will remember them," she said.

"I will," he replied.

"And I hope you will forget everything I ever said," she went on.

"Somehow it doesn't seem likely as if I ever would," he returned.

"Oh, yes, you will," she said. "All those unkind things I said to you"—

"Oh, I'll forget those easy," he interrupted quickly, and she went on, almost tearfully:

"And the other things, too, when you're once more among your kind, good home folks—and probably there's one—you'll be so glad to get back to you'll hardly know you've been away—an unworldly girl, one that doesn't need to be cured of—oh, all sorts of follies—a kind girl, one who's been sweet to you. I can see her; she wears white muslin and waits by the gate for you at twilight. Isn't she like that?"

He shook his head.

"No, not like that."

"But there is some one there?" she asked.

He smiled sadly.

"Yes," she went on. "No matter how humbly he begins and no matter what it costs me, I must be with him, helping him. Isn't that true?"

"That's what any good, brave woman would do," he said.

"It must be done. I haven't seen Almeric since last night. I must see him now. I've shirked facing him today. He has always been so light and gay that I dread seeing him bending under this blow. It is my duty to help him bear it."

"Yes; it's your duty all right."

"Then you think I am right. You agree"—

"Yes; I agree," he answered gravely, "I give my consent to your marriage."

"You do!" cried Ethel. And there was a distinct horror in her tone. It was as if the idea shocked her.

"I'll place it in your hands," he answered and then was rudely twirled about by Horace, who had approached.

"I protest against this!" cried the young man. "She does not know what she's doing! I for one won't have it!"

"Too late!" cried Ethel, with a choking sob. "He's consented!"

And with a bowed head she ran from them into the hotel.

WITH A CRY OF RAGE AND DESPAIR ETHEL TURNED ON HIM

CHAPTER XIX.

IN SUSPENSE.

HORACE turned on Pike. His voice trembled with suppressed rage.

"A fine guardian, you are!" he said witheringly. "You came here to protect her from something you thought was rotten. Now we all know it's rotten you hand her over!"

The lad paused, and then he laughed bitterly.

"By Jove," he exclaimed of a sudden, "I shouldn't be surprised if you consent to the settlement too!"

The lawyer looked at him gravely.

"My son, I shouldn't be surprised if I did."

"By the Lord, but you play a queer game, Mr. Pike."

"Oh, I'm just crossing the Rubicon. Your father used to say: 'If you're going to cross the Rubicon, cross it. Don't wade out to the middle and stand there. You only get it—it from both banks!'"

"I beg your pardon," said a voice behind them, and they turned to find Lady Creech. She went on, addressing Horace:

"Mr. Granger-Simpson, have you seen my nephew?"

"No. I've rather avoided that, if you don't mind my saying so," Horace replied.

"I'm sorry, Lady Creech," he went on, "but I've had a most awful shaking up, and I'm thinking of going back home with Mr. Pike. I think he's about right in his ideas. You know we abused him, not only for himself, but for his vulgar friend, yet his vulgar friend turned out to be a grand duke, and look at what our friends turned out to be!"

"You'll find her some day."

He stopped quickly to the entrance and disappeared into the hotel. Almeric's voice was heard as Lady Creech turned to go, and Pike smiled.

"Here he comes now, bending under the blow," he said.

Almeric appeared with a white bull pup, which he handed over to Mariano with the remark:

"Wash him a bit, old chap; tepid water, you know, and a drop of milk afterward—nothing but milk, you know. Be deuced careful, I say!"

As Mariano disappeared with the dog at arm's length Lady Creech said solemnly:

"Almeric, really there are more important things, you know."

"Rot!" replied the young man. "I almost missed him. But I think I'm to be congratulated, you know. Eh?"

"I think you are, my son," said Pike quietly. "I have given my consent."

"Rippin'!" declared Almeric. And Lady Creech started forward.

"And the settlement?" she asked. Pike nodded.

"The settlement also—everything!"

Ethel came from the side of the terrace, followed by Horace, who seemed to be arguing with her.

"Of course I never worried, you know," said Almeric. "But I fancy it will be a weight off the poor governor's mind. I'll wire him at Naples, for he'll be glad to know about that bally convict chap—the arrangement you made with him, you know."

"Almeric, I think it's noble to be brave in trouble, but"— Ethel began, and Pike smiled behind his hand. Almeric looked at her in astonishment.

"I say, you know, you've really got me!"

"I mean that I admire you for your pluck, for your seeming unconcern under disgrace, but"—

"Disgraced! Why, who's disgraced? Not even the governor, as I see it! You got that chap called off, didn't you?"

"Whom do you mean?" she asked, wonderment in her voice.

"Why, that convict chap. Didn't you send him away? You bought him off so he wouldn't talk, didn't you—gave him money not to bother us?"

NO TRACES OF POISON FOUND IN STOMACH OF WILLOUGHBY

Provincial Analyst's Report Not Yet Received, But Superficial Examination of the Organs by Norwood's Doctors Shows the Above — Inquest Resumed at Norwood Yesterday—More Evidence Taken.

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT

While there was no evidence submitted to this effect at the adjourned inquest into the deaths of Thos. Willoughby and his little daughter Stella, it is understood that there were no traces of poison in his stomach, although Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew, who performed the post mortem only made a superficial examination of this organ. Nothing definite will be known until the report from the Provincial analysts is received. There was evidence of powder on the clothes and body of the child.

The adjourned inquests into the tragic deaths of Thos. Willoughby and his little daughter, Stella, that took place near the village of Norwood last Tuesday afternoon, was resumed in the Norwood town hall yesterday at one o'clock before Coroner Dr. Gray. A large number of spectators was present, the sad fatality having shocked the entire country side. No evidence of a startling nature was given and the report of the Provincial analysts not having yet been received, another adjournment was called until September seventh. The evidence of Dr. Sutton, who performed the post mortem and of Mrs. Ruttan the first woman to arrive at the Willoughby home after the shooting of the little girl, was probably the most important given.

Mrs. Ruttan

Mrs. Ruttan called, said she lived a mile and a half from the late Mr Willoughby's home. She was over there at about 3:30 in the afternoon on the day of the tragedy. She knocked at the kitchen door and Willoughby opened it. He seemed very much frightened and was gasping for breath. He had a tea cup in his hand and the witness could see the inside of it and the cup appeared to be empty. He went on toward the barn, to the pump, Mrs. Ruttan thought. The little boy was just inside the door crying. She asked him where his mamma was. She thought perhaps Mrs. Willoughby was sick and that Willoughby was going to the pump to get some water. The little boy said his mother was at Norwood. "Then I saw the little girl on the floor of the summer kitchen. She was lying with her face turned towards the woodshed with her head on a mat. She had the dress on she wore when she was shot. There was a hole in the dress in the neighbourhood of the child's heart. I did not examine the wound."

Willoughby came back from the barn and told the witness to go to McMillan's or somewhere else and send the doctor up. There were two girls in the house at McMillan's and they told the men in the field. Mrs. Ruttan thought Mrs. Bass went for the doctor.

Gordon Bass, the next witness, said he lived in Dummer, about half a mile from the Willoughby home. Mrs. Ruttan had met them in the road and had told them of the affair, and Messrs. Lang and Metcalf, and myself were driven up to Willoughby's by Thos. McMillan.

When they got to the gate they looked back and saw Mrs. Willoughby driving up. The witness helped her out of the buggy in the yard. He saw the little boy run out to the front of the house and run back again as they were approaching. When they got there the boy was looking out of the front window. Mr. Bass told Mrs. Willoughby he did not know what the trouble was as he hadn't been in the house. He and Mrs. Willoughby went into the kitchen through the dining room, into the parlour and saw Willoughby and the girl stretched out both apparently dead. The little boy was in the room where the bodies lay. His mother asked him what had happened, and he said: "Papa has shot Stella." Witness had heard Willoughby complain of stomach trouble.

Clarence Sampson

Clarence Sampson, a brother of Mrs. Willoughby, called, said that he lived eight miles north of the Willoughby home. He didn't get word of the death of Mr. Willoughby and the little girl until about six o'clock. Mr. Willoughby had complained of his health and he had heard his sister say that her husband had heart ailure.

Dr. Sutton

Dr. Sutton was next sworn. He said that he made a post mortem examination of the bodies with Dr. Pettigrew. The cause of the little girl's death was due to the heart being ruptured. The upper lobe of the left lung and the fourth rib was fractured. The heart was ruptured by some projectile. No shot was found in the girl's body. The wound might have been caused by a gun shot at close range, probably about thirty inches. The stomach, liver and gall bladder of Willoughby were sent to Provincial analysts at Toronto.

Dr. Ford

Dr. Ford stated that Willoughby had come to him for treatment. He had been suffering from chronic indigestion and had organic ailment of the heart. Willoughby's heart trouble, the doctor judged would probably have been caused by worry.

This concluded the evidence, the inquest being adjourned until Tuesday, September seventh, at 1 o'clock in the Norwood town hall.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT FOR REVOLUTIONISTS

Rebels Are Imprisoned and Tortured and Then Court-martialled and Shot---No Mercy Shown to Prisoners.

Madrid, Aug. 26. — Punishment, swift and dire, has overtaken the Barcelona revolutionists.

There are hundreds of them interned in grim Montjuich, the fortress which dominates the town, but their numbers are rapidly growing less.

Daily there are courts-martial in the fortress, swift, short trials. A little later there is a sharp crackle of rifles and another batch of rebels have paid for their actions with their lives.

No mercy is shown to anyone who can be shown to have had the slightest connection with the disturbances, and General Santiago's stern measures have struck terror into Anarchistic circles.

In the subterranean dungeons of Montjuich, that grim-looking fortress of sinister record dominating the city and the harbour, there are interned a thousand prisoners, men, women and mere youths, who have been captured in connection with the recent revolutionary movement.

Few of those who are now captives in Montjuich will leave it alive. Not much time is wasted in dealing with the "Reds" of Barcelona, and their ranks are being daily thinned by a military firing party.

At daybreak to-day muffled sounds of volley firing resounded within these prison walls. It was the death knell of batches of condemned, who were being executed by order of the court-martial, which is vested with plenary powers and sits all day.

Its procedure is swift, terribly swift. Five officers constitute this dread tribunal. The prisoners are brought from their cells in the castle vaults by a winding stone staircase, and are ushered into a narrow apartment where sit their judges. When they leave it by another door on the opposite side, their lives declared forfeit, their death warrant is already signed.

Some of the accused were taken red handed, and others, when the movement collapsed, were found hiding in obscure dens in the poorer quarters of the city. If any prisoner smelt of petroleum, or if there were traces of gunpowder on their hands, they were condemned after a brief consultation among the members of the court by the terrible laconic and significant phrase of the president of that body "Guilty—Death."

So it goes on with monotonous regularity as fresh prisoners make a fleeting appearance on the rough-and-ready judicial stage. From the finding of the court there is no appeal, chiefly because a very few hours after sentence is pronounced the prisoners have passed outside of its jurisdiction into a world beyond.

Without exception, the prisoners met death unflinchingly, being executed in groups of five. Some submitted to their eyes being bandaged, but others preferred to take their last look at the world from the parade where they would fall.

To-day a party of freshly captured prisoners mounted the hill to Montjuich, and disappeared within the prison whence few, if any, will emerge alive. One man was wounded, his arm was roughly bound, and he was smoking a cigarette. He turned to look for the last time at Barcelona and its smiling waters, and a moment later, like the mouth of some greedy bird of prey, the gates of Montjuich closed eagerly upon him and his companions.

One shuddered involuntarily, and felt that over the portals of this inferno of Barcelona might with all truth be written: "All hope abandon ye who enter here."

Spain is exacting a terrible retribution for the wild deeds of the last week. Her military judge's boast is no idle one, that when the work of repression is finished not even a mouse with Anarchistic proclivities will be found in the whole wide province of Catalonia. Barcelona, with its story of rebellions that have failed, is being taught the most terrible lesson in its history.

Amongst the prisoners there are about a hundred women and an equal number of boys, the latter hardly out of their teens. These women and lads carried incendiary torches to the revolutionary horde. Armed with petroleum-soaked cotton waste, they formed an advance guard, their mission being to set fire to churches and convents that had been marked down for destruction. These women, like their prototypes of the Paris Commune, seemed possessed of an insatiable lust for blood. It was they who killed whom their men associates would have spared in the height of their devlish fury.

No excesses appalled them But their turn is coming to pay for the red debt they incurred They, too, will make their bow before that stern-looking council of five From the dim justice hall, with its mediaeval odour, it is but a few short steps to a secluded spot under the shadow of the western wall, where the firing squad stands ready It is but a few more to the little cemetery outside the fortress walls, where many freshly turned mounds of earth tell their own tale.

The people who played at revolution with half the city for a stage are now awaiting their turn to be placed against the courtyard wall and be shot.

In some instances the accused are respited temporarily because they are able to impart useful information. This accounts for the continuance of the arrests and the constant stream of prisoners through the condemned cells which are kept constantly filled.

Sinister stories are current of the mediaeval methods for the "persuation" of prisoners revived at Montjuich since the wholesale interment of the rebels. Thirty who were shot on Wednesday were awakened at daybreak and told that their hour had come. They were marched from the cells in silence to the commandant's office, where each was given the opportunity of making a last statement. Then they were led into the courtyard, where the firing squad of forty infantry men stood waiting, and shot without further ceremony in two lots in the presence of the officials and a portion of the garrison of the fortress

Most of them denied defiantly, shouting "Down with the Government! Down with the war! Long live the republic!" The bodies were buried in trenches within the fortress to avoid the possibility of their being given a martyr's funeral by sympathizers outside.

Reuter says that some of those not sentenced to death will be imprisoned in chains for life.

SIR CURZON WYLLIE FUND

London, Aug. 26.— Contributions to the Curzon Wyllie memorial fund, of which Lord Roberts is chairman, amount to £390, 14s., and a scheme is to be presented shortly to the general committee suggesting an investment bearing Sir Curzon Wyllie's name on behalf of the Asiatic Strangers' Home in the East End, to which he was devotedly attached, and the erection of a tablet in the crypt of St. Paul's.

AGAIN THE RUMOUR THAT C.P.R. GRAIN LINE WILL NOT TOUCH HERE

It is altogether likely that a new survey of the proposed C. P. R. grain route will be made between here and the main line in order to avoid the steep grade to Peterborough. In that case the railway will not touch Peterborough, but will tap the main line somewhere near that city.

Mr. H. M. Killaley, of Montreal, a C. P. R. official was in town to-day, and was driven out to Emily this afternoon to look over the land. In conversation with a Post reporter this morning that gentleman stated that some of the hills between Fowler's Corners and Peterborough were 500 feet in height, and it is in order to avoid these that the route will probably be changed. The present survey brings the line through Jackson's Park into Peterborough.—Lindsay Post.

SEASIDE TRAGEDY

Consul-General's Wife Goes Mad While On Holiday.

Budapest, Aug. 26. — A distressing tragedy is reported from Cirkvenica (Hungary). Senora Gayan, wife of the Argentine Consul-General at Budapest, who was staying there on a holiday, was taking a walk on the beach with her three children, when she suddenly took them into the sea and tried to drown both them and herself. The two youngest children, aged three and one, were drowned, but the oldest, who was five years old, and the mother were saved. The two dead bodies were recovered. The tragedy is attributed to Senora Gayan having become mentally deranged.

PRESENT FOR WARSHIP

Rome, Aug. 26.—The ladies of Pisa on Sunday presented to Admiral Acovazzi, representing the Minister of Marine, a flag which they had embroidered for the warship Pisa. An enormous crowd was present at the ceremony. Cardinal Maffi, a native of Pisa blessed the flag.

LIVED ON BERRIES FOR THIRTY DAYS

Fort William, Ont., August 27. — Lost in the wilderness for thirty days, during which time he subsisted entirely on berries and roots, is the experience of Herbert Reeves, aged thirty years, who was admitted to the hospital here yesterday.

Reeves had been working in a lumber camp, but left over a month ago to walk overland to the Canadian Pacific, and was lost en route, and was without food or a gun. He still remembers, but only at random, some instances of his terrible pilgrimage.

OLD AGE PENSIONS ARE APPROVED

Bombay, India, Aug. 26.—The Government of India have decided, with Lord Morley's approval, to establish a general provident fund, which is to be open to all Government servants in superior service, and in most cases subscription to which will be compulsory. The fund will not be open to European members of the Indian Civil Service.

A subscription of not less than 6 1-4 and not more than 12 1-2 per cent. of his salary will be deducted from the subscribers pay each month, and the whole of the sum which so accumulates to his credit will be handed over to him unconditionally on quitting the service, together with compound interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

DEMONSTRATION OF UNDERDRAINAGE

Conducted on a Farm Near Norwood by O. A. C. Expert.

The drainage demonstration held at Mr. G. A. Brethen's farm on Friday of last week was a decided success. The morning was almost ideal for harvesting, consequently the fact that about twenty farmers were in attendance, is ample proof of the interest that is being taken in under-drainage.

The demonstration was conducted by Mr. W. R. Reek, who is one of the four experts employed by the O. A. C. Department of Physics to carry on drainage survey work. Mr. Reek first gave a short talk on the value of underdraining, the cost, the returns, etc. He advised placing the drains four rods apart in heavy clay and from 75 to 100 feet apart in lighter soil. The depth of the drains largely determined the root growth of the plants. Accordingly, drains placed three feet deep gave a strong growth of roots which enabled a crop to better withstand drought. Mr. Reek also pointed out that the township could secure money from the Government to lend to farmers for drainage purposes. This money could be secured at four per cent., payable in easy payments.

In demonstrating the use of the home-made level and the over-head line, Mr. Reek had the farmers proceed as they would in actually doing the work. The possibility of laying the tile exactly true to grade appealed to the farmers as being a very important feature. The demonstration was made doubly valuable by the distribution of pamphlets which would serve as guides when the newly acquired information would be put into practice.

This was the last demonstration of a series which Mr. Reek has been giving during the past three weeks in Eastern Ontario. The work will, however, be continued in this county by Mr. H. C. Duff, of the district branch of the Department of Agriculture.—Norwood Register.

SIEGEL MURDER HURT CHINATOWN

One Large Restaurant Has Applied for Receivership.

The effect of the Siegel murder on Chinatown has been a disastrous one. A prominent restaurant which caters exclusively to the trippers to Chinatown has been compelled to apply for a receivership. This is the old story. The notoriety gained by crime, or even on an unproven accusation of crime, is only noxious. Many will call to mind the case of the young woman who successfully withstood an unusual number of hard-fought trials upon a capital charge. She finally went free. She had been an actress. After this trial it was proposed to make a "star" out of her. There seemed some validity in the idea. For months her name had been on every one's lips and her picture in every paper. Yet, when the thousands upon thousands who were familiar with her name and adventures had an easy opportunity of seeing her in full human presence on the stage they did not avail themselves of it. The kind of fame she had earned in the courts had little or no weight among the steady-going people who form everywhere the deciding bulk of the theatre-going public.

Chinatown will recover. It remains one of the strongest and most fascinating parts of New York.

The most violent of Chinaman, even that Mock Duck, who, in his palmy days, was so tremendous and awe-inspiring a character, will not interfere with the gentle, wide-eyed inhabitants of the yap-waggon.—New York Telegraph.

MORE COTTAGES AT CROWE'S LANDING

East End of Stony Lake is Gradually Being Built Up.

We hear that several new cottages are to be added to the Norwood end of the lake. Mr. W. H. Cuthbertson of Norwood, has already begun the erection of a cottage on the Dummer shore next to Mr. T. E. Finlay's fine new summer home. Mr. Hugh Robb has secured a lot on the shore a little further west and intends putting up a cottage next year. Mr. E. P. Cuffe, of Norwood, has also purchased about two acres of land on the shore east of Crowe's Landing and next season purposes erecting a fine cottage thereon. And so it goes.—Norwood Register.

POST CARD COLUMN

Peterborough, Aug. 26, '09.

Editor Post Card Column.

Sir,—I will reply, with your permission, to the two letters in to-night's Examiner. With regard to the Warkworth fiasco, to go into details would only teach the young generation how to be ill-mannered. Your own columns are proof. In complaining of the charges of Campbellford I was voicing the sentiments of the team, and I hope every sensible person. The reference to canoeing and the subscription shows there is something behind all this buffoonery, this lamentable farce and pitiful travesty of a noble game.

OTTAWA MAN WINS.

Sergt. G. W. Russell Carries Off Grand Aggregate.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Sgt. G. W. Russell, of the G.G.F.G., Ottawa, won the Grand Aggregate at the D. R. A. yesterday with the fine score of 254. Pte. Clifford, Grenadiers, Toronto, was six points behind, and a number of Western Ontario men were well up.

The marksmen were bothered yesterday by a very strong and tricky wind, so that the scores were not so high as has been the case hitherto.

A feature of yesterday was the splendid record of the Royal Grenadiers, who won the Lansdowne, Gillespie, Kirkpatrick and Gordon Highlanders' Challenge Cups—a clean sweep.

The first stage of the Governor-General's match was concluded yesterday by firing at the 600-yard range. The 200 and 500 yards were shot early in the week and the final ranges will be shot to-day.

Pte. F. Bibby, of the 77th Regt., stands at the head of the list with 109, out of a possible 105, and wins the D.R.A. silver medal for the event. The Transvaal Cup and medal, open to Canadians who served in the Boer War, and make best score in first stage, was won by Major McCrimmin, 7th Fusilier, 98. Sgt. Russell, Ottawa, was second with 101, and Sgt. D. McInnes of the 13th Alberta Mounted Rifles 3rd with 100. Others who qualified with good scores of 94 and better were: Sgt. Youhill, 6th D.C.O.A.; Capt. Forrest, 6th D.C.O.R.; Lt. Morris, 13th M.R.; Corp. Whitehorn, 10th R.G.; Maj. Elliott, 12th; Sgt. Maj. Huggins, 13th; Pte. Emslie, 48th; Pte. Taylor, 77th; Pte. Latimer, 10th R.G.; Capt. Crowe, 30th; Sgt. Sprinks, 10th R.G.; Pte. Clifford, 10th R.G.; Col. Sgt. Freebern, 13th; Mr. McHarg, D.C.R.A.; Lt. Sgt. T. Mitchell, 13th; Sgt. Nichol, 13th; Maj. Dillon, 34th; Q.M.S. Davidson, 48th; Col. Sgt. Bowden, 38th; Major Rennie, Q.O.R.; Sgt. Guild, 36th; Captain Olmshield, 48th; Sgt. J. Phillips, 10th R.G.

Moors Lose Heavily.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—Special despatches from Melilla, Morocco, say the fighting is general on the Moroccan coast. The new Spanish artillery has wrought terrible havoc among the Moors, who have lost 1,000 men in the last three days. The Spanish casualties amount to 350. The Spanish column has destroyed three villages near Restinge.

A Moorish deserter, who came into the Spanish lines, declares that Spanish prisoners are being tortured and mutilated. They are then decapitated by their captors and their dead bodies flung into a hole on Mount Ourga. This hole is a mass of decomposed corpses. Estimates place the number of Spanish prisoners at 1,000.

Billed for an Income Tax.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—A prominent firm of Montreal exporters recently perused a demand for an income tax of $49 to be paid to the Government of New Zealand.

The tax, which is duly provided for by a New Zealand statute, is at the rate of five per cent. on the net profit of specific sales affected by the Canadian firm in the sister colony without the intervention of the resident agent there. The same impost has already attracted a good deal of attention in England, where it hits a large number of exporters.

"Keewatin" Collided with Log Raft.

Owen Sound, Aug. 27.—Fifteen hundred thousand feet of logs, belonging to the John Harrison & Sons Co., were let loose near Cabot's Head by a collision with the steamer Keewatin. It was about 3 a.m. when the crew and passengers of the Keewatin were rudely jarred by a sudden shock. The steamer had run into a big raft in tow of the tug Harrison, bound for Owen Sound. She had struck almost fair in the middle, smashed the booms and generally scattered the raft—on which her officers claim there were no lights.

Editor Kicked to Death.

New York, Aug. 27.—William N Chandler, editor of The Panama Press, was killed in Panama by Gen Herbert O. Jeffries, who figured prominently in the Panamanian revolution, according to a special cable despatch to The World. Chandler was killed says the despatch, by being struck on the head with the butt end of a revolver and by being violently kicked by Gen. Jeffries. The cause of the attack is said to have been an article reflecting on the sister-in-law of Jeffries.

I. O. F. Elections.

Brampton, Aug. 27.—The Central District High Court of the I. O. F elected the following officers yesterday: Alex Cowan, Barrie, P.H.C.R.; John T. Scott, J.P., Caledon East, H C.R.; Clarence Bell, Toronto, H.V C.R.; R. J. Niddrie, M.D., Creemore, High Secretary; Alex. Stewart, Toronto, High Treasurer; Dr. S. P. Clark Dornoch, High Physician; G. C. Albery, Meaford, High Councillor; J. D. Kenchie, R. H. Cuthbert, High Auditors.

One "Victim" Is Alive.

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 27.—Frank X. Reidinger, who was supposed to have been a victim of Mrs. Belle Gunness at Laporte, Ind., is alive and well on a farm near Freeport, Nebraska, according to a letter received from him yesterday.

J. P. Missing; $800 Short.

Rama, Sask., Aug. 27.—J. B. Russell, J.P., secretary-treasurer of the school district, has been missing some little time, and his accounts show a shortage of $800. He came from Winnipeg about a year ago.

An Imperialist Address.

London, Aug. 27.—(C. A. P.)—Dr. Thompson's address at Winnipeg is discussed editorially by all the papers here. The Standard observes it is couched in Imperial language, his advocacy of the establishment of reciprocity between the universities being a suggestion which should do much to draw the Empire together. The News and Post comment on the renaissence of physics, the latter observing that discoveries and advances in that branch of knowledge have been so rapid and dramatic that they exceed, both in importance and interest, those achieved in any other field.

He Did Not Know.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Ald. Giroux, chairman of the roads committee, yesterday denied before the Royal Commission that he had any idea that Brunet, the middleman, would clear $50,000 on this year's paving contracts. If he had, he would have tried to get the work done cheaper.

Joachim Webster testified that he paid Brunet a rake-off simply to avoid his competition and not for his influence with council.

It was announced that the court would examine the 23 aldermen who have been voting with Ald. Giroux and who gave him his majority.

Laurier Won't Go West.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—It is not at all likely that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be able to accept the invitation of the Liberals of the prairie provinces and British Columbia to visit the west this autumn. As Parliament will meet not later than Nov. 18, and perhaps a fortnight earlier, Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues will require all the time at their disposal to make ready the sessional program.

IF your baking goes wrong, investigate — find the cause. Look to your stove, your yeast, your baking methods.

If you succeed in pinning the trouble down to the flour—then take up the flour question in dead earnest.

Consider that flour, to be successful from a baking standpoint, must be fine to produce light bread or pastry, pure to make that bread or pastry wholesome, and rich in nutriment to make it nourishing.

STRONG LINE-UPS ANNOUNCED FOR TO-MORROW'S BIG GAME

The biggest crowd of the season will be on hand for the City League game at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon between the T. A. S. and Strathconas which has a most important effect upon the championship. A win for the Strathconas makes an extra series between Park St. and the Abstainers imperative and the Commissioners may be depended upon to do their best to bring about defeat for the T.A.S., as they are working hard to win one series. The two teams have met twice before this season, on the first occasion the Abstainers winning by 11 to 6, and on the second the Commissioners turning the tables and scoring a 4 to 2 victory. They have been cocky ever since, over their ability to beat the leaders and claim they will just about turn the trick again to-mororw. The Straths have selected Gorman, their three-fingered exponent of the art of pitching to do the twirling, while Quinlan will work for the T.A.S.. It will be a pitchers' battle, as Gorman seems to have the goat of most of the T.A.S. batters, while Quinlan is generally a mystery to them all. The game will start sharp at 3 o'clock with Dan McCabe handling the indicator. The same prices as last Saturday will prevail.

The teams will line up as follows: T.A.S.—McFadden c, Quinlan p, M. O'Brien 1b, Flaherty 2b, Cahill ss, Callaghan 3b, Doherty lf, W. O'Brien cf, Derocher rf, spares Corkery and Giroux.

Strathconas—Curtis rf, Shaw lf, Weatherstone 2b, Craig cf, Kendry ss, Heaslip 1b, Ray 3b, Andrews c, Gorman p, Hickey, Ferguson, Sheridan and Wettlaufer spares.

WESTMOUNT TO PLAY SENIOR IN QUEBEC

The Westmount Rugby Club held its annual meeting last night at Victoria Hall, when the following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Jas. Baillie.
President—H. R. Holland.
Vice-President—A. E. Rex.
Secretary—G P. Reiffenstein.

If the meeting of the Union Sept. 4 decides to form a senior series of the Q.R.F.U., Westmount will make application to the senior ranks and will enter teams in the intermediate and junior series also.

KING CLANCY'S IDEA OF THE VALUABLE MAN

Here's a secret which "King" Clancy, secretary of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, and coach of the Ottawa club, has managed to hide for years. Recently a number of lacrosse enthusiasts were discussing the advisability of publishing the goal scoring list in lacrosse and hockey, and the names of those who notched the points in football, and runs and hits in baseball. One of the Capital players argued that it was a mistake to give the name of the man who shot the goal credit for it and to ignore the player who had carried the rubber in and made the opening for him; likewise to give credit to a man who scored a touch, and to pass over the good work of the man who gave him the opportunity to distinguish himself. "King" Clancy finally broke into the discussion, stating that goals, points or runs didn't count in any game. "It's the steady worker who deserves the credit," remarked Clancy. "And he seldom gets it." Then they got on to football talk and pointgetting in that game.

"The good man in a football team is seldom heard of," finally declared Clancy. "It isn't always the man who makes the touch-down or kicks the goal who wins the game. Let me tell you that I played football for ten years and that while I figured on six or seven championship teams I never scored a touchdown."

NOTES ON TO-MORROW'S GAME.

There will be more excitement at to-morrow's City League game than there was over the Benson street sidewalk, so weak-hearted people are kindly asked to remain at home.

To-morrow's game will start sharp at 3 o'clock, and every man on both teams is expected to be on hand before that time. A pleasant feature last Saturday was the fact that the game started promptly at the stroke of three and the same rule will be in force to-morrow.

Gorman and Andrews will be the battery for the Straths, and Quinlan and McFadden for the T. A. S.

The Abstainers have exactly the same lineup as defeated Park Street last week, and they expect to win just as handily to-morrow. The Straths say that there will be no Bleriot flights on their part and that they will play ball all the time.

The diamond will be in better shape than last week as the grass has been closely clipped, making the ground faster.

Ladies will be admitted free to the grounds and to the grandstand.

I. O. F. IN SESSION

Large Number of Delegates Were Present at the First Meeting Yesterday.

Smith Falls, Aug. 27.—A large number of delegates of the I. O. F. are here attending the High Court of the I O. F. which went into session yesterday morning. High Chief Ranger Lowrie opened the court. After it was formally organized prayer was offered by the High Orator, Rev. Mr. Richards and then business was begun. The High Court degree was conferred on all who had not already received it and then there were reports from the different officers on the year's operations. The High Chief Ranger in his report expressed the appreciation of the High Court of the kindness shown the delegates and of the warm welcome that was given them on every hand in Smith's Falls.

In referring to the Order he said that all the reports of the deputies for the past four months showed a decided improvement and attested to the restored confidence in the Order. On the 30th of June, 1909, he said the accumulated funds of the Order amounted to $13,871,367.32, showing an increase during the year of $1,660,830.36.

Dr. C. Day Clark, assistant Supreme Physician, was present and was introduced to the Court. He was received with royal honours and he warmly thanked the delegates for their very touching kindness to him. He spoke eloquently of the aims and achievements of the order, and incidentally congratulated the members on the splendid basis on which it was now securely established since the readjustment of the rates. He said that had been a big question, a hard question to handle, but it had been handled, the members had stood loyally by the Supreme Officers and today they had an order that they could commend to everyone without any fear or reservation. He bore an eloquent tribute to the Supreme Chief Ranger and said that his great ability and vast energies were being exercised for the Independent Order of Foresters.

Mr. Share, of Ottawa, gave notice of motion of certain amendments to the constitution and Mr. Ewart, of Smith's Falls gave notice of motion for the next High Court of amendments providing for reducing the representation of High Court.

An address of welcome was read by Mayor McCallum in the afternoon.

OPEN AIR MEETING ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Questions answered will include "Was Jesus Christ's body raised a corporal body?" "Is there knowledge in the Spirit world before Resurrection?" "Are saved and unsaved in the same condition before Resurrection?" "Will both classes be raised at the same time?" These questions have thrust themselves upon the attention of every man and woman some time or another, and a very large audience is expected. Please stand well over on Brock street so as not to block George street. Singing will commence at 8:20 p.m.

IS BUILDING ON BIG ISLAND

POST CARD COLUMN.

Peterborough, Aug. 26, '09.

Editor Post Card Column.

Sir,—In reading the "Benson Street Walk" controversy, I quite agree with our East City alderman in calling down Ald. Phelan for the way he ignores the Concession street ratepayers' petition for a pavement walk sent in two years ago. For some distance there is no sign of a walk and the remaining part has worn-out boards—not worth calling a walk. This street is a popular thoroughfare between the lift-locks and the beautiful park, "Nicholls Oval," and should be attended to at once, as promised.

RATEPAYER.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

O You Kidd!

We have heard many tales of the treasure buried by Captain Kidd and much labour and money have been expended in search for it, but so far without success. It now seems possible that the much sought-for treasure may be buried in Benson street, owing to the strenuous opposition of certain residents on that street to the excavation required for proposed new sidewalk. What do you think about it?

Yours truly,
"OLD SAILOR."

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED

Mr. Felix Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and inflammation of the bowels and liver trouble and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralysed, and was deaf in left ear for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me and I am very grateful. I want to thank you."

JAPAN'S BUFFER STATE

Shanghai, China, Aug. 26.—The National Review says: In view of the fact that Japan has vetoed the development by railway of over a million square miles in Mongolia, it is quite clear that she is beginning the creation of her new buffer state there, so that when she is ready for the absorption of South Manchuria Mongolia may be already in some measure prepared for her domination. If the peace of Asia is to be preserved there must be an immediate end to this sort of thing.

EVERYBODY SHOULD VISIT CANADA'S GREATEST EXHIBITION.

On account of the Canadian National Exhibition, the Grand Trunk Railway System will issue return tickets at SINGLE FARE to Toronto from all stations in Ontario, west of Cornwall and Ottawa, August 28th, to September 11th, inclusive. Good returning from Toronto on or before September 14th, 1909.

Special low rate excursions will be run from all points on certain dates, giving patrons of the Grand Trunk an opportunity of visiting Toronto at very small cost.

Don't fail to call on nearest Grand Trunk Agent for full particulars.

CITY ENGINEER IS WRONGLY BLAMED FOR MANY THINGS

Mayor Rush Says That Mr. Hay is Often Censured When Members of the Council Are At Fault.

BENSON STREET WALK

"City Engineer Hay is often blamed for sidewalks and other public works when the fault is really due to the members of the Council," remarked Mayor Rush to the Examiner this morning in speaking of the Benson street sidewalk.

"If I had acceded to the wishes of the deputation yesterday," continued His Worship, "and the sidewalk had been built where they wanted it instead of where the engineer believes it should go, in two or three years' time people might be saying the work was botched, and that the City Engineer was no good, when really the blame for the bad sidewalk would be mine."

"This has happened in other cases. The engineer has prepared his plans and started work where he knew it would need to be in order to conform with the ultimate grade of the street and people have complained to members of the Council and the work was changed to suit the complaint. Then afterwards when it was found that these people had been mistaken the engineer was blamed for it when really he was not in the least to blame."

Seven Boys Fined For Stealing Plums Last Sunday Morning

Seven boys, ranging in age from ten to fourteen years, were arraigned before the Magistrate this morning, charged with stealing plums from the garden of Robert Redman on Sunday morning last. Five pleaded guilty, but it was proved that the other two remained on the corner while the theft was being committed, and partook of the stolen fruit when they came out.

His Worship gave them a severe talking to and fined each one two dollars, the fines having to be paid forthwith. They will have to remain in gaol until the fines are paid.

Chief Howard Returns From Grand Rapids Convention

Chief Howard returned home yesterday from Grand Rapids, Mich., where he attended what is generally considered one of the most successful conventions of the Fire Chiefs of America. There were two distinct sources of information, the papers and speeches at the meetings, and the demonstrations in the exhibition halls. These were particularly interesting as all the new inventions in fighting fires were thoroughly displayed and it may be said that in this respect the advances made in facilities have been very radical. One in particular was an automobile fire engine which threw two one and a half inch streams 280 feet within ten seconds after the suction pipe had been thrown into the water. It is not a steam engine, the power being the same as that which runs the auto. Chief Howard has seen many wonders in his line but this was out of the ordinary and could scarcely be understood. A motor driven chemical engine was much admired.

One Hundred Leave City On Harvesters' Excursion

About 100 young men from this district joined the harvesters' excursion that passed through Peterborough on the C. P. R. to-day for Winnipeg. The train was made up at Sharbot Lake and was composed of a large number of coaches which were rapidly filling up along the route. For the most part they were young farmers, although there were older men in the party and the towns and villages were represented by a small number who essayed the harvest trip partly out of curiosity and with the probable hope of striking a snap in the western towns.

SIAMESE TWINS IN THE LINE OF APPLES

Mr. Frank Wise Obtained Fruit Curiosity At Fenelon Falls.

Mr. Frank Wise, who has just returned from a visit to Fenelon Falls, where he spent the past two weeks, left a unique fruit at the Examiner last night. It was two apples united more perfectly than the Siamese twins. It was another case of two in one. The stems had united but a short distance from each apple and the forms of the two were plainly traceable and yet were enclosed by the one skin. Mr. Wise noticed the two or more correctly the one, on a tree in Mr. Henry Slade's orchard near the Falls, and before he left for home it dropped. It is certainly something of an oddity in the fruit line.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

BLOOD POISON SET IN

Healed in one place, broke out in another—Cure effected by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Truth is often stranger than fiction and many of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are more like miracles than anything else.

You generally hear of this great Ointment as a cure for eczema or piles. In the case we report to-day the trouble was blood poison. You know how dreadfully dangerous this is. You know how helpless doctors are in its treatment. Read about this cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison set in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another, and kept on this way for three months.

"Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since.

"I might also say that my husband was cured of a very bad case of piles by the use of two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a wonderful Ointment."

Wherever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory.

'TIS AN ILL WIND THAT BLOWS NO GOOD

This is one of the AMERICAN BIOGRAPH CO'S. best and most up-to-date productions. It tells a story of love between Tim Noonan and Mary Flinn, and how Tim gets into trouble over his love for Mary, and how he gets into many troubles afterwards, but ends up very happily for Tim and Mary. It is a very interesting comedy-drama of freakish fortune.

A SHADOW OF PAST LIFE

A most beautiful story, showing how the shadows of one's past life sometimes appear and cause heart-breaking trouble. In this picture an innocent woman is almost proven guilty when she is not. It is a thrilling drama and will be enjoyed by everyone.

CANADA SCORES GREATLY AT SEATTLE EXPOSITION

Dominion Exhibit There Has Opened the Eyes of Americans ---The Canadian Building is Second to Only One and the Canadian Display is Second to None---A Great Advertisement for the Young Giant of the North---The Lure of the West.

By Isabel C. Armstrong

The low rates prevailing all this summer during the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition have made it possible for an unusually large number of Canadians to visit the Pacific coast. Of these, many are realising for the first time what it means to be a Canadian.

We have heard much this past few years about patriotism, and national self-respect, and we are endeavouring to foster this national spirit in the school-children by the presentation of prizes for essays on patriotic subjects and teaching them to wave the flag that for a thousand years has braved the battle and the breeze, as their lusty young voices are raised in "God Save the King," Canada," and "The Maple Leaf Forever." We hang out our flags and bunting on national and civic holiday occasion—then we feel a glow of pride in the improved appearance of our houses compared with those of our neighbours.

A Magical Growth

Btu hearing will never take the place of seeing when it comes to believing. Rare indeed is the man or woman who has passed the object lesson stage or the process of development. If we would really appreciate how great is the heritage we possess in Canada, we must see with our own eyes and through the eyes of others who are also forming impressions. We can have no conception of the great, undulating prairies, so different from the flat table of childish imagination; of wheat fields "forty bushels to the acre," extending to the horizon and beyond, until our own eyes have looked upon them. We must feel the lure of the flower-bejewelled plains, of the great, open, free, wind-swept spaces in order to understand Mr. Optimist, who is to be found, not only in Calgary, but in every town and hamlet of the west. He may be sitting at nightfall on top of a pile of lumber, several miles from nowhere, with no one to talk to but the gophers; but he knows he has right under him the nucleus of a town. A few months hence will see a main street, a goodly collection of unpainted houses, and the inevitable grain elevator. Next year there will be paint nad cupolas, more elevators, a town hall, a civic council and a publicity department.

We have heard that the mountains of Western Canada are indescribable in their grandeur, and that the scenery of the Rockies and Selkirks is unrivalled in the world. But we must feel the utter inefficiency of our own stock-in-trade of adjectives in order to realize the inadequacy of any known language to picture them.

The American Observer

The Americans, who are quick to know a good thing when they see it, are also taking advantage of the excursion rates, some on pleasure bent, others to size up the situation. Shrewd businessmen not only from the United States, but also from Great Britain, and Europe, are adding to the tale of travellers. One of these, a Chicago man, who had neither been born with a sense of the aesthetic, nor had it thrust upon him, was on his way to Seattle via Vancouver a couple of weeks ago. Next to him on the observation car sat a well-known Ontario lawyer, who has large interests in the west.

"What are these mountains for, anyway?" asked the Chicago man, at last overcome by his boredom.

"Why, they water the great wheat fields," replied the lawyer, with some heat, and the suggestion in his tones that he could have added an unflattering epithet if he would.

First and foremost, then, the A.-Y.-P. Exposition is devertising Canada, because of the large number who are seeing the country on their way to Seattle.

But Canada is by no means left behind when the boundary line is passde. One of the most striking features of street decoration in Seattle for the fair is the handsome arch erected by the citizens of Vancouver at the corner of Third avenue and Marion street, bearing the inscription, "Welcome to the Pacific Northwest," and below, the electric sign, a beacon light at night, "Vancouver, B. C." The progressive Pacific coast city has taken this method of letting the world know that the Pacific province in general, and Vancouver in particular, is very much alive to her opportunities.

The Canadian Exhibits

Canadians, as a rule, are fair-minded and lacking in bigotry, but this does not prevent them waxing enthusiastic over the Union Jack and the flag of the Dominion in a country that owes allegiance to another flag, be it even the Star Spangled Banner. Visiting the exposition immediately after a trip over the C. P. R. to the coast, even the most phlegmatic Canadian must feel a glow of pride in the fact that one of the largest and most prominent exhibits in the agricultural building is that of the C. P. R., demonstrating especially the resources of the wheat-growing prairie provinces of the Northwest, with a marked emphasis upon Sunny Southern Alberta, called by at least one A.-Y.-P. Exposition official, "the real gold mines of Canada."

If this same Canuck has never before sung "Canada," "The Maple Leaf Forever," with fervour, his heart will echo the strains—even if his voice cannot keep on the tune—when he sees, shadowed by towering Douglas firs, the stately Canadian exhibit palace, which conforms to the general architectural scheme of the exposition, and close by, the Grand Trunk Railway Building, a little gem in its way.

Canada Makes an Impression

The Dominion Government voted something less than $90,000 for the Canadian exhibit, but the experienced commissioner and his assistants have made the most of the funds at their disposal and it is not stating the case too strongly to say that, without doubt, Canada is receiving in the way of advertising, $100 for every one expended. Every day at the fair, a great number of men—and women, too—of both large and small capital, are learning astounding facts about the big country to the north, are seeing for the first time the boundless resources demonstrated in the most striking and practical way that commissioners can devise. On all sides are heard expressions of praise and surprise. The Canadian Building is unanimously conceded to be second only to the United States Government Building in interest, and second to none in the wealth of its exhibits, and in the artistic and effective manner in which they are arranged. The walls, hung with crimson, show up to advantage the gold tracery of views wrought in grain. Pillars of mahogany supporting the arches, have inlet panels on which, in conspicuous lettering, are written important facts in regard to Canada. Over each pillar are mounted heads of elk and moose, alternating with caribou, buffalo and musk ox. Scenes from Canadian life, photographed, or transparent tissue, through which electric lights glow at night, Canadian shields, American flags intertwined with Union Jacks and Canadian flags, complete the striking scheme of decoration.

A panorama extending across one end of the building shows farmhouses surrounded by trees and wheat fields, where only a dozen years ago was one vast prairie; farther on another view, showing the progress of the farmer in five years; then the newcomer breakin gvirgin prairie soil. In addition there are mounted specimens of Canada's great variety of fur-bearing animals, and big game, in a setting of woods and rocky mountains.

The variety and richness of the mineral display garnered from every province bears out the statement that Canada has a greater variety of economic minerals than any other country in the world.

But the Canadian fruits and flowers have proved perhaps the greatest revelation to those whose conception of the country has been a log cabin land of eternal snow.

The pictures, showing not only Canadian scenery, but the fine hotels and other buildings that are the pride of the cities and towns, are effectively destroying the cabin and wigwam theory of habitation.

This Is Canada!

This is Canada! This country where 87 per cent. of the farmers are their own landlords, and where of $1,800,000,000 invested in the agricultural interests, the annual value of farm produce and crops is $364,500,000, and 20.25 per cent. on the capital invested? This is Canada, this land of luscious fruits so abundant as to be within the reach of everybody.

Can it be possible that Canada has the greatest fisheries in the world; that Canada practically supplies the world's demand for lobsters, this branch of the fishing industry alone averaging over $3,500,000 annually; that fish taken from Great Slave Lake in the Canadian Northwest supplies the tables of the connoisseurs in New York city, who pronounce these fish unequalled in flavour by any fish caught in any waters?

Is it true that Canada has the largest pulp wood areas in the world; that Canada can supply the world with pulp for thousands of years, and that Canadian pulp, in the opinion of experts, is conceded to be superior to even that made in Norway or Sweden.

Does Canada produce 90 per cent of the world's production of asbestos, 57 per cent. of the world's supply of nickel, not to mention the gypsum, mica, coal, silver—an amazing list?

Every statemnet made in any of the Canadian exhibits at the exposition is based on indisputable facts, facts that can be proven by statistics.

Moreover, Canada offers to settlers better inducements than any other country in the world, and nowhere in the civilised world is law and order more respected than in Canada, where the person and property of every settler is sure of protection.

Canada, with its great resources only beginning to be developed, is attracting the attention of the capitalist.

The wheat provinces, where not only a competency but comparative wealth can be obtained by the worker in a few years, is extending an irresistible invitation to the man of small means.

The directors of the exposition pride themselves upon the fact that they have given to the world something unique, not a personally conducted excursion into the land of everyday, but rather a whimsical ramble through the wonderful lands of to-morrow.

Tourists through Canada are realising its extent and its beauty, visitors to the fair are obtaining valuable knowledge in regard to the resources and inducements it offers to investors and settlers.

As far as this fair Dominion of ours is concerned, the directors of the Seattle Exposition have kept faith, and of the many who are being introduced very few will be content with a bowing acquaintance with Canada, this vast, free country of golden opportunities. Canada, THE Land of To-morrow.

Some Types Of Men Who Annoy Women

Of course, I know you will say that because a man may annoy me he is not necessarily distasteful to you. The truth of this I admit, for do we not frequently hear an acquaintance say when referring to a friend's marriage, "I wonder what she could have seen in that man to marry him?"

But I am not going to deal with any man's looks, or even deformities in character, but with certain types of men whose behaviour is, to my thinking, positively objectionable.

Consider, for a moment, the young fellow with about seven hairs on each side of his upper lip, who thinks himself an awful dog, don't y'know. He is usually very thin in the chest and very long in the legs, but he seems rather proud of this, for he is forever showing himself off whenever he can get a chance.

The first impression he gives you is that he is remarkably "raw," and that he grew up with great suddenness before his time. His back is hooped, and he reminds one very much of a bent car ticket.

But what annoys me most of all is his inane chatter, an assumption of a highly superior air, and an obvious contempt for anything beyond cigarettes and sport. What he does not know isn't worth knowing. He looks upon himself as no end of a lady-killer, and thinks all the girls are dying for him. He never talks to a girl without interpolating some subtle suggestion touching the affections, and which he hasn't the brains to see is inexpressibly insulting. And all the time he stands first on one foot and then on the other with a leer on his face which he thinks entertaining.

He is, in fact, a beastly cad, although it is due to him to state that he hasn't the sense to se it.

Another fellow I can't bear is he who never rides a bicycle, never wields a racquet, never plays baseball, never has an idea, never did anything particularly, and never says anything you don't wan to forget the minute afterward.

Not only this, but he is forever falling in love with some girl on the slightest pretext, and everybody knows that the next week he will be just as mad on somebody else. He doesn't seem to possess any stability of character, and when you are tete-a-te with him he is literally a conversationalist stone around your neck.

He doesn't initiate a subject on which one could chat until the happy moment arrives when he drifts off with somebody else. You have to start every conversation, and he is a man with such a barren brain that any subject introduced is dead before a minute has elapsed, when there ensues a silence which can only be broken when you break fresh ground to see whether he will fertilise on that. Then there's the bounder who thinks himself a bit of a wag, and is forever digging out and raising from the dead some old wheeze that was mercifully buried long before he was born.

He is great on puns, too, and thinks nothing of begging you to wait a moment while he trots out some little phrase that plays on your words.

No matter what you say, he is sure to break in with "That reminds me," and proceed to damp one's spirits with a stupid story of which no one seems to see the point except himself, for he always laughs very heartily, and expects everybody else to do the same.

There are many others, but space prevents full descriptions of them.

What most women require to make them strong and healthy, and to restore good complexion and a well rounded form is more blood, more, rich, red blood, such as is added to the system by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Headache, indigestion and the weaknesses and irregularities which accompany exhausted nerves often disappear when this great restorative treatment is used.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle

Sir John sprang to his feet, but sank into his chair again with a groan. "Would that I were dead," he cried, "ere I saw dishonor come upon my house, and am so tied with this accursed foot that I can neither examine if it be true, nor yet avenge it! If my son Oliver were here, then all would be well. Send me this stable varlet that I may question him."

"I pray you, fair and honored sir," said Nigel, "that you will take me for your son this night, that I may handle this matter in the way which seems best. On jeopardy of my honor I will do all that a man may."

"Nigel, I thank you. There is no man in Christendom to whom I would sooner turn."

"But I would learn your mind in one matter, fair sir. This man, Paul de la Fosse, owns broad acres, as I understand, and comes of noble blood. There is no reason if things be as we fear that he should not marry your daughter?"

"Nay, she could not wish for better."

"It is well. And first I would question this Hannekin; but it shall be done in such a fashion that none shall know, for indeed it is not a matter for the gossip of servants. But if you will show me the man, Mistress Mary, I will take him out to tend my own horse, and so I shall learn all that he has to tell."

Nigel was absent for some time, and when he returned the shadow upon his face brought little hope to the anxious hearts at the high table. "I have locked him in the stable-loft, lest he talk too much," said he, "for my questions must have shown him whence the wind blew. It was indeed from this man that the note came, and he had brought with him a spare horse for the lady."

The old Knight groaned, and his face sank upon his hands.

"Nay, father they watch you!" whispered Mary. "For the honor of our house let us keep a bold face to all." Then, raising her young clear voice, so that it sounded through the room: "If you ride eastward, Nigel, I would fain go with you, that my sister may not come back alone."

"We will ride together, Mary," said Nigel, rising; then in a lower voice: "But we cannot go alone, and if we take a servant all is known. I pray you to stay at home and leave the matter with me."

"Nay, Nigel, she may sorely need a woman's aid, and what woman should it be save her own sister? I can take my tire-woman with us."

"Nay, I shall ride with you myself if your impatience can keep within the powers of my mule," said the old priest.

"But it is not your road, father?"

"The only road of a true priest is that which leads to the good of others. Come, my children, and we will go together."

And so it was that stout Sir John Buttesthorn, the aged Knight of Duplin, was left alone at his own high table, pretending to eat, pretending to drink, fidgeting in his seat, trying hard to seem unconcerned with his mind and body in a fever, while below him his varlets and handmaids laughed and jested, clattering their cups and clearing their trenchers, an unconscious of the dark shadow which threw its gloom over the lonely man upon the dais above.

Meantime the Lady Mary upon the white jennet which her sister had ridden on the same evening, Nigel on his war-horse, and the priest on the mule, clattered down the rude winding road which led to London. The country on either side was a wilderness of heather moors and of morasses from which came the strange crying of night-fowl. A half-moon shone in the sky between the rifts of hurrying clouds. The lady rode in silence, absorbed in the thought of the task before them, the danger and the shame.

Nigel chatted in a low tone with the priest. From him he learned more of the evil name of this man whom they followed. His house at Shalford was a den of profligacy and vice. No woman could cross that threshold and depart unstained. In some strange fashion, inexplicable and yet common, the man, with all his evil soul and his twisted body, had yet some strange fascination for women, some mastery over them which compelled them to his will. Again and again he had brought ruin to a household, again and again his adroit tongue and his cunning wit had in some fashion saved him from the punishment of his deeds. His family was great in the county, and his kinsmen held favor with the King, so that his neighbors feared to push things too far against him. Such was the man, malignant and ravenous, who had stooped like some foul night-hawk and borne away to his evil nest the golden beauty of Cosford. Nigel said little as he listened, but he raised his hunting-dagger to his tightened lips, and thrice he kissed the cross of its handle.

They had passed over the moors and through the village of Milford and the little township of Godalming, until their path turned southward over the Pease marsh and crossed the meadows of Shalford. There on the dark hillside glowed the red points of light which marked the windows of the house which they sought. A somber arched avenue of oak-trees led up to it, and then they were in the moon-silvered clearing in front.

From the shadow of the arched door there sprang two rough serving-men, bearded and gruff, great cudgels in their hands, to ask them who they were and what their errand. The Lady Mary had slipped from her horse and was advancing to the door, but they rudely barred her way.

"Nay, nay, our master needs no more!" cried one, with a hoarse laugh. "Stand back, mistress, whoever you be! The house is shut, and our lord sees no guests to-night."

"Fellow," said Nigel, speaking low and clear, "stand back from us! Our errand is with your master."

"Bethink you, my children," cried the old priest, "would it not be best perchance, that I go in to him and see whether the voice of the Church may not soften this hard heart? I fear bloodshed if you enter."

"Nay, father, I pray you to stay here for the nonce," said Nigel. "And you, Mary, do you bide with the good priest, for we know not what may be within."

Again he turned to the door, and again the two men barred his passage.

"Stand back, I say, back for your lives!" said Nigel. "By Saint Paul! I should think it shame to soil my sword with such as you, but my soul is set, and no manshall bar my path this night."

The men shrank from the deadly menace of that gentle voice.

"Hold!" said one of them, peering through the darkness, "is it not Squire Loring of Tilford?"

"That is indeed my name."

"Had you spoken it I for one would not have stoopped your way. Put down your staff, Wat, for this is no stranger, but the Squire of Tilford."

"As well for him," grumbled the other, lowering his cudgel with an inward prayer of thanksgiving. "Had it been otherwise I should have had blood upon my soul to-night. But our master said nothing of neighbors when he ordered us to hold the door. I will enter and ask him what is his will."

But already Nigel was past them and had pushed open the outer door. Swift as he was, the Lady Mary was at his very heels, and the two passed together into the hall beyond.

It was a great room, draped and curtained with black shadows, with one vivid circle of light in the centre, where two oil lamps shone upon a small table. A meal was laid upon the table, but only two were seated at it, and there were no servants in the room. At the near end was Edith, her golden hair loose and streaming down over the scarlet and black of her riding-dress.

At the farther end the light beat strongly upon the harsh face and the high-drawn misshapen shoulders of the lord of the house. A tangle of black hair surmounted a high rounded forehead, the forehead of a thinker, with two deep-set cold gray eyes twinkling sharply from under tufted brows. His nose was carved and sharp, like the beak of some cruel bird, but below the whole of his clean-shaven powerful face was marred by the loose slabbing mouth and the round folds of the heavy chin. His knife in one hand and a half-gnawed bone in the other, he looked fiercely up, like some beast disturbed in his den, as the two intruders broke in upon his hall.

Nigel stopped midway between the door and the table. His eyes and those of Paul de la Fosse were riveted upon each other. But Mary, with her woman's soul flooded over with love and pity, had rushed forward and cast her arms round her younger sister. Edith had sprung up from her chair, and with averted face tried to push the other away from her.

"Edith, Edith! By the Virgin, I implore you to come back with us, and to leave this wicked man!" cried Mary. "Dear sister, you would not break your father's heart, nor bring his gray head in dishonor to the grave! Come back! Edith, come back and all is well."

But Edith pushed her away, and her fair cheeks were flushed with her anger. "What right have you over me, Mary, you who are but two years older, that you should follow me over the country-side as though I were a runagate villain and you my mistress? Do you yourself go back, and leave me to do that which seems best in my own eyes."

But Mary still held her in her arms, and still strove to soften the hard and angry heart. "Our mother is dead, Edith. I thank God that she died ere she saw you under this roof! But I stand for her, as I have done all my life, since I am indeed your elder. It is with her voice that I beg and pray you that you will not trust this man further, and that you will come back ere it be too late!"

Edith writhed from her grasp, and stood flushed and defiant, with gleaming, angry eyes fixed upon her sister. "You may speak evil of him now," said she, "but there was a time when Paul de la Fosse came to Cosford, and who so gentle and soft-spoken to him then as wise, grave, sister Mary? But he has learned to love another; so now he is the wicked man, and it is shame to be seen under his roof! From what I see of my good pious sister and her cavalier it is sin for another to ride at night with a man at your side, but it comes easy enough to you. Look at your own eye, good sister, ere you would take the speck from that of another."

Mary stood irresolute and greatly troubled, holding down her pride and her anger, but uncertain how best to deal with this strong wayward spirit.

"It is not a time for bitter words, dear sister," said she, and again she laid her hand upon her sister's sleeve. "All that you say may be true. There was indeed a time when this man was friend to us both, and I know even as you do the power which he may have to win a woman's heart. But I know him now, and you do not. I know the evil that he has wrought, the dishonor that he has brought, the perjury that lies upon his soul, the confidence betrayed, the promise unfulfilled—all this I know. Am I to see my own sister caught in the same well-used trap? Has it shut upon you, child? Am I indeed already too late? For God's sake, tell me, Edith, that it is not so?"

Edith plucked her sleeve from her sister and made two swift steps to the head of the table. Paul de la Fosse still sat silent with his eyes upon Nigel. Edith laid her hand upon his shoulder. "This is the man I love, and the only man that I have ever loved. This is my husband," said she.

At the word Mary gave a cry of joy.

"And is it so?" she cried. "Nay, then all is in honor, and God will see to the rest. If you are man and wife before the altar, then indeed why should I, or any other, stand between you? Tell me that it is indeed so, and I return this moment to make your father a happy man."

Edith pouted like a naughty child. "We are man and wife in the eyes of God. Soon also we shall be wedded before all the world. We do but wait until next Monday when Paul's brother, who is a priest at St. Albans, will come to wed us. Already a messenger has sped for him, and he will come, will he not, dear love?"

"He will come," said the master of Shalford, still with his eyes fixed upon the silent Nigel.

"It is a lie; he will not come," said a voice from the door.

It was the old priest, who had followed the others as far as the threshold.

"He will not come," he repeated as he advanced into the room. "Daughter, my daughter, hearken to the words of one who is indeed old enough to be your earthly father. This lie has served before. He has ruined others before you with it. The man has no brother at Saint Albans. I know his brothers well, and there is no priest among them. Before Monday, when it is all too late, you will have found the truth as others have done before you. Trust him not, but come with us!"

Paul de la Fosse looked up at her with a quick smile and patted the hand upon his shoulder.

"Do you speak to them, Edith," said he.

Her eyes flashed with scorn as she surveyed them each in turn, the woman, the youth and the priest.

"I have but one word to say to them," said she. "It is that they go hence and trouble us no more. Am I not a free woman? Have I not said that this is the only man I ever loved? I have loved him long. He did not know it, and in despair he turned to another. Now he knows all and never again can doubt come between us. Therefore I will stay here at Shalford and come to Cosford no more save upon the arm of my husband. Am I so weak that I would believe the tales you tell against him? Is it hard for a jealous woman and a wandering priest to agree upon a lie? No, no, Mary, you can go hence and take your cavalier and your priest with you, for here I stay, true to my love and safe in my trust upon his honor!"

"Well spoken, on my faith, my golden bird!" said the little master of Shalford. "Let me add my own word to that which has been said. You would not grant me any virtue in your unkindly speech, good Lady Mary, and yet you must needs confess that at least I have good store of patience, since I have not set my dogs upon your friends who have come between me and my ease. But even to the most virtuous there comes at last a time when poor human frailty may prevail, and so I pray you to remove both yourself, your priest and your valiant knight errant, lest perhaps there be more haste and less dignity when at last you do take your leave. Sit down, my fair love, and let us turn once more to our supper." He motioned her to her chair, and he filled her wine-cup as well as his own.

Nigel had said no word since he had entered the room, but his look had never lost its set purpose, nor had his brooding eyes ever wandered from the sneering face of the deformed master of Shalford. Now he turned with swift decision to Mary and to the priest.

"That is over," said he in a low voice. "You have done all that you could, and now it is for me to play my part as well as I am able. I pray you, Mary, and you, good father, that you will await me outside."

"Nay, Nigel, if there is danger—"

"It is easier for me, Mary, if you are not there. I pray you to go. I can speak to this man more at my ease."

She looked at him with questioning eyes and then obeyed.

Nigel plucked at the priest's gown. "I pray you, father, have you your book of offices with you?"

"Surely, Nigel, it is ever in my breast."

"Have it ready, father!"

"For what, my son?"

"There are two places you may mark; there is the service of marriage and there is the prayer for the dying. Go with her, father, and be ready at my call."

He closed the door behind them and was alone with this ill-matched couple. They both turned in their chairs to look at him, Edith with a defiant face, the man with a bitter smile upon his lips and malignant hatred in his eyes.

"—wnat," said he, "the knight errant still lingers? Have we not heard of his thirst for glory? What new venture does he see that he should tarry here?"

Nigel walked to the table.

"There is no glory and little venture," said he; "but I have come for a purpose and I must do it. I learn from your own lips, Edith, that you will not leave this man."

"If you have ears you have heard it."

"You are, as you have said, a free woman, and who can gainsay you? But I have known you, Edith, since we played as boy and girl on the heather-hills together. I will save you from this man's cunning and from your own foolish weakness."

"What would you do?"

"There is a priest without. He will marry you now. I will see you married ere I leave this hall."

"Or else?" sneered the man.

"Or else you never leave this hall alive. Nay, call not for your servants or your dogs! By Saint Paul! I swear to you that this matter lies between us three, and that if any fourth comes at your call you, at least, shall never live to see what comes of it! Speak then, Paul of Shalford! Will you wed this woman now, or will you not?"

Edith was on her feet with outstretched arms between them. "Stand back, Nigel! He is small and weak. You would not do him a hurt! Did you not say so this very day? For God's sake, Nigel, do not look at him so! There is death in your eyes."

"A snake may be small and weak, Edith, yet every honest man would place his heel upon it. Do you stand back yourself, for my purpose is set."

"Paul!" she turned her eyes to the pale sneering face. "Bethink you, Paul! Why should you not do what he asks? What matter to you whether it be now or on Monday? I pray you, dear Paul, for my sake let him have his way! Your brother can read the service again if it so please him. Let us wed now, Paul, and then all is well."

He had risen from his chair, and he dashed aside her appealing hands. "You foolish woman," he snarled, "and you, my savior of fair damsels, who are so bold against a cripple, you have both to learn that if my body be weak there is the soul of my breed within it! To marry because a boasting, ranting, country Squire would have me do so—no, by the soul of God, I will die first! On Monday I will marry, and no day sooner, so let that be your answer."

"It is the answer that I wished," said Nigel, "for indeed I see no happiness in this marriage, and the other may well be the better way. Stand aside, Edith!" He gently forced her to one side and drew his sword.

De la Fosse cried aloud at the sight. "I have no sword. You would not murder me?" said he, leaning back with haggard face and burning eyes against his chair. The bright steel shone in the lamp-light. Edith shrank back, her hand over her face.

"Take this sword!" said Nigel, and he turned the hilt to the cripple. "Now!" he added, as he drew his hunting-knife. "Kill me if you can, Paul de la Fosse, for as God is my help I will do as much for you!"

The woman, half swooning and yet spellbound and fascinated, looked on at that strange combat. For a moment the cripple stood with an air of doubt, the sword grasped in his nerveless fingers. Then as he saw the tiny blade in Nigel's hand the greatness of the advantage came home to him, and a cruel smile tightened his loose lips. Slowly, step by step he advanced, his chin sunk upon his chest, his eyes glaring from under the thick tangle of his brows like fires through the brushwood. Nigel waited for him, his left hand forward, his knife down by his hip, his face grave, still and watchful.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF AN OWEN SOUND CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Mr. Wm. Krantz, Owen Sound, Ont., writes: "Having read some of the testimonials of cures effected by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I thought it advisable to say a word of praise for its merits.

"Some years ago I was much troubled with stomach trouble and cramps. I used to roll on the floor in agony, and on one occasion I went into a faint after suffering intensely for four hours. A short time after this, in driving to town, I was attacked again and had to lie down in my rig, seeking relief.

"When I reached the drug store I asked the druggist for a quick remedy and laid behind the counter until relief came. The remedy I received from the druggist was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Whenever, after that time, I felt cramps coming on, I found speedy relief in the above mentioned remedy, and I am now cured of this dreadful malady. The bottle is small, but its contents effect a marvelous cure. I can recommend it highly for the cure of cramps."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 65 years. It is not a new and untried remedy. Ask for it and insist on getting what you ask for. Refuse substitutes. They're dangerous.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hugh. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

Almeric was taken aback.

"Oh—what! He wouldn't agree? Oh, I say, that will be a pill for the governor—he'll be worried, you know!"

Ethel went close to him.

"Don't you see that you've got to worry a little about yourself; that you've got to begin to do something worthy that will obliterate this shame? To work—to work!"

"What possible need will there be for that? Why, there's the settlement"—

"Settlement!" cried Ethel, aghast. "You talk of settlement now?"

"Don't you see? The only objection was the settlement, and Mr. Pike's given his consent to that."

"He's consented to that?" she asked.

"With his own lips. Didn't you?" Almeric asked Pike.

"I did," said the lawyer quietly.

She recoiled from the group.

"Yesterday, when I wanted something I thought of value, he refused to let me buy it. Today, when I know that name is less than nothing, he bids me give my fortune for it. What manner of man is this?"

Almeric slapped his leg.

"I don't see that the situation is changed. I don't stick out for the precise amount the governor said. If it ought to be less because of last night—why, we won't haggle over a few thousands."

With a cry of rage and despair Ethel turned on him.

"This is the final word of my humiliation! I felt that you were in shame, and because of that I was ready to keep my word—to stand by you and help you make yourself into a man. Now you ask me to pay you for the privilege. I am released! I am free! I am not that man's property to give away!"

Lady Creech turned to Almeric.

"This is beyond everything! Give me your arm, Almeric. We will go."

"Most extraordinary girl. Beyond everything, isn't she?"

Together they went into the hotel, and Pike watched them with somber eyes. Horace quietly slipped off through the arbor. Ethel turned to Pike violently.

"What have you to say to me?" she demanded. "What explanations have you to make?"

"None," he answered.

"Because you don't care what I think of you. You were willing to give me up to these people, to let me romanticize about honor and duty, about my efforts to make that creature a man, and you knew all the time it was only the money they were after!"

"I shouldn't wonder," he replied.

"Didn't you know that would horrify me? Didn't you see that your consenting, leaving me free to give it to them, would release me?"

"I shouldn't be surprised."

"You mean you've been saving me again from myself? You let me make a fool of myself and then show it to me, and after that you'll deny it! It's like you. Do you think any girl could love a man like that? Go back to your dream girl, your lady of the picture!"

"She won't be there," said Daniel disconsolately.

"She might be," Ethel answered in a different tone.

"There ain't any chance of that. The house will be empty still," he said.

"You might be wrong—for once," she replied, and there were tears in her voice—"just for once!"

With a quick look at him she ran from the terrace and into the hotel. A moment later, while he was staring moodily at the pavement, a piano began to tinkle, and a moment later Ethel's voice came to him. His face lit up, and he stepped closer to the window. Then his arms went out.

She was playing "Sweet Genevieve!"

Jealousy Drove Him to Crime—Suicide Was Final Act.

Frankfort, Aug. 28.—The murder of a young German music dancer and the suicide of her Chinese lover at Frankfort-on-Main have caused a great stir in Germany. People recall the tragic end of Mis Elsie Sigel, the young missionary among the Chinese in New York, who was killed by her Chinese lover, Fraulein Hildegarde Hoffmann, aged 20, and Chang Cheng You, aged 22, had performed in a "Germano-Chinese dancing duet" at several Berlin variety theatres, and an affection sprang up between the stage partners. Three weeks ago, however, the girl left Berlin for Frankfort to seek an engagement at the International Aerial Exhibition. At a Japanese tea house in the grounds she made the acquaintance of some Japanese men, whose company she began to frequent. At the same time she decided to break off her relations with her Chinese lover.

Chang Cheng Yon received a letter telling him that she wished to have nothing more to do with him. The man, who was furious with jealousy, immediately left for Frankfort. After seeking for Fraulein Hoffmann throughout the city and the exhibition he called at her lodgings at six o'clock in the morning The girl had hardly opened her door when she was shot twice, fatally, and as she lay on the floor the Chinaman shot her a third time. He then turned his revolver on himself, and the two dancers died together a moment later.

The DAY of the DUEL

FULFILLING AN IDEAL

(Copyright, 1900, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"I COULD wish that my husband might be a man who had striven and won among the giants of the earth, a conqueror, mighty of intellect as of personality, holding in his grip all lesser and weaker mortals. Such is the wooer who must come to me, who must take me by storm, swamping me from resistance. To such a one I could yield myself, but to no other."

The girl's face shone with the impetuous fire of her words and Franklin Elliott looked up at her with astonishment and something akin to fear. It was a face of marvellous and daring beauty, strongly marked, dark, framed in thick masses of black hair, with heavy eyebrows and lids and full, red lips. For the first time he caught a hint of cruelty in her dominant mouth.

"But, Olive, this is primitive, this is savagery. You speak as a jungle girl might. Conquest is admirable, if you like, but surely there are traits as desirable as these of the tribal chief in these days."

She shrugged her broad, smoothly moulded shoulders.

"I am at least sincere," she said. "Look, Franklin. You have asked me three times to be your wife. Let us be frank at last. You say you love me. I cannot help that. I have not such feeling for you. What are you? A country lawyer. You cannot stir me. I find no answering call in you. Why not give up a passion that can mean to you nothing but regret?"

It was his turn to blaze with intensity of feeling.

"You cannot help it? This is merely a mad dream of mine, then? Olive, how dare you say the like? Have you not encouraged me, played with me, amused yourself all these dull, summer days at my expense? And finally this is your answer. That I am not such a man as can swing you to his saddle bow and take you against your will."

"Now you grow impertinent," she answered coldly. "I found you tall, handsome, impressive. You cannot blame me if I sought what qualities went with your outward traits. I find you gentle, submissive, full of theories, intelligent, but an individual to whom action is quite foreign. You never thrilled me, even when I thought that perhaps a force dwelt somewhere behind. You could not move me. But you cannot accuse me of frivolity because I look where I may for the man it is my nature to seek."

Blind to the Blemish.

Elliott watched the play of emotion across the face that had become at once a delight and a scourge to him. He read nothing of a shallow, sensuous, falsely romantic mind back of it. He was conscious only of its charm, its overpowering beauty and its inaccessibility. He stood up.

"You have at least spoken frankly, Olive, and I suppose I must thank you. You have never told me what was in your thoughts before. I will not annoy you further. But if some day I should be able to disprove all you have said of my unworthiness I claim the right to come back and try again to win the one chance of happiness that lives for me."

He left her and she smiled after him into the darkness. She liked him better than at any time since she had first flirted with him to break the tedium of the little Kentucky town where family misfortunes had exiled her.

Franklin Elliott was all that Olive Masters had said of him. He had made some small success in the community which he had chosen deliberately as the field for his labors. He had shown himself eloquent, able, convincing. He had won almost all his cases. He understood men with a sympathetic insight and he knew the law. But he had lacked ambition in the personal sense. He had made for himself a conception of his vocation that was as fanciful, in hard truth, as the girl's view of life.

He had absorbed vague, ill formulated but inspiring and generous purposes. He desired to be useful to rightful causes. He was, as the girl had discovered, little more than a dreamer. He had never played for his own advancement, ever placing his talent at the service of the issue that appealed to his sense of justice rather than that which would have promoted his material welfare.

And because his motives were vague, scarcely more than instinctive, he felt the lash of Olive's reproaches most keenly. He had no philosophy in reserve with which to meet them. He could only suffer and pity himself. He could see dimly that she had treated him lightly, but he felt that she must be right. In the obsession of his love what he saw most clearly was his own futility. He pledged himself to rise to the level she had indicated.

By some such fanciful turn of the wheel that brought Olive Masters to the home of her aunt in the little town Albert Bailey came to stay with his brother, broken in health and fortune, begging only a shelter and food until the sum of his transgressions should call for the final forfeit. The newcomer arrived a week after Elliott had ceased to call at the Masters home and when time hung heavily upon the girl's hands.

She caught sight of him as he paced the lawn next to her own and all her subtlety and cleverness, unemployed through empty days, were fixed upon him. The exhaustion of excesses had left him the remnant of his former great strength, but his thin, white face held the more interest and fascination. He noticed her as she stood with studied unconsciousness among her flowers one day and knew a thrill that he had thought impossible to his jaded senses.

Watched Her Amid the Flowers.

The recovery of Albert Bailey was laid by his relatives, perhaps in greater admiration for the cause than for the effect, to the sovereign properties of the warm, spiced blue grass winds. Meanwhile he watched the white robed figure among the flowers each day. He spoke to her finally. After that they were much together. She found him refreshingly cynical. He drew healing from her brilliance and virility.

It drew near the fall and the local surface of political affairs began to stir and heave. Old observers were perplexed by the presence of a new and mysterious element. There was a force abroad that baffled them. Leaders of each party suspected their opponents of some hidden move of startling purport. Finally to settle the matter there was a conference which revealed that the disturbance had its source in an outsider, Franklin Elliott.

To the astonishment of all it was discovered that the young attorney, without backing, allies or record, had quietly built for himself the solid basis of a following. Amusement and relief gave way to irritation in the minds of those used to office jugglery when the phenomenon refused to disappear. Some one learned that Elliott was out after election to the Legislature. Whatever his aim, he had suddenly risen to the importance of a factor.

Major Humphries, local member of the Legislature and leader for his party, watched Elliott's progress with uneasiness. He was frequently in conference with his lieutenant, Amble Stark, as to the political situation. He found little to reassure him.

"He's been canvassing among the farmers for the last week," said Stark one day at the hotel. "This man to man talk is his stand."

"Don't I know it?" fumed the Major. "I've listened to the upstart, and I pledge my word, sir, he almost persuaded me. Felt as if I must walk right up and hand him my vote and beg him as a favor to command it. When it comes time for the speeches, Stark, he'll have us by the throat unless we bestir ourselves. What can we reach him with? Is there a woman about?"

Cherchez la Femme!

"I've tried that tack," answered Stark, carefully adjusting his feet on the railing. "He's never been mixed up in anything here. They never heard of him in Louisville. I even sent for his record in college."

"He used to see that Masters girl some?"

"Yes. He's hard hit there. But he don't get much show now this new found brother of Doc Bailey is around."

"There's a lead, Stark. Look up this Bailey and get friendly with him. We might find him useful. Meanwhile see what Elliott wants. He can't mean to play this lone hand to the end."

It was a week before election. For days the one topic of conversation had been the phenomenal strength displayed by Franklin Elliott. He had been independently nominated for the Legislature. He had shown himself a gifted orator and had torn his opponents to ribbons during two stumping tours of the district. Good material lay to his hand and he had been greeted with the wildest enthusiasm.

In spite of bitter attacks by party speakers and press, he had gained steadily in following and in prestige. Even his enemies were forced to admit his promise and both factions approached him with proposals of alliance. His personally conducted fight was without precedent and to the politically wise argued merely a forcible hold-up. To them it was simply a question of finding what he was after and buying him over. Meanwhile he rejected all overtures and held steadily to his way.

He did not see Olive Masters again until the final day was almost on hand. His victory was practically conceded. He came to her in the early evening and stood on the porch, hat in hand. She did not rise to greet him.

"Well," she said, "it seems that we forget old acquaintances in the rush and hurry of office seeking."

"I think I can truthfully say that I have not forgotten you," he answered, with a curious smile. "If I have stayed away it was only that I might show you I could do something, after all."

"Of course," she said vaguely.

"Do you think I have made any progress?"

"Progress? Toward what?"

"You once said that the fault in me was an incapacity for action. I have tried to mend it."

"Oh," she responded, as one suddenly enlightened, "Do you still remember that?"

The tone made a mock of him. He stood astounded, dumb in the presence of the revelation.

Ruin of His Hopes.

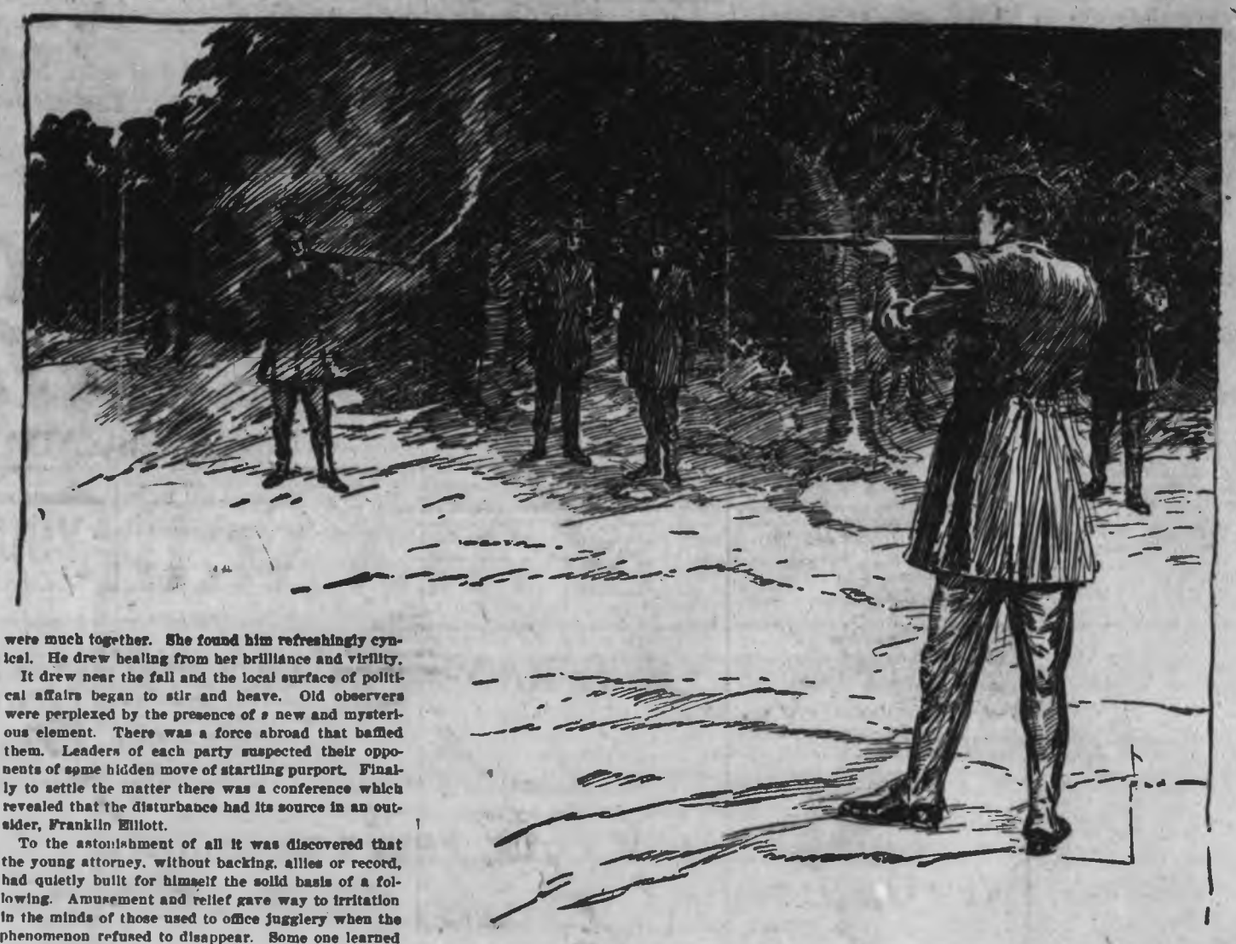
"You should not have taken me so seriously. I am apt to grow too enthusiastic," she added lightly. For another moment he remained passive among the ruin of his hopes. Then bitterness gained him.



THE ATTORNEY HELD HIS POSE UNTIL HE COULD SEE THE SPOT OF FOREHEAD THROUGH THE SMOKE, AND PULLED THE TRIGGER.

"The greatest error a man ever made was mine when I failed to read your utter heartlessness," he said. She flushed with anger as he turned and walked away without another word. His neglect had piqued her and she had thought to punish him, then to amuse herself with two admirers at a time. At the gate he met Bailey, whom he jostled in passing without recognition. Bailey came up to the porch.

"Who was that man?" he asked.

"That was Franklin Elliott, our new political light, they say. How do you like him?"

"I find him a boor," said Bailey hotly.

"Your opinion agrees with mine, then. He made himself most objectionable just before he left."

"What did he do?"

"He stopped just short of insult. No," she said, placing a restraining hand upon his arm as he started to rise. "Do not trouble yourself about him. He is not worth it. Have you brought your copy of 'Renée'? That should have a calming effect. You know how I dislike bluster and violence and excitement. Albert Shall I ever be able to teach you the true value of repose, control and gentleness?"

During the short time intervening between his visit to Olive and the test of his fledgling flight Elliott was absorbed in a last mighty effort for success. As a result he met the forces placed in the field at the eleventh hour by his opponents and overthrew them. His last meeting was a personal triumph, and never had he appeared to such great advantage. It was clear to the blindest partisan, hidebound in party allegiance, that the seat in the Legislature was lost to both regular tickets. Elliott was hailed on all sides as the coming great man of the State.

On election day Elliott held one corner of the little hotel lobby with the few direct adherents that had drawn about him as the inevitable consequence of the powers of attraction and leadership he had shown. He was calm and confident. Once entered into the struggle, it had drawn him. He saw greater conquests ahead. This was but his introduction to a life of wide activity and usefulness.

In other parts of the lobby were the larger groups representing the two parties. Major Humphries, very dignified, very watchful, outwardly impassive, was the centre of one of the eddies. Beside him sat Bailey, whose acquaintance he had assiduously cultivated. Talk ran incessantly about the room, but voices were pitched low. Humphries had pulled his ticket through and was not to be despised because his own official place was lost. Men did not speak of it in his hearing unless in answer to some remark of his own.

The Major began a confidential conversation with Bailey, who had been drinking freely for the first time since his retirement to the village.

Working the Plot.

"It's not so hard to be beaten, sir," Humphries was saying, "but to be beaten by a damned worthless scoundrel is, I admit, very hard. He has bought it, sir, bought it. You'll see. There's some big interest behind him that's been playing this for him. Personally, he lacks the manhood for such a thing."

Bailey, already inflamed against Elliott by the skilful promptings of Stark and by the encounter at the Masters home, listened eagerly.

"He's a coward, sir," continued the Major, "a miserable coward. Why, only recently he was heard to boast of having won the affections of a trusting young woman. Boasted of his conquest, sir—a thing he would not have dared to do if she had had male kin."

"He did, eh?" said Bailey. "What woman?"

"Miss Masters, sir. One of the finest young women of our town."

Bailey started from his chair. The Major made no effort to detain him. He rushed to Elliott's corner.

"Elliott," he cried loudly, "what's this story you're spreading concerning a young woman?"

The young lawyer looked up, recognized Bailey, who had been pointed out to him as Olive's new favorite, and returned his glare with a surprised and scornful glance. Bailey trembled with rage.

"I take pleasure in denouncing you as a liar and an infamous scoundrel, sir," he screamed.

Talk had died away about the room. All eyes were turned upon the flushed and belligerent Bailey. Elliott's first impulse had been to ignore this unprovoked, wanton and wholly ridiculous attack, but it died before a surge of the new temper he had developed.

"If you would play the bravo, sir, you can have the opportunity," he said between clenched teeth. With the words he sprang forward and struck Bailey, knocking him back against a chair. Bailey regained his feet and drew himself up.

"You will prepare to answer for this," he gasped, and was led by Humphries from the hotel.

Returns from the district that night placed Elliott's election beyond all doubt. He received the news without elation, retaining his untroubled demeanor and accepting the many congratulations with dignity. In the streets of the town he was made the object of a great demonstration and replied with a speech recalled ever afterward by all who heard it. It was built upon words common enough on such occasions—duty, rectitude, the fulfilment of promises. But the force, grace and fluency of the speaker were far beyond anything of the kind ever before known to his hearers. Before returning to his home he called aside one of his friends—Matthews, another lawyer—and intrusted him with the negotiations for a meeting with Bailey.

Arranging the Meeting.

Amble Stark, acting for Bailey, met Elliott's second next morning. The conditions named by his principal, as the insulted party, were sufficiently savage. Bailey demanded that they should fight with rifles at twenty-five paces. Elliott's second pointed out that such a duel would surely mean death to one, probably to both of the participants. But Stark declared that Bailey's intention was fixed and that there could be no compromise. The arrangements were made accordingly.

Elliott did not allow himself to dwell upon the situation confronting him. He kept himself indifferent. There had come a reaction following his final spurt and the winning of the race. The shock he had suffered from the discovery of Olive's unworthiness and the destruction of a love that had been a treasured part of him left him hardened to lesser matters.

The fever heat of the election had served to distract him from his bitter thoughts. Now he cared for nothing that might happen, he told himself. He slept soundly on the night before the meeting. One concession he made to sentiment. Buttoned under his coat as he went to the field were the few letters written him by Olive during the first days of their friendship, when he thought his affection returned.

The newly elected legislator and his second were the first to reach a secluded piece of ground several miles from town and protected by a patch of woods from the highway. All the arrangements had been kept secret and, although it was well known that a duel was to take place, the townspeople had no inkling of the place or time. Bailey, accompanied by his brother, a physician and Amble Stark, drove up a few minutes later. It was early morning.

Stark and Matthews marked off the ground and the arms of the contestants were examined. Both were of a standard pattern, throwing a heavy bullet. It was agreed that, after an exchange of shots, results and the disposition of the contestants should decide whether or not honor had been satisfied.

Although this was Elliott's first conflict, Bailey had survived several fatal meetings, and he displayed the fact with some ostentation. He handled his weapon cleverly, sighted it, measured the ground with his eye and made casual comments to his second. The young lawyer was quite free from nervousness, but his movements were stiff and betrayed his lack of familiarity with the matter. He still kept his mind free from confusing thoughts and centred his attention on hitting the spot he had selected, the middle of his adversary's forehead.

"Gentlemen," said Stark when both were ready, "I shall stand here a few paces off the line of fire and drop this white handkerchief. You are free to shoot the instant it leaves my hand. On your honors, do not press your triggers prematurely."

Awaiting the Signal to Fire.

The space was shaded by the trees from the sun, now some distance risen, and there was no advantage as to light. The two men stood facing each other, each with his left foot at the mark and the rifle held toward the ground in both hands. Stark took his position with the handkerchief between finger and thumb, extended at arm's length. Each combatant could see the spot of white without removing his fixed gaze from his opponent.

"Are you ready?" Stark's voice rang out.

"Ready!" said the two young men simultaneously.

Stark waited, a breathless, racking pause for the fraction of a second, then released the handkerchief. It was still fluttering in the air when Bailey's rifle spoke. Elliott whirled part way around, then with compressed lips resumed his position and lowered his cheek against the gunstock.

Bailey had not altered the position of his weapon when Elliott fired. He did not move until the smoke had drifted away. He was unhurt. The physician hurried to Elliott. There was a bullet hole in the side of his coat below his left breast and a stain was spreading. The attorney would not allow him to make an examination.

"It is nothing," he said to Matthews. "I demand another exchange."

Stark carried the word to Bailey, who consented with a smile. The rifles were reloaded. Again the men toed the marks. The word was given and repeated. As the handkerchief dropped the two weapons spoke as one. Bailey was seen to stagger, but he recovered himself, thrusting his rifle against the ground and leaning upon it.

"Hard hit," was Stark's comment as the physician approached Bailey. In his turn the duellist waved the proffered aid aside. He had suffered a severe wound above the right ear, but he insisted upon bandaging it himself with a silk neckerchief.

"Let us proceed," he said calmly.

"Mr. Bailey demands another shot," was Matthews' message to Elliott.

"He shall have it," answered Elliott, who was deathly pale.

Once more the opponents faced each other with eyes alert and weapons ready. Stark dropped the handkerchief immediately after receiving the two responses. Elliott reserved his fire again. Bailey's shot missed. The attorney held his pose until he could see the spot of forehead through the smoke, and pulled the trigger. With the report Bailey pitched forward, uttering no sound. The physician ran to him and turned him over. He was dead, the bullet having penetrated his brain.

Disappearance of Elliott.

Franklin Elliott was never seen in the Kentucky town again, nor did any one who had known him have knowledge of his whereabouts. Feeling was in his favor, supporting him in all phases of the quarrel. The authorities had planned no move. Other affairs of the kind had passed without official notice. But the seat of the newly elected legislator was empty and an election was ordered before the end of the session to fill it. After returning to his home from the scene of the duel he had vanished, leaving most of his possessions.

Five years later it was rumored about the village of Petra, Kan., that a strange hermit had taken up residence in a cave about ten miles from there. He was seen frequently hunting in the woods, but avoided all persons. His relations with the world of men were limited to a single visit each year to Petra, where he bartered skins and game for powder, shot and salt. He interfered with no one, and in the course of time came to be accepted as a fixture.

Two strangers to the vicinity had been hunting near Petra one day about twenty years after the duel. They lost their way and found themselves at nightfall without shelter. At the foot of a rise they stumbled against a door, half set in, half built out of the hillside. Receiving no answer to their hails, they entered cautiously and found a spacious room with the embers of a fire on a rough hearth. When they had stirred this to life they discovered that what they had taken for a bundle of clothes in one corner was the body of a man, recently dead.

In going over the few furnishings of the cave they came upon a tin box containing a few old letters, stained with blood. The letters were all signed "Olive." Other papers established the hermit's identity as Franklin Elliott.

There were a few well thumbed books among the hermit's effects, among them a copy of Massinger. Perhaps it was this fact that led one of the strangers, who gave the body burial, to cause an epitaph to be engraved on the headstone:—

"FRANKLIN ELLIOTT, A STRANGER."

STEALING IN STORES.

The Ingenuity That Is Shown by the Woman Thief.

TRICKS OF THE SHOPLIFTER.

The Satchel With a False Bottom and the Slit in the Dress Near the Belt. Some Schemes Successful Because of Their Very Simplicity.

As numerous as they are ingenious are the tricks of the modern shoplifters, declare store detectives. It keeps the detectives busy to "get on" to the devices of the men and women who live by their wits in stealing from stores. For tricks that are canny few classes of criminals, it is said, approach them.

The method of stealing by using the satchel with a false bottom is one of the cleverest of the tricks.

Well disguised, the shoplifter enters a store. Her eyes run over the counters. She perceives the object she wants—usually something small and valuable, sometimes a purse a customer has left lying on the counter.

Over the object the shoplifter places her satchel. Pretending to delve into the satchel to extract a purse or handkerchief, the thief lifts a false bottom in the bag, reaches under it, draws inside the desired article, adjusts the false bottom, closes the satchel and walks away.

"But this is only one of many clever ruses employed," declared a detective the other day. "The women especially are ingenious. Their dress, of course, helps them.

"One of the methods of stealing is for the shoplifter to have a slit in her dress near the belt. As she stands near the counter she can deftly seize the article desired, be it a piece of lace or costly fabric or a bit of jewelry, and slip it into the skirt. The folds of the skirt are voluminous and conceal the thing stolen.

"Some tricks are successful because of their simplicity. A fashionably dressed woman may walk into the clothing department, look over coat suits, pick up one, fold it neatly up, place it under her coat and walk away.

"If she is detected she will indignantly declare that she bought the suit some time before and that she has brought it back to be altered.

"Or a woman, her hands glittering with rings and dressed in the latest style, may walk into the store some winter day. She wears only a rich coat of dark fabric.

"In the coat department she will ask to see some fur lined coats. Oh, she is very particular and tries on one after another. Other customers come up, and the saleslady gets busy with them while madam is trying to suit herself.

"While the saleslady is turned she puts on one of the richest sable trimmed coats, turns on her heel and walks away. Perhaps the salesgirl may not notice the loss until there is an account of stock.

"Each month from fifty to sixty arrests are made in the average large department store. The detectives must be extremely careful, for a false charge would precipitate a suit for damages, which would mean many thousands.

"Certain departments hold especial lures for shoplifters. The jewelry department is invariably guarded. When the furs come in we have sleuths who keep their eyes open for the woman who likes to take a fur to the window to examine it, then running for the door: the woman with the false skirt and the woman who puts a fur on and audaciously walks away."

Although the sales departments and the detective departments work together, there exists between them a spirit of justifiable rivalry. If a detective perceives some one getting away with goods it casts discredit on the person behind the counter from which the goods were stolen. Therefore the sales folk keep an alert watch for shoplifters.

One might imagine that goods are dumped pellmell on the counters of the big stores. As a matter of fact, the efficient saleslady will have everything so arranged that she will notice the disappearance of an article almost immediately.

If a saleswoman suspects a person she immediately notifies the head detective. If it is a woman, a woman detective is usually put on the job. It is said store managers usually find women more efficient than men.

Few arrests are ever made in the stores, as an arrest gives only undesirable publicity. The detective usually follows suspected persons from the store and arrests him or her outside.

It is said that arrests for shoplifting in New York exceed 3,000 a year. In that city a full description of all shoplifters caught are sent to the Retail Dry Goods association, which in turn distributes the information to the various members.

Only by concerted action and with highly organized staffs of detectives can the stores cope with the ingenious shoplifters.

The detective system of the big stores, however, is now so perfect that it is dangerous to attempt shoplifting. Even the cleverest shoplifter faces a long jail term in the pursuit of her nefarious work.

More than that, if a shoplifter for any reason should escape paying the penalty of crime in one city she may not be so fortunate in another. Descriptions of all suspected persons are sent out broadcast, and arrest in another city may mean a jail term, even though the thief may have escaped punishment previously.—Philadelphia North American.

Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis

Cured by "CATARRHOZONE."

A Breathe-able "Direct" Medicine.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at its source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing, balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas, if a liquid or tablet remedy were used, the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness, and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums—all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensable as "Catarrhozone."

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed; price $1.00, smaller size 50c; at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

It's pure and old, and rich and creamy—a delight to the palate—and the most nourishing and healthful of malt beverages.

Irl Hicks' Prophesies On September Weather

Weather Prophet Discusses the Conditions That May be Expected During the Next Month.

SOME STORMS SURE

Irl Hicks has the following to say about the September weather:

A reactionary storm period is central on the 3rd, 4th and 5th. The moon is on the celestial equator on the 2nd, within a few hours of perigee, hence decided barometric fluctuations, with probable thunder storms, will appear in many places as early as the 2nd. During the 3rd, 4th and 5th, these disturbances will pass eastwardly over most parts of the country. Rising barometer and clearing, cooler weather will folllow this period for several days.

A regular storm period is central on the 10th, but we have calculated that the new moon, or moon's conjunction with earth and sun on the 14th, would retard the final culmination of this period. The magnetic crisis, occurring annually from about the 8th to the 15th of September, falls in this period. High temperature and low barometer may be expected by the 10th, and storms of notable character will organize and take up their eastward march. These conditions will grow in magnitude and force during the 11th, 12th and possibly up to the 14th. If high barometer and change to cooler follow immediately behind storms about the 10th, 11th and 12th, the new moon on the 14th will lend its perturbing power to the reactionary period immediately following. On and about the 11th, the earth passes a point in its orbit where earth currents, auroral perturbations, and volcanic unrest, as a rule, appear in maximum intensity. This period, of course, is nearing the full force of the autumnal equinox, and storms peculiar to this season should not be allowed to surprise and overwhelm those who are naturally most exposed to their violence.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 15th, 16th, and 17th. Should the storms of the preceding period not subside before new moon on the 14th, threatening to stormy conditions will continue during the 15th to 17th, culminating on and touching the 16th in very positive and forceful disturbances. Within two or three days of sunset on the 14th, seismic shakes will be most natural, and maximum tidal waves will visit many parts of the globe, especially in regions down toward, and beyond the equator. A marked change to high barometer and cooler may reasonably be expected from about the 16th to the 19th. Frosts in northern extremes should not surprise readers of these forecasts at this time.

A regular storm period is central on the 21st, the central day of the autumnal equinox. This period will bring prompt changes of temperature and barometric pressure as early as the 19th in western parts of the country. By the 21st these conditions will bring on storms of rain, wind and thunder, and during the 21st to 23rd these storms will touch most parts of the country in their eastward sweep to the Atlantic. If the barometer is greatly depressed, attended by high temperature, much humidity and fitful, southerly winds, storms will be severe in many localities. All we have said concerning the possibility of West India storms in the south may reasonably be applied at this period. No reckless outlays, or neglect of ordinary business plans should be alloyed, and no foolish forebodings should be indulged; but rational care should be taken if indications should point to approaching equinoctial season. High barometer, stiff gales from the northwest, and change to very cool nights will most probably follow the storms of this period, bringing frosts to numerous localities in states to the northward.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 26th, 27th and 28th. This period leads into the Mercury disturbance, which begins about the 27th and runs into October. The moon is in perigee and on the celestial equator on the 29th, and in opposition with earth and sun on the 30th. This period promises some of the most decided equinoctial disturbances of this autumnal season. The moon being nearest the earth, on the equator and at full moon, so near the time when the sun is centrally on the equator, in the nature of the case we may expect violent perturbances of the atmosphere, as well as great swells and tidal waves along the coasts and open seas. The crisis of this period promises to be retarded, so as to fall on and touching the 29th to 30th. A very low reading of the barometer at this time, especially in all the regions adjacent to the Gulf and south Atlantic coasts, will be positive warning of violence and danger. Marked storm conditions will prevail over most sections of the country at this time, with promise of prolonged disturbances into the first few days of October. This really promises to be the turning period, when summer conditions will give place to autumnal, and when tropical storms will make a last battle with boreal influences and be immediately followed by change to much cooler weather and frosts over much of the country to the northward. From September 28th to about October 4th constitutes a very decided volcanic and seismic crisis.

LONDON'S MAYOR WAS ONCE ACTOR

But His Cloud Later Showed Silver Lining.

London, Aug. 26.—Not many Lord Mayors of London can look back upon a stage experience, yet such was the case with Sir Henry Isaacs, who died recently. His father, Michael Isaacs, a wealthy orange importer and a pillar of the synagogue, as a young man, fell in love with a penniless girl, the pretty niece of Dan Mendoza, some time champion boxer of England, and who for many years taught the noble art of self-defence in a school which he founded on the site of the present Stock Exchange. In this way a gay Bohemianism seems to have got into the blood of the ultra-respectable family of the synagogue warden. His son, Henry, went on the stage, and made a runaway match with a charming Christian lady, whose affinities were also histrionic. An entertainment was once given for their benefit at the now dismantled Eagle theatre, in the City road, when Henry's father disowned him. The romance, however, ended happily, for the young couple were remarried according to Jewish rites, and Henry entered the paternal counting-house from whence he rose to the highest position the City of London can offer.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR VICTORIA

Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 27.—After a lapse of several years the Government of Victoria has decided to make another effort to establish the beet sugar industry in the Colony. A former attempt, made about twelve years ago, failed owing to the lack of experience of those engaged in the enterprise. At that time a large factory was built nad equipped with the necessary plant at a place called Maffra. When the enterprise failed, this factory was taken over by the Government in lieu of the money advanced to aid the industry. It is this factory which is now to be used as an experimental concern, but in addition, there will be other sugar beet experimental stations in suitable localities, each with a Government officer in charge of the work.

It is also intended to procure an experienced manager from the United States to take charge of the factory. The proposal of the Government to re-establish the industry is meeting with a favourable reception from the farmers in the Maffra district. Already a large number of them have promised to devote an area to beet cultivation in order to give the project a fair trial.

SUSPICIOUS DEATH AT CHEMONG

DIES AT CHEMONG AFTER HAVING HAD A FIGHT

Strange Circumstances Surrounding the Death of Arthur Bollard, a Well Known Toronto Boy, Whose Death Occurred Yesterday—Details of the Affair Are Hard to Obtain—Coroner's Inquest Was Commenced This Morning.

The summer gaiety of beautiful Chemong Park has been abruptly checked and in its place reigns the tragedy of a bright promising young life suddenly cut off.

Yesterday afternoon, Arthur Bollard, the nineteen-year-old son of Mr. Alive Bollard, the well-known Toronto tobacconist, who has been summering at the park, passed away and his death, it is said, was due to injuries received as a result of an encounter last Monday night in which he was most roughly treated and in which the principals, it is alleged were he and Fred Jopling, a Bridgenorth young man, who is widely known in this district. Whether his death was caused by the injuries so received or from some natural cause will not be definitely known until a post mortem has been held.

The particulars of the tragic affair so far are decidedly meagre, but the coroner's inquest which was started this morning will throw more light on the circumstances which led up to young Bollard's death. Last night, however, when an Examiner reporter visited Chemong Park to investigate the case he found those who were in a position to know the facts decidedly opposed to giving any information as to just how the affair occurred. Those who might reasonably be expected to know just what had taken place were silent when questioned and stated that they preferred not to talk about the matter at all. Everywhere this was the case, neither the people of Bridgenorth, nor the summer residents at Chemong caring to commit themselves by giving any statement to the press.

Careful Investigation

The Examiner made a careful investigation seeking to get at the true facts of the case and interviewing everyone that it was thought likely would know what had happened. It was impossible to see Jopling, who is said to be ill from an attack of blood poisoning, but other Bridgenorth people who were aproached for information declined to talk over the affair at all.

Sifting all the information that was forthcoming, the circumstances seem to have been that Bollard had an altercation with Harry Jopling, a younger brother of Fred Jopling. The immediate cause of that encounter could not be learned, but it is said that on Monday night, as Bollard was returning through the park to his home from attending a dance in the pavilion, following closely behind his friends, Mr. Herbert Marks, of Toronto and Miss Ada Minns, niece of Mr. Hopwood, he was met by Fred Jopling, who with some other Bridgenorth young men, was waiting near some trees beside the road and that a fight ensued in which Bollard was roughly handled. Mr. Marks went to his friend's assistance, but was, it is alleged, kept back. Some of the residents of the park were aroused by the noise and hurrying to the scene, stopped the encounter, and Bollard was helped to his home. It is stated that he was vomiting from the effects of the assault, but that he was around next morning, although not in the best of condition. On Wednesday, however, he was so ill that he was confined to his bed and his condition steadily grew more serious. Dr. Scott was called in and treated the unfortunate young man. Later Dr. Greer and Halliday was summoned, but in spite of their efforts Bollard gradually sank until 3:30 yesterday afternoon he succumbed.

His Own Story of the Encounter

Mr. Harry Long, of Peterborough, who had been holidaying at the park informed the Examiner that he had a conversation with Bollard on the morning after the assault. Bollard had stated that Harry Jopling had used insulting language to him and he had slapped his ears. "I'll not

WHEN MRS. EDDY DIES—WHAT THEN?

Boston, Mass., Aug. 27.—When Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy dies—what then?

For the first time this question, much discussed outside of Christian Science circles, has been authoritatively answered from within.

In a special interview with the writer at the Christian Science reading rooms, Boylston and Berkley streets, Alfred Farlow, for 20 years Mrs. Eddy's personal friend and now one of the chief executives of the church, made the following statements:

"It is not pleasant to discuss the possibility of the loss of friends through death. This is a matter of which we all try not to think, and it is well, for we know that the thought is antagonistic to life and health.

"For such reasons Christian Scientists, particularly Mrs. Eddy's close associates, have been loth to discuss the future of the church in the event of such a great misfortune as her demise. As a result of this silence, in the face of much outside discussion of the subject, a number of false and absurd impressions have gained credence among people unfamiliar with the meaning of the Science movement.

Will Announce Her Death.

"Should Mrs. Eddy be taken from life, the unfortunate event will be immediately announced through the public press. The idea that her death would be announced is about on a par with the reports that have been circulated in the past that she was already dead. If there was any reason for keeping her death a secret, that would be impossible.

"We believe that our beloved leader has many years of life before her, and there seems to be no reason to fear the contrary. She has lived actively and is still extremely active in her work. But to-day in her eighty-eighth year, she arose at 6 a. m., as she does daily and on every day of the week, and has gone through the regular routine at her desk, in her library, in consultation with her advisers, and she has driven out for refreshment. Mrs. Eddy is a delicate woman, and quite naturally, and so long as I have known her she has never been robust. She is remarkable, however, for her age."

"Does she still wear glasses?"

"Yes, and she has worn them for many years. However, I have seen her read fine print without their use. I recall one time of handing her an article printed in nonpareil type which referred to the fact that she wore glasses. She took off her glasses and read the article without difficulty."

"What does Mrs. Eddy read?"

"She reads the Bible, 'Science and Health,' the Christian Science Journal, and a variety of books and papers.

May Overcome Death.

"You have probably heard," continued Farlow, "the oft-repeated assertion that according to Mrs. Eddy's teachings she can never die, and if she did pass from life it would prove the fallacy of her teachings. This is a great mistake. We do believe that under proper conditions one might attain a Christian and mental development by which death would be overcome. That, however, is far in the future—it may be centuries hence.

"While Mrs. Eddy's science has preserved her remarkably, it is not to be expected that she will be able to escape death."

The writer suggested that, according to the faith, Mrs. Eddy's death might be influenced or caused by her many years of contact with the world, her environment still being mortal, according to Farlow. He assented to this idea, but did not amplify the suggestion.

"What effect would Mrs. Eddy's death have upon the church or the Christian Science movement?" was asked.

"They will go on the same," said Farlow. "But the church will have lost its founder, the board of directors will have lost its guiding spirit, and the people will have lost their faithful and untiring friend. At present the church is controlled by the board, and Mrs. Eddy actively advises with this Board. The leaders and discoverers of the world's great movements and sciences have passed from life, but movements founded on truth have found new leaders, who serve the truth and revere the discoverer because of what he has given to them and to the world. So it will be with Christian Science. But no one person will ever succeed Mrs. Eddy in the leadership she holds.

"Should Mrs. Eddy take leave today, she would have established her work upon a rock base. It will always live."

Trustees to Control.

Farlow said that Mrs. Eddy's personal fortune and the enormous wealth as well as the diversified activities of the church will pass into control of the five trustees. This Board is now composed of the following: Archibald MacLellan, Ira O. Knapp, Stephen A. Chase, A. T. Stewart and J. V. Dittemore, the latter the clerk of the Board.

According to Farlow's estimate (he said that Mrs. Eddy ordered 18 months ago that no more church statistics be compiled) there are now more than 2,000,000 people "interested" in Christian Science. He did not know, he said, the number of members of the Science church. Many people who are members of other churches are interested in the Sci-

SHELLEY REMANDED WITH CHARGE STILL AGAINST HIM

The Simcoe Shooting Case—Crown Has Information of Another Charge and Will Investigate Before Case Is Closed—Criminal Negligence May be Substituted For Murder Charge.

Simcoe, Aug. 27.—Emery Shelley still lies in Simcoe jail with the charge hanging over him of having murdered Michael Hall, the old half-blind farmer who was shot as he was entering his house on August 16. The boy—for he is only fifteen—was brought before Magistrate Murphy at Silver Hill to-day.

Crown Attorney T. R. Slaght immediately applied for a remand for a week on the ground that the Crown required further time to obtain evidence. The request was granted without opposition, Mr. E.W. Kelly, K.C., who has been retained for the defence, not being in attendance. It is understood that while the Crown has no intention of proceeding with the murder charge, it is felt by the Attorney General's Department that Shelley was responsible for Hall's death, and he will be proceeded against upon a charge of criminal negligence.

Apparently it has been assumed that it is desirable that the boy should be kept under restraint, and, therefore, in asking for a remand the capital charge was persisted in to eliminate the question of bail.

When Shelley next comes before the magistrate, a big fight will be made by Mr. Kelly for his release. Counsel for the defence maintains that the proceedings throughout have been irregular from the laying of the information, on which the warrant was issued by Magistrate Murphy, down. The information was sworn to by Sidney Armstrong, a Justice of the Peace, who had no personal knowledge of the occurrence, but laid the information at the suggestion of the Coroner. In the event of Shelley being committed he will have to remain in jail until October before the case is heard.

In the meantime the Crown is acting upon certain information which has been conveyed to it which, it is said, would tend to implicate the boy in another serious crime. It is felt that this should be fully investigated before Shelley is allowed an opportunity of liberty, and this is, as a matter of fact, the explanation of the repeated applications for remand.

Cobalt Mining Company Purchases Oil Wells

The Canadian Central Mines, Limited, operating in Gowganda and Montreal River Districts, and the owners of ten mining properties have purchased the oil leases of the Acme Oil Company, of Detroit. These leases cover 320 acres of the most valuable oil and gas lands in Tilbury East Township.

The Acme Oil Company marketed over $60,000 worth of crude oil from these properties during the past two years. The tenth well just completed on the Henry Cooper lease for the Mining Company, after being shot on Monday, the 23rd inst., started producing oil at the rate of seventy-five to one hundred barrels per day. This proves conclusively that certain parts of the Tilbury oil fields are practically inexhaustible.

Active operations on the development of the Canadian Central Mines holdings is being rapidly pushed ahead. There is room for over forty more wells on the company's property, and it is their intention to start several drilling rigs at work immediately.

The directors of this company are all men of strong financial standing, they are: President, Hon. J. K. Kerr, speaker of the Manitoba Legislature; Vice-President, Stephen C. Edwards, of the W. C. Edwards Lumber Co., of Ottawa; J. G. Turriff, director of the Western Trust Company, and Mr. W. H. Cluff, city auditor of Ottawa.

Patriarche & Company are the fiscal agents for the Canadian Central Mines with headquarters at Toronto.

Airship Flights Will Be Feature Of The Exhibition

Toronto, Aug. 27.—(Special).)—Although it will have no direct connection with the Exhibition, probably the biggest event in this city during the next fortnight, not even excluding the visit of Lord Charles Beresford and other notables, will be the series of trials of the aeroplane of Mr. Glenn H. Curtis, the American aviator, who has been winning aerial races at Rheims during the past week. The aeroplane is the property of the American Aeronautic Society, the leading spirits in which are the Wright Brothers. The aviator in this case will be Charles F. Willard, who a fortnight ago eclipsed the Wright Brothers' record for long distance flying at the Aeronautic Society's grounds near Mineola, L. I. The biplane has already arrived here. It is an enormous affair, over forty feet long, and has a speed capacity of sixty miles an hour, being the only bi-plane at present in America which has been successful at long-distance flights. A number of prominent members of the American Aeronautic Society will be here for the experiments, and an invitation has been extended to Messrs. Baldwin and McCurdy, the Canadian aviators, who recently made some interesting experiments in aerial navigation at the Petawawa Military Camp. Lord Charles Beresford will also view the Exhibition while here. The management of Scarboro Beach, Toronto's big amusement park, has provided the ground for the experiment, and the "Golden Flyer" will be on exhibition there between flights. Mr. Willard, who is a quiet, unassuming individual, declares that he hopes to strike Niagara-on-the-Lake in one flight, or, if the wind is propitious, he may attempt the landing near Hamilton. Mayor Oliver is greatly interested in the flights, and he will ask the captains of the different lake crafts to look out for Willard and the "Golden Flyer," and to render any assistance that may be necessary. The first flight will probably take place on Saturday.

City Gives The Agricultural Society Only $300 This Year

Instead of giving the Agricultural Society an increase of $100 this year the Finance Committee decided to reduce the city's gift by that amount. Last year $400 was received and the Fair directors asked $500 for this year. When the estimates were struck only $300 were provided for the fair. As a result the committee could not grant more no matter how badly they wished to. It is the intention, however, to raise another $100 dollars from outside sources to make up the difference.

Debenture Tenders.

The Finance Committee also opened tenders for the purchase of the city's debentures amounting to $91,500. Of this amount $70,000 is for the water commissioners and $21,500 for street extensions, etc. Tenders were received and they varied considerably and the highest was so low that the committee did not consider them satisfactory. Therefore the sale will be delayed for a short time until the condition of the market is looked into.

The committee decided to subscribe for the Financial Post to enable the city treasurer to keep posted on the bond issues of the country.

Several parties who owe money to the city and are slow in paying will be sent letters by the city solicitor for the purpose of hustling them along.

A list of accounts was then considered and passed.

People Pouring Into Gowganda Local Man Returns From There

Mr. Fred Conroy, East City, returned home last evening after spending the past two months with his brother, Mr. David Conroy. The people, Mr. Conroy states, are pouring into Gowganda Each day sees a large influx of persons to the new country. This is probably the most desirable season of the year to live, with anything like comfort, in Gowganda. The black flies have all disappeared and life is now much more pleasant. Everything is very busy out there.

Mr. Frank Conroy will leave for Gowganda in about a month.

SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS IN CENTRAL

Willie Fallon Appeared Before Magistrate This Morning—Was Found Guilty of Two Charges—Wept as He Heard the Judgment

MORE EVIDENCE TAKEN

Willie Fallon was sentenced to two years less one day in the Central Prison, having been guilty of two charges of assaulting and attempting to rob George Denboro on the night of August 9th and the other, of stealing a silver watch from John Lee of Millbrook on July the thirteenth. The sentences will run concurrently. Fallon wept when he heard the judgment of the court. His Worship remarked in addressing him that he was a young man with a bad record. He had evidently chosen the wayward life and lived in complete defiance of law and right. The law, he said, must be enforced and he passed the above sentence.

THE SECOND CHARGE

Three witnesses gave evidence in the case of the theft of the watch.

John Lee of Manvers said that he was at Port Hope on July 12th and in the city here on thirteenth. It was on the forenoon of the thirteenth that he lost his watch. He had been drinking. Lee identified the watch produced belonging to him. The name "John Steele" was on it but has since been erased. He lay down that morning near the G.T.R. station.

Mr. John Steele, jeweller, of Millbrook was called. He sold the watch to the last witness in April, 1907. The numbers corresponded with the entry made in his book.

P. C. Newhall said that he arrested the prisoner on August the eleventh. In searching him he found the watch produced. Fallon said he bought it from a man in Long's hotel, giving him two dollars for it. He heard Fallon say in his cell, "I expect to have another charge for that watch, Newhall is on to it." He saw Fallon loitering about the G.T.R. station on the night of the 12th. Witness met Lee on Charlotte St. very drunk.

CANADIAN EXHIBIT AT SEATTLE EXPOSITION EXCEEDS OTHERS

Mr. John Riddell, Homewood Avenue, returned home yesterday, after a month's trip to the North West, and the Pacific Coast. Mr. Riddell left Peterborough on July 27th. He is much impressed with his visit, and returns home very enthusiastic over the wheat country. That part of Canada, from Winnipeg to the Rockies, is a country of great fertility. At Brandon and Arden the wheat fields were looking fine. Returning, the wheat west of Winnipeg, for quite a distance, was all cut. Mr. Riddell also visited at Maple Creek, Sask., Calgary, Medicine Hat, Banff, Vancouver and Victoria, B. C.

Mr. Riddell went to the Alaskan-Yukon exposition at Seattle. The attendance at this great exhibition was far below what Mr. Riddell would judge it should be. He heard very favourable comments regarding the Canadian exhibit, it exceeding by far that of many other countries.

Night Performance At Fair Will Be Particularly Good

The Agricultural Society held a very enthousiastic meeting at President Leary's residence on McDonnell street, last night. The directors were out in force and they got through a lot of business. Arrangements were made for ground officials, gate keepers, ticket sellers, etc, and for the decoration of the grounds and pavilion. The directors will go down to the park to-day and settle on what repairs and improvements are necessary.

Another feature this year will be a special concert by the full band of the 57th at the evening performance on Friday night. This will in no way reduce the night's programme already arranged for.

Secretary F. J. A. Hall will open an office in Mr. R. Deane's flyer and feed store in the near future for the benefit of exhibitors, who desire to consult him on any matter.

As time goes on the prospect for the fair grows brighter and the directors more enthusiastic. Peterborough Fair this year will be the real thing.

Sir James P. Whitney, premier of Ontario, has been invited by the Agricultural Society to be present on Friday, September 17th, and perform the opening ceremonies at the fair.

Names Of City's Residents As Found In New Directory

What's in a name, Shakespere asked in Romeo and Juliet, and to a certain extent the question remains unanswered. This article does not pretend in any way to throw light upon the question but merely to point out some of the peculiarities in the list of names found in the new directory of this city. It has just been received and contains a practically complete compilation of the residents of Peterborough with their home and business addresses.

As in the past the O'Brien clan has the largest representation with seventy-five entries. There are 63 who boast of the family cognomen Hall with the Smith faction following closely behind with 60. The Brown are next in line with a showing of 56 and after that there is a considerable distance between the rest of the field.

The industrial arena is represented as follows. 12 Bakers, 3 Barbers, 16 Butchers, 8 Butlers, 3 Coopers, 28 Millers. There are only 3 Stars in the city's constellation and for once there are no Moons. In the colour line there is a predominance of Whites, totalling 38. There are 23 Greens, 19 Grays, 1 Black. There are only 3 Birds, and yet there are 18 Crowes. Among the 28 Henrys are 3 John Henrys, 4 "Bill" Henrys and 2 Tom Henrys. There are 6 Lambs and 5 Coons. There are 7 Longs, 39 Longs, 3 James and one John. There are 12 Prices and only one Profit. One Copp has the city to himself, and it may be a surprise to know that there are 11 Brooks. And so on down the list. It is a rare name that has only one representative. Seven Castles has Peterborough and a number of Kings. There are only 3 Barrs and one Bath, but the Hamilton family tree has 39 branches and that of Kelly has 29. The directory says there are 11 Goodfellows and 2 Goodenoughs. In the whole city there are only 3 Heads. Of the 11 Carters none are known to be carters. Names, names, nothing but names, and after all what is there in a name? A name is not much in itself, but it is what the owner can make it that counts in this world.

WAS FINED $4.60

For Allowing Hens to run at Large—the Neighbour's Tomatoes

A south end resident was fined two dollars and costs at the police court this morning for allowing his hens to run at large eating his neighbor's tomatoes. He pleaded guilty and paid his fine which including costs, amounted to $4.60.

CANADIAN TRADE.

The July trade returns prove conclusively that hard times in Canada have passed and gone. For the four months ending July 31 of the current fiscal year, the total trade of the Dominion amounted to $191,919,304, as compared with $163,551,034 in the first four months of the fiscal year. This includes exports and imports of coin and bullion and foreign merchandise exported through Canada. Imports for consumption for the four months amounted to $114,265,502, an increase of $28,377,303 over the corresponding period of last year. The exports totalled $77,856,408, an increase of 6,193,585 over the corresponding period last year. Total trade increased $28,570,888, in the past four months over the same period last year The total trade of July exceeded that of last year by $7,440,616. The customs receipts for the past four months amounted to $17,885,948, a gain of $3,633,440 over the same period of the last fiscal year. These figures will indicate that confidence has returned, that the factories are busy, that the people have more money to spend, and that the revenue is rising as a result of continued confidence in the administration, and a return to prosperity.

PROBLEMS OF THE UNEMPLOYED

A royal commission appointed by the government of Great Britain in 1905 to study the working of the poor laws and other forms of public relief, finds that the present system of poor law administration is a failure. More tragic than the bankruptcy of a system is the unchecked growth of the evil with which that system was intended to cope. There were 24,000 more paupers in the years 1898-1906 than there were in 1888-96, and 7,000 more than in 1880-88. If we compare the period 1896-1906 with the period 1871-80, we find a decrease of 3.9 per cent. in the total number of paupers, but that, the commission found out, is because there has been a decrease of eighteen per cent. in the number of dependent children, and two per cent. in the number of women. Adult male paupers have increased by no less than eighteen per cent. In other words, the old charge that almshouses were filled as a result of reckless breeding among the very poor has lost most of its force. The ranks of English destitution are now recruited from among grown-up men and women. The increase in pauperism, says the report, is greater during the working years of life than among the very old or very young. For the whole of England and Wales the number of able-bodied persons in receipt of relief in 1896-1906 showed an increase of probably more than thirty-five per cent.

The commission recognizes how vastly complicated is the problem with which it attempts to deal, yet it holds that much can be done. It suggests measures preventive rather than strictly remedial, designed "not so much for the distressed unemployed" as for the purposes of "preventing persons from becoming distressed unemployed." The commission urges the greater need of technical and special education and a higher school age to keep boys from being sent to "blind-alleys." It lays great stress on the usefulness of public labour exchanges, or employment bureaus, in increasing the mobility of labour; Germany, it is pointed out has 700 such bureaus, and they find work for 150,000 persons every month. It urges upon employers the duty of regulating their season of production so as to reduce to a minimum the large reserve of unemployed labour which modern industry demands, and it discusses the possibilities of insurance against unemployment, of labour colonies and of emigration.

THE MAIL AND HON. G. P. GRAHAM

The frenzied attempts of the Conservative press to shake the confidence of the people in the integrity of the Laurier Government, leads to the circulation of unwarranted statements, not supported by a scintilla of evidence.

The Toronto Mail and Toronto News emulate each other in this regard to a degree that would be ludicrous were it not misleading and vicious. These papers will not hesitate to repeat allegations long ago disproved and circulate untruths long since exposed before the people. They seem disposed to fight over again the campaign of 1908, and educate the people upon the issues then decided. Let us take the Mail and Empire in its issue of August 24 upon its own ground.

The Mail bases its attack, upon a recent interview given by Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, upon his return from Europe after having examined into the methods of conducting railways there. One fact that impressed the Minister of Railways was, that in Germany particulars of tenders are not made public, with the result that the management has an advantage in buying.

The Mail, referring to this opinion says:

"The experience of the country with Mr. Graham and his predecessors does not favour this appeal for secrecy in the conduct of a great public work."

The Mail is challenged to quote a single instance during Mr. Graham's administration in which experience proves anything of the kind. The Mail is unable to point to one item in which the country suffered that party men, or any men might benefit. It is a dastardly attack upon a man of the highest integrity of character and against whom there has never been even the breath of scandal since he entered public life many years ago.

The Mail refers to Mr. Graham's predecessors in office also. As to what Mr. Haggart, Conservative, did when he was minister, the Mail may have information not possessed by the general public, but the people of Ontario at least will protest against a man of Mr Graham's clean record being placed in the same category as the hero of Haggart's ditch, and other unsavoury scandals not mentioned here.

The very publicity which the Mail desires is, in Mr. Graham's opinion, one of the causes for high prices which the Government is called upon to pay. Mr. Graham would remedy this, and the Mail would continue the grievance, make it possible, by a continuance of the present system for tenderers to stand in together and keep up the price for Government supplies.

If Mr. Graham succeeded in reducing the expenses on the Intercolonial, the Mail would be deprived of a grievance, therefore it is the policy to place obstructions in the path of reform which the Minister of Railways is anxious to follow.

THE NAVAL PROGRAMME

(Hamilton Herald.)

Premier Asquith's announcement to Parliament of the results of the Imperial defence conference is of course authoritative, but the cabled report of it is rather irritatingly meagre as to the details of the naval programme. Australia and New Zealand, it appears, are each "to present the Empire with vessels of the Indomitable type"—the largest and most powerful of armoured cruisers—one of which, together with three smaller cruisers of the Bristol type, six destroyers and six submarines, will constitute a squadron, of which there are to be three for service in the Pacific—the East Indian, the Australian and the China squadrons. Canada, it is announced, "subject to the approval of the Canadian Parliament," agrees to build cruisers of the Bristol type (how many is not stated), and destroyers of the river class, "making use of both Pacific and Atlantic ports for construction work." The Toronto Globe's Ottawa correspondent, however, wires that opinion at the capital is that "unless some British builder is venturesome, Canadian yards will not be established for some years," because to equip a plant capable of turning out a modern cruiser "is no small undertaking." One of the main arguments used by those who favour the local navy plan is that it will create a great industry in Canada; but this advantage will not of course be gained if the local fleet is to be built in England.

Another cabled account says that Canada is to start on her career as a naval power with two third-class cruisers loaned by the British admiralty, one for service in the Pacific and one in the Atlantic; also with four destroyers for Atlantic service; but whether the destroyers are to be borrowed or built is not stated; all the officers for the borrowed vessels also to be loaned to Canada by the Admiralty. The Canadian naval programme also includes the construction of docks on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts capable of accommodating large warships. These docks will probably be the most valuable and practical contribution made by this country to Imperial defence.

THE CASHIER WAS SHOT BY ROBBERS

But Policeman Captured Loot From Bank.

Flume, Austria, Aug. 27.—Suggestive of a chapter from a Wild West story, and at the same time in some ways akin to the Tottenham outrage, was an attack on a bank at Fiume. Three Russians forced their way into the premises of the Fiume General Credit Bank, shot down the cashier, and abstracted bank notes from the safe and also a sum of 31,000 kronen from a bag in charge of a bank porter. They then made off. The cries of the bank clerks attracted attention, and the robbers were pursued. They fired a number of shots at their pursuers, but finally a policeman succeeded in knocking down one of the fugitives, who is now in custody. He gave his name as Salomon Kisinovski, and described himself as an electrician from Odessa. The stolen money was found on him. His companions escaped.

POST CARD COLUMN

Peterborough, Aug. 27, 1909.

Editor Post Card Column.

Sir,—Considering the two letters by "B. B." and "Member" I think, and I am not writing necessarily for publication, that you should not print such stuff. To talk of conceit in sport, or games, is nonsense, and as I have not been in a canoe this year the reference to canoeing must be to the drowning of Arthur Hanning, about which an inquiry should be held. I have been to practise frequently at the Oval; on the last occasion no hat was fit to use; and the fact remains we could have had games arranged as is usual in cricket clubs. It is a public scandal, this and some other local clubs. I have had no member's ticket and should have paid if I knew the Secretary's address, but after being so shamefully treated over the Warkworth game I shall hesitate to pay.

NOT TO PROSECUTE ROY

Husband of Glacia Calla Freed of Murder Charge in Paris.

Paris, Aug. 28.—Examining Magistrate Bouchard has decided that there was no basis for the prosecution of Paul Roy, whose wife, Glacia Calla, an American actress, accused him of murdering her brother, George A. Carkins, at Newington, N.H., on January 2, 1908.

Roy is a French citizen, and as France does not allow her citizens to be extradited and tried in a foreign country, the American authorities asked the French Government to consider the charge against him. Magistrate Bouchard, whose decision corresponds with that of "no bill" in the American courts, ruled that in view of the conflicting versions of Carkins' death, given by the Carkins family, as well as Roy's insistence that he had fired in self-defence, and Glacia Calla's continued refusal to come to France to testify, no reason exists for trying Roy on the charge.

SUNDAY CONCERT

57th Band May be Heard in Sacred Music—Last Night Wound Up Season.

The concluding concert by the 57th Band for the summer was presented last night at Victoria Park and was enjoyed by probably the largest crowd of the season. The evening was ideal, and for that reason it was with a feeling of regret that the crowd listened to the concluding numbers Mr. W. McIlroy sang The Holy City in a splendid voice', the band accompanying him effectively. Mr. McIlroy's number was received with merited generous applause. Mr. Gliddon stated this morning that there may possibly be a Sunday concert in the near future. The band is preparing a special programme for that purpose and the citizens will likely be given a sacred concert in a week or two.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

There is a certain musical gentleman in the northern part of the city who is and has been for some time past, the cause of considerable annoyance to the residents in his neighbourhood. It is the practice of this modern follower of Orpheus during these summer evenings to parade up and down the thoroughfares emitting blasts from a cornet, which are about as near an approach to melody as a cat-call in a theatre is to a solo by Ben Davies. Occasionally he is accompanied by a fellow artist, even less gifted than himself, and when this junction of forces takes place the uproar is said to be hideous. A love for music is an evidence of a refined nature and deserves a certain amount of encouragement. But like every other ruling passion it needs to be kept strictly within the bounds of common sense. We remember, that in our young days, our special predilection was for the Jew's harp and the mouth organ. People didn't like our efforts, however, and we bowed to popular opinion and gave up all idea of becoming expert in these lines. If the would-be cornetist will take a friendly hint, he will pursue the same course or confine his efforts to the four walls of a barn, or to the friendly solitude of some remote hayfield. It is no evidence of a kindly spirit to disturb the peace of a whole neighbourhood in such an outrageous fashion.

Those whom business or pleasure impelled to the Wolfe Street wharf on Monday morning last, could not have failed to be impressed with the scene which was presented to their view. At 9:20 a.m. two scows were unloading wood at the dock; three large steamers, the Stoney Lake, the Manita and the Otonabee were moored alongside each other with the Beaver and an empty scow lying between them and the Matthews Pork Packing establishment, and the Ajax with another empty scow alongside it was moored to the railway bridge pier. When the Monarch arrived on the scene she could scarcely get her nose in to the wharf to land her passengers. It was a spectacle that showed very clearly the large amount of traffic that the Trent Canal is bringing to Peterborough.

There is considerable adverse comment on the dilatory manner in which the Isolation Hospital matter is being dealt with by the Council. Outsiders of course, do not know everything and are not usually as conversant as they might be with the difficulties that beset aldermen in their dealing with specific questions. But the establishment of an Isolation Hospital in Peterborough is one of paramount importance to the citizens and those who have the matter immediately in hand, seem to be dealing with it in a way, which, as one gentleman expressed it, "savoured more of the puzzle-headedness of a set of backwoods township fathers, than of the representatives of a great and growing city like ours." An Isolation Hospital is an absolute necessity, just as much so as the sewers in our streets, and much more so than our sidewalks, and yet these who have the matter in hand seem to look upon it as a luxury, rather than a safeguard. The expense of the upkeep of an establishment of this sort may be great, but common sense tells us that in all questions touching our physical welfare, that of expediency should have the first call on our consideration.

That was a great tempest that was created over the action of the chairman of the Board of Works in ordering the sidewalk to be laid on the inside of the trees on Benson street. Where mutual recriminations are so generously forthcoming, it is hard for the general public to discover who is to blame, and it by no means enters into our province to attempt to sift the matter. Alderman Phelan is a man who is undoubtedly actuated by a laudable desire to do his duty, but so is everyone of his brother members on the board. Of course, they are all truthful men, and—there you are. One thing is very clear, however, and that is, that there is great need of a more systematic method in dealing with the city sidewalks. No special blame attaches to the present members of the Board of Works, for they seem but to have followed the example of their predecessors in their happy-go-lucky way of doing things. But where is the consistency, where is the sense of fitness, in laying down sidewalks inside a tree line on one street, and outside it on another?

Take London street as an example: There we see that west of Bethune street the sidewalk is laid on the inside of the tree line and that on the east it is laid on the outside. What particularly artistic individual is or was responsible for this state of things? Is it in consonance with geometrical exactitude or topographical beauty? Why should people on one street have a large portion of their lawns curtailed by the arbitrary action of the city and on another be allowed the full scope of their road allowance? It seems as if the Benson street residents have good reason for their wrath.

There is a certain sign in this city that must strike anyone who reads it as somewhat humorous. It reads as follows:

Amateur Printing and Developing Done Here.

The man who exhibits this notice is a professional photographer, and he possibly has not given the matter sufficient thought to see that it might have a detrimental effect on his business with people who are not acquainted with his artistic ability. But he is only one amongst hundreds, yes, and thousands, who unconsciously jumble their sentences together or make use of mixed metaphors.

It is easy for us all to recall to mind many advertisements and sayings that quite eclipse the one we have mentioned. Here are a few: The London Times in February, 1853, had the following advertisement. "Pianoforte—Cottage—7 octaves, the property of a lady leaving England in remarkably elegant walnut case on carved supports." "A young man to look after a horse of the Methodist persuation." "A cottage containing 8 rooms and an acre of land." "A splendid gray horse for sale, calculated for a charger, or would carry a lady with a switch tail." "A respectable young woman wants washing." A shoemaker had this sign: "Don't go elsewhere to be cheated—walk in here."

When we turn to oratory we have the Irish barrister, who in a glowing peroration exclaimed: "Gentlemen of the Jury, it will be for you to say, whether this defendant shall be allowed to come into court with unblushing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw three bullocks out my client's pocket with impunity."

A member of the English Parliament in addressing his clients advised them to pursue habits of thrift: "When you have laid an egg," he said. "Put it by for a rainy day."

There are very few speeches delivered even by our orators in which a hypercritical person could not pick holes. Even our greatest poets and dramatists have not been faultless; Shakespere, Milton, Addison, Longfellow, Victor Hugo, in fact almost every great name in literature could be cited. Take that verse of Longfellow's in his Psalm of Life, which has been so extolled by thousands:

"Footprints, that perhaps another
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and ship-wrecked brother,
Seeing shall take heart again."

It doesn't take much scrutiny to note the extraordinary confusion of metaphors embedied.

Dryden also speaks of angels who—

"Unguarded leave the sky,
And all dissolved in Hallelujahs lie"

Fancy an angel dissolved in a Hallelujah!

Newspapers sometimes manage to get hold of queer items of information. Here is one that may strike the average reader as curious. The gentleman who gave it to us vouches for its truth. If it does not show anything else, it certainly brings out the "let-her-go, Gallagher" methods of business in which certain of our backwoods officials indulge: A year or so ago, a representative of one of the big Ontario lumber companies took a trip to a certain small town for the purpose of paying the shantymen their wages. He had about $8,000 with him, and as he had arrived too late to deposit the money in the bank, he sought out one of the county officials and got his permission to lock up the cash in his safe. His dismay can be better imagined than described, however, when he learned in the course of the evening, that the combination of the safe was known to half the inhabitants of the village. The worthy custodian of the county's documents apparently made no secret of the working of the lock, for in order to guard against forgetting the combination he had not only entrusted the secret of it to others, but had taken the additional safeguard of pasting it upon the wall of the office. Needless to say, the representative of the company had no sleep that night. The window of the hotel where he lodged happened to face the county office, and he kept vigil at the window of the hotel, with revolver in his hand, on the lookout for possible marauders. It is to be hoped there are not many officials of this stamp in Ontario.

The week closing with to-day is notable in historical annals:

To begin with, on the 22nd August, 1858, Queen Victoria and President Buchanan exchanged compliments over the newly laid Atlantic cable.

On August 23rd, 1305, William Wallace, the great Scottish hero, was executed at Smithfield, and on the same date in 1628, George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, was felled by an assassin's knife at Portsmouth.

On August 24th, 1841, Theodore Hook, one of the wittiest and most inveterate practical jokers that England has produced, passed away in London. There can be but few who have not read of some of his escapades; amongst others, that one of his carrying off a wooden figure of a Highlander from in front of a barber shop, and depositing it in a cab, and telling the driver to deposit his friend at a certain address, as he was drunk and could not take care of himself. His greatest exploit, however, was the gigantic hoax that he perpetrated in 1809, when he despatched several thousands of letters to innumerable quarters requesting the addressees, to repair, at a certain time and hour to the house of a maiden lady in Berners street. The thing was so skilfully managed, that at the appointed time all entrances to the street were completely block by a most heterogeneous assemblage. Coal waggons, furniture carts, piano vans, wedding and funeral coaches, filled up the streets; tailors with clothes, pastry cooks with wedding-cakes, undertakers with coffins, fishmongers, butchers, surgeons with instruments, lawyers and clergymen. Even the Lord Mayor, the Governor of the Bank of England, and the Duke of Gloucester were made victims of the schemer. Hook and his friends enjoyed the "tumult from a neighbouring window. An investigation was made but nothing came of it. Hook was too clever to be caught.

This man possessed of talents which, if properly applied, could have raised him very high, died in his 53rd year at Fulham, in the greatest pecuniary embarrassment. Even his misfortunes could not dampen his spirits. "James," he said, one day to his brother. "You and I contradict the great law of nature. You have risen by your gravity, and I have sunk through my levity."

On August 26th, 1770, Thomas Chatterton, the poet died; David Hume also in 1776; James Watt, in 1819, and Sir William Herschel in 1822.

On August 28th, 1836, Leigh Hunt died and on the same day in 1861, William Lyon Mackenzie, came vindicated as a rebel and a firebrand, but now pretty universally recognized as one of the truest patriots that Canada has produced.

Dress Well But Within Your Means

Others besides Polonius in the play of "Hamlet" have warned men not to neglect their outward appearance. This is the practical, worldly side of a problem which sentimentalists have distinguished with such maxims as "clothes do not make the man," and "there's many an honest heart beating beneath a shabby coat."

A woman always likes to see her men-folk well dressed, and can generally detect errors, though it isn't always advisable to point them out.

When a man is well groomed he will look well dressed, though his clothes be old and shabby. If he but looks clean and neat about the head and feet the rest of his person will generally pass muster. These two points usually catch a woman's eye.

When one sees the sort of errors in dress of which courting young men are guilty, it is a wonder they ever succeed in impressing any young woman. Unless, of course, the young woman decides that the man will never dress properly until she has married him and shown him how to. The awful scarecrow in a heavy brown suit, with enormous boots and a necktie rucking up over the back of his collar, certainly seems to need somebody's aid to make him presentable.

Men's hats change in fashion a good deal, but it is always better to select the shape that suits you, rather than look a guy in order to be in the fashion. Good boots, like good suits, always pay. Excepting, perhaps, the patent boot, which is being rightly ousted by the glace kid; brown boots are the most comfortable, but must not be worn with black clothes. The button boot, too, hardly suits a manly man, being rather an effeminate article.

The scarfpin is an article of adornment of an unobtrusive nature with the well-dressed man. A small pearl pin in a black tie, or a turquoise pin in gray and the lighter colours, is the limit. Enormous horseshoes and imitation diamonds on a large scale speak for themselves.

Incongruities are what make a man look badly dressed. A Norfolk jacket should be worn with knickerbockers and not with trousers, except in a case of wearing flannel trousers for tennis or boating. Coloured shirts should harmonize with ties and the suit generally.

Clean boots, well-brushed clothes, a shaven face, white teeth, cared-for hair, trimmed nails, all go toward making a man well dressed.

THE DIVINE CHAMPION.

By Stuart B. Stone

In the town of Bradford there were no other such spellers as Miss Letitia Summers and Bob Porter, the young editor of the Weekly Mercury. Miss Summers could spell phthisis, quay and metempsychosis just like pig—dog—cat; and Mr. Porter never hesitated over the "a" and the "e" in stationary and stationery. It was for this that Miss Summers always blushed when she encountered him.

The worst speller in town was pretty Virginia Lee. Miss Lee had been known to have trouble with words like hyena, bouquet and ostrich. But she had a way of covering her retreat in a mass of rosy dimples and to the tune of musical laughter that conquered even her conquerers—though never could she conquer the unyielding Miss Summers.

For the purpose of practice in orthography, the Bradfordites arranged a "Great Educational, Instructive and Diverting Spelling Bee, to be held at the School House, Friday Evening, June 27; Admission 10 and 25 cents; Proceeds to go to the School Library." Miss Summers, as an acknowledged orthographer, was selected to captain one side. Miss Adams, the banker's daughter accepted the captainey of the other. The Bradforditts pulled down the musty blue books and mumbled and droned them through from "hen" to "Con-stan-ti-nople."

On the evening before the great contest the editor of the Mercury called upon Miss Summers. After the usual preliminary blushes on the part of the lady, the conversation naturally drifted to the coming spelling bee.

"Can you spell 'phantasmagoria'?" demanded Miss Summers.

Mr. Porter rattled it off without blinking.

"You'll do," approved the lady, with a heart-sigh. "If I draw the lot, I shall choose you first of all."

"Thanks, awfully," acknowledged Mr. Porter.

Miss Summers was silent for a moment, then glanced uneasily toward the champion orthographer, "I predict that Virginia Lee won't be able to spell 'camel'," she said, with a giggle.

"Very likely," responded Mr. Porter, with a sigh of his own.

Next evening the school house was crammed to the rafters. Judge Lincoln made a congratulatory speech, then cast the lots. Miss Summers won.

"I choose Bob Porter," she announced, with a ring of triumph, and there was an irreverent titter among the knowing matchmakers. Miss Adams, the opposing captain, chose Judge Lincoln, and one after the other the mighty in orthography were chosen and then the less skilled, until finally all save pretty Virginia Lee stood in line. It was Miss Summers' turn.

"It would make uneven sides," she hesitated.

"I don't want to take part," declared Miss Lee, dimpling divinely, while the spellers laughed.

The battle was a fierce one. Innocent after innocent floundered and fell on Pygmalion, crustacean, syncope and neurasthenia, until the line was reduced to Miss Summers and the great Porter on one side, and Miss Adams on the other.

"Aberration," called the pronouncer.

"A-b-e-r-a-t-i-o-n," spelled Miss Summers, unthinkingly.

"A-b-e-double r-a-t-i-o-n," Miss Adams cried quickly, and Miss Summers sat down in great embarrassment.

Then a sudden sunniness came for the triumphant Miss Adams and she was compelled to depart. A demand was made for a substitute, and the rosy Virginia Lee declared to be the only person in the room who had not succumbed. Strong objections were urged by the Adams side, but the referee insisted Miss Lee was the only one eligible, and, blushing, she faced the champion editor. The referee looked for something easy.

"Giraffe," he called.

"G-i-r-a-f," responded Miss Lee, while everybody tittered and looked expectantly at the editor.

"G-i-r-a-double f," said the editor, hesitatingly, while everybody murmured wonderingly.

"Both wrong," declared the referee. "Sparrow."

"S-p-a-r-o," faltered Miss Lee despairingly.

"S-p-a-r-u-h," spelled Mr. Porter, while his captain voiced her disgust.

"L-u-v," answered the editor.

"L-o-v-e," called Miss Lee, in quick triumph.

"Captain Adams' side wins," declared the referee, "and Miss Virginia Lee is the champion speller of Bradford."

The announcement was a nine-days wonder, but the announcement of the Lee-Porter engagement three months later was a ninety-and-nine days wonder.

WOULD ABOLISH LONG HAT PINS

Paris Prefect of Police Declares These to Be Dangerous.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Mr. Lepine, the Prefect of Police, is at present absorbed in framing an edict prohibiting the wearing of the deadly hatpin as used to fix the Directoire and Empire hats. Some of these hatpins are as much as 16 inches long, and serious accidents are constantly occurring from their use. A month ago a civil engineer was sitting by the side of a lady in a Madeleine Bastille omnibus. The 'bus gave a lurch, and the gentleman's right eye was pierced by the lady's hatpin. Last week a girl employed in a large millinery establishment was blinded by a customer, and an eight-months'-old baby sitting on its mother's lap had its cheek torn in an omnibus. On the Metropolitan underground railway, when the trains pull up suddenly and without a moment's notice, hatpin accidents are of daily occurrence. It is suggested that hatpins might be rendered harmless by the adoption of some such scheme as the safety pin device, or that used for protecting pencil points.

PETERBOROUGH AGAIN SHOWS A BIG GAIN

Second Highest in the Dominion for the Month of July, According to Figures That Have Been Secured by "Construction."

INCREASE OF 244 PER CENT.

"Construction" gives the following figures on the July building operations:

Building returns for July from nineteen centres, while showing a falling off in six places—the largest number of decreases recorded for any month so far this year—nevertheless registers on the whole an average gain of 13.98 per cent. Altogether the situation, as gased on comparative figures supplied "Construction" can be regarded as being most satisfactory, as despite the set-back experienced in five Western cities and the loss noted in the case of Halifax, the gains made in other sections are of such proportions as to leave no doubt as to the substantial progress which is being made at present, and which will in all probability be made for some time to come.

The biggest loss for the month is in the case of Brandon, where a slump of 63 per cent. has been experienced. Winnipeg shows a decline of 32 per cent. Edmonton is third, with a deficit of 25 per cent. Vancouver next by a falling of of 13 per cent., while Regina fails by 11 per cent. to equal her amount for the corresponding period of last year.

These reversals, as affecting the West, cannot, however, be viewed with any degree of alarm, as it was only reasonable to expect, after a protracted period of unprecedented and consecutive gains, that a temporary break was bound to occur. Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver, and Brandon more than doubled their amounts in the preceding month, while Regina registered an increase of 61 per cent. and, in view of this fact, and the big advances made in each case during the first five months, the loss experienced will in no way materially detract from their season's total. All five places, as well as Halifax, which fell back to the extent of 22 per cent., report the immediate outlook as being bright, and show unmistakable signs of an unusually active fall.

Apart from the losses mentioned, a most wholesome condition in general prevailed, in many cases the gains being equal to or better than those registered in the previous months. Victoria had an exceptionally brisk period, her gain of 250 per cent. placing her at the top of the list, while Calgary's increase of 199 per cent. shows conclusively the uninterrupted growth which this city is undergoing. Saskatoon has evidently made substantial headway as her total of $176,315 (not included in following table), although no comparative figures were submitted, clearly indicates a month of tremendous activity.

In Ontario the advance was both steady and strong. Toronto not only had a gain of 43 per cent. but her total of $1,754,105 for permits issued shows the largest volume of business for the month of any city in the Dominion, and Peterborough followed her gain of the preceding month, with another increase of 244 per cent., the second highest gain per cent. noted. London advanced 114 per cent.; Berlin 106; Hamilton 31; and Stratford 0 per cent. Fort William, which failed to submit the amount for the corresponding month of 1908, issued permits for new buildings to cost $185,235; while the month's totals for Port Arthur and Windsor were $114,360 and $33,650 respectively, and it is quite likely that both these latter places are considerably ahead of their previous figures.

Farther east, Montreal has jumped forward by an increase of 63 per cent., the sixth consecutive gain this year; and Sydney, materially adds to her big advance in June and July by another increase of 93 per cent.

As regards fall operations, it may be said that never before at this season of the year has there been so much work in preparation in the architect's offices, or in immediate prospect generally, as at the present time; and reports at hand from all sections of the country give every assurance that all building activities this year will be without a parallel in the past annals of the Dominion.

Why Consumption Is More To Be Dreaded Than Leprosy

The bringing of an alleged leper to New York for treatment is no cause for alarm, declares Dr. George Henry Fox, professor of dermatology in Columbia University, and one of the leading skin specialists in the country.

Leprosy is less contagious than consumption, he further declares, and even if John Early, the alleged leper were in the last stages of the dreaded disease there would be no danger to any one if ordinary precautions be taken.

Dr. Fox has made an exhaustive study of leprosy. A few months ago he made a trip through the West Indies and South America with Dr. Edward B. Bronson, professor of dermatology in the Post-Graduate Medical School of New York, to visit the leper hospitals and study the disease as it is found in the tropics. On this trip he discovered many new facts about the disease, which, in the popular mind at least, is considered the most loathsome of all maladies.

"Leprosy is not anywhere near as contagious as consumption," says Dr Fox. "The popular belief that it is infectious and dangerous is largely caused by impressions given by the Bible. As a matter of fact, the disease which Biblical writers called leprosy was not leprosy at all. Leprosy is a germ disease, and the little microorganisms which cause it are not unlike the tubercle germs which cause consumption. A person in good health can live among the lepers without running any danger of catching the disease. The Catholic sisters who act as nurses in the big leper hospital at Trinidad have been there for years and not one of them has ever contracted the disease The mother superior told me that she had been there for thirty-five years, except for a few brief vacations, and she had never been ill a day. When a person is inclined to be sickly, then there is some danger of contracting it. The generally accepted theory is that only constant inhaling of these leprosy germs will cause the disease.

"Leprosy when unaccompanied by anything else is not any worse than a hundred other diseases, and when taken in time can be cured. A change of climate, plenty of exercise and good food are about all that is required.

"One would naturally expect to find the inmates of leper hospitals very much depressed, but strangely enough that is far from the case. They can hardly be called cheerful, these lepers in West Indian and South American hospitals, but they accept the situation stoically. This is because they are low down in the social scale and have practically no education or finer sensibilities. An educated man who is afflicted with leprosy becomes much depressed. The disease preys on his mind, and not infrequently he becomes mentally unbalanced. The social condition of the West Indies and South American lepers is so poor that they find living in hospitals preferable to working.

"While leprosy is on the increase in those parts, there is no danger of it spreading to this country. Even if it did it could be quickly checked.

Russian Boy Finds Father In Dorchester, Ontario, After Searching Half The Globe

Had Been Missing 23 Years—Disappeared When Son Was Two Years Old—Boy Has Searched Since He Was Ten—Sent Out Hundreds of Letters.

FATHER MARRIED AGAIN

New York, Aug. 28.—The World says: August Linde, cashier for the Athens Hotel, has found his father after a search that lasted years and extended half way around the world.

The father was a merchant in the Russian Government of Volynet, in the year 1886, possessed of property, a wife, a little boy and girl. One day the father disappeared when August was two years old. Year after year the mother searched Europe for traces of her missing husband. When August was ten he set out to realize a day dream of a home in which his father was restored to the chief place, a dream that became a haunting passion.

His first travels took him into Austria, where he went from town to town, asking every postmaster and every official of the Elder Line. Then he went through Germany from place to place. His mother in the meantime, with her little girl, had sought a new home in New York. After searching Germany young August searched Scotland in vain.

The lad sailed from Glasgow to New York to join his mother, who had landed in 1893, and was continuing the search for her husband. There came hard times for the little boy. He sold papers in the streets of New York, picked up what scanty pennies he could find, and spent what he made buying postage stamps to write to every postmaster of every capital city in the Union.

The letters came back with the same monotonous information.

No such Linde was recorded in the city directory. Eight years ago the boy turned his attention to the Dominion of Canada. He wrote to the Postmaster-General, and his letter brought the reply that mail had been delivered to a man named Linde, and an address was sent. To this address the lad wrote. No answer ever came and the youngster was on the verge of suicide. He debated the question of life and death with the seriousness of the very young.

Hope won the battle, the boy struggled along, and had become comfortably situated when, last October, he learned that his father was at Dorchester, Ont. A letter to that address found the man for whom August had searched for years.

In 1897 the mother had died. Her daughter had married a Brooklyn man. As a result of correspondence between the son and father, August went to Dorchester. He returned Sunday.

He said that he found his father a man of fifty with another wife and a family of two. His father he said, owns a hotel and has considerable property.

Linde says that his father besought him to stop and share in his business, but that he refused.

Anniversary Of Wolfe's Death

On the thirteenth of next month the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the death of General James Wolfe, the hero of Quebec, is to be celebrated. In view of this fact it is well to refresh our minds with the story of one of the most notable feats in the annals of our Imperial history, and with that of the hero who achieved it.

Although Wolfe's father was a soldier, and a distinguished one, his illustrious son is an excellent example of sheer merit winning its way without any help or favour or fortune. As a fact, both father and son were self-made.

Without social influence both father and son rose rapidly in a profession where wealth and family connection were a surer road to preferment than zeal and ability; both fought in Flanders and assisted to put down rebellion in Scotland; both made their mark by devotion to duty, their courage and resource in warfare, their efforts to improve in the hour of peace the instrument to which there must be appeal in any national crisis. The elder Wolfe's opportunities for distinction were sharply defined by Walpole and his policy of peace; the younger Wolfe got his chance when Pitt determined that war, war at any cost of life and treasure, war in any part of the world where the French could be found, was essential to the security and the future of the British people.

From the time of the founding of Jamestown by John Smith, and of Quebec by Champlain in the seventeenth century, England and France had been in continual competition for the riches of North America. With his country the object of acquisition of territory was to develop trade and agriculture. France had more ambitious views. The two nations were perpetually at loggerheads, and encounters took place both on land and at sea. The culminating point was reached when Pitt decided to strike at France through her American possessions. France attempted to retaliate by a counterstroke nearer home, and thereby save Canada and humiliate England.

Wolfe's Formidable Task

Big fleets were prepared at Havre and Brest and Toulon in 1759 with a view to a descent in force on England and Ireland . . . The Navy saved England from this distracting effort. Vigilant as daring, her commanders never gave the French fleets a chance of concentrating. They were always on hand, whatever the conditions of the weather. Boscawen resolved the Toulon fleet into its elements off Lagos; Rodney destroyed every vestige of boat at Havre and a large part of the town itself; Hawke watched Conflans at Brest for months, and finally disposed of him in Quiberon Bay.

These naval successes not only averted all danger of a French invasion but left Wolfe free to fulfil his mission on the St. Lawrence; for British forces were descending on Canada to try conclusions once and for all. The objective was the subjugation of Quebec. The story of the prolonged siege of this fortress and the manner in which it was ultimately forced to surrender is too well known (or should be too well known) to bear being retold. But it is interesting to get as clear an impression as is possible of Wolfe, the hero of the story, from the facts that have survived the grim encounter. His task was indeed a formidable one. After taking his army up the St. Lawrence, a river deemed unnavigable, he was face to face with an impregnable fortress, as it seemed, defended with an activity and determination unexampled in history. Montcalm, the French general, lay securely ensconced in Quebec with a superior army and quite unassailable. He refused to be drawn into the open, believing that it was only a question of time before the British would have to strike their camps and depart in discomfiture, their object unachieved. "You may demolish Quebec," said one of the French, "you will never get inside it." "I will take Quebec if I stay here till November," replied Wolfe. It was then July.

Wolfe as Empire Builder

Wolfe's first attempt to pierce the enemy's lines was attended by disaster. It cost him 800 men, and told on his health. During the whole of his career Wolfe was cursed by bad health. It was a constant battle against physical deficiency and only an unconquerable spirit such as he possessed could have got the better of it. To add to his difficulties before Quebec he was prostrated by fever. Yet in his severest illness Wolfe's thoughts were always of his country and of his duty to it.

He told his doctor that he knew he could not cure his complaint, but begged to be patched up so that he might be without pain for a few days and able to do his duty. "That is all I want."
